University Assumes New Wartime Burdens--Dr. Cody

4,000 Students to Take Military Training Here

University to become One of Most Active Military Centres in Dominion with Undergraduates in Training

GO TO CAMP IN SPRING

Springing to decisive action in the face of a war-torn world, the University of Toronto will this year become one of the most active military centres in the country with over 4,000 male undergraduates engaged in various forms of military training. This was indicated in details completed and made public early this week.

After consultation with government military and defence officials, it has been agreed that all physically fit male undergraduates, 18 years of age or over, will be required to take military training. This ruling applies to all Canadian universities.

Present members of the C.O.T.C., and those students in their graduating year who are accepted, will form the regular C.O.T.C. contingent under the command of Lt.-Col. H. H. Madill, V.D.

Those students in age-classes coming under the National Resources Mobilization Act will take a government-prescribed training course at university, followed by two weeks at camp in the spring, it was revealed. This arrangement has been made in order to eliminate interruption of academic courses during the year. Students over 18 but under the age-limit specified in the Mobilization Act will receive a separate training course, but officials announced that both these groups would be organized together as an Auxiliary Battalion of the C.O.T.C. with Major W. S. Wilson as Acting Commanding Officer.

Complete official information regarding every phase of university military training is contained in the special military supplement published Monday by The Varsity and issued again today with the first regular edition. Students are urged to save this supplement for future reference. Any further changes will be made public through the columns of The Varsity, along with daily schedules and bulletins from the respective headquarters.

Join in the Backstage Bustle Of Canada's Leading Daily

Does the sound of a clattering typewriter intrigue you? Does the sight of hot lead tumbling into the receiving tray of a linotype machine stimulate you? Does the smell of printer's ink reeking from the thundering presses thrill you with primalive exultation?

If it does, join the staff of The Varsity. There are openings—plenty of them—for both men and women undergraduates of all faculties. Sign on as a cub reporter, on either the news or sports staff, and become an integral part of the largest campus daily in Canada.

The bustle in the news room when a big story breaks—the off-key jangle of a telephone—the dead-line fight, as a reporter tormenting a battered typewriter races a cool and unburied clock—the expression on the compositor's face as the haggard night-editor groans, in the best Hollywood manner, "Tear out Page 1. We'll have to re-plate"—you'll see them all, and hear them, and live them—these thrills of college journalism.

The ultimate in newspaper thrills—seeing your own story, topped by a banner head-line and spotted in the top right corner, and carrying your own

MILITARY NOTICE

All students aged 20 to 24 inclusive as at July 1, 1940 (i.e., those who were over 20 but under 25 on July 1) are required under the National Resources Mobilization Act to take compulsory military training.

Such students must be registered for such training at the Orderly Room, Auxiliary Battalion, Hart House by Saturday, Sept. 28. In order that the names of such students may be furnished to the Dominion Government.

Otherwise, such students will be liable for a call to training at a training centre, for a 30-day period.

WARDEN BICKERSTETH STAYS IN ENGLAND

Warden of Hart House for Past 19 Years Granted Leave of Absence to Serve in England

SERVES WITH HOME GUARD

J. B. Bickersteth, M.C., with bar, M.A. (Oxon), warden of Hart House for the past 19 years, has been granted leave of absence by the university Board of Governors to serve with the Home Guard in his native Canterbury, England.

Mr. Bickersteth has been serving since June with the Home Guard in Canterbury, the county town of Kent, which has been bombed frequently by German air raiders.

Soon after graduation from Oxford, Mr. Bickersteth came to Canada and worked as a railway labourer with the Grand Trunk lines in the west. He later became a lecturer in history at the University of Alberta.

At the outbreak of the First Great War he returned to England to enlist. (Continued on Page 9)

"It is no easy task that lies before us..."—PRESIDENT CODY.

EDITORIAL

"Let us face our task with serious determination; let us get the utmost out of our mental disciplines; let us waste no time; let us remember the responsibilities which go with our privileges and discharge those responsibilities in the right spirit. . . . Our country will need and will demand the fullest measure of our devotion and our sacrifice."

With these simple yet eloquent words our President has laid upon us our charge—a charge which must be met squarely and proudly, a charge which we must bear as a shining sword, a charge which it must be our supreme duty and privilege to fulfil. This he has laid before us in his message, printed elsewhere in this paper. We urge every student to take his message to heart, making of it a text for guidance as we commence another year "after twelve months of war, at the very crisis of our fate."

With a maddened world aflame about us, we are setting out upon a year that indeed "will be unlike any you have spent in the past." Old pleasures, privileges and activities fade away; new duties and responsibilities come to the fore. May we all have "the greatness of soul" to adapt ourselves, with neither murmur nor complaint, to the new pattern, and to shoulder the heavier load which can never be termed a burden as long as we keep in mind's view the order that shall result from "this magnificent stand against ruthless aggression and for the preservation of the liberties of free men." We must remember that freedom and the privileges we enjoy can be neither won nor deserved if duties are neglected.

The President has spoken of the special responsibility that falls to Canadian universities since British institutions have been forced to abandon their normal activities. The torch of learning must be carried aloft and the quest for knowledge go on without cease even though they be threatened by the forces of darkness elsewhere. At present great contributions to knowledge and to the war effort in particular (Continued on editorial page)

The Hart House Glee Club will carry on for the 1940-41 season it was decided at a recent meeting of the committee under the director, Dr. Charles Penker, F.R.C.O. ### O.C.E. Appointments Are Announced

E. L. Danilch, instructor in University of Toronto schools for the past 25 years, has been promoted to lecturer in Methods in History in the Ontario College of Education, President H. J. Cody announced last night.

MANY REFUGEES PLACED IN HOMES BY COMMITTEE

Appointed in June, Committee Has Placed 141 Children and Mothers in Canada and the United States

NOW DISBANDED

The University of Toronto Committee for British Overseas Children has placed 121 children and 20 mothers in homes in Canada and the United States since its inauguration last June, it was announced yesterday.

The committee was appointed early in June under the auspices of the University-Women's War Service Committee in response to the communications from staff members of British universities in regard to the possible placement of their children in Canadian university-homes.

A committee was set up under the chairmanship of Mrs. Peter Sandiford with Mrs. J. E. Shaw as vice-chairman. As the work involved became too difficult for the small group to handle the membership was broadened and various sub-committees named.

2,300 Grads Attend Ball But Children Biggest Problem

Summer activities of Hart House were less numerous this year than in previous summers because of arrangements to care for British Guest Children, which kept officials busy throughout most of the season. Acting-warden Gillies told The Varsity yesterday.

Dr. and Mrs. Cody presided at a reception to the Canadian Conference of Social Workers held in the House May 21; the American Association of Variable Star Observers held a meeting there on June 1; nurses graduating from the Toronto School of Nursing met on June 4, and the Nursing School garden party was held June 5.

Research Workers in Chemistry, Physics, Medicine, Physiology and Psychology Doing Valuable War Work

ENLISTMENTS OVER 500

A university rallying solidly behind the Dominion's war effort and assisting the Canadian Government in those ways in which it is peculiarly adapted was revealed by President H. J. Cody in his annual address to staff and student bodies at Convocation Hall yesterday.

In addition to assuming the responsibility of keeping alive the flame of learning, thrown upon Canadian universities by the pressure of war in the United Kingdom, research workers in many departments are now devoting their full-time efforts to rendering special assistance to the Dominion Government, Dr. Cody said.

Chemists, physicists and workers in medical research in the university had been engaged throughout the summer in special research problems submitted to them by the Dominion Government. The Department of Physiology was now preparing steady shipments of concentrated blood serum, now in powder form, more suitable for shipment, to Great Britain.

The Department of Psychology was conducting tests in aerodynamics, providing new standards of examinations for airmen entering the air force under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

At present, Dr. Cody revealed, more than 500 undergraduates and graduates of the university have enlisted in Canada's armed forces. The need for men to serve in Canada on home defence and overseas, not as great as in the last war when more than 600 of the 6,000 university men who joined gave up their lives, would likely increase as soon as Great Britain took the offensive, he said.

In addition, members of the staff had co-operated greatly, many of them giving up their holidays to arrange for the bringing to Canada and supporting for the duration a number of wives and children of British university professors.

One new course—Health and Physical Education, headed by Dr. Stanley Ryerson, assistant dean of the Faculty of Medicine, has been started this year. It will provide and train men for physical educational work, the President said.

After consultation among themselves and with governmental authorities, the Canadian universities have decided to carry on their program of study and research, and have secured an agreement with the Dominion Government (Continued on Page 4)

Dental Society met in Hart House, and on June 19, Dr. Duncan Graham, prominent professor in medicine at the University of Toronto, and Mrs. Graham, presided at a garden party for members of the Canadian Dental Association. More than 2,300 graduating students attended the Graduation Ball on June 7, Mr. Gillies said.

Only other event in Hart House during the summer occurred Sept. 3, when representatives of the American Society of Ichthyologists and Herpetologists held a dinner.

The Varsity will publish, in the near future, a comprehensive account of the part Hart House and the university played in the care of the guest children.

Sixty Years

Sixty years ago, less ten days, a tiny literary publication poked its nose unobtrusively onto the Toronto campus. Sixty years of slow and steady growth have passed, and today a thriving daily newspaper has won a position of paramount importance in the day-to-day life of this university. For this year The Varsity, published for and by undergraduates, celebrates its Diamond Jubilee.

It is upon an uncharted and perhaps stormy sea that we launch this first issue. Facing the second year of a world upheaval which must touch us all closely, the future appears at times uncertain. But The Varsity, performing a vital function in ordinary university life, has an even greater role to fill in a war-time year. We are glad to say that at the present time we see nothing ahead to interfere with regular publication.

The Varsity has always been one of the truly unifying forces of the university which, due to its federative organization, often feels the pull of local loyalties. Here on the staff every faculty is represented, and in these pages the doings of every faculty and college are recorded as fairly as possible. It is the mirror of the university at work and at play, as a whole. Then too, along with the rest of the Canadian campus press, The Varsity must act as a training school for future journalists in a country where no school of journalism exists. Many of our staff members have had sound experience with Canadian daily newspapers during the summer by virtue of their work on The Varsity.

A member of the Canadian University Press, The Varsity presents up-to-the-minute news from every campus in Canada, sped across country by a well-developed wire service which keeps member papers in constant touch. C.U.P. services have been greatly expanded in the last few years and it is our ardent hope that such expansion and improvement may continue. A weekly Canadian Campus column was inaugurated last year, and next week a new feature, "Wide-eyed in Gotham" will commence.

War conditions bring to The Varsity a new role, and it has not been slow in answering the call. Last year with about 1500 in the C.O.T.C. The Varsity opened its columns to the publication of daily bulletins from C.O.T.C. headquarters. This year with almost every male undergraduate taking military training, this function of The Varsity must necessarily expand. Students will find complete official information as to details of military training printed in these columns through the year. Already a comprehensive military supplement has been published.

And so The Varsity carries on after sixty years of service. We sincerely hope these columns may prove of inspiration to some, as we attempt to present both a reflection and an interpretation of student and world affairs. It is a big task, time is at a premium for those in charge, and our staff is small, human and fallible. Mistakes will be made and criticisms will be easy. But we believe in The Varsity and in its function in the university. Therefore, mindful of our task and our responsibility in this time of stress, we carry on. But we need your help, and so we few undergraduates who produce your newspaper ask the understanding and cooperation of you many undergraduates who provide the means and the incentive for its production.

Editorial

are issuing from our laboratories and classrooms. These must be carried on.

"The universities of Canada," writes Dr. Cody, "have given a fine lead in preparing the youth of Canada to bear their part in the defence of their country. Not only their country, but ultimately of their Empire, their ideals and values, and their whole way of life. As outlined elsewhere in this issue, a complete system of military training embracing all fit male undergraduates has been set up. Men will be called upon to sacrifice much. Time will be scarce, and many pleasant activities will have to be curtailed. But when we take stock of our privileges in being thus able to carry on with our education in a war-torn world where everyone is making sacrifices, we realize that the sacrifice is rendered insignificant. The government has made a great concession in this matter, and as President Cody states, "it is a concession which we gratefully acknowledge."

Intercollegiate athletics have been discontinued following consultation with the Minister of National Defence. There are pros and cons to such a drastic move, but when the facts are weighed carefully and impartially, the decision seems justified. We feel however that any attempt to cut down radically on inter-faculty sports would be an ill-advised step. Serious reduction of athletics would have, we maintain, a deteriorating effect on military service, academic work, and student morale and fitness. Inter-faculty sport is of such a nature that it can function not in conflict with but as a supplement to military training. Why women's intercollegiate sports have been cut out is another matter, for there appears to have been no logical reason advanced as yet.

The question of social events is an important one. The President has urged "simplicity and modesty of expenditure" and with this we heartily agree. But on no account should there be a wholesale slaughter of social activities. There must be sacrifice in war-time, but too much sacrifice is blind, directed only toward winning the praise and approval of others. We note with satisfaction that no restriction of traditional college dances is in prospect. Likewise plans are going ahead for most of the usual college dramatic and entertainment lines. Activities should be run on a more modest financial scale, but they should not be abandoned, and we are sure that a large portion of the proceeds will find its way into helpful channels.

We are engaged in a "grim struggle" for "those spiritual values which alone make life worth living." Let us live and carry ourselves in such a way that those values and ideals will be worth fighting for, because if our actions contradict the beliefs we profess aloud to hold, then their preservation is a waste effort and our hypocrisy will be blatant.

"You are living in a great time; I trust that you will have the greatness of soul with which to meet it. Have pride in the past of the world-girdling empire of which we are free members; have that courage in the present which bids us defend our heritage; have confidence in the future victory of those ideals of life, individual and national, which are the reflections of the character of God Himself."

We thank President Cody for laying down so clearly our task. Let us bear it nobly and manfully and gratefully. We can do it.

"None could ever accuse Toronto of lacking in appreciation of fine music. Each new season introduces more renowned artists. The Eaton Auditorium has taken a major share in promoting an ever-increasing interest in the last nine or ten years and this season emphasizes its consistent policy of making the best available for its patrons. This season four major concert series are again presented.

"The Artists' Thursday Series which opens the season on October 10th presents the beloved Metropolitan tenor, Richard Crooks. Two nights later, on October 12th, Crooks will also give the first concert of the Artists' Saturday Series. A similar schedule of dates has been arranged for all the artists in these two series. Others in this series will be Anna Kaskas, Lithuanian-American contralto, who won the Metropolitan Opera Association's first audition of the air; Rudolf Serkin, the celebrated Czechoslovakian pianist; that superb baritone, Lawrence Tibbett; and Helen Traubel, dramatic soprano, whose Metropolitan debut last season called forth eulogies from the press.

The Facts of Life

Since time immemorial, the Cat in its big-hearted way has been doing out "Hints-for-Freshmen" columns, but this year, for the first time, we give you the unexpurgated low-down.

It is not generally known that "U. of T." stands for University of Toronto. While this fact may shock the more sensitive of us at first, it is better that we face it clear-eyed and unashamed.

The bravest of us will justifiably blanch when confronted with the terrifying compendium contained in pages 13-81 of the Students' Handbook, but the Cat cannot impress too strongly upon its acolytes the absolute necessity of making themselves cognizant of every shred of even the tritest trivia. Remember that the Handbook is your last official source of information until the publication of the Students' Directory, which, by the way, will set you back plenty.

And now, acolytes, gather round the Cat while he whispers to you the unvarnished truth about—ssssshhhhh—neckties.

1. A RED necktie (Meds.), unlike other types of red tape, is quite easy to cut. But remember that these embryo surgeons are equipped with awfully sensitive scalpels.

2. A MOTTLED necktie looking like an inverted case of measles (U.C.) makes one of the smartest button-holes

Speaking OF SPORT

By Owen Prichard

THE SCENE CHANGES

We want to go to bat right here and say it's very unfortunate that conditions demand that intercollegiate athletics be suspended during the present disastrous times. But when some dimwit wails "Ain't it a shame!" we merely nod the noggin in wistful fashion and then promptly forget about the whole thing.

Yes, we know you were looking forward to the blare of bands and the antics of cheerleaders, and the thrilling hush which comes between the last notes of "The King" and the roar of that first big "Come Onnnn VARSITY!" But any game in which we participate either as players or spectators would seem to be grim and hollow sport indeed were it held at the possible cost of additional suffering heaped on the innocent and helpless in a war-torn world.

BEGINNING TODAY—"JOE DOAKES' BIG CHANCE"

The athletic emphasis during the semester now commencing will be definitely intramural. The Athletic Directorate is endeavouring to provide a program that will give full scope to all the athletic proclivities of the student body. The only sport we know of which has been cancelled is rowing. The annual fall tournaments in tennis and golf, formerly held early to make way for the intercollegiate fixtures, have now been scheduled to begin later in the season. This arrangement gives the lads a chance to get settled in their courses and to get into shape for the contests. It has frequently been noted in this column that the interfaculty athletic set-up is designed for the benefit of the students of average ability who enjoy playing some sport. But for the edification of our freshman readers (bless their hearts!) we stress the fact that anyone on this campus who wishes to play on a team is given every help and consideration.

Spectator interest this year will likewise move to the smaller units of our athletic life. This will be all to the good, since it will make for closer contact between the athletes and the college mates who cheer their endeavours.

That valued institution, the Athletic Fee, will be just as lavish as ever in making numerous privileges available by the magic waving of your registration card. There will be a free students' section reserved at the Stadium for the regular football games.

It looks like a very busy year ahead in the realm of sport, with changed conditions imparting fresh interest and new impetus to the athletic life of this university.

logical specimens could be collected in the area.

"This is the third survey which has been made of the Kenora district by the Museum in the last few years," stated Professor J. R. Dymond in an interview yesterday. "Before these surveys 90 per cent of our zoological knowledge of Ontario was confined to Southern Ontario, about 10 per cent of its area.

A 1400 pound white whale, captured at Fort Churchill, and a Pygmy Shrew, the smallest North American mammal, were included in the collection of 261 specimens of mammals made by Leslie Prince. "The whale was caught from a high-powered canoe," he explained.

The Indian population of the district consists of about 90 Crees, said Mr. Hope, and he told of one of them who was puzzled as to why the three white men took so much trouble, and came so far, merely to take back specimens. He was satisfied with the explanation that the specimens were to be taken back and put in a big house, so that all the white men who could not come up to Fort Severn could go and look at them.

Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Cody assisted the committee in many ways including the arrangements with the British universities and with the Canadian Government.

The University of Toronto Institute for Child Study offered the use of their quarters to the committee for the summer. A permanent staff of two members and many volunteers gave their time in the work. The main committee has disbanded but the work of the Finance and Mothers' Placement Committees will continue to demand time and attention, it was revealed.

Two more mothers and about 20 children are expected shortly.

Argonauts, Balmy Beach Clash for DeGruchy Cup

EXPECT BIG SEASON IN INTRAMURAL SPORT

The return on Monday of Intramural Sports Director "Mac" McCutcheon, is expected to herald the opening of the most ambitious program of interfaculty competition ever held on the campus. The addition of former intercollegiate players to the interfaculty teams is expected to raise the standard of the games, especially in rugby and basketball. It is hoped that these more experienced players will also assume coaching and managerial duties.

The only sport which has been cancelled for the year is rowing. No rowing was done at all this summer and the shells have been stored away for the winter. In every other sport an increased number of teams is anticipated. It is even hoped that the hockey league will be of such a high calibre that the general public may be attracted to the games.

The lacrosse, soccer and rugby schedules will commence around October 10th with the volleyball league commencing soon after. Golf, tennis, track and harrier meets will all take place during the month of October.

Teams Have Drilled for Weeks in Preparation for Tussle Over Possession of City Championship

STUDENTS ADMITTED FREE

Big guns start booming along the grid front this Saturday afternoon when the Argonauts clash with Balmy Beach in quest of the John DeGruchy Cup at Varsity Stadium.

Both squads have been drilling faithfully for the past few weeks in order to whip themselves into the best possible shape for the annual tussle to decide who shall be possessors of the city rugby championship. A real rivalry has existed between the two clubs for the past several years and it generally flares up about this time of the year when the two outfits are ready to tussle for the venerable old mug.

Lew Hayman was sending the double blue through their paces under the floodlights on the back campus last night and the boys exhibited a real desire to get in there and fight. Ten men were cut from the team last Monday and it is expected that at least another ten will be eliminated after this Saturday's contest. That would still leave thirty-three men on the team which is a fair number on any man's outfit.

The Sculler line-up for the game was still an unknown quantity although the local experts have a fair idea of who will start. It is expected that Hi Living will fill in the centre slot as he has been hot in practice. George Sprague and Steve Levantis should get the call for the middle positions with Bernie Thornton and Reid holding down the outside berths. Bill Stukus will be barking the signals in front of Bobby Coulter, Art West and Elwin Morris on the half line.

Bobby Porter will probably do the booting for the east end crew, with Johnny Manson beside him on the half-line to do the plunging. Unfortunately for the Beavers young Jack Frizelle will be out of the game for the next few weeks.

Half the proceeds will go to the Canadian Red Cross and the other half will go into the John DeGruchy fund. Varsity students will be admitted free to this and all other league games at the Stadium this fall.

SERIOUS, REFLECTIVE SPIRIT URGED

whereby these programs may be continued in co-operation with, but NOT interrupted by the calling up of men under the national military training scheme.

"The Government has made a real concession in letting us make this arrangement," Dr. Cody, president of the Association of Canadian Universities declared, "and all the universities have pledged themselves to train students of 18 years and over."

There were certain exceptions, but "I cannot conceive that any physically fit young man, either married or single, would do anything to avoid making this contribution for his country."

The spirit with which students must go back to their studies, President Cody said, was "necessarily serious and reflective."

"We must waste no time, but as a privileged group, with amazing and unique opportunities, begin to work at once, form good habits of study, recreation and exercise, and choose our friends wisely."

While the university course was a part of the student's life as well as his preparation for life, the President asserted, "the eyes of the public are fastened upon us, in many quarters with no kindly gaze."

Backgrounded by staff members and deans of the various university faculties, he reiterated his statement of exactly a year ago that pyjama parades, bad races, theatre invasions "and other turbulent and vigorous fashions are not seemly or wise at the present time."

"Keep your social and recreational activities as simple, as seemly, as sensible and as inexpensive as possible. Before we finish this struggle for life we shall need all our resources. It is

INTERCOLLEGIATE BAN PROVIDES STIMULUS TO INTRAMURAL PLAY

Rugby, Golf and Tennis Tourneys Coming Up will Draw All Interest of Sport Fans. Soccer to Start Oct. 15

Down at the Athletic Office, phones are beginning to jangle once more and typewriters to bang out schedules for the intercollegiate sport year of '40-'41.

With intercollegiate competition out of the picture, the faculties will be getting down to the serious business of booting home as many winners as possible, for student interest will centre around facilities this year, and not universities.

Rugby should be moving at a good clip before another week is out. C.O. T.C. drills do not start until the 15th of next month, and that should give the footballers time to loosen up. The first games are scheduled for Saturday, October 10th, when the U.C., Vic, and Trinity fields will all feel the thud of cleated boots.

Golf is also in the limelight this fall. A tournament open to all undergrads is being staged on Friday, October 4th at the Glen Eagles Club, starting at 9 a.m. There are four flights, and prizes will be awarded for the low gross and low net in each flight. It is not a tournament that the novice need be shy about entering, for he has an equal chance with the expert. Entries will be accepted at the Athletic Office up to Wednesday, October 2nd, at 5 p.m. The draw will be announced in The Star and The Varsity on Thursday, October 3rd.

A tennis tournament is slated to take place on the St. Hilda's courts Tuesday, October 15th, and entries will be accepted at the Athletic Office not later than October 11th at 5 p.m. The draw will appear in the Globe and Mail on October 15th.

Frosh trackmen will get a chance to peddle their wares to the university public at the freshman meet to be held October 11th. Entries will be accepted at the usual place as late as the day before the meet.

Soccer, volleyball and lacrosse schedules are to be drawn up soon, and it is hoped that these leagues will be ready to get under way by October 15th.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

Professor S. Beatty, Dean of the Faculty of Arts, will speak at the annual Convocation of University College in Convocation Hall tonight at 8.15 p.m.

Principal M. W. Wallace of University College will preside at the convocation which will also hear from President H. J. Cody. Freshmen will be received in the West Hall of University College, where refreshments will be served.

no easy task that lies before us. . ."

"Remember the good name of the university is in your hands and we shall be sternly judged if we do any thing to discredit the fair name of our institution," he declared.

"There is a need for well-trained men and women. After the war is over there will be a still greater need," the President said, revealing that committees to study post-war problems of reconstruction may soon have to be set up.

"Canadian universities have received an urgent request to carry on because of the educational difficulties sustained in England owing to the war." British universities had asked that universities in those parts of the world, particularly in those parts of the British Empire lying beyond the seas, "take up the torch of enlightenment" now that German bombers have made education of secondary importance in the United Kingdom.

Dr. Cody paid lengthy tribute to Great Britain and the way she is standing up under the "unbelievable bombardment" Canadians had once sung "We stand on guard for thee" when the only countries standing on guard for Canada were Great Britain and the United States.

"Now, in a very real sense, we stand on guard ourselves," he said. "I wish you a good year of work, achievement, good health and the real happiness that comes when you faithfully do your daily task," he concluded.

ART MUSIC & DRAMA

"The first program in the Concert Series on October 31 presents a joint program by Muriel Dickson, lovely Scottish soprano, and Lansing Hatfield, the young Virginian bass-baritone, who replaces Martini. Lansing Hatfield was accorded a most enthusiastic reception when he sang here last January, while Muriel Dickson, formerly of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, has completely captivated New York since she joined the Metropolitan four years ago. Their program will be devoted in its entirety to English music. Also appearing in the Concert Series are the great Russian pianist, Sergei Rachmaninoff, Robert Virovni, eighteen-year-old Hungarian genius of the violin, Igor Gorin, Czechoslovakian baritone, and Risa Stevens, Norwegian mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera.

"There is something new and stimulating in the Music Masters' Series, no longer purely instrumental as in past years. The first artist in this series will be the eminent French vocalist and scholar of music, Yves Tineyre, whose program is a fascinating departure from the usual. In extensive musical research, Mr. Tineyre has unearthed ancient music dating back to 1160, and with his superb voice he presents a scholarly program of this rare music. Whittemore and Lowe, young American duo-pianists and composers come next. Another newcomer to Toronto follows, Raya Garbousova, 'cellist who took New York by storm when she first appeared there in 1934. Moritz Rosenthal, as great a musician as the world holds today, is next, and last in the series comes Simon Barer, recognized as one of the greatest masters of the piano.

"Thus a season rich in beautiful music is almost upon us and those still to make reservations should be quick about it if they are not to miss the choicest musical events of the year."

THREE FORMER STUDENTS DECORATED BY R.A.F.

Three former university students, all members of the Royal Air Force, have been honoured by awards for gallant service during the past few months.

Lawrence W. Skey, B.Comm. 1934, Trinity College, and David A. C. Crooks, a student at University College in 1931-2, have both been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, it was revealed. Elmer O. Richards, enrolled in the Teacher's Course in 1935 and 1937, was specially decorated

University of Toronto Contingent C. O. T. C.

Headquarters: 119 St. George Street

Officer Commanding: Lieutenant-Colonel H. H. Madill, V.D., (m.s.c.)

Chief Instructor: Major M. B. Watson, (m.s.c.)

Acting Adjutant: Captain H. C. H. Miller

PRESENT MEMBERS

Present members of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps who wish to continue their membership in the Corps will report to the Orderly Room, 119 St. George Street, and select the arm of the service in which they wish to qualify, and will complete their registration at Headquarters on the coloured registration cards.

NEW MEMBERS

Applications for membership in the Canadian Officers' Training Corps will be received only from students who are registered in the final year of their course (Medicine and Dentistry, in the final two years of their course), and who agree to accept a commission if the same is offered after the completion of the course.

New members of the corps will apply for membership at Headquarters by completing a white registration card. These application forms will be obtained at Headquarters, 119 St. George Street, from September 24th to October 1st, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Saturday and Sunday. An appointment will be made at the time of application for each applicant to be interviewed by officers of the arm of the service which he wishes to join. Those selected will be notified when to report for medical examination and attestation.

No fees are charged. Each member will be required to sign a waiver of pay, but it is the intention to pay each member during his attendance at camp, likely 13 days next June, if pay is received from the Government. A member may be struck off at any time if in the opinion of the officers he is unlikely to become an efficient officer.

The following examinations will be conducted by National Defence Headquarters:

First paper (Common to All Arms)—middle of December.

Second paper (special to the arm)—middle of March.

Practical examinations—in the spring, likely at camp.

INFORMATION REGARDING ARMS OF THE SERVICE

For the guidance of members of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps in choosing the arm of the service in which they wish to qualify, the following information should be noted. Percentages show the probable demand for officers in the various arms, and thus indicate the relative likelihood of obtaining early appointments.

Artillery 17%

An officer in the Artillery should preferably be one who is accurate and skilled in the use of empirical mathematics, such as tables of trigonometric functions, slide-rules, application of formulae, etc. The actual understanding of the higher mathematics on which the work is based is necessary only in the Coast Defence branch.

Engineers 15%

The greater part of the work of Engineer Officers is the design, survey, construction or demolition of works such as roads, railways, water supply systems, bridges, and defensive works. They should be graduate or undergraduate engineers, Registered Professional Engineers, or should belong to the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Signals 4%

Officers must be skilled in communications work, should have completed at least two years in Electrical Engineering or Physics, or be licensed radio amateurs, etc.

Infantry (Rifle) 30%

Open to all faculties. This is the arm of the service in which the greatest number is required. Good physical condition and stamina are essential. All other arms are essentially auxiliary to the infantry,

A Message from the President

I welcome to this university those who are returning to pursue their studies in the different faculties and departments, and those who for the first time are entering its halls to begin their advanced preparation for the various activities of life. The objectives which lie before each are to build a life, to make a living, and to help mould a world.

THE BACKGROUND OF WAR

We meet this year, after twelve months of war, at the very crisis of our fate. Those who are battling in the Motherland and elsewhere against the ruthless assaults of the enemy are the champions of those spiritual values which alone make life worth living. This grim struggle must be the background of all our academic work this year. Many of our staff and students have enlisted for active service. War researches are being carried on in many of our laboratories. Military Training for all male students, 18 years of age and over and physically fit, will be required by order of the Board of Governors in accordance with an agreement made by the Conference of Canadian Universities with the Departments of National Defence and of War Services.

THE UNIVERSITIES CARRY ON

The present world situation emphasizes the value of that training of intellect and character which universities are equipped to offer to their students. Trained men and women are essential to Canada if its war effort is to be prosecuted with highest effectiveness; they will be sorely needed, when after victory by God's help we face the problems of reconstruction. A special responsibility is laid upon Canadian universities, since in the nature of the case the British universities are prevented from carrying on their normal activities. By the advice of scientists in Britain, as well as by the general demands of the Canadian situation, our universities within the Dominion will strive during the coming year to undertake a full programme of instruction and research. The universities must "carry on."

THE SPIRIT IN WHICH WE WORK

Students will make the best use of their immediate opportunities. Let us face our tasks with serious determination; let us get the utmost out of our mental disciplines; let us waste no time; let us remember the responsibilities which go with our privileges and discharge those responsibilities in the right spirit. Even in connection with our recreations and social activities, let there be simplicity and modesty of expenditure. Our country will need and will demand the fullest measure of our devotion and our sacrifice.

COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING

In response to the present grave emergency, Canadian universities, through their governing bodies, after consultation with the military and war service authorities, require the military training of all male undergraduates who are physically fit and are 18 years of age and over at the time of registration in the university. This requirement our own Board of Governors hereby announces and enforces. The details of this training are given elsewhere in this issue of Varsity. The Canadian Officers' Training Corps will function as usual in preparing men who will become efficient officers and leaders. It will probably number 1,200 or more. Those students outside the C.O.T.C. who will be 21 or over on 1st July, 1941, will receive a course of training equivalent to the military training demanded under the National Resources Mobilization Act, followed by two weeks in camp. This auxiliary Battalion, under the C.O.T.C., will number nearly 1,500. The other students over 18 years of age will form another group, who will receive both physical training and a measure of military drill—determined by the time and instructors available. This group will probably contain another 1,500. There will thus be under some form of military training over 4,000 students—more than a whole brigade! The universities of Canada have thus given a fine lead in preparing the youth of Canada to bear their part in the defence of their country. We all realize that today our first line of defence is in Great Britain. The Prime Minister of Canada sent a message on September 11th to Mr. Churchill, stating Canada's attitude and determination: "Canada was never more proud of the privilege of having her forces on sea, on land and in the air closely associated with

Auxiliary Battalion

Orderly Room: Reading Room, Hart House, Telephone Mi 7454

Acting Officer Commanding: Major W. S. Wilson, E.D.

Acting Second in Command: Major W. S. Wallace

Acting Adjutant: Lieutenant E. A. Macdonald

It has been agreed by the Conference of Canadian Universities, after consultation with the Hon. C. G. Power, Associate Minister of National Defence, and the Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of War Service, that all physically fit male undergraduates who are 18 years of age and over at the time of registration in the University are required to take military training.

It is the intention that male undergraduates coming within the age groups to be called up under the National Resources Mobilization Act, 1940, viz., those 20 years of age or over on July 1st, 1940, will receive their compulsory training during the University session, with an additional two weeks at camp at the end of the session, instead of having their University courses interrupted by a call to a training centre for one month. These persons will be formed into an Auxiliary Battalion of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps.

AGE GROUP 24 AND OVER

Students over the age of 24 on July 1st, 1940, will not be required to take compulsory military training, but they may, if they so desire, take such training.

AGE GROUP 20 TO 24

All students between the ages of 20 and 24 inclusive on July 1st, 1940, must report to the Orderly Room of the Auxiliary Battalion, Hart House, and complete their registration cards (yellow) for military training, between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. from Monday, September 23rd, to Friday, September 27th, inclusive, and on Saturday, September 28th, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Registration must be completed by the age group 20 to 24 by Saturday, September 28th, at 3 p.m.

The training to be carried out by this group will be in accordance with the syllabus authorized by the Department of National Defence and will be the same as that given those who are required under the National Resources Mobilization Act, 1940, to report to training centres for a 30-day period.

AGE GROUP 18 AND 19

All students who are 18 years of age at the date of registration and were not 20 years of age on July 1st, 1940, must register at the Auxiliary Battalion Orderly Room in Hart House from Monday, September 30th, to Friday, October 4th, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday, October 5th, from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. It will not be possible to register for military training after the dates mentioned, as full returns of registration will then be made to the Government.

The training to be carried out by this group will consist of physical training and elementary military training and will be conducted in so far as possible during the Physical Training periods. Special periods will be arranged for those for whom physical training periods are not provided in the time tables.

MEMBERS OF R.C.N.V.R. OR N.P.A.M.

All students who are now members of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve (R.C.N.V.R.) or the Non-Permanent Active Militia (N.P.A.M.) must send written evidence of such membership to the Registrar of the University by October 5th. Such students are not required to register.

ORDERLY ROOM

The Orderly Room, located in the Reading Room in Hart House, will be for the use of the Auxiliary Battalion of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps, where complete information may be obtained. There will be no occasion for such members to use the Headquarters of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps at 119 St. George Street.

Those completing their training in the C.O.T.C. will not register with the Auxiliary Battalion.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO CONTINGENT C.O.T.C.

helping it to attain its objective. Training in the use of rifle, Bren gun, Lewis gun and anti-gas precautions is given.

Infantry (Machine Gun) 16%

This arm is an important combatant branch of the service, working in close co-operation with all arms, particularly with Infantry Rifle. An applicant should have an aptitude for mechanical subjects and be in good physical condition.

Army Service Corps 5%

This arm is employed in the transporting, storing and distribution of the ammunition, fuel, food and other supplies of the Army. The Officers should thus be experienced in the control, operation and maintenance of motor trucks or fleets; or in the distribution, packing, shipping or storage of food stuffs, etc.

Army Dental Corps 3%

Open only to graduates and undergraduates in Dentistry.

Army Medical Corps 7%

Open only to graduates and undergraduates in Medicine.

Ordnance (O.M.E.) 3%

Officers must be graduate mechanical or electrical engineers, preferably skilled or experienced in motor vehicle or general machinery maintenance and shop practice.

Note—Please note that the Headquarters at 119 St. George Street are for the use of members of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps only. Other students required to take military training under the National Resources Mobilization Act, 1940, or University requirements, should read carefully the statement concerning the Auxiliary Battalion The Orderly Room of which is in Hart House.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

those of the United Kingdom and other parts of the Commonwealth in the magnificent stand in the world's citadel of freedom against ruthless aggression and for the preservation of the liberties of free men". . . Britain "may count on our continuing support to the utmost of our strength." In that spirit this university is seeking to serve.

This permission by the Government to continue academic work and military training during the college year enables a student to use his time to the best advantage; it is a concession which we gratefully acknowledge.

INTER-COLLEGIATE ATHLETICS

At the Conference of Canadian Universities held in Ottawa on July 5th, to consult with the Minister of National Defence, the athletic authorities of the various universities decided to recommend to their respective Athletic Boards that senior inter-collegiate competitions should be discontinued for the coming academic year. The reason for this decision was that the energy and available time of male students should be given to military training (Saturday afternoons will of necessity be used for this purpose). It was felt that students would gladly sacrifice their usual interests and recreations in order to fulfil their duty to their country in this grave phase of the struggle for the freedom, decency and lasting peace of the world. Competitive sport within each university will continue, and may well be developed in conjunction with military training. Physical fitness is basic for national service as well as for academic studies. These recommendations of the athletic representatives have been confirmed, I believe, by the various athletic boards of the universities and by the governing bodies of the universities of Canada. They have certainly been adopted by our own university.

WOMEN UNDERGRADUATES

At the moment specific duties in connection with our national war effort have not been laid upon the women undergraduates. I know how eager they are to do their utmost for the great Cause. They always have a chief share in maintaining morale, and I have no doubt they will consider and devise methods of sharing in the various war efforts of the community within the limits of opportunity imposed by their university studies.

A GREAT YEAR

This year of your university life will be unlike any you have spent in the past. You are living in a great time; I trust that you will have the greatness of soul with which to meet it. Have pride in the past of the world-girdling empire of which we are free members; have that courage in the present which bids us to defend our heritage; have confidence in the future victory of those ideals of life, individual and national, which are the reflections of the character of God Himself.

I close with the recently uttered words of a great British soldier, General Lord Gort: "Let us all dedicate ourselves to this new crusade which shall rid the world of this scourge, strong in the support of our faith and of that armour of God, of which St. Paul speaks in his Epistle to the Ephesians. In this spirit let us all go forward together."

This exhortation I venture to repeat to the staff and students of this honourable and loyal University of Toronto.

H. J. Cody,
President.

Intercollegiate Athletics

President H. J. Cody of the University of Toronto, who is also President of the Canadian Universities' Conference, announces that the problem of intercollegiate games was discussed at a meeting held in Ottawa on September 9th. Representatives of the Universities of Canada met at that time to discuss with the Honourable J. G. Gardiner and the Honourable C. G. Power the problem of military training in Universities during the coming session. At this meeting, after a satisfactory interview with the two Ministers, a short discussion took place on intercollegiate athletics and the Conference unanimously approved of the decision made at its previous meeting on July 5th.

At that meeting, Dr. J. C. Simpson of McGill University, speaking on behalf of the athletic authorities of Toronto, Queen's, Western, and McGill, stated that they all felt that, while athletics must be an integral part of military training, it must be a secondary objective in wartime. They felt that it was unwise to continue Senior Inter-collegiate competition during the coming academic year. The reasons for this decision, he said, were that the time and energy of male students should now be devoted to military training and that students would gladly sacrifice some of their usual interests in order to fulfil their duty to their country. Competitive sport, within each University, produces self-discipline and physical fitness and such sport may well be developed in conjunction with military training. The representatives of the four Universities had, therefore, agreed unanimously that Senior Intercollegiate competition be discontinued for the Session, 1940-41. Dr. Simpson's report was unanimously approved by the Conference which represents all the Universities in Canada and the governing bodies of the various Universities have since confirmed this agreement.

From the National War Service Regulations (Revised)

UNIVERSITY AND COLLEGE STUDENTS

16. (1) The Minister shall furnish the Board with a list of universities and colleges at which there are duly authorised contingents of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps or which require their students to undergo compulsory military training which is in the opinion of the Representatives of the Department of National Defence, at least equivalent to the military training to be given men called out under these regulations, (such training to be at least 110 hours training as specified in H.Q. 54-27-35-60 dated September 3, 1940 and to include two weeks' training in camp or at a training centre), and the Minister may from time to time add to or remove from such list of universities and colleges and, if any university or college is removed from such list by the Minister on the ground that the military training at such university or college or by the contingent of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps is not or has not been equivalent to that given to men called out under these regulations, the Board shall cancel any postponement order hereinafter provided for in respect of students attending such university or college.

(2) The Board shall order the postponement of the military training under these regulations until the end of the scholastic year or session of bona fide students of a class called out for military training under these regulations who are attending throughout the session regular courses leading to a degree or diploma in such universities and colleges and who are members of and training with contingents of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps or are undergoing such compulsory military training of or at such universities and colleges, but the Board shall cancel the postponement of any such student who does not undergo and complete the full military training. After the end of the scholastic year or session any student whose training hereunder has been postponed until such time shall be liable if so determined by the Minister of National Defence, to be enrolled in and taken on the strength of an appropriate unit of the Non-Permanent Active Militia upon the same terms as a person called up for training under these regulations and who reports for such purpose to a training centre.

(3) Each such university or college shall furnish to the Divisional Registrar in the Administrative Division in which the university or college is located a full and complete list of the men registered as students indicating which of them are undergoing or intend to undergo the course of military training or C.O.T.C. training aforesaid and, in the case of students not undergoing such military training, the reasons why they are excepted therefrom.

(4) Such compulsory military training or C.O.T.C. training in the case of university students before mentioned shall, subject to the approval of the Minister of National Defence, be considered equivalent to the first training period for which persons are called out under these regulations and shall except such students therefrom.

Faculty of Arts Department of Military Studies

The courses offered in Military Studies are:

(a) A course of three lectures per week open to the Pass and Commerce and Finance Courses for the first, second and third years, and in the third year of the General Course.

(b) A course of one lecture per week open to the Honour Course in all years, and General Course in the fourth year.

Due to war conditions, the content of these courses is in a state of transition, and they will not be given strictly as laid down in the Calendar of the Faculty.

Enrolment is permitted in the second, third or fourth years only to those who have taken the course in the previous year.

Military and Physical Training

MILITARY TRAINING

By order of the Board of Governors, each physically fit male undergraduate who is eighteen years of age or over at the time of registration in the University is required to take military training.

PHYSICAL TRAINING

Each male undergraduate is required to take physical training during the First and Second Years of his attendance. An undergraduate will be debarred from registering in the Third and Fourth Years who has not completed satisfactorily the prescribed course in physical training in the First or Second Year respectively, and will be required to pay a supplemental fee of $10.00 if he does not complete in a session the course in physical training compulsory upon him during that session. The prescribed military training will be accepted in lieu of the compulsory physical training in any year.

MEDICAL EXAMINATION

Each male undergraduate who is required to take military training or physical training, must apply at the opening of the session for a medical examination as follows:

- (a) undergraduates who have not completed two years of compulsory physical training are to apply to the Medical Director, Hart House;
- (b) instructions for all other undergraduates regarding the medical examination will be published in later editions of The Varsity.

Students of all years who wish to take part in any form of athletics or physical exercise, must first undergo a medical examination by the Director.

National War Service Board Requirements

Several students have informed the University Registrar that they have been notified by the National War Service Board to report for medical examination under the terms of the Proclamation issued on September 13th, 1940. The Registrar has accordingly communicated with an official of the National War Service Board, and has learned that University students will not be required to comply with the notices which they have received, provided they submit to the Registrar of the Board certificates signed by the University Registrar to the effect that they have enrolled in the University for the session 1940-1941, and will, if found to be physically fit, be required to take military training at the University.

Consequently, each undergraduate who has received a notice from the War Service Board should apply at the Registrar's Office, Simcoe Hall, for the necessary certificate. Before this certificate can be issued, however, the undergraduate must submit his card of admission to lectures for the session 1940-1941.

September 21st, 1940.

DR. SAMUEL LEVINE UNDER SUSPENSION

Dr. Samuel Levine, research associate in geophysics, who was arrested last Friday under the Defence of Canada Regulations, has been suspended from the university, it was disclosed yesterday. President Cody announced that his dismissal will be suggested to the Board of Governors today.

Levine was arrested last week along with two others on charges of Communist activities. Officials stated a large number of subversive pamphlets were found in his apartment. At present free on $3000 bail, Levine will appear in Magistrate's Court Friday, September 27.

Levine graduated in Arts from University College in 1932. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Toronto.

Dr. E. S. Ryerson, Assistant Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, has been appointed to Director of Physical and Health Education in addition to other duties, the announcement said.

New Course Now Open In Physical Education

President Cody Says Course is to Provide and Train Teachers for Physical Education Work in Canada

DR. E. S. RYERSON HEAD

A new course in Physical and Health Education is now offered to men and women entering the University of Toronto.

The new department, headed by Dr. E. S. Ryerson, Assistant Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, provides a three-year course, leading to the degree of B.P.H.E. (Bachelor of Physical and Health Education).

The course is designed to provide students with a range of subjects similar to those taken by students in Pass Arts. Students who have entered the first year of the pass course may transfer to the new course in their second year.

Subjects taken in the first year of the course will be Anthropology, Biology, Chemistry, English, Psychology and Physical Education, consisting of Theory (two hours a week) and Practice (six hours a week).

In the second year, Chemistry, Health Education and Physical Education comprise a 26-hour-a-week course. The second year may be entered by students who took Pass Arts during the 1939-40 academic year, it was explained by Warren Stevens, Director of Physical Education for men.

Health Education in the second year course will consist of Functional Anatomy, Applied Physiology, Health Assessment and Promotion, and Mental Hygiene. Physical education will consist of two hours theory and seven hours practice.

Third year of the course, not available until 1941-42, will consist entirely of Health Education and Physical Education.

Pass subjects in the first year will be the same in every respect as the Pass Arts course, except for the addition of Physical Education, and requirements for entry to the course are identical with those required of Pass Arts students.

The course is under the supervision

ACTIVITIES OF CLUBS RESTRICTED BY WAR

Activities of many of the campus clubs will be restricted by war conditions, it was revealed in a survey conducted by The Varsity yesterday.

Greta Riddell, vice-president of the Women's Inter-Debating Union, said that their organization will carry on much the same as usual. Debates will be held between the four Arts colleges. The Intercollegiate debate will be held in November.

The organization of the Commerce Club will be more informal than in past years, it was learned. Large banquets and parties will be absent from the program.

The Rifle Association is expecting a large enrollment this season.

It was decided at the first meeting of the Canadian Cooperative Federation Club yesterday that a large number of open meetings will be held and that study groups to discuss Canadian affairs will be held for members under the leadership of prominent members of the C.C.F. party.

of the Senate's Standing Committee on Physical Education.

Structures and functions of each part of the body, with reference to their application to the living person, are taught in this course, the special calendar for the course explains.

In the second year, studies in theory and practice will be given to men and women students separately. Women will study theory of games, sports and gymnastics particularly suited to her sex, together with dancing, rhythm and music. They will play such games as basketball, baseball, volleyball, archery, badminton, fencing, golf, skating, hockey, track and field, and various games.

Men, on the other hand, will study the theory of coaching, organization and administration, prevention and care of athletic injuries, and principles governing the conditioning of men for various sports. Their practice will consist of more manly sports, such as boxing, wrestling, football and lacrosse.

hither and yon

With Michael O'Mara

THE GLADSOME SIGHTS AND SOUNDS of frosh commuting mutual mayhem in gallant quest of regurgitantly-tied neck-wear carry with them the inspiring message that another college year is nascent. (That means it's beginning.) More freshmen teas—more umph-laden co-eds—more lectures which we probably shan't attend—more meetings designated "refreshments will be served" which we probably shall. (We get so hungry.) The longer we regard the roseate prospect, the happier we feel. In fact, right now we're so happy we could die.

REUVEN FRANK, erstwhile incumbent of this space, has departed these precincts and hid himself to farther fields of academic endeavour. Enrolled at N.Y.C.C., he will write for The Varsity a weekly column entitled Wide-eyed in Gotham. It should be a honey. And, in tribute to our preposterous pal, we venture to paraphrase his favourite chunk of doggerel, thus:

Here's to you and here's to Frank,
And if, perchance, you thought he stank,
To hell with you and here's to Frank.

JUST TO BE DIFFERENT, let's go on record here and now that maybe freshmen aren't so overwhelmingly dumb . . . by comparison. The other day we unthinkingly undertook to "show a little group of freshmen around." And bless my soul, we couldn't even tell them where to go to register in Actuarial Science. That was bad enough, but the ultimate humiliation came when they inquired about the Department of Fine Art. As we stood there incoherently babbling about spiral staircases and other surrealist data, and vainly trying to recall where the fool thing actually was, the realization crept over us that perhaps we weren't omniscient after all. A sobering thought.

A SURVEY of the Library reading rooms yesterday morning revealed four men in sight and absolutely no women . . . The four men seemed to be studying . . . This disclosure of the habits of a little-known section of the community probably is immensely significant of something or other . . .

SCENE—The Hart House Tuck Shop, wherein two of The Varsity's ace reporters foregather for a ruminative coke. They discuss their activities since last term. One vaingloriously reveals that he, eagerly treading the thorny path of professional journalism, has toiled all summer for The Canadian Press. To prove his point, he produces a copy-pencil, stamped with the authentic C.P. insignia. "See, lookout," he says in the cultured manner common to all Varsity reporters. "Huh," replies the other in equally effete accents, "At ain't nuttin'. Looka here." And he produces another pencil. Painfully his conferees spells out the magic letters inscribed upon it—Toronto Board of Education. "Cheee!" he whispers, overawed. . . . FADEOUT.

rehearsal will be held Tuesday, Oct. 1, in the music room in Hart House, it was announced. Experience in choirs or glee clubs is not necessary for entry into the club.

It has been the policy of the club to provide instruction in singing part songs of high quality. Concerts are given by the Glee Club at the close of each season and in the past two years the club has broadcast carols at Christmas over a Canadian radio network.

Dr. Peaker who was director of the

WOMEN UNDERGRADS CAN DO THEIR BIT IN COLLEGE WAR WORK

University War Service Committee will Organize Co-ed Activity in Nursing, Red Cross Work

The University War Service Committee, established last year for the purpose of furthering war work among women undergraduates, should function more efficiently this year because the work is organized sooner and because of the greater need, Mrs. H. J. Cody, president of the committee, said yesterday.

"Last year by the time the work was organized, it was found that studies gave women only a limited time to assist, but this year the students can help greatly," Mrs. Cody said.

First meeting of the organization will be held Oct. 8. Until then, the chairman said, "it would be wise for the students to visit the work room in the household science building and assist there."

"I have no doubt that they will consider and devise methods of sharing in the various war efforts of the community within the limits of opportunity imposed by their university studies," Miss A. E. M. Parkes, associate secretary of the S.A.C., said.

Last year many students were enrolled in classes for home nursing, first aid and motor mechanics, and similar provisions will be made this year after the meeting of the committee.

The committee set up a war service work room in the Household Science building last year, where undergraduates may enroll and assist. The work is similar to that done by local Red Cross rooms.

WARDEN BICKERSTETH STAYS IN ENGLAND

He was wounded in action and did not recover his health until 1921.

Mr. Bickersteth has suffered ill-health intermittently during his wardenship. In 1937 and 1938, Mr. J. R. Gilley, who became comptroller of Hart House in 1923, acted as warden during Mr. Bickersteth's sick leave in England. He has been appointed acting warden for the present term.

3. A YELLOW necktie (Vic.) may be had in large numbers—but even larger numbers are required to have them.

4. A BLACK necktie (Trinity) must absolutely NOT be cut. Any Trinity freshmen will tell you why.

5. A GREEN necktie (S.P.S.) is regarded as the biggest game of all. Unfortunately you'll invariably find the biggest bruisers wearing it.

6. An ORANGE necktie with PEACOCK BLUE polka-dot—leave it alone, you rat, it's mine.

Other decorative flora and fauna, especially Flora, may be observed around the campus, and should be treated with discretion or lack of same by the party of the first part, depending upon the law of supply and demand.

Tasteful rosettes may be concocted by employing cunning combinations of the aforementioned multicoloured ingredients, with the exception of 4 and 6. The Cat will not be responsible for damage or loss of necktie or ties. Above all, do not consort with strange men, don't lose your registration card, and KEEP YOUR SCISSORS CROSSED.

Third as well as First Year Nominations Necessary as Clarry Leaves on Active Service

FROSH MEETING HELD

First year officers of the University College Literary and Athletic Society will be nominated at the society's first open meeting in the junior common room tonight. The third year will also hold nominations for year president, as John Clarry, the president-elect, has gone on active service.

The meeting will also introduce freshmen to the officers of the U.C. Lit., who will outline their duties and the various activities of the society.

Before the meeting, Acting-Warden Gilley will conduct freshmen on a tour around Hart House, showing them its various facilities.

A meeting of freshmen was called by the society last night prior to the U.C. convocation. At this meeting the frosh were led in various songs and yells, and officials of various clubs and organizations in the college explained the activities of their respective groups.

Loss of Warden, Hart House Paint Disturb Devotees

Many changes confront the Hart House devotee as he returns to his favourite haunts after a long summer of exile. New faces appear instead of the old and familiar ones. Shiny paint brightens spots which were formerly drab and worn.

Most noticeable among the departed is Warden Bickersteth whose duties keep him in England for the first time in 19 years. His office will be temporarily filled by Mr. J. R. Gilley, Comptroller of the House. Mr. Gilley has announced that there is a possibility that Warden Bickersteth may return to the House in January. Also noticeable among changes in the personnel are the retirement of one of the hall porters, the transfer of one of the janitors and the absence of several old and trusted friends of the hungry student behind the tuck shop counter.

The tuck shop counters have been reorganized, and even some of the waste paper baskets, long the receptacles of lunch wrappers and milk bottles, have been replaced by new models.

Long-Suffering Frosh Endure Quieter (?) Initiations This Year

Quieter initiations can be expected by freshmen this year according to a survey made by The Varsity yesterday but it was found that the customs of former years had not been entirely deleted.

Trinity freshmen were awakened early last Tuesday morning and forced to go through ceremonials in their night attire.

Residents of St. Hilda's, Trinity girls' residence, have been provided with placards bearing their name, course and the name of their home town in large letters. The freshmen must attend the first year reception which is to be held

"Dictatorships Transitory" Says Principal Wallace Addressing Convocation

U.C. Principal Expresses Faith in Character and Ability of British Leaders — Defends National Pride

LAUDS R.A.F.

"We know from history that dictatorships are transitory phenomena," M. W. Wallace, Principal of University College, declared last night at the college's annual convocation.

"We have complete faith in the character and ability of our leaders. The determination to survive the present threat to our liberties is universal," he said.

Defending patriotism, which he termed "a noble sentiment sometimes prostituted to peculiarly ignoble purposes," Principal Wallace cited the work of Britain's air force and the retreat from Dunkerque as legitimate reasons for national pride.

"We may well be proud of the role we are being called upon to play in the human drama," he added. "We fight not for markets, colonies or even economic advantage, but that a way of life that seems to us good shall not perish from the earth."

U.C. freshmen, conveyed by Lit. stalwarts, had staged their traditional snake-dance as they came across the campus to Convocation Hall to hear the Principal's address.

Dean Beatty of the Faculty of Arts also addressed the gathering of U.C. students in Convocation Hall.

"It is essential that we develop habits of self-examination and self-criticism," he said, discussing habits of study and the advantages of an Arts education.

Immediately after the Convocation, a reception was held for first-year students in the West Hall of University College.

McHENRY WELCOMES FROSH AT NEWMAN CLUB OPENER

More than 200 students and alumni gathered at Newman Club last night as the club's 1940-41 social season got under way.

Father Joseph McHenry, new chaplain of the organization, welcomed new members to the club, and urged them to enter its activities with a zest that would benefit them and enrich the spirit of the club.

SIGNALS APPOINTMENTS

There are openings for appointments of 10 undergraduates who have completed two years in Electrical or Mechanical Engineering or in Mathematics and Physics.

The appointments, to be filled not later than Oct. 11, will be to 2nd Lieutenants in the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals of the Canadian Active Service Force. For further information, students may apply to Major M. B. Watson, Military Studies Building, 119 St. George St.

EXCHANGE AGREEMENT BRINGS ROGERS HERE

Professor J. S. Rogers, of the University of Florida has been appointed to the staff of the University of Toronto for one year in an exchange agreement between the two universities. Professor W. J. K. Harkness of Toronto is now studying in Florida.

Professor Rogers has been on the staff of the University of Florida for the past 15 years where he has conducted research work in the geographic distribution of aquatic insects.

This year, as professor of Limnology, he will lecture to Toronto students in vertebrate zoology.

Professor Harkness, who has been doing research in freshwater biology in Toronto, will continue studies in this field in Florida.

Seven Men Appointed To University Senate

Three Political Economy Professors Among Those Named by Virtue of Staff Promotion; Two Vacancies Also Filled

RUTHERFORD RESIGNS

A number of appointments to the Senate of the university have been made during the summer, it has been announced.

Professors V. W. Bladen, A. Brady, R. M. Dawson of the Department of Political Economy, and Professor A. F. Coventry of the Biology Department, have been appointed to the Senate by virtue of staff promotions.

Other new members of the Senate are Father McLaughlin, Superior of St. Michael's College; W. L. Somerville, representing the Ontario Association of Architects; and W. P. Dobson, representing the Association of Professional Engineers of the Province of Ontario.

Two vacancies have resulted from the death of Professor Emeritus J. T. Fotheringham, and the resignation of Dr. Rutherford, representative of the day vocational schools.

Varsity Reporters

Students who wish to join the staff of The Varsity are asked to sign the lists now posted in the men's Varsity office, Hart House, and in the Women's Office, Room 42, University College. Freshman are welcome.

New Courses To Be Offered By Extension

Aeronautics, Wireless Telegraphy Among New Courses Given by Department to Meet War Requirements

EXPECT LARGE ATTENDANCE

Due in part to war needs, the Department of Extension has planned a considerable expansion this year, and several new courses of study have been inaugurated. W. J. Dunlop, director of University Extension and Publicity, stated that the total attendance in these courses is expected to reach 6,000.

All of last year's graduates in Aerial Navigation and several of the first year men have been employed as instructors in the R.C.A.F. or in flying clubs. The first year enrolment in this two-year course now stands at 33.

Special evening tutorial groups have been planned by the Department of Extension dealing with Aeronautical Engineering. This course, unlike the regular course, does not offer a degree, but gives the students training in aircraft engine construction.

Particularly intended for students who have a fundamental training in physics, chemistry and mathematics, this course will include a study on choice of fuels, carburetor design, cylinder arrangement and cooling, and other important factors in aircraft construction.

These evening tutorial groups, although fairly well attended last year will reach hitherto unequalled dimensions, with an expected enrolment of about two thousand, it was announced.

Due to the important role played by

SCHOOLMEN RETURN FROM NORTHERN MINE

Other Undergraduates Worked During Summer as Brick Layers, Chemists, Stokers, Mechanics, Salesmen

CO-EDS WORK TOO

By Bill Armstrong
During the past summer undergrads from this campus found work from coast to coast and in many different capacities.

Apart from those who served in Canada's armed forces, and between the theolog who peddled from church to church, to the red-head from U.C. who cut button holes in soldiers' uniforms, there was many a varied task.

Schoolmen found expression of their talents in many an industrial camp. From Trail to Cape Breton miners toiled underground daily as they drilled off and blasted, and mucked or trammed themselves to exhaustion. Chemists mixed paints and risked their social lives as they turned out fertilizers and explosives. Civilians became proficient hod carriers, brick layers and carpenters, and now can claim they "started at the bottom."

But the engineers were not alone, for many an Artsman spent many a toilsome hour as he worked his way through

Bobby Coulter Returns To Grid Competition After Two-Year Absence

Toronto Rivals Meet for Reg DeGruchy Memorial Cup and City Championship—Injuries Hit Argos

FRIZZELLE OUT

By Owen Prichard

Toronto's two senior rugby teams, Argonauts and Balmy Beach, meet at Varsity Stadium Saturday afternoon to decide the City Championship. Entire proceeds of the game will be divided evenly between the Canadian Red Cross Society and the DeGruchy Fund.

A one-time Varsity star returns to the football wars tomorrow afternoon in the person of Bobby Coulter.

After retirement to a school-teaching and coaching berth for the last two years, the shifty backfield star returns to the greenward of his alma mater's gridiron wearing the Double Blue of Toronto Argonauts.

Facing the star-studded Argo line-up are Alex Ponton's doughty warriors from Balmy Beach, determined to knock off their highly-rated contenders in the City Series for the Reg DeGruchy Memorial Trophy.

The Argonauts enter their initial contest of the season minus the services of Storey, Selkirk, and Alan Smith.

Last night, on Varsity's back campus, Coach Hayman put the Double Blue scullers through a final practice. The passing plays were working neatly but there were a few fumbles along the line and on the extensions anxious ball-handlers were cutting in too quickly.

Line-coach and inside Len Staughton can feel optimistic about the Argo front wall, with Hi Living at centre and Doug Annan, late of Queen's, the other inside. Ed Levantis and George Sprague will likely start as middles.

Youth will catch a good deal of attention in this contest with the fleet youngster Elwyn Morris on the half-line and Glen Munro assuming the punting duties in the absence of the injured Red Storey.

The beachites have more than a fair line-up on the half-line. Bobby Porter, the Beaches lad who has lately returned from a spell of professional baseball in Springfield, will be hoisting the spirals for Ponton's crew. Ed Shuba, formerly of St. Mike's, and Tunncliffe will probably start with Porter in the backfield.

The promising young snap-back, Susie Turner, will be at centre.

Balmy Beach have had the experience

Ribbons Fly, Scissors Flash As Frosh Hunt Reaches Peak

It's open season on ducks and freshmen.

For the next month or so the newcomers on the campus will be running a gauntlet of jibes, scissions and practical jokes, but they are quick to gird their loins to do battle as mightily as did any freshman in days of yore.

Already the campus has broken out in an indiscriminate rash of noisy neckwear and cute little pennants. But beyond that the newcomers await further orders with an unadmitted nervousness, even as did the frosh in the class of '43.

Neutrals, if such there be, about the university have seen more than one interesting workout as a flock of Vic-men became the proud and puffing possessors of green ties—signifying greenness, or a crew of Schoolboys fall here to a number of yellow ones. However,

BURSARY DONATED BY BUSINESS GROUP

Accountants' and Executives' Corporation of Canada Are Donors; for Student of Any Faculty

OPEN TO ALL UNDERGRADS

The gift of a bursary of $25 made by the International Accountants' and Executives' Corporation of Canada, had been accepted with gratitude by the Board of Governors of the university, President H. J. Cody had announced.

The bursary is given on the following conditions: "The bursary shall be granted to the undergraduate who is thought apt to benefit, of any year, of any department or faculty, on recommendation of the College authorities and those acting on behalf of the Corporation and to whom all matters in reference to the bursary are to be referred for decision on the Corporation's behalf. Those acting for the Corporation are—the President of the University, the Dean of Graduate Studies, the Director of University Extension.

MILITARY NOTICE

All students aged 20 to 24 inclusive as at July 1, 1940 (i.e., those who were over 20 but under 25 on July 1) are required under the National Resources Mobilization Act to take compulsory military training.

Such students must be registered for such training at the Orderly Room, Auxiliary Battalion, Hart House by Saturday, Sept. 28. In order that the names of such students may be furnished to the Dominion Government.

Otherwise, such students will be liable for a call to training at a training centre, for a 30-day period.

(though a sad one) of tangling with a powerful team in last Saturday's encounter with Ottawa Rough Riders. The most serious casualty on the Old Gold and Blue patients' list is Jack Frizzelle, who is temporarily out of the game with an injured knee.

With A Grain of Salt

Every undergraduate editor, from time immemorial, has considered it his bounden duty, as well as a definite part of his editorial prerogative, to lean back in his chair, prop his feet on the desk, and after a certain amount of thought produce several paragraphs of seasoned advice for the hordes of freshmen newly-planted on the campus. "Why am I at university?" is the pertinent question he asks, and then attempts to answer it so as to set the uninitiated upon the right path. The question is one which every student might well put to himself, for the opening of term should be a time of stock-taking with a view to deriving as much as possible from the coming college year.

The natural response to the question is usually "Why, to get an education, of course." This, then, is the main purpose which brings seven thousand odd to Varsity. But within the broad answer are many subdivisions which together furnish the complete answer to our question.

Primarily we are here to obtain an education which will enable us to live out our allotted span in material comfort. For some this general term "education" means specific training along some scientific, technical or social line, fitting the trainee for a particular vocation. For this category the problem of what to get out of college is rendered fairly simple. Then we find a large number for whom "education" means a general immersion in the liberal arts, equipping the student not for a specific vocation, with the possible exception of teaching, but rather giving him a mental discipline and a general adaptability for whatever field of endeavour he may choose. This latter student must be extremely careful with his time while at university.

We have dealt with the student and his equipment for life in the strictly material sense. Just as important is the opportunity for acquiring the means to live a better, fuller life. Here the student dwells in an atmosphere of knowledge and culture, with a thousandfold opportunities to partake of it. The contact is the main thing; the desire for an improved way of life may lie hidden but the contact should make it active. Here also one has the chance to live, play and work with others, and if he can train himself to co-operate easily, he will find the road of life infinitely easier. Activities of every description abound on the campus, and by rounding out his leisure time with a wise selection, the university student can often get as valuable a training for life as he obtains from his actual studies. We do not suggest that they should take preference in time, in thought or in effort over the studies. But they are important, and should supplement academic activities.

Do not think, freshmen, that we your seniors have lived the perfect life, deriving all that we could or should have from our university life. Far from it. But experience is a teacher, oftentimes sad, and we pass on to you lessons learned. You have entered university at a tragic time in the affairs of man, when neither the world nor the individual knows where it is heading, though the destination may at times appear to be chaos. Some of you may not be able to finish your courses, but while time and fortune grant you a reprieve, live to the full your life here. Give sufficient time to your studies; devote yourselves to necessary military training; choose wisely your friends, remembering that time often corrects first judgment, especially in the turbulent first few days of term; select with discrimination your extra-curricular activities; enter into athletics; and always bear in mind that with you, as with all preceding and succeeding classes, the honour of the University of Toronto rests.

The World Scene

It's only a passing fancy, but we wonder just what would be the thoughts of some traveller from another planet if, on this twenty-seventh day of September in the year 1940, R.S.P.A. (Remarkable Scientific and Progressive Age), he were placed on this earth and by some miracle given the power to see the whole globe in one glance. He would see a strange world, a world in which men are busily engaged in the work of destroying both man-made and God-made things. Surely he could not take it all in at a glance. For he would see it everywhere—in the flame-lit streets of old London, in the great cities and industries of Germany, on the high seas and under them, in the air, across the globe in bomb beaten China, and in the burning sands of north Africa—everywhere.

All this in a year! When we returned last year the shadow of war was fresh upon us and a trifle distant. The war seemed remote and confidence reigned, a confidence traditionally British and bred of a multitude of reassurance from the lips of those who knew. We placed great faith in our resources and in our power to blockade. (And there was the Maginot Line.)

Inactive months passed and men grew impatient. Then as winter turned to spring Hitler sent his mailed legions blitzkrieging through nation after nation, from north to south, until western Europe lay at his feet and the world stood shocked. Allies melted away and tiny island-Britain was left alone after the glory of Dunkerque, separated by a narrow channel from the enemy who stood poised for the invasion that must surely come. But time has slipped by and that invasion has not been achieved, much to the embarrassment of Nazi propagandists. As a forerunner of invasion, Britain has been subjected to one of the worst batterings of the new war which strikes at any objective, civilian or military, and from under the battering there has emerged unclad the soul of England. Civilian casualties have been high, but "the little people everywhere" have risen to meet the test, as their brothers in the fighting arms are meeting it.

The Battle of Britain to date can be termed a victory, although the danger still hangs near. New allies are being sought by the enemy, the war is being spread over a far-flung front in an attempt to divert forces from the defence of the mother isle, and the rain of death still pours down. But the invasion threat may well have been chased by the combination of civilian morale, the R.A.F., and the coming of winter. Britain grows stronger with time as the sister members of the Commonwealth provide an increasing stream of men, munitions, planes and supplies. The rest of the free world is rallying around her as she fights for civilization as we know it. In the task of preserving "that shining thing in the souls of free men", that democracy which many of us had almost forgotten to cherish, Britain carries on. To that cause we must be and are dedicated to the end.

Promenade Symphony

The Promenade Symphony Orchestra under Reginald Stewart presented a modern program to a full house at Varsity Arena last night. An interesting program in many ways, it was given rather a weak performance. In the opening number especially the orchestra appeared to have difficulty in co-ordinating and the piece sounded disjointed.

Miss Margaret Speaks was soloist in the next number, the aria Depuis le jour from Louise by Charpentier. Miss Speaks is well known to radio audiences throughout America, and comes of a very musical family which includes the composer, Oley Speaks, two of whose songs appeared on the program.

Proclamation

Issued by the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto and to be noted with utmost care by those students most intimately concerned:

WHEREAS it is suspected that the campus is menaced by large numbers of enemy aircraft disguised as Link Trainers and T.C.A. transports—
And WHEREAS it is the wish of the Caput that all members of the C.O. T.C. be trained in the difficult task of finding their objectives in the dark—
THEREFORE KNOW that the following localities have been designated by the authorities as blackout areas:

TO WIT (and likewise to woo) the front and rear entrances of the following buildings and all the adjuncts and annexes thereto pertaining: Whitney Hall, Hutton House, Annesley Hall, St. Hilda's College and any other place or places to be hereafter designated by the authorities.

To avoid confusion, all co-eds are strongly advised to wear luminous lipstick after 7:00 p.m. E.D.T. Any male students found in these restricted areas without escort will immediately be suspected of Fifth Column activities and will be summarily subjected to a complete blackout.

It has also been found advisable to order Freshmen with the exception of Trinity freshmen to install blackout shields on their ties after the same hour. Given under our hand and seal, this 27th day of September, 1940.

Kanga and (you've guessed it) Roo.

HOUSING OFFICIALS SERVE STUDENTS

The Students' Administrative Council Housing Service, inaugurated eight years ago by the late Johnny Copp, have inspected more than 250 homes this year to supply students with housing facilities during the term, it was announced today. The service is open to male and female students of all faculties.

Homes are inspected annually by representatives of the S.A.C. which lists both rooming and boarding houses. Preference is given to homes where students can work to defray part of the costs of living expenses.

The service keeps a filing system which rates the location of the homes, food, lighting, heat and other facilities. More than 300 students are placed annually through the housing service.

MACKIE TO SPEAK SEPTEMBER 29

Rev. Robert Mackie, general secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation, recently escaped from occupied France, will speak on "The Student in Wartime" at Convocation Hall, Sunday, September 29, under the auspices of the Student Christian Movement.

Mr. Mackie had set out for England from Geneva shortly before the fall of France. He found himself stranded behind the German army in southern France, and after hiding out in a French village for more than a month he managed to return to Geneva and from there went to New York.

His position in the W.S.C.F. has taken him on lecture tours throughout the world. Mr. Mackie intends to make his headquarters in North America for the duration.

U.C. WOMEN TO ELECT FROSH OFFICERS

The election of the first year executive of the Women's Undergraduate Association for 1940-41 will be held in the women's common room in University College on Wednesday, October 2, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Mary Bruck, president of the Women's Undergraduate Association, announced yesterday.

The nominations for the elections of first year officers will be held Friday, September 27, at 1.30 p.m. in the theatre of the Women's Union. The list of nominees will be in The Varsity Monday and will also be posted at various places in University College and in the Women's Union. The date of the formal initiation will be announced at the nomination meeting on Friday.

At four thirty on Tuesday, October 1, a tea will be held in the Women's Union at which the nominees will meet the other members of the first year.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Dave MacIntosh

"Cartwheel . . . Cartwheel!"

With a sigh and a tear, brushed quickly from the corner of the optic, we come to the sad realization that fall Saturday afternoons are not going to be quite the same this year. There will still be the mad rush for the wicket over at Varsity Stadium to present registration cards, for Warren Stevens came through with the glad tidings the other day that the Argo games will continue to be admission-free to Varsity students. There will still be the cries of "Cartwheel! Cartwheel!" and no doubt faint murmurings from the Engineers' section, still the thud of deated boot on ball and the grunts of straining linemen, still the pounding of feet as a star breaks into the clear and the roar from the stands when he is brought down by a swift and vicious tackle.

But there will be something missing, for it won't be our team out there on the sward seeking gain and glory. There won't be the united spirit of a dozen faculties pulling for one squad. Intercollegiate sport has died for the nonce. "C'est la guerre."

There are plenty of fellows we would have liked to see out there in the Bloor Bowl taking a whirl on the intercollegiate merry-go-round. Fellows like Johnny Lucas, Jack Paisley, Jack Quigley, Clinkett, who showed a lot of promise last year with the intermediate or interfaculty teams. And we would have liked to see those co-eds who were all set to perform before the stands.

Another glad note: Students will be admitted free to the Balm-Argo clash for the city championship and the De-Gruchy Cup that goes with it. Gate receipts are being evenly divided between the Red Cross and the John De-Gruchy Memorial Fund. The Athletic Association has made a handsome contribution to enable you to witness the tussle, and it should be a honey. It's football time again. And don't forget your registration card.

On This New Course, Physical Ed

Talking to Athletic Director Warren Stevens yesterday, we discovered that there is some misunderstanding in the minds of some concerning this new course, physical education. He said that he wished to dispel the impression that the course is just for those who intend to be teachers of physical ed. It is naturally a great course for that type of student, but it is also a fine course for any student.

It is easy to see that adding this practical side to a student's education should turn out a better citizen, both physically and mentally. In the regular curriculum he learns skill, how to use his leisure time to better advantage, he gets sound instruction in health education as well as all the other usual university work. At this time especially, when physical fitness is stressed so much, any student who decides to take this course, which has evidently been started at a most opportune time, can't go far wrong.

Off the Record

It's interesting to note how many U. of T. students out of the 500 who are serving in the C.A.S.F. were former Varsity stars . . . to mention a few . . . Toss Castles, now with the 48th Highlanders, quarterback of the Blue and White championship grid team of 1936, Cam MacLachlan, hard-hitting defenceman of last season's hockey champs, Ross Wilson, Jock Mynard, captain of last year's hockey sextet, who led his team to victory against the Redmen in Montreal and scampered back to write a Maths exam the next day, Chuck MacLean, now with the R.A.F., stellar linesman of last year's Blues, Walt McGregor, Phil Seagram, hockey player de luxe, now aide-de-campe of General McNaughton . . . and there are dozens more.

For freshmen . . . remember that your athletic fee, together with the old standby, the registration card, gets you special privileges besides the rugby games . . . riding, and golf at the Glen Eagles Club come at better than half the regular fee.

George Oliphant, the best lineman Western had last year, is to coach U.C.'s interfaculty rugby squad . . . anybody interested in officiating high school or prep school rugby games get in touch with Warren Stevens . . . the list is open at the Athletic Office for any who wish to officiate interfaculty games of any brand.

Interfaculty Golfers Tee Off Next Week

The stage is set for the first sport event of the semester—the annual interfaculty golf tournament, to be played at the Glen Eagles Club just a week from today, October 4th. The contest is open to all undergrads, with equal chances for the novice and the expert alike. Competitors will be divided into four flights, and prizes will be awarded for the low net and low gross scores in each flight.

Last year's contestants had to face inclement weather, which cut down considerably the number of entries. With favourable weather, this year's tournament is expected to be as big, if not bigger than the record attendance set two years ago.

The course is located conveniently near the city and can be reached easily by street car. Best route is to hop a Bloor car out to Woodbine and then grab a bus north to the club.

Entries will be accepted at the Athletic Office up to 5 p.m., Wednesday, October 2nd. The draw, to be held the same night, will be announced the following day in The Varsity and The Star. There will be a nominal entry fee.

The interfaculty champion will be determined on the basis of the four low gross scores. Last year, U.C.'s team, captained by Bill Kinnear, and including Buddy Rothschild, Herb Epstein and Bill Laird, copped the final honours. School finished second with Trinity a close third.

Many golfers who were unable to participate in the tourney in previous years because of team practices in other sports, will this year be able to take a hand at batting out the old pill. The anticipated increase in entries should add a lot to the success of the meet.

short wave radio and wireless telegraphy in all the war services, President H. J. Cody announced that a training course in these two branches of radio will be given by the university. This one year course will be open to all students who have specialized in mathematics and physics. Preference will be given to those students who would like to enter some field of war service on completion of the course.

The two-year course in Occupational Therapy has shown a great increase in enrolment with '38 accepted this year,

EX-WESTERN STAR TO COACH U.C. RUGBY

With the acquisition of George Olliphant as coach for the pigskin artists of University College, the inhabitants of the "Home of Knowledge" are in high spirits as training gets under way for the season's football schedule.

The new mentor of the Red and White comes to this campus from the University of Western Ontario, where he starred on the champion Mustang squad of 1939.

During his football career, Olliphant became one of the best linemen ever to appear on Canadian gridirons. The mammoth Mel Gugino used to open the holes for Western in their other and initial title march in 1931.

Followers of the interfaculty rugby loop can expect the Red and White gridirers to present the razzle-dazzle brand of play featured by Western's coach, Bill Storen.

ST. THOMAS CHURCH SONGS

Observing the festival of St. Michael's and All Angels, there will be a Procession and Solemn Eucharist at 11 a.m. and Solemn Evensong and Procession at 7 p.m. at St. Thomas' Church, Huron Street; some of the finest choral works written will be heard, including Rachmaninoff's eight-part motet O Saving Victim. Stanford's service in B flat, a brilliant Communion service written by Alan Richardson, organist at St. Alban's, Holborn, and a motet Most Merciful by Dr. Bullock of Westminster Abbey, two of the finest hymns will be sung during the Procession. The church is in walking distance of all university residences, and a cordial invitation is extended to all students.

With Michael O'Mara

CONTINENTS CRUMBLE . . . nations gnash their teeth . . . Roosevelt may not be re-elected . . . but there is still one bulwark in this turmoil-torn cosmos to which troubled man may turn and find solace . . . Ageless it stands, emblazoned in royal blue . . . THE GREAT HALL IS NOW OPEN.

EVEN IF WE DID ADMIT yesterday that maybe freshmen weren't so dumb, it appears that the balance of today's column will largely be made up of "Lo, the poor freshman" gags . . . Take for example the one about the dazed-looking frosh, who staggered out of the women's cloak-room in U.C. the other day, sobbing sadly "And I still don't know where room 67 is" . . .

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF DEPT. . . Remember last year when this column told the world of how two green-tinted frosh settled down to an afternoon of fun in the Hart House pool room and didn't realize it was a pay-as-you-play proposition until the attendant billed them for an astronomical amount? . . . Well, the same thing happened this year too . . . And remember the case of the cute little co-ed who withdrew for privacy while studying into the men's reading room of the main Library? . . . This time a man invaded the women's room, so our scouts inform us, and settled down for culture session . . . THEY RUN TRUE TO TYPE.

THEN THERE'S THE ONE about the amatory frosh ensconced in the U.C. common room who asks "Don't they let women in here?" "No," reply the other denizens of the joint. "The women have their own common rooms." "Oh," retorts the frosh, "then where can I meet some nifty babes?" . . . TRY THE ROTUNDA, FELLA.

FROSH GOES OVER to the President's address of welcome on Wednesday, see. Sits down. Sits there. Stands up. Goes out. A tough soph says to him "Hey, frosh, I didn't see you taking any notes in there." "No," goggles the frosh. "Was I supposed to?" "Sure," says the mean fellow. "Just wait until the exams." And he goes off laughing horribly to himself.

ANOTHER HEARTLESS SOPH, who should know better, is reaping a pretty little profit by selling subscriptions to The Varsity to frosh. . . That's downright mean. . . Don't buy them, my friends, borrow them. . . They're free.

A RABBLE-ROUSER EXTRA-ORDINARY, who shall remain nameless, injected sudden interest into a dull freshman meeting last night by seizing the floor and demanding that immediate punitive measures be taken against marauding and tie-hungry Schoolmen. Quoth he: "I was attacked by seven—no nine—guys in green ties. They got my tie but I got it back and I got all nine of theirs and I can show 'em to you too. Now tomorrow all you big guys meet me and we'll hold 'em down; and all you little guys come too and cut 'em off." . . . DON'T SAY WE DIDN'T WARN YOU, SCHOOL.

THE CO-ED ANGLE . . . A luscious little freshe, registered in Social and Philosophical Studies, is much perturbed by the polysyllabic nature of the name of her course. She soon tires of informing her eager public that she is registered in Social and Philosophical Studies. So, the next time a contemporary asks her what she's doing, she says with the brevity which is admittedly the soul of wit, "I'm in Soc. and Phil." Her fellow-freshie's face clouds momentarily, then brightens up. "Oh, I get it," she sparkles. "You're in Dentistry!"

ART MUSIC & DRAMA

She sang well, with clarity and precision. (On account of the acoustics of the hall she is at her best over the radio.)

The hauntingly beautiful Symphony in D Minor by Cesar Franck followed next. It was given what was probably the best performance of the evening.

It was followed by a group of six songs by Miss Speaks, of which Morning and Sylvia by her uncle, Oley Speaks, were particularly fine. She was recalled again and again.

Mr. Stewart then followed with St. Paul's Suite by Holst, and closed with the popular Russian Sailor's Dance by Gliere, which was thunderously applauded.

college by the sweat of his brow. Almost unrecognizable in grimy overalls and tattered shirts, undergrads stoked lake boats with knotted, gummy cordwood; dipped farm machinery in vats of paint calculated to attract the rustic eye; or put running boards on army trucks.

Others from all branches of the university trudged from door to door asking for the lady of the house and proclaiming the respective merits of their respective brushes, magazines, or bread and cakes.

But co-eds work too.

Playgrounds, children's camps, and summer hotels found themselves enhanced immeasurably by the presence of many a comely co-ed who went about bandaging hurt fingers, blowing noses, making beds, and trotting tray loads of hash.

Others checked over examination papers such as they might once have written 'way back in public school days and sent out results which would bring happiness or otherwise to the school kids of the province.

Several tried a hand at modelling classy clothes or in giving sales talks in women's shops.

CHINESE STUDENTS COME TO VARSITY TO CONTINUE STUDIES

Ordinarily would Have Pursued Postgraduate Studies in English Universities such as Oxford, Cambridge, London

WILL RETURN HOME LATER

The University of Toronto is to be the intellectual home for the coming year of nineteen of a group of twenty-four Chinese students who will attend British universities on scholarships provided by the British contribution to the Boxer Indemnity Fund. The remaining five students of the group will attend McGill University.

Under peaceful conditions these students, the majority of whom will be doing post graduate work, would have gone to English universities, such as Oxford, Cambridge, or London.

Most of the students are completing studies leading to the Ph.D. or M.A. degrees in applied or natural science (of some type, as are all the five at McGill, according to Mr. Shen Chao-wei, their spokesman and leader.

Among the sciences they are studying are mechanical engineering, medicine, applied mathematics, biochemistry, physicochemistry, geophysics and metallurgy. The remainder are studying law, politics, education, mathematics and geography.

All intend to return to China on completion of their studies, said Mr. Shen, and depending on the political conditions then obtaining, will enter the government in the military and armament services in the war against Japan, or to teaching.

The group at Toronto are drawn from ten of China's many universities, and along with the five at McGill were the successful candidates in examinations set by the board controlling the fund. Some thirty other Chinese students will attend American universities on scholarships provided by the contribution of the United States to the fund, it was stated.

In outlining the circumstances of their voyage, Mr. Shen revealed that, despite war conditions, most of the commercial airlines of China are still operating, and that those of the group who came from homes at a distance from the port of embarkation, arrived by airplane. Meeting at Shanghai, the group crossed on the Empress of Russia, and had, according to Mr. Shen, a "peaceful" crossing. They arrived at Vancouver on August 26, and at Toronto on the 31st.

Despite recent events in the east, Mr. Shen said, China, which is beginning to become industrially developed, will eventually be able to cope with the aggressor. He expressed, for his fellow students, the hope that they will be able to play some part in giving China peace.

New General Secretary Of University S.C.M. Was Former President

Mr. John Coleman, who succeeds Dr. Wilfred Lockhart as General Secretary of the Student Christian Movement in the University of Toronto.

John Coleman Replaces Rev. Wilfred Lockhart who Resigned to become Minister in Sherbourne United Church

WAS SCHOLARSHIP STUDENT

John Coleman, former president of the Student Christian Movement of the university, has been appointed general secretary of the organization, succeeding Rev. Wilfred Lockhart, it has been announced.

Rev. Lockhart resigned from his position as general secretary of the S.C.M. to become minister of Sherbourne Street United Church.

His successor graduated from University College in 1939. Mr. Coleman came to the university from Runnymede Collegiate to enter mathematics and physics and specialized in mathematics. He distinguished himself as a member of the first team to win the Putnam Mathematical Contest in 1938. Mr. Coleman recently returned from Princeton University where he spent the past year on the J. S. McLean Travelling Fellowship from University College, doing post graduate work in mathematics completing all the requirements for the Ph.D. degree except his thesis.

During Mr. Coleman's senior year at the University of Toronto he was president of the S.C.M. as well as a member of the Board of Stewards of Hart House, the Philosophy Club and the Historical Club.

Mr. Coleman was engaged in organizing the activities of the British children located at Hart House during the summer.

PRESIDENT ELECTED AT FIRST MEETING OF LOCAL C.C.F. CLUB

More Open Meetings Planned for This Year than Previously, with Intention to Organize Study Groups

SECRETARY ALSO CHOSEN

Ken McNaught, fourth year Modern History student of University College, was elected president of the University Canadian Cooperative Federation Club at the first meeting of the organization for the term on Friday.

Ted Mann, third year Victoria College student, was elected secretary of the club.

Plans of the club include a schedule of more open meetings than were held in previous years. The president said that the executive hopes to persuade Charles Millard, provincial president of the C.C.F., to attend as the first guest speaker. "It is our intention to organize study groups to analyse the C.C.F.'s attitude towards Canadian problems," said McNaught.

Hart House Played Host To Hundreds of Refugees In Varsity's War Effort

Rev. Robert Mackie, who spoke at a service held under the auspices of the Student Christian Movement in Convocation Hall yesterday.

Every British Guest Child Placed in an Ontario Home Spent Part of His Time at the University of Toronto

ALL COLLEGES COOPERATED

The following comprehensive review of the visit of the British Guest Children to the University of Toronto was written by a Varsity reporter after interviews with key officials who had charge of arrangements to place the children in their new homes.

Hearty appreciation of total co-operation of university officials in helping the Ontario Government place hundreds of British Guest Children between the ages of 5 and 13 in Ontario homes was expressed in an interview Saturday by George S. Tattle, Ontario Deputy Minister of Public Welfare, who had charge of locating the children in the homes of foster-parents in Ontario.

"The University of Toronto made a very real contribution to the war effort in looking after these children until they could be placed in Ontario homes," Mr. Tattle said, "and the Ontario Government owes them its deepest gratitude.

"From President Cody right down along the line of university officials who volunteered their efforts, co-operation was splendid, and words could not express the government's appreciation to the wholehearted way in which everyone threw themselves into the task."

Every British guest child who has entered an Ontario home since the war began went through Hart House, Mr. Tattle said.

The invasion of the University of Toronto campus by about 800 British children turned a usually peaceful summer scene into a bustling colony of youngsters with English accents and anxious officials who worked night and day keeping the machinery of the plan in smooth running order. It was, apart from the C.O.T.C., the first large-scale co-operative war effort of the university.

During the latter part of August, groups of children all wearing coloured armbands were piloted around the tradition-bound haunts of the campus by supervisors, the university residences flowed with the laughter-and-tear-filled voices of boys and girls from beleaguered Britain, and soccer, cricket and baseball games raged on the back campus of University College and the residence quadrangles.

Hart House Invaded

Hart House, traditional sanctuary of the men of the university, overflowed, and the cloistered walks and hallowed halls abounding on the campus were unprecedentedly filled with the little visitors. Such scenes as 4,000 pieces of miscellaneous English luggage piled on the steps of Convocation Hall became common.

Beginnings of Plan

Early in June, rumours of a plan to remove British children from the war zones of Great Britain to the safety of Canadian homes began to trickle through from various sources. Immediate interest on all sides was roused in the dramatic plan, unprecedented in history, to remove the children in a body from the terror of the Nazi bombers which had caused so much terror among the women and children of the Netherlands, Flanders and France.

As the details of the plan were revealed, it became known that the Dominion Immigration Department would look after the transportation of the first group of 1,200 children to Ontario, and that the Ontario Departments of Public Welfare and Health would look after

NATURAL HISTORIANS MEET FOR FIELD DAY

The nest of the solitary digger wasp, the egg pod of the praying mantis, the possibility of a returning ice age were a few of the many topics explored and discussed at the field day of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists at Highland Creek, Saturday, where more than two hundred naturalists, amateur and professional, met for a day of field study.

Groups were led by Dr. E. M. Walker, pond life and general; Mr. Stuart L. Thompson, bird life; Dr. E. S. Moore, geology; Dr. Taylor, botany.

Tracing the history of the federation, Professor T. M. MacLennan told of its beginnings in Hart House in 1930, when a group of naturalists, wishing to make possible the union of all Natural History clubs of the province into an organized body having power to promote preservation of native fauna and flora, and of communicating each with its fellow members, banded together to form the F.O.N.

The federation now consists of some twenty branches, each holding one or two annual field days for its local members.

The Toronto branch, led by its president, Dr. R. M. Saunders, meets during the winter in the Royal Ontario Museum on the first Monday of each month at 8.15 p.m.

Topics of the meetings include such diverse subjects as astronomy, fish, flowers, tagging butterflies, tropical plants found in Ontario, and the first limestone precipitation.

Visiting Actor Comments On Women and Degrees

By Susan Goulding

"Education is a good thing—and I like college women," Francis Lederer, interviewed in his dressing room at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, said last night.

"But just because a girl's got an M.A. is no reason for wanting to marry her," he confided to this Varsity reporter.

"Never ask me whether I prefer blondes or brunettes," was his comment on women. "I look into ze souls!"

When it was his turn to interview Francis Lederer, don't ever hope to write down verbatim famous words he shoots your way. It's no use—the idol steals reporters' pencils to sign programs for adoring co-eds—and we have not got ours back yet!

The Varsity knocked at Room A backstage at the Royal Alex—and discovered the great Lederer under layers of cold cream and towels after the matinee—clad only in those alpine pants that make history in "Autumn Crocus".

Said Mr. L. cheerfully between signatures, "I'm safe—no one can make a profit out of my signature except me! I sign differently each time." Puzzle: which is the most charming—the accent, the curly hair, or that smile with the sideways glance?

Born in Prague, F.L. started theatre at the bottom of the ladder . . . two years' work as an extra for never a cent . . . then a year at $1.20 a month—then way, way up to $10 monthly . . . came then a shift to the Berlin theatre—and he's made stage and screen news ever since.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

STUDENTS ADVISED TO CONTINUE STUDIES

Rev. Robert Mackie, general secretary of the World's Student Christian Federation, yesterday urged students to "stick to their jobs but in a different way than in former years." Rev. Mackie spoke at a service in Convocation Hall held under the auspices of the Student Christian Movement, and conducted by President H. J. Cody.

"Our country becomes more precious to us when our future is at stake," Rev. Mackie said. "We must identify ourselves with our country."

Rev. Mackie told students that they were especially privileged to continue their studies, "because people are dying so that you may carry on with your jobs."

Rev. Mackie is a graduate in arts and theology from Glasgow University. He was recently forced to flee from Geneva where he had been situated as general secretary of the W.C.S.F.

NOMINATIONS COMPLETED FOR OFFICES IN U.C. LIT

Nominations for offices on the University College Literary and Athletic Association were completed at the first annual meeting of the organization in the junior common room of the college, Friday.

Officers nominated were: Secretary-treasurer of the fourth year, P. Turchin; third year president, Ron Moore; Gordon Pyne, Hubert Pedlar; third year athletic representative, Ned Cutler; Robert Ferguson, Ken Hignell; assistant secretary of the association: James Lillier, Morton Berg, John MacBeth, Allan Armstrong, John Conybeare; first year president: Harry Wai; glass, Joseph White, Alan MacDonald, Gordon Nishop; secretary-treasurer of the first year: Robert Alexander, Stuart Johnson, Forrest Rogers, Norwood Paukert; athletic representative: James Bitone, Allan Grant, Eric Brannen and Graham Lawrence.

NOMINATIONS FOR W.U.A. HELD BY U.C. FRESHIES

Nominations for the executive of the Women's Union Association of University College was held at the annual meeting of the freshmen of the college on Friday.

Nominations were: President: Nancy Fraser, Mary Graham, Bette MacMillan, Jean Ross; Secretary: Peggy Graeb, Susan Bickle, Betty Ursem, Winifred Walker; Treasurer: Barbara Duff, Eleanor Sinclair; Social Service Director: Susan Goulding, Annabel Kennedy, Ruth Gibson, Joyce Taplin, Louise McLaughlin.

Another New Course

For years this continent has seen a growing recognition of the need for comprehensive programs of physical and health education with the far-sighted view of improving civilian fitness and morale. The old concept that an education is complete when the individual has been exposed by a certain amount of academic tuition has been replaced by the realization that, in addition, both theoretical and practical instruction in hygiene and physical education is vital if the educational institutions of the country are to fulfil their function of producing responsible citizens. The seeming increase of juvenile delinquency and crime has done much to make the need apparent.

In the past Canada has lagged slightly behind her southern neighbour, and the announcement that the University of Toronto has now taken a long step forward by introducing a course which leads to the degree of Bachelor of Physical and Health Education should be of real import to the country. It is understood to be the first of its kind offered by a Canadian university, and it fills a real gap in Canadian educational life. The merit of this particular course is that it combines so admirably both academic and physical education, for it has been so designed that the first year is similar to a regular arts course. The principle could have been carried over into the succeeding years more than it has without destroying the main purpose. A scientific knowledge of the human organism is the fundamental of the course, and the effect of physical activities upon the physical, mental and emotional makeup of the individual is stressed. A proper balance has been struck between theory and practice, for in what might be termed "laboratory" periods time is set aside for practicing those things taught during instruction periods. Mental hygiene, preventive medicine, and health assessment, all valuable in bettering the life of the individual, the community and the nation, are important phases of the new course.

The Physical Education course is not designed for future teachers of the subject alone, although that is its prime purpose. Many openings present themselves to the graduate, not the least of which at the present is the need in the army for wide programs of wholesome physical and recreational activities. With thousands of men on active service, and with other thousands called to camps for training periods there is an immediate demand for programs of recreation and social hygiene. Trained men are needed to direct such schemes in various military centres, and the demand will increase. It is recognized that wholesome activities must be made more attractive than the demoralizing influences which are always at work. With national preparedness so vital today, the importance of physical and health education increases, for national morale is directly conditioned by national interests and activities. Apart from its present merits, it is also sound policy for the future. We are not merely fighting a war; we must be preparing to live after the war, and the basic problem becomes that of developing physical, mental and social fitness in the youth of today. We feel that the institution of the course in Physical and Health Education here is a definite approach toward the solution of that problem. Of course, the solution will have to be through a national approach, but a real step has been taken.

Turnabout

Last spring when the battle between "interventionists" and "isolationists" was being bitterly fought in the United States, the campus newspapers of America were fighting in the front ranks of the "isolationist" camp. American youth was determined to keep its eyes and ears on this fair continent and no other, and campus editorials blasted violently at anyone who mentioned aid to the Allies.

At that time no comment was made in these columns. Rightly there was no criticism then; and rightly there is none now. But a long summer has passed. The world scene has changed radically and so has American opinion. The latest Gallup report is that thirty-five per cent of the United States favour active participation. And so we think we can fairly comment upon the reversal of viewpoint by reprinting excerpts from a leading editorial in one of our contemporaries, the Harvard Crimson, which last year openly flayed its President Conant for his support of aid for Britain.

"Last year many of us sympathized with the Allied cause but believed that we had no stake in a long imperialistic war. Today few of us can doubt that we have a very real stake in the war that rages across the sea." Thus writes the Crimson, and goes on to state that the real danger comes from South America. The new threat from Japan was not then so crystallized. Speaking of the black future if the States are to maintain a military establishment for generations, the Crimson goes on:

"To avoid this menacing future we are willing to go far in helping England to win this war. Our national policy today may be summed up as 'all aid to England short of war.' Yet this is a meaningless slogan, because 'aid' can merge imperceptibly into 'war.' Many of us opposed helping England in the belief that once you set foot on that dangerous path there is no turning back. Already we have progressed from planes and guns to destroyers. Next will be army planes, then the repeal of the embargo on loans to belligerents, then the lifting of the ban on volunteering for service with the English army. Each step breaks down the determination to 'draw the line' and inexorably we shall move into total war. Inexorably? Let us hope not. Remember that in aiding England, essentially we are seeking to purchase security from a Nazi menace, and to purchase it at the best price. Call this a base and mercenary interpretation of a crusade for enduring peace and freedom, but do not forget that we may be asked to pay in the currency of blood."

The Late Principal Hutton

With the passing of Principal Maurice Hutton last April Canadian higher education, particularly in the realm of classics, lost one of its most prominent figures, and the University of Toronto lost a loyal friend and servant.

A great scholar and teacher, Maurice Hutton was intimately connected with the university, and University College in particular, for a span of years which saw the full development of this seat of learning. At the age of 24 he arrived in 1880 to take the Chair of Classical Literature in University College. In 1928 he retired from a life of service, after having held the principalship of University College since the turn of the century when it was first separated from the presidency of the university. Urged in 1906 to become a candidate for the university presidency he decided against it, preferring to work on in his chosen field, where he had won a brilliant reputation as a classical scholar.

We of the present generation of university students were denied the opportunity of coming in contact with Principal Hutton, and it is our loss. We realize, however, that much of the development and flowering of this university which we have inherited was due to his influence and guidance through the forty-eight years of his service. And we know also that his personal influence upon hundreds of Varsity students down through the years has been great and has continued with them as they trod the varied paths of life. To the memory of Principal Maurice Hutton we offer humble tribute.

Students returning from outlying points to the university's aura of culture will find an exciting and interestingly versatile collection of paintings in the present Hart House exhibit.

For sheer diversity, in fact, we have seen no collection by a single person to equal the exhibition of Charles H. Comfort, a lecturer in Fine Art at University College. For one thing, our embryonic mind had somehow grown accustomed to the idea of big

THE BATHIN'

(With apologies to no one. Damn it, let the sophs apologize.)
Once after a midnight dreary, for I'd pondered weak and weary
Over many a quaint and curious volume of forgotten lore—

While I slept there came no napping, suddenly there came a tapping
As of someone gently rapping, rapping at my chamber door—
Only this and nothing more.

Presently my soul grew stronger; hesitating then no longer,
"Sir," said I, "not Madam, truly your forgiveness I implore,
But the fact is I've been napping, and so gently you came rapping,
And so faintly you came tapping, tapping at my chamber door,
That I scarce was sure I heard you,"
—here I opened wide the door:—
The sophs were on me! (Follows more.)

I was carried half reclining, with my poor soul ever pining
For the cool and balmy breezes from Nepenthe's shore.
Straight into a devil's bower, underneath an ice cold shower,
Vain it was to flinch and cower—I was frozen to the core.
Finally they let me stand up, chilled with water to the core.
Then my captors op'd the door.

All they'd done was now well finished; all this torture, not diminished, Follow'd with me down the passage till I reached my chamber door.
There I entered, cold and quivery, wearing just my skin for livery—
Not too dry and very shivery, once inside my chamber door.
Grabbed a towel and rubbed the cold off, once inside my chamber door.
Went to bed and swore and swore.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.
Dear Sir:

The average freshman arrives at this university with little or no knowledge of the workings of the university newspaper and with no preconceived ideas about it. He reads the first issue of The Varsity, presumably forming an opinion about it. This opinion may be good or bad—it is his opinion. However, in too many cases, the next opinion he is likely to hear expressed on The Varsity—his first from a source which he respects and considers responsible, a professor—is likely to be some slurring reference to the newspaper, made in sarcastic jest.

We must protest vigorously against this unwarranted malignment of an effort of which we are proud, these sarcastic jibes repeated year after year without any vestige of justification.

The freshman will learn in time, as have his predecessors, that The Varsity is a serious, honest effort to produce the best possible university newspaper, an effort made by serious young men and women who are striving to obtain in the best possible way, by experience, an education in the field of journalism. He will learn that The Varsity has produced some of Canada's finest journalists and statesmen; that the scholastic average of its staff is the best of any group of students in the university; that its editorial opinions are considered and respected by Canada's leading dailies; that its columns are quoted widely in the daily collegiate press of the United States; that it endeavours to present at all times in its pages carefully considered student opinion.

He will learn all these facts. Yes, he will learn them. But only after he has overcome a prejudice instilled in him by persons he respects—persons who must find a butt for their ill-considered humour—humour repeated year after year to a new crop of freshmen, just for a cheap laugh. We do not think it is funny.

BRIGHT FUTURE SEEN FOR VIC RUGBY HOPES AS VETERANS RETURN

First Practice Held Last Friday on Vic Athletic Field — Still Weak in Several Positions

STERLING MAY COACH

By Dave MacIntosh

Vic's football aspirants turned out for their first practice Friday afternoon on their own field, and from a quick glance at the boys one might get the impression that the Scarlet and Gold has something this year. They had plenty last year but failed to come through in the tight spots. Vic boasted one of the strongest lines of any inter-faculty squad last season, and a fleet backfield.

It will be sweet music to the ears of Vic supporters to learn that most of last year's crew is back in armour, with the notable exception of Don McRae, Wally Brown, Bill Joliffe and Bob McLaughlin. But the array of veterans was impressive—Pete Kibbs, Bob Irwin, Joe Dales, Jack Wolfraim, "Brick" Bradford, to say nothing of triple threat quarterback Johnny Hogg and defensive star Hal Fleming.

There remain a couple of positions which are in much doubt. Vic can use a couple of good ends. This was her weak vulnerable spot last year, and she will have to fill out her backfield. A newcomer by the name of Jack Finley, who played with Jarvis last year, shows much promise and may fill in a back-field slot.

Wally Sterling, who handled the coaching duties last season, will more than likely take over the Scarlet and Gold reins, and he may have the valuable assistance of Charlie Prince, Varsity kicking half, and interfaculty basketball de luxe.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Owen Prichard

At one stage in Saturday's game at the Stadium Referee "Hec" Creighton held up the play while he counted the number of Argonaut players on the field. This corner suggests that the veteran arbiter was trying to convince himself that the Double Blue really had twelve men in the game. The Scullers wore the same sweaters and helmets as last year's team, but there the resemblance ended. We have a keen dislike of post-mortems on any game and no one asked us to analyse this one, so we play it safe with an assortment of explanations and invite you to help yourself.

(a) Beaches had a great defense, and the line was as tight as "Suzie" Turner's britches.

(b) West and Coulter are not yet up to the standard set by Storey and Stukus last year. (But give them another fortnight, chums, and watch this pair of sudden guys singe the Stadium turf.)

(c) (From Chapter I of the High School Algebra.) Two Stuki, named A and B, set out to travel the length of a rugby field. If halfbacks are a dime a dozen and good passing pairs are rarities, how long will it take A to make a touchdown while B is on the bench?

(d) Argonauts failed to produce the sort of plays which speed up the game and start the onward roll.

(e) It wasn't the Argo team at all, but the Double Blue band who had got their uniforms mixed.

Actually, the game itself brought out the fact that the fixings are a great part of football's charm. We know of no contest (duels excepted) which has more dramatic appeal in its opening than a football kick-off. Add to this a bit of business with cheerleaders, maneuvering bands, and a drum-majorette (Audrey, where art thou?) and you have a spectacle which keeps the crowd interested even though the actual play be dull. These adornments were lacking on Saturday, and many a fan, though rejoicing in the swell showing of Balmy Beach, wended his way Bay-Bloor-ward muttering Oscar Levant's crack, "Thank you for a very tedious afternoon."

The important thing is that sweet charity benefited to the tune of $3,300, which is hardly peanuts.

DENTAL BASEBALL CHAMPIONS MINUS AUSTRALIAN ALLIES STRIVE FOR MORE LAURELS

The Dental Athletic Society has resolved to sponsor as full a sports program as possible under existing conditions. Already possessors of the Spalding Cup as interfaculty baseball titlists, the Tooth-tuggers are hot on the trail of more titles.

The "foreign legion" of Australian molar-men who contributed greatly to the faculty's athletic drive last year are absent this season. Consequently athletic chairman Fred Parrott is trying to inspire the remaining Dents and the newly-come frosh to surpass the feats performed in the far and recent past by such "greats" of Dentistry athletics as Mueller, Grecco, Smockum and Mullett.

Sports enthusiasts aplenty, but not an awful lot of sport! That's about the situation right now, and with that happy thought in mind we tremulously and doggedly endeavour to struggle through this, our first Sportsman of the year. It's a bit hard you know to fill up space with nothing about nothing, but here goes.

The first glimpse we shall get of the all-important fair sex in the realm of sport will be a gala turnout of the co-ed department at Mississauga golf club today, Monday, September 30, and here is the bait if any be needed. Not worms this time but a real honest-to-goodness luncheon; golf in and at your own time and with your own pals any time through the day; tea; and last but not least, that lucky other fellow, prizes for your noble efforts. And all for one dollar and twenty-five cents! Even if the latter does seem a rather futile attraction, don't be discouraged. Bring your knitting along and see how much of that scarf you can get done—you won't find it all in vain.

Tennis will be the next big item on our schedule and entries are being accepted now by the college athletic directors. But more about that later.

First and foremost, let's have a real turnout today. Let's start things with a bang. Ladies, you don't have to be able to hit the ball just so long as you hit something—and that isn't your partner's skull. So everybody out to show our appreciation for the generosity of the Mississauga Club by at least mowing down a little of their grass. Let's make it a BIG year in interfaculty sport—and NOW is the time to start.

Beaches Swamp Scullers To Win DeGruchy Cup For First Time Since '31

Balmies Superior in all but the First Quarter when the Double Blue Garnered its Only Points

WON BY SCORE OF 12-3

Those redoubtable Balmy Beachers upset the Argo apple-cart last Saturday afternoon at Varsity Stadium by firmly lacing their highly-touted rivals to the tune of 12-3. This is the first time since 1931 that the east-enders have had the pleasure of carting home the Reg DeGruchy Memorial Trophy, emblematic of city rugby supremacy.

Except for rather shaky play in the first quarter when the Argos garnered their only points, the Bam Bam Balmies were superior to the Double Blue in every department. Porter did some fine hoofing and along with mates Morin, Crowe and Seymour was the mainstay of the Beach brigade both offensively and defensively.

For the Scullers, Art "Whippet" West and Bobby Coulter played beautiful ball but because of rather shoddy support from a mediocre front line never became their potent selves.

Beaches kicked off against the wind and Porter fumbled and recovered Follwell's return. Play was dull for the next few minutes until Munro uncorked a lovely forward to West, who ran 10 yards to the Beach nine yard line. Argos worked their way to the 5 yard line but a fake placement by Munro backfired and Crowe kicked the Beach out of danger.

Follwell kicked to the Beach corner and Staughton recovered a Beach fumble on the next play. After a few unsuccessful attempts at a major Munro kicked a neat placement to net the Scullers their first and last 3 counters.

Tunncliffe knotted the score at 3-3 with a placement on the first play. Porter kicked 60 yards and Morris beat it back to the Argo 11 yard line. Somerville booted short and high to the Scullers' 36 yard line. Beaches were handed a 10 yard penalty for holding; Elwyn Morris fumbled Alexander's kick and Deady nabbed it to score a touchdown. Tunncliffe converted to make it 9-3.

Score at half-time: Balmy Beach 9, Argos 3.

Balmy kicked off to West at the Argo 26. West made 5 on an extension and Follwell kicked short to Crowe on the Beach 48 yard line. Porter was nailed for a two-yard loss. Crowe kicked short to the Argo 38. Munro and McLean made no gain on two plunges. Follwell kicked to the Beach 35.

A Stukus to West forward brought the leather to the Beach 43, but shortly after he heaved another into Barron's arms. The east enders moved up the field until Crowe kicked to the Argo 5 yard line, but West raced it back to the 27. Somerville lost 20 yards on a poor passing attempt and Follwell was tackled for a safety touch to make the score 11-3 at the 3rd quarter ended.

Crowe kicked to the Scullers' 3 but the ball was carried to the 23. A Munro to West forward just failed to connect and Munro kicked short to the Argo 43. Argos lost 15 yards for rough play. Beach marched down to the Argo 26. Crowe's placement was off the mark but was good for a single tally. After a kicking exchange Munro heaved a 40-yard pass to West who ran to the 50 yard line as the final whistle blew. Final score: Balmy Beach 12, Argos 3.

CONSTRUCTIVE SUGGESTION

The Harvard Crimson carried a story last week concerning 13 newspapermen selected from hundreds of applicants who have been granted fellowships to study journalism at Cambridge. The scheme is described as "Harvard's $1,000,000 attempt to promote and elevate the standard of journalism in the United States."

Now admittedly there is not a million dollars lying around loose anywhere on this campus, and if there were it could be spent on a great many more immediate needs than journalism in such times as these; but we suggest to the authorities (should they read this column, which is unlikely) that surely a similar scheme, probably on a much smaller scale, could be worked out for this university after the war. Scholarships are open to outstanding students who wish to enter almost any other professional field. Must newspaper work forever wait outside the tradesmen's entrance of Canadian colleges?

AFTER THAT OUTBURST, let us consider the case of the awful fate which befell our confere, The Varsity's acting Feature Editor. . . . Prisking down the Hart House corridor that leads to The Varsity office the other day, howling happily "I've got a story that'll bust this town wide open," he galloped, by mistake of course, into that little kitchen opposite the Graduate Dining Room. He met a plate-skinned waitress on her way out. A loud crash, a loud silence, and a somewhat soup-soiled Feature Editor proceeded from the kitchen in that order.

DID YOU NOTICE . . . The neatest play of Saturday's Argo-Beach game, when a little black squirrel broke into the open at mid-field and razzle-dazzled his way across the Beach line? To make the picture complete, tucked in his capacious cheek was a pig-skin-shaped nut. Rumour is rife that Lew Hayman has already been dickered with the squirrel, in an attempt to bolster the Scullers' half-line.

cases. Officials were dismayed by one young visitor who very "disloyally" had a case of German measles in Faulkner House.

All serious cases were sent to 46 St. George St., where the newsboys of the Toronto Star had equipped their organization to be used as an infirmary.

Recreational Activities

When it came to amusing the children, officials had their hands full. Like any group of youngsters, the British Guest Children were irrepressibly fond of having a good time. And like any group of children, they liked to choose their own amusements. Hence a few broken windows and several water escapades.

The preferences taken by the children Theatre, they were happiest over wild western scenes, and cartoons . . . a film of the Royal visit to Canada evinced no response until President Roosevelt appeared on the scene, when they cheered loudly . . . "Roll out the Barrel" was the biggest hit and nearly all the pictures showed the influence of war—airplanes, ships, guns and submarines. The Toronto Conservatory of Music provided music appreciation hours in the Hart House Theatre . . . the gymnasium wing was used extensively for games, the debates room bulged with more than 1,000 books placed there by the city librarian . . . the music room became a writing room.

Due to leave Sept. 1, the visit was extended first one week, then another, and the children finally were removed from the university grounds—most of them to the homes of their foster-parents. Some are still staying at the Oddfellows' Hall.

pictures being oils and watercolours being small, and Mr. Comfort has several very large portraits in watercolour, along with a number of very small paintings in oils. This, however, was a minor surprise compared with the contrast in methods and ideas displayed in the collection.

In one class we would place such pictures as "Smelter Stacks, Copper-cliff"—a splendid, inspiring landscape that will strike you as soon as you go in; "Saguenay River"—an old familiar to Hart House frequenters; "Promontory," "Quebec Church," and, along more sombre lines, "Pioneer Survival" and "Lake Superior Village"—all have either the fresh, inspiring touch or the sombre serenity of large landscapes which we would like to do if we could express ourselves in colour. All have a nice, satisfying atmosphere about them.

Next we would divide off into a class which a different artist might have done the luxurious, soft, deep "Trilliums"—two still lifes in water colour, and two "Ballerinas."

After that the watercolour portraits . . . very interesting, with backgrounds weird, must be segregated. Then those 10 very small oils, each in a white frame which seems as severe as the clear, brilliant western light in which they were painted. Apart from "Barn near Colgan," "Cooke's Farm" and "Ruined Silo," we could look on them with very little approval.

If you are the sort of person who goes about worrying about that sort of thing, "The Dreamer," "Professor Felix Walter," "Lumber Town," "Chuhaldin," "Louise" may bother you a little after you go away.

the actual placing of the children in the homes of their foster-parents.

Logical place for the children to be brought for allocation to Ontario homes was Toronto, and the university, idle in the summer months, seemed an ideal place to station the children for proceedings preliminary to their location in homes.

Accordingly, the University of Toronto officials were asked by the Department of Public Welfare about July 1 for their co-operation in supplying the use of the university residences, and the facilities of Hart House for meals and medical examinations.

At great effort on the part of all concerned, arrangements were finally completed by July 12 to look after a total of 1,200 British Guest Children.

Churchill Announcement

Just as all was in readiness, reports came that the plan was being abandoned. After days of uncertainty, Prime Minister Churchill announced in the British House of Commons that the plan could not be carried out because of lack of convoys. Many still felt uncertain. Mr. Tattle thought the Prime Minister's statement a clever plan to throw the enemy off guard and quietly proceeded with arrangements anyway. Others, however, felt the plan was definitely off and went on vacation. Local arrangements lagged under the apparent certainty that the children were not coming.

Children Arrive

Sudden news that the first group of children were due to arrive shortly brought officials hustling back to their desks, however, to catch up the loose threads of preparations. The first group of 27 youngsters arrived at 6.30 p.m., August 22. Shortly after these were followed by 68 more, then an avalanche of 391. Later they arrived in smaller groups. Largest number on the campus at any one time was not the 1,200 originally expected, but about half that number.

Meals

From then on the university buzzed with excitement and activity. The solemn dignity of the Great Hall, which 25 years before in the first Great War had served as a billet for hundreds of Canadian soldiers, now knew the gaiety of little children's noises. Great Hall kitchens supplied about 1,100 or 1,200 meals daily on an average, with this figure rising above 2,000 at times. This was not greatly above the usual figure of 1,200 meals daily served during an academic session, but the dining hall was short-staffed, and many of the children needed individual attention.

Invaluable assistance in the feeding of the children was supplied by 25 women workers from the Imperial Gillies, acting-warden of Hart House, said.

"Headed by Mrs. A. M. Goodwin, convener in charge of the British Child Guests, the I.O.D.E. workers took up headquarters in the Map room, donned uniforms and served meals in the Great Hall."

"The dining hall had also to provide meals for the three infirmaries, East House, 73 St. George St., and the Toronto Star newsboys' building at 46 St. George," Mr. Gillies said. Sending out of meals necessitated steam equipment and a boiler and steam engineer supplied by the Ontario Government provided steam for the cooking and steam table equipment.

Residences

To keep track of the children, the Dominion Government drew up a map of the university residences. On the map each residence was coloured, and two Children's Aid Society workers who went to Halifax to arrange the children in groups provided each child with armbands the colour of the residence at which he was to stay.

"All federated and affiliated colleges co-operated wonderfully well," said Mr. Bonus, assistant superintendent of buildings and grounds, who was in charge of housing the children.

Additional beds and equipment was provided by the government through the various social organizations centred in Toronto.

Many familiar university residences took on a strange aspect. For example, the dining rooms of the U.C. Women's Union and Faulkner House were filled with beds.

Over at Fisher House, one of St. Michael's residences, officials were just tucking the visitors away in bed the first night when violent objections were registered by a Scotch lad—an independent little chap who was still wearing kilts when he arrived in Toronto.

"I want to sleep with my chum," he observed firmly when the time came for bed.

"What's the matter, Robbie?" soothed the supervisor in charge of the residence. "You should know this little boy well enough by now. After all, you came all the way from England with him," and she indicated an English boy already trying to go to sleep.

"What?" Robbie said in high Gaelic indignation. "Sleep with an ENGLISHMAN?"

Accommodation

Mattresses, beds and linen were supplied by the Dominion Government as well as mail and newspapers from home. The children were encouraged to write letters back to their parents, telling them of their safe arrival.

Every 25 children had a supervisor, usually a Toronto school teacher. More than 150 I.O.D.E. workers also acted as supervisors. Each supervisor chose an assistant, and each residence had several supervisors.

Medical Examinations

First thing to happen to the children when they were brought in was a medical examination. These were made in the boxing and wrestling rooms, by university and Sick Children's Hospital doctors who began their work at 7 a.m.

A case of diphtheria in '73" caused the U.C. men's residence to be turned into an infirmary. East House was also used as an infirmary for less serious

SORORITY LOAN FUND ASSISTS STUDENTS SAYS NATIONAL DEAN

Interest not Exacted on Loans Given from Fund Raised by Iota Alpha Pi Sorority for Aiding Students Financially

ALL STUDENTS ELIGIBLE

Mrs. Martha Logan of New York, the national dean of the Iota Alpha Pi Sorority, said when interviewed yesterday afternoon that the Student Loan Fund sponsored by the aforementioned sorority, is the only one of its kind in existence.

The fund is for the assistance of students in any recognized university in Canada or United States, who are in need of financial help. The unique condition in the arrangement is that no interest whatever is charged for the loan and the only stipulation is that the student be reasonably certain that he or she will be able to repay the principal.

Mrs. Sagon, who was entertained at tea yesterday by members of the Kappa chapter of the sorority, expressed the hope that this fund would become better known on the University of Toronto campus and that it would be able to help more students. It has been in existence for fifteen years and during that time has been the means by which many young people have been able to receive university educations.

Any student, male or female, regardless of race, creed, or religion, may make application for help, and may rest assured that the matter will be held in absolute confidence by the student loan fund treasurer. Anyone at the University of Toronto would be best advised to get in touch with the treasurer through a member of the Kappa chapter.

This fund has no patrons or patronesses; it is raised altogether by the efforts of the national council in New York and the separate chapters. In New York, two affairs a year are held, a spring formal dance, and a theatre (Continued on Page 4)

U.C. Musical Review Starts Casting Today; Show to Run in November

PRESIDENT EXPLAINS 'ASGA' GOVERNMENT

Joy Martyn, president of the "Asga", the student government association which enforces discipline and women's residence rules at Victoria College, told The Varsity yesterday that this system of student government is most advanced in Canada and equal to any such organization in the United States.

Miss Martyn explained that the "Asga" is led by an executive elected by women resident students. The executive meets every fortnight to discuss matters of discipline, and late leaves.

The executive also arranges "door duties" and discusses plans for social functions. Representatives from each residence are included on the executive.

"We feel that university students are old enough to take responsibilities and the way in which the students have responded proves that our confidence has not been misplaced," Miss Martyn said.

STAFF MEETING

An important meeting of the entire staff of The Varsity will be held in the Women's Union at 4.30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 3. Tea will be served. All members of the staff are urged to attend the meeting at which an outline of the organizational methods of the newspaper and a summary of news writing style as well as plans for the coming year will be discussed.

FIND NEW PROCESS FOR BLOOD SERUMS

Some five hundred Varsity students offered themselves to the Canadian Red Cross Society as blood donors last year. After having been processed and converted into serum, the blood given by these undergraduates was bottled and sent overseas to be used as transfusions for those soldiers and civilians suffering from cases of shock due to severe wounds, cuts or burns.

This year graduates and undergraduates of the University of Toronto will have a similar opportunity to be of service to their country. However, it has been revealed that through a recently developed process the Department of Physiology of the university will further aid in this war effort.

The new process by which the serum is frozen and more moisture is removed will eliminate a certain risk of loss and difficulty in handling due to the fact that it will be in powder rather than liquid form.

At the present time, Dr. C. H. Best, acting head of the department of Physiological Hygiene and associate director of the Connaught Laboratories, is in the United States attending to the acquisition of the new blood-processing machine.

GLEE CLUB MEETING

The first rehearsal and organizational meeting of the Hart House Glee Club will be held at 5 p.m. today in the music room of Hart House. All members of last year's club are urged to be present and new members will be welcome.

Follies will be Written, Performed Entirely by U.C. Students; All Those with Talent Asked to Attend Casting

EXPERIENCE UNNECESSARY

The Follies, the annual University College musical review, will begin casting for female parts in the Women's Union Theatre at 2 p.m. today. Casting will continue until 5.30 p.m.

Tap dancers, singers, actresses, script writers, costume designers, set designers, and rehearsal pianists are asked to attend the casting today which will be for female parts only. Casting for men will be held tomorrow in the Women's Union Theatre from 3 p.m. to 5.30 p.m.

Blackhall said that freshettes of University College will be welcomed at the casting whether they have had experience or not. They are asked to come to the casting to discuss their latent talents.

Those who have had experience in musical reviews will necessarily be given preference, the producer said, but newcomers who possess talent will have an equal chance to gain a part in the show.

Directors of the show said that the efforts of any song writers in the college will be welcomed. Those who have talent in this sphere are asked to attend the casting and discuss their plans with the musical director of the show.

The show will be presented in Hart House Theatre on Nov. 15 and will be followed by a dance in the upper halls of the House.

104 Chemists, 13 Women Enrolled with Engineers

Chemical engineers and women proved the most striking increases among first year S.P.S. enrolments for the 1940-41 academic year when an investigation was conducted yesterday into enrolment trends in the little red school-house.

This year the swing is to chemical engineering. A total of 104 freshmen have crowded into the first year laboratory to delve into the mysteries of qualitative analysis of group 1, group 2, and how to brew tea in a 400 millilitre flask.

No reason for the sudden influx of budding chemists could be learned, but freshmen interviewed by The Varsity suggested the increase was likely due to reports last year of six freshettes enrolled in chemical engineering. This year, however, there are but two.

Of the total of 339 freshmen in S.P.S. this year, which compares with 330 in last year's entry, 73 aspire to be mechanical engineers, making mechanical the second largest department.

There will be no lecture-skipping in mining geology—only one student is enrolled in the first year course. Ceramics, always rather small, has but three de-

VIC SOCIAL CAPUT NAMES OCTOBER 18 AS DATE FOR BOB

Freshmen, Sophomores will Compete in Yells and Songs at 68th Annual Ceremony in Hart House

PRACTICES UNDER WAY

Victoria College's sixty-eighth annual Bob is to be staged in Hart House Theatre on the evening of October 18, it was decided by that college's Social Caput yesterday.

For years the Bob has been the climaxing ceremony of the initiation period at Victoria. At that time the freshman class is formally admitted to the traditions and life of the college.

During the evening, the two camps—freshmen vs. sophomores—will vie to out-sing and out-yell their opponents, and are entertained by skits and songs from the stage.

Already both activities are still under way with secret song practices in different parts of the city, and with talent being selected for the stage productions.

U.C. DRAMATIC POLICY OUTLINED FOR YEAR

"Before opening the season with their annual 'Get Acquainted' tea tomorrow afternoon, the University College Players' Guild wishes to tell those interested about its plans for the season," Mavor Moore, president of the Guild, told The Varsity yesterday.

"The primary purpose of the Guild," Moore continued, "is to provide actors, audience and all concerned with a lot of fun, rather than to concern themselves too deeply with the heavier types of drama."

Moore hastened to explain that it was not the intention of the Guild to put on nothing but the lightest and most trivial of farces. Rather, he pointed out, the Guild's activities would be regulated to suit the requirements of a student body largely occupied with their studies and the added requirements of military training.

De Gaulle Committee Plans French Contingent Says Toronto Member

Willard Thompson, former manager of Hart House Theatre, who left his post this summer to join the Canadian Active Service Force.

THEATRE MANAGER IS MEMBER OF C.A.S.F.

Willard Thompson, manager of Hart House Theatre, is at present a member of the Canadian Active Service Force. Mr. Thompson joined the Canadian forces during the summer.

As manager of the theatre, Mr. Thompson was one of the leaders in dramatic activities on the campus. The University of Toronto Drama Committee met under his chairmanship.

Mr. Thompson acted as advisor to all drama groups on the campus asking for his help. He was active in the work of the Inter-University Drama Festival held last year at McMaster University.

Mr. James Hosac, who has been connected with the theatre for several years, will act as manager in Mr. Thompson's absence.

CANCEL O.C.P. LECTURES FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

There will be no lectures at the Ontario College of Pharmacy today. According to an announcement by the college last night, lectures have been cancelled so that students may devote the day to collection of funds in connection with the Red Cross drive.

The following have been elected to the students' council of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, the announcement said:

Dean R. O. Hurst, honorary president; Miss O. J. Fawthrop, honorary vice-president; N. Stevenson, D. Keenan, secretary.

Members of the committee were as follows: H. G. Langford, J. K. Jardine, F. A. Perkins, Miss R. Creighton, B. Hunter.

Athletics: T. E. Martin, C. Lee.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

Government Sanction Awaited to Train French Unit in Canada for Overseas Service in Spring, Assie Adds

TO AIO "FREE FRENCH"

G. L. Assie, one of Toronto's representatives on the newly-launched de Gaulle Committee in Canada, and a lecturer in French at U.C., was interviewed by The Varsity yesterday.

"The main purpose of the Committee," said Mr. Assie, "is to form a French unit in Canada which could serve overseas after training has been completed."

Work on the project will commence as soon as sanction is obtained from the Dominion Government, Mr. Assie added. He explained that this procedure was complicated by the fact that Canada officially recognizes the Vichy government, and that full permission must be given by the Department of External Affairs before recruiting commences.

If the plan is carried through as originally scheduled, the committee hopes to train a contingent somewhere in Ontario during the winter and have it ready for overseas service by spring. Mr. Assie pointed out that no detailed information was available until Ottawa's consent is obtained.

The de Gaulle Committee in Canada was formed in response to an appeal made by General de Gaulle three months ago for material help to the "Free French" cause. The organization is nation-wide, with headquarters in Montreal and branch offices in six other cities across Canada.

The consent of Ottawa is required in order to register the movement under the War Charities Act permitting the taking of subscriptions by the public.

DRAMA COMMITTEE ANNOUNCES PROGRAM

Wednesday afternoon performances in Hart House Theatre, presented by the Drama Committee of the university, will begin Oct. 16, officials of the committee said yesterday.

The program will be similar to that organized last year when individual colleges presented plays in Hart House Theatre on successive Wednesdays.

Arrangements for a drama festival similar to that held last year between Ontario universities, have not yet been discussed, it was announced.

The University College Players' Guild will present the first Wednesday afternoon performance under the direction of Elizabeth Stone.

Members of the committee are: Mr. Charles Delafeld, Tom Paton, Betty Blair, Mavor Moore, Heather Hill, Gwen Plant, Paul Christie, Genevieve Bronson and Frances Halpenny.

NEW CASE FOR TROPHIES PLACED IN U.C. ROTUNDA

A new trophy case has been set up in the rotunda of University College to give recognition to the achievements of the college athletes, executives of the Literary and Athletic Association said yesterday.

Four trophies are on display. The Cody Trophy, "awarded to the man who has contributed most to the athletic life of University College during his academic career"; the Birks-Ellis-Ryrie Trophy for the freshman who obtains the highest honours in intramural activities; Robert Simpson Company Cup for swimming; the Staff Trophy, for the high point winner.

South of The Border

To the average Canadian there is only one aspect of the forthcoming United States presidential elections that is of very great interest. To us the main issue is the war program that each candidate will adopt. To the American citizen by this time the war question has grown to be of almost equal importance. He is strongly in favour of substantial aid to Britain and increased home defense. (According to the latest Gallup polls taken for the American Institute of Public Opinion, 52 per cent of the States favours the utmost aid to Britain, even to the point of war. Gallup polls taken after the fall of Paris also show that 67 per cent of the population are in favour of requiring every able bodied young man of 20 to spend one year in the United States army, navy or air force.)

The American voter knows that both Roosevelt and Willkie are in favour of the utmost aid to Britain, too. But to him there are other things to be considered—such old problems as big business vs. labour, and such new ones as the No-Third-Term tradition upon which Willkie leaned so heavily in his cross country campaign last week. This leads to the question, Will big business executives sacrifice their political beliefs to their war beliefs and vote for Roosevelt if they feel that he is more capable of heading the government at such a crucial time? On the other side, will the lower income classes and people on relief, who have always been Roosevelt's strongest supporters, vote for big business as represented by Willkie, even if they prefer Roosevelt's war platform but oppose a third term? Will staunch Democrats vote Republican, and vice versa, for the same reason?

It scarcely seems likely that they will, and that Willkie doubts it too is proved by the fact that in an effort to persuade Democrats that they may vote Republican and still retain their Democratic identity, he is attempting to form a "Democratic Unity Party." It is further proved by Willkie's insistence that the elections this year should not be a party issue; that the people's allegiance should be given not to any political party but to the United States of America. If Willkie's pleas are fruitless then the war would be practically eliminated as a deciding factor in the elections, unless either candidate in the meantime advances a war platform that antagonizes a great many people. Both Roosevelt and Willkie are making sure that does not happen.

At any rate, Canada is chiefly interested in what the States is going to do about the war, and figuring that Roosevelt is her best bet she is, as usual, rooting for him. If things continue at the present rate she is not likely to be disappointed either, for the latest polls give Roosevelt 55 per cent of the popular vote, 453 electoral votes and 38 states, as compared to 45 per cent of the popular vote for Willkie, 78 electoral votes and 10 states. Willkie, of course, has the support of most of the country's newspapers, including the influential New York Times which supported Roosevelt in 1932 and 1936. But then the press couldn't defeat Roosevelt in 1936. It may not fare any better in 1940.

By Any Other Name . . .

Of all the problems produced by another war, none seems pettier or a greater waste of time than the ever-present debates as to whether German-named towns and villages should be renamed. With so many important problems to be solved today, with so many really worthwhile things that everyone can do to help, it is a shame that so many people should waste their time and energy deluging the government, newspapers and local authorities with letters demanding that such names be changed.

Just why these people would feel any better if the name of Swastika, for instance, a long established railway junction in Northern Ontario, were changed is difficult to understand. Nevertheless the name Swastika has been arousing a great deal of controversy ever since the war began. Apart from the fact that Swastika was so named long before most of us even knew what a swastika was, it would be particularly pointless to humour such people by changing its name, in view of the fact that it is an important railway junction in Northern Ontario. It is the nearest railway stop to Kirkland Lake and the point of transfer to all Northern Quebec towns such as Rouyn and Noranda. Such a change, therefore, would involve a great deal of unnecessary confusion. In addition such a change would be completely pointless in a section of the country so full of foreigners from every country in Europe, and so abounding in foreign-named towns.

If all the advocates of this "change-the-name" theory would devote themselves with the same energy to some useful war work, no doubt it would be a much better thing all round.

Those Leisure Hours

Always the cause of much debate is the question of how much time the university student should spend on social activities about the campus. There are few persons in the university whose uncompromising answer to that is "none". Our answer is "as much as you can afford."

We assume of course that you came here primarily for an education, and so we assume you will always remember that your work is your first consideration. You will fail in more ways than one if you neglect the education that you came here to obtain. We also assume, though, that it is not necessary for you to spend all your time working and that you have no intention of doing any such thing. Indeed, you are in danger of making a serious mistake if you do, for the natural consequence will be that socially you will be a failure, and you will have a difficult time being a business success if you are a social failure. You won't mix with others as easily as you should after several years at university. You may be chuck full of knowledge but you aren't likely to be as successful as your poised and self-confident friend. There are few businesses today in which one can afford to be anti-social. Certainly there are very few in which it is not a distinct aid to be able to cooperate with and get along easily with the rest of the world. If you can afford to live the life of an impractical dreamer, then you can go ahead and retire into your shell. Most of us, however, are forced to be practical. Then too, you have not really received the full benefit of your college life if you leave school with no more actual knowledge of your university and its inside workings than the few subjects you studied.

Thus the various clubs and organizations on the campus are well worth your support. No matter what your interests you are certain to find an outlet for them in some campus society, whether it be in one of the political clubs, debating clubs, language or science clubs, religious clubs, athletic clubs, the purely social fraternities, or on one of the various college magazines or the university paper.

It should not be necessary to repeat that we are not urging you to neglect your studies to become a "good-time Charlie". We are merely recommending a worthwhile way to spend your spare time and round out your university life.

MR. BACH DRIVES A TANK

Last May, during the Beethoven Festival by the Hart House String Quartet, a letter was published in a local newspaper regretting that, in such a grave period of our history, we had nothing better to do than to listen to a concert series featuring a composer who was almost an enemy alien. At that time, of course, no opportunity of reply presented itself, because The Varsity had ceased publication, but perhaps it would not be unduly recriminatory to bring up the whole subject once more. Very possibly this particular letter came from an unmusical person, but it was only a short time later that the

The Bells

One night, as I sat in my quiet diggings in St. George Street, sipping a double malted, staring fixedly into the dying embers and meditating sadly on the exigencies of a troubled and careworn existence, suddenly I heard a faint sound of bells in the distance. At first I deemed it but the ringing in my head with which I have been afflicted since the days of Prohibition, but, as the noise grew in volume, suddenly I KNEW. With a start, I sat bolt upright in my chaise longue. IT WAS THE BELLS!

"Good Gad," I muttered hoarsely to myself, "it can't be, it can't be!" Suddenly the door was flung open and frenzied figures rushed in. It was with difficulty that I recognized Marlborough-Beach. Horror, writ large on his features, rendered his visage a livid mask of terror.

"Good Gad, Fotheringay," he gasped, "the bells!"

Somehow, despite the fear gnawing at my liver, I managed to appear nonchalant.

"Don't let it alarm you. A wedding perhaps," I ventured, smiling weakly. "Don't be a fool, man," he snapped, "it's the bells. You know what that means."

I knew only too well. . . .

"Come on," I said, downing a last welcome double malted, "we might as well face it now."

We left the warm comfort of my room, slipped down the stairs and went out into the night. Not a living soul was stirring, but in the misty distance came the unrelenting sound of the bells. "Come on," I said again and, drawing my revolver, I hurried toward the dread sound.

"Put it away, you fool," gulped Marlborough-Beach, "you can't use bullets against the bells!"

Good Gad! He was right.

Turning down Hoskin Avenue past the gloomy pile of Trinity College, we moved grimly through the night. I noticed Marlborough-Beach clenching his teeth and moistening his lips nervously. We reached the juncture of Hoskin Avenue and the road which leads to the Tower, from which the horrid clangour of the bells struck our ears with fresh volume. There we hesitated. A breathless hush hung over the foggy street, making ever clearer, ever more ominous, the muffled sinister peal of the bells. The Tower was alight with an eerie glow, like the flickering flames of the very Pit itself.

"Come on," I said, and we started on that last, grim promenade. Now the whole fog-laden night reverberated madly with an unholy turmoil. All the fiends of hell seemed to mingle their laughter with the clash of the great, sonorous bells. The unholy sound tore at my ganglia.

"Come on," I shouted, and rushed toward the Tower door.

"Ere, wot's ahi this? Will Fotheringham and Marlborough-Beach return alive from their grim quest? Wednesday's Varsity will carry the story with all shocking details. Don't miss it!"

Minos and Omar.

ART MUSIC & DRAMA

management of the Prom Concerts announced that no more modern German works would be played. With the result except that we are hearing far too much modern English music, I have little to quarrel. But the disease of listening to nothing but music of impeccable ancestry has grown to the point where the Ottawa Citizen published an editorial strongly advising the C.B.C. to fill the air with patriotic (British) hand music and cast aside all classical symphonies, at least until the close of the war.

As far as Beethoven goes, everything can be fixed up. During the last war, someone brilliantly discovered that he was a Dutchman, and as such entitled to a place as a neutral; surely his position should be immeasurably stronger in this war with the Dutch at our side. What about the others though, those who are unfortunate enough to be our present enemies? Even Wagner, because Hitler has a penchant for wal-

ALL MEN IN P.T. CLASSES MUST SWIM ONE PERIOD

A new regulation regarding swimming has been made which will affect the physical training classes this year. This rule does not include men in the compulsory military training group (20-24 years of age).

Any others unable to swim and who are enrolled in the university P. T. classes, must take one period each week in a "learn to swim" class. Their second period must be spent on the gym floor.

Students able to swim if they wish may take one period a week in an advanced swimming group. It is compulsory for all members of physical training classes to have at least one hour of gym work each week.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Sam Kerner

Four Down Rugby

Last night at a meeting of the Intramural Athletic Directorate at which Warren Stevens, our amiable Athletic Director presided, it was decided to give four down rugby in the interfaculty loop a try. Along with this startling announcement received from Steve himself over the telephone late last night comes the news that there will be a real change in the forward pass as well.

Formerly, before a player could make a forward pass he had to be at least five yards behind the line of scrimmage. Now any player may toss a forward from anywhere behind the line of scrimmage. For instance, the quarterback can take the snap from a few feet behind the line and fling the old apple wherever he jolly well pleases.

This four-down business perhaps needs a little explaining. Under the old system a team had to make an average of five yards on each down in order to move the sticks, which is a tougher proposition than it sounds, as was most clearly demonstrated in last Saturday's Argo-Balmi Beach contest. I doubt whether either team made yards more than six or seven times during the entire game.

With the four-down system in effect the game will speed up considerably, because yards will be made more often and thus more ground will be covered.

Then there is the question of strategy. With the old three-down business an opposing team could almost always tell what their opponents' next move would be. Simply because either team had only two tries at making yards and if they tried a forward pass on the first play and it was incomplete there was little likelihood that it would be tried on the next play for if that too was incomplete the team would lose ten yards. And so the next play was bound to be an end run or a plunge.

With four-down rugby, on the other hand, there can be any diversity of plays and thus a fair chance for strategy which should result in yards gained and crowd interest maintained. It is a progressive step in the right direction and it should take little stirring of the imagination to realize it is ideal for interfaculty rugby. Nor should the fact that Warren Stevens presented the plan be relegated to an obscure position. He deserves credit for an idea which we think will be universally accepted in time to come.

Interfaculty Swimming Meets

Interfaculty swimming meets will be another innovation as a result of last night's athletic meeting. It was decided that they would be carried out in much the same manner as the waterpolo games and that there would be ultimate interfaculty swim championships.

There will be at least four swimming events held; for example, a fifty-yard free style race, a hundred-yard backstroke race, a fifty-yard breast stroke race, and a fifty-yard relay, and points will be awarded to the winning team. Each team will have a maximum of eight men and a minimum of five men.

Keep This on Your Cuff

The golf tournament gets under way this Friday at 10 a.m. at the Glen Eagles Golf Club (not the Woodbine Golf Club) and all entries must be in by Thursday, 5 p.m., at the very latest. To get there grab a Bloor car east to Woodbine and then go north to the club by bus.

OFFER NEW TROPHIES

By Fred Hall

According to God Clawson, one of Canada's most brilliant swimming stars and also Athletic Director at U.C., the Red and White are going to make the most determined effort ever to wrest the T. A. Reed Trophy from School this year.

Under the able leadership last year of Lil' Lou Somers, Varsity grid ace, the Parum Claris athletes managed to end up in sixth place in the Reed Race. Somers introduced a new sports policy in U.C. and also instituted the Sports Ladder in the rotunda, on which is placed the names of the college's ten leading point scorers in the cup contest.

This year's policy calls for a continuance of last year's popular program, including the ladder, in addition to many new features. Action pictures of the U.C. athletes will be posted each week in the rotunda and these will be accompanied by comments on the contests.

A new shield will be offered for the year which contributes the greatest number of points in the Trophy Race. Besides this, two new trophies have been awarded for various sports and more are being sought. Professor McAndrew has again offered a prize for the best score turned in by a U.C. man in the interfaculty golf meet. Last year this prize was won by Bill Kinneer who also earned the best score in the whole tournament.

The college rugby team will be stronger than last year and will be coached by George "Ollie" Oliphant,

By Marg Foulds

Great news of the golf tournament of yesterday has been rolling in at record rate.

Low gross honours go for the third consecutive year to Marion Walker, U.C. III, with the score of 85. Good work, Marion, and we hope that means the trophy is yours for all time. Second place went to Eleanor McLoughlin, the only Trinity member to carry off a prize. Kicker's went to "Punch" Galle with a 75; putting and sealed hole to Belle Blackwell. Low gross on the 1st nine went to Nancy Baker coming in with a nice 65.

A highlight of the affair was the remarkable showing of Barb Craswell, U.C. III, hitherto little known in golf "circles". She roared in with a 73 which really laid us low, considering her handicap was only 100! Kicker's handicap you understand. She insists that this success was honestly achieved, all fans and rivers being counted. The wilds of the Mississauga make really ideal camping quarters, and as for the fishing in the too numerous rivers?—"extraordinarily" good!

On the whole, the day was a pip, and the competition well attended by golfers and—well, golfers, of University College mostly, and a few representatives from the others. But above all everyone had a rare old time, and the "adventure" stories en route got better and better.

ex-Western star. George is the fellow who scored that dying minute touch-down for the Mustangs in their final contest last year which enabled Storen's crew to finish first in the intercollegiate rugby loop. When questioned about his charges Ollie replied "Just give me (Continued on Page 4)

To College Together...

or how to be informed—in three simple lessons

FORTUNATE are they who in these times may devote themselves to the luxury of academic learning.

To the undergraduate of 1940-41 the most intensely absorbing of all studies is that of the world about him.

Therefore, to be reasonably well educated:

1. You read, for college news, your university journal.

2. For events beyond college confines, for the awesome spectacle of history fatefully unfolding, you turn to the best available daily newspaper.

3. And for that somewhat broader depiction of the war's grim and amazing course abroad, and corollary developments on our Canadian home front, you look to the most brilliant and comprehensive of the Dominion's weekly publications.

Axiomatically, then, you devote certain regular hours to three accepted mediums of information: The Varsity, The Toronto Daily Star, and The Star Weekly. They afford the quickest, completest, most reliable coverage of the important things you cannot ignore.

The Daily Star gives you, first, the fullest war news, in text and picture. Plus local and Dominion news. Plus sports, society, fashions, finance, radio. A staff reporter of The Star, himself a Varsity grad, writes college news, which always receives considerable space.

The Star Weekly gives you two magazine sections, crammed with features, serious and otherwise. There's a picture magazine, comic section, complete novel and a late news section on Saturday night. Entertainment as well as enlightenment!

Have The Daily Star and Star Weekly delivered to your residence. The cost is trifling; for the whole fall semester, no more than you would pay for a single textbook. Telephone AD. 2211 and delivery will start today.

THINGS WE'RE CURIOUS ABOUT . . . What that kiddy's playing has been doing, lying around, on the back campus the last couple of days? Has cradle-snatching reared its ugly head again? And what was the cause of that peculiar mix-up in Room 6, U.C., yesterday, when the French 2c course was blithely going forward in a room plainly marked for that hour "Mil. Stud. Hon. & Pass"? After all, it's tough enough to attempt to attend a Military Studies lecture, without ending up in a French class. And that other phony affair in Room 3, S.P.S., when nobody turned up to conduct the 9 o'clock lecture, and no less than two professors rolled in to deliver the 10 o'clock show? . . . THIS SORT OF THING MUST STOP.

TWO FRESHIES, apparently having their feminine little hearts set on breaking every unwritten law on the campus, started yesterday by roving into the bowels of Hart House and seeking out the Pool Room. . . . Only with difficulty were they restrained from shooting a spot of co-educational snooker right there and then. . . . But they threatened to return. . . . From now on, the throng in the palais de pool should be thicker than ever, we betcha.

IRONY . . . Seems there is an S.P.S. frosh who suffers somewhat from colour-blindness. . . . The poor chap goes on a tie-clipping orgy the other day and comes home with a lovely collection of scalps dangling from his belt. . . . INCLUDING GREEN ONES.

lowing in him, is strongly under suspicion. Is it possible to write subversive doctrine in music, and if so when did the Germans start doing this dastardly thing? Why is a composer suddenly a propagandist when war breaks out?

Wagner's music is, at the moment, supposed to be peculiarly German. Incidentally, Gilman, the greatest critic this continent has known, said of two American composers that they spoke Wagner almost without an accent. The two were Walter Damrosch, whose genial voice has not lost its gutturals, and Deems Taylor, who couldn't be anything else but an American. Is their music subversive? I have actually heard Taylor's Through the Looking Glass Suite three times this summer; I must suppose it therefore to have passed the censors. Brahms was a contemporary of Wagner; yet his music is played almost as often as Gustav Holst's (and some guys that will fight. That's the main thing."

Last year's team was a fighting one and is back almost intact with the exception of Naim Hagan. The Red and White team will be further bolstered by Ned Cutler, intermediate outside who would probably have graduated to the senior squad this year; Wilkie Davie, an intermediate linebacker; Warner Alconbrack, ex-Vic player and by Jimmy Bitove, who was a member of the championship Riverdale junior squad two years ago and also one of the star players in Riverdale's city finalists of last year.

It is also hoped that the women of U.C. will show some support this year for the Red and White twelve especially as there is no senior Blue team to cheer for this year. St. Mike's co-eds backed their team last year and the Bay Streeters emerged champions.

Squash, ping-pong and badminton tourneys will be held during the year for the Artsmen. Also, if enough men turn out from U.C. at the Rifle Association's meets, a prize will be offered for the best U.C. score. It is compulsory for U.C. freshmen to enter the harrier this year.

The Athletic Board also plans to keep a scrap-book in the rotunda in which will be inscribed all U.C.'s victories and the names of all players.

This year's sports effort promises to be the best ever turned in by the men of the Red and White and Reed cup hopes are brighter than ever before.

that, last season, was saying something). Why has Richard Strauss's Don Juan, playable on October 12, 1939, become incendiary a year later?

Since Russia has joined the Axis, why can we listen to Stravinsky with impunity; we are at war with Italy—why is Verdi still sacred; France is becoming openly hostile—and Margaret Speaks sings an aria from Louise (yes, and if she'd done it just a little bit better she'd have received an ovation). The only possible reason this music is not frowned upon by self-constituted authorities must be that they realize that there would not be enough music left over to make a good season, and then where would they get that chance of being stared at in their new evening gowns?

Genial Haydn and delicate Mozart; Beethoven the omniscient and Brahms the inscrutable; these men are no more particularly German than you and I are particularly Torontonians. Their music will hold its universal appeal when this conflict is over as it did before it started. The language of music can never be nationalized; as Edward Johnston said, "Music is the universal language."

Victoria Dramatic Club Inaugurates New Season

Directors, Patrons, and Executive Introduced to Prospective Members in Annual Open Meeting

MILNE DIRECTOR

The executive of the Victoria College Dramatic Society last evening played host to their director, patrons, and prospective members in the Sun-room at Wymilwood.

Principal W. T. Brown of Victoria College and Honorary President Professor M. Woodside greeted the prospective players with words of encouragement. "Democracy," said Professor Woodside, "is, in its essence, the profound appreciation of the dignity and worth of human personality." He said that the actor, through character study and working with others, learns to understand the other fellow.

W. S. Milne, the director of this year's major production, said that the play has not yet been chosen, but that in view of the times it would be something not on the gloomy side. Mr. Milne was one of the founders of the U.C. Players' Guild and at one time, as A. M. & D. Editor of The Varsity, severely criticized a Vic performance.

It was revealed that Rev. G. A. McMullen of Emmanuel College would direct the edition classes this year. Doug Harris announced the coming series of one-act plays in Hart House. The first Vic production in this series will be presented October 23. Bill Graff, vice-president of the club, told the freshmen present of Vic's dramatic workshop, Alumni Hall. The first play to be presented there this year is "The Man in the Bowler Hat" by A. A. Milne, and is under the direction of Mary Carter.

In the intervals between speeches three acts were presented. The first was a skit by four members and alumni of Vic Dramatic Club called "Do Men played Bridge as Women Do". Professor Robins presented the story "Sin" from Roark Bradford's collection of Negro stories "Old Man Moses and His Chillun" on which the play "Green Pastures" was based.

FORUM CLUB EXECUTIVE ELECTED FOR COMING YEAR

Jim Carson, II Victoria, was elected president of the Forum Club at its first meeting yesterday. D. Hayne, III U.C., will be its vice-president and J. Ross, II Victoria, its secretary for the coming year.

Many Positions Open in Follies As Casting Continues in Union

STADIUM USHERS

All students desirous of acting as ushers at the rugby games this season are requested to meet in the Debates Room, Hart House, Wednesday, October 2, 1940, at 5.00 p.m. Second year men are invited. A full turnout is desired.

F.F.U. GUARDS FRESHIES FROM OVER-ZEALOUS POSHS

It is reported from a usually reliable source that the freshies of U.C. have formed an organization known as the Frosh Federated Union. "The F.F.U.," say its members, "is a legal club whose code will enable us to protect ourselves from too frequent hazings from the sophomores should need arise. Collective action will be taken in the case of ill treatment of an individual freshie."

MILITARY NOTICE

All male students registered in the University of Toronto who were 18 years of age at the date of registration in the university and were not 20 years of age on July 1st, 1940, are required by university regulations to register for military training in the Auxiliary Battalion Orderly Room in Hart House. Registration of this group must be completed by Saturday, October 5th, at 12 noon. It will not be possible to register after that time for this compulsory training. All students between the ages of 20 and 24 inclusive on July 1st, 1940, i.e., those who were over 20 but under 25 on July 1st, have completed their registration for the compulsory military training required by the National Resources Mobilization Act. Should there be any students in this group who have not yet registered in the Auxiliary Battalion Orderly, and have good reason for same, they may apply to do so. All students in this age group who do not register for training are liable to a call to a training centre for a 30-day period. Students who have applied for membership in the C.O.T.C. need not register with the Auxiliary Battalion.

MR. S. WOODS SPEAKS AT V.C.F. FUNCTION

Need of a Closer Personal Contact with Jesus Stressed by Speaker at Christian Fellowship

"PART OF OUR DAILY LIFE"

Stacey Woods, general secretary of the Varsity Christian Fellowship, yesterday stressed the necessity of a personal relationship to Jesus Christ in the individual life as the only answer to social ills. Mr. Woods spoke at the annual freshman tea of the fellowship held in Wymilwood.

Mr. Woods said the recognition of the sovereignty of God in our own lives is a necessary condition to gaining and keeping an adequate faith in a disrupted world. "In the Scriptures we have God's timeless remedy for the evil which only too clearly we see emerging all around us from the very nature of man himself," he said.

University College Begins Preparations for Annual Show; Undergrads Needed to Fill Parts

CASTING LISTS UP

The University College Follies will hold a casting for men at the Women's Union Theatre today from 3 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. Positions are open for actors, musicians, script writers, stage hands, rehearsal pianists and make-up artists. All those who are interested in taking part in the college show are asked by the directors to turn out at the casting. Cliff Blackhall, producer of the revue, said that those who have taken part in dramatic productions, written popular songs or who feel they may have something to contribute to the production of the show, should sign the casting lists.

Casting for the women will continue tomorrow in the Women's Union Theatre.

WOMEN'S FEDERATION DECIDES ACTIVITIES FOR COMING YEAR

Plans of Federation of Canadian University Women Outlined by Miss M. E. Silverthorn

SURVEY TO BE MADE

Miss M. E. Silverthorn, assistant professor of Library Science in the Library School, outlined for The Varsity last night the discussion of the triennial conference of the Federation of Canadian University Women. The assembly took place at Calgary during August, and was attended by many representatives across Canada.

It was resolved at the conference that the government report on prison reform, long neglected, should be put into effect. Delegates also decided to send a letter to the C.B.C. expressing approval of radio programs which merited approbation, and members of the federation were urged to join with the I.O.D.E. in boycotting products which are advertised by programs "objectionable" to them. Miss Louise Haskins, the Canadian poetess whose lines were quoted by the King in his famous address, spoke to the meeting about The World. (Continued on Page 4)

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

Toronto Symphony Plans Benefit Concert Series

Sir Thomas Beecham Guest-Conductor on First Toronto Visit. Georges Enesco also Leads Orchestra

GODFREY RIDOUT FEATURED

Besides its regular program the Toronto Symphony Orchestra will take part in Red Cross benefit concerts to be held in Maple Leaf Gardens, it was announced by Sir Ernest MacMillan, conductor of the orchestra, in his review of this season's plans.

Ten evening concerts, five children's afternoon concerts, one or two out-of-town engagements and the annual Christmas Box Party complete Sir Ernest's outline of the year's activities. Two distinguished guest-conductors, Sir Thomas Beecham and Georges Enesco will appear during the season. Sir Thomas, conductor-in-chief of the London Philharmonic Orchestra, will be paying his first visit to Toronto. Guest artists will include William Primrose, violinist; Norman Wilks, Mieczyslaw Munz and Jean Daneser, pianists; and Joseph Laderoute, tenor. The Conservatory Choir will also participate in a special choral and orchestral concert.

Continuing his outline, Sir Ernest pointed out that the character of the programs will not be notably affected by the war situation except that music by contemporary German and Italian composers will be avoided while that of British composers will be emphasized.

GLEE CLUB INITIATES TUESDAY REHEARSALS WITH LARGE TURNOUT

The Club will Present Carols Over C.B.C., and One Hart House Sunday Evening Concert

ESTABLISHED IN 1932

In Hart House Music Room, for the seventh consecutive year, Dr. Charles Peaker, F.R.C.O., faced a new group of raw recruits whose raucous voices he will mould into the soothing harmonies of the Hart House Glee Club after weeks of patient effort.

"We are anxious to continue this, as well as the other activities of the House," Mr. Gillies said, "and if sufficient members turn out in future rehearsals, the club will definitely go on." Yesterday's rehearsal will be followed regularly by Tuesday evening rehearsals it was pointed out, unless it conflicts with the hours of military training, in which case the hour will be changed.

Usually about 100 men comprise the Hart House Glee Club, which makes several public appearances during the year, including one Hart House Sunday Evening Concert in the Great Hall and a lunchtime broadcast of Christmas Carols over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

The Glee Club was originally established in 1932 under Allan B. Sly, with the aim of providing an opportunity for members of Hart House to learn part songs.

Dr. Peaker took over direction in the following year. Considered widely to be one of Canada's leading voice directors, he developed the organization into such a high standard that it began to give concerts locally, and was finally adopted by Hart House as the official Hart House Glee Club. In 1938 and 1939, the club sang lunchtime carols from the Great Hall of Hart House over coast-to-coast and eastern networks.

AUXILIARY BATTALION

Part I Orders

By Major W. S. Wilson, E.D. Commanding Auxiliary Battalion, University of Toronto Contingent, Canadian Officers' Training Corps. (1) Warning Order.

An organization parade of the Auxiliary Battalion, University of Toronto Contingent, Canadian Officers' Training Corps, will be held Saturday, Oct. 5, at 1400 hours on the front campus of the University of Toronto.

Detailed instructions will be announced in tomorrow's issue of The Varsity.

sized. Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Schubert, etc., will continue to be the backbone of programs this season as in the past. Although Wagner will be represented, Sir Ernest feels that complete Wagner programs have lost their popularity and charm.

Among new works to be performed by the orchestra this season is a Ballade for viola and orchestra by Godfrey Ridout, young Toronto composer, whose work was featured by the University Symphony last year. Berlioz' Harold in Italy will also be played here for the first time. William Primrose will be the soloist for both of these works.

DIRECTORY APPEARS ABOUT MID-NOVEMBER

Complete List of Staff and Students will be on Sale, According to Custom Originated Last Year

LARGE SALE EXPECTED

Trusty friend of daters, borrowers and people who are just generally sociable, the University of Toronto Directory of Staff and Students will be on sale about the middle of November as soon as the checking of names and addresses has been completed at the Registrar's office, it was announced at Simcoe Hall last night.

The Directory, which was formerly distributed free of charge, has been sold since last year as part of the university's war economy program. Despite this innovation, the books of the University Press show that more than 1600 copies of the Directory were sold last year.

GATHERING PLANNED BY VIC MUSIC CLUB

Stars of Last Year's Operetta will Entertain Guests with Selections from Pastiches by Gilbert and Sullivan

PATRONS ATTEND

Victoria College Music Club will hold an open meeting to discuss plans for the coming year in Wymilwood, Thursday evening. All Vic undergraduates wishing to take part in the club's annual production are expected to attend, officials of the club said. Patrons present will be: Mrs. F. N. G. Starr, honorary president; Chancellor and Mrs. Wallace, Principal and Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Clara F. McEachern and Miss Jessie Macpherson.

The program for the evening will include vocal solos by principals in last year's production including Peggy Evey, Vera Argament and Jack Watson. Refreshments will be served.

University Contingent Band Formed Under Captain Slatter

Arduous Shown by Members of Canadian Officers' Training Corps as News of Band is Made Public

EQUIVALENT TO PARADE

Capt. John Slatter will lead a musical band of sixty members of the Auxiliary Battalion, University of Toronto Contingent, Canadian Officers' Training Corps, in their first rehearsal today, it was announced by Lieut. E. A. Macdonald, Acting Adjutant of the battalion, yesterday.

Expressions of enthusiasm were voiced by members of the battalion upon learning of the formation of the band, which will be under the leadership of Capt. Slatter, former director of the University of Toronto band.

The band will rehearse in the Engineering Building today. Rehearsals will count as a regular parade for those attending.

Finds New Yorkers up Against Something New and Different in the Realm of Speech and Pronunciation

TELLS SOME TALL TALES

By Reuben Frank

A Canadian University Press Feature

NEW YORK: All the women in this city talk like Brenda and Cobina. It's astounding. Usually we picture ladies with Bronx or Brooklyn accents as young, garish and dumpy, just as we picture people who use the mountain dialect as rather old. Well, perhaps you didn't, but I did and that is all that's important at the moment. So it was a distinct shock to see a little old lady with white hair and a kindly, seamed face, turn to her companion, and with the voice of an Ediphone, proclaim, "Lis-sun, Maybudd."

It is opening day in a Manhattan high school. The students of the last form are assembled in their classes, shamefacedly excited. Outwardly, they are as all last-form high school students, gangling or squat, and slightly fuzzy. Their distinct characteristic does not show for a while.

The speech teacher enters, a spare woman with spectacles. As the class buzzes around her, she makes her way up and down the aisles. Each student in turn is asked to repeat, "My sister Florence is a nurse. She hung her coat on a coat-banger long ago." Actually, this sentence is the spearhead of the current drive against the "en gee click" and the offenders will betray themselves by saying "on gago".

But the speech teacher is due for frustration: she has come to the wrong high school. The students have "en gee clicks" but that is the least of their speech defects. One after another, they begin, "My sister Florence is a nois."

"An emergency test faces them. "Say, 'The bird chirps.'" "De boild choirps."

Dr. Elias Lieberman is becoming a pernickious influence.

Dr. Elias Lieberman, by dint of his ability, has risen to the post of assistant supervisor of high schools in charge of junior high schools. A native-born New Yorker, he has been polluted by the education that led to his Ph.D. and he is wreaking havoc with that basic American liberty, freedom of speech. His campaign will take the

SECRET OF THE GLASS EYE DISCOVERED IN TORONTO

Professor Robert Montgomery, head of the ceramics division of the university and Dr. Clifford Taylor, of Christie St. Hospital, have been instrumental in the discovery of a closely-guarded German manufacturing secret. The discovery will result in the establishment of a glass-eye factory in Canada within a short time.

The discovery will enable those who will be required to wear artificial eyes in the future due to war casualties, to obtain the best type.

For the past 20 years Dr. Taylor has operated a glass-eye workshop in Christie Street hospital. These glass eyes previously were partially manufactured in Germany and imported in a variety of 400 colours to Canada for finishing and fitting. With the outbreak of war last September imports were cut off.

Anglo-American 'Axis'

Of all the varied events of the past summer, the one which was hailed with the most universal acclamation and which holds, perhaps, greatest portent for the future of this country was the setting up of a permanent joint board of defence for Canada and the United States. When President Roosevelt and Prime Minister King met on the banks of the blue St. Lawrence, great maker of Canadian history, truly even greater history was in the making. For now, in fact, the United States had extended north of the 49th parallel her Monroe Doctrine, rendered shaky and impotent by a new type of modern warfare, thereby instituting a new "hemisphere defence" and embracing the world's friendliest neighbours in a common front against all aggressors.

The new defence "pact" (hardly an accurate term) may be viewed from many angles, but each aspect seems to present a favourable light for its immediate partners, Canada and the United States, and for its indirect but vital partner, England. In view of recent Japanese action it becomes even more important and favourable. It was the first concrete step in the growing co-operation between Britain and America which has been rapidly followed by the leasing of sea and air bases to the latter, and the transfer of half-a-hundred twenty-year-old destroyers to the former. More recent moves have been the sale of "flying fortresses" to Britain and the initiation of a bill in Congress for the repeal of the Johnson Act, which would permit extension of credits to Britain. The United States, panicky over a suddenly-discovered lack of military, naval and air strength, has gained greatly. Lacking a two-ocean navy, which cannot be made a reality until 1946 at least, she realized the gravity of her situation should her first line of defence, the British navy, fall to the foe, and her foreign policy is being conditioned by that fact. With Japan stirring up the Far Eastern kettle and openly threatening her; with an unpredictable Russia building airbases several miles from Alaska and infiltrating the area with young Russians; with Iceland and Newfoundland convenient stepping stones for a Nazi trans-Atlantic armada, (the possibility of which diminishes as the cross-Channel attempt dawdles on to failure); and with South America riddled with German political and economic agents, the United States felt her vulnerability, saw the importance of the time factor and the strength of union rather than division, and laid the preparations for possible invasion in advance. Through acquisition of sea and air bases she has pushed her front lines far out to sea. Her forces have gained a greater cruising range, which in case of war will allow American ships to operate closer to their bases while the enemy must crack the first line to approach the objective, still a thousand miles away. Should Britain's navy fall, America could still control the Atlantic sea lanes. The new Japanese lineup with the Axis of course makes America's defence task greater, but without the new bases it would be almost insurmountable in the face of possible combined action. The acquisition of a Newfoundland base does much to eliminate possibility of foreign invasion through Canada.

Canada has gained the protection of her southern neighbour, making coast patrol easier, and she can now concentrate more fully on her war effort. Division of a task always produces greater efficiency, and the truth will be apparent here both in actual defence and in production where Canada can concentrate on materials which she can most easily produce while the States will do likewise. Waste and expense will be cut on each side. Great Britain gains both materially and in the point of morale. Certainly she will be bolstered by the knowledge that the United States has taken steps toward co-operation with one of the Dominions, co-operation which helps the whole Empire. She has obtained destroyers and planes, and the chances for increased aid have risen sharply, for as American security is strengthened by the agreement, the States will be able to spare more material from her own defence and speed it to fill the arsenals, air forces and fleets of Great Britain. Thus the United States, Canada, and Great Britain, working together in a new triumvirate, welded by common aims and common actions, have all been immeasurably strengthened. Japan's active threat, which could only be the result of increased United States co-operation, should in turn have as its result further aid to Britain and a boomerang in the face of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo trio.

Despite this new guarantee for the future, Canada must guard against any slackening of her real war effort which must still be, as always, pointed toward embattled Britain. There may be a tendency under the surface to ease up, just because our homes have been more safeguarded against future danger. For although the defence agreement has aided Britain, its initial purpose and chief result have been to bolster the defence of this hemisphere. That is insurance against the future. But our present war effort, in its totality, must be directed toward making that insurance policy unnecessary, by doing our utmost to crush the foe before he can leave Europe.

Eyes Wide Open

In today's issue we inaugurate yet another regular Canadian University Press feature which should be of interest to campus readers across the Dominion. We are proud to present the first of a series of weekly columns under the title, "Wide-Eyed in Gotham" to be written by Reuven Frank.

Mr. Frank served on The Varsity staff for the past three years but is completing his education at City College, New York. During his years on The Varsity he built up a fine reputation for the daily "Hitler and Yon" column, and last year initiated a weekly C.U.P. "Canadian Campus" column. "Canadian Campus", a roundup of the doings of Canadian university students, proved very popular, and was published regularly in thirteen member newspapers of the Canadian University Press.

The first column of the "Wide-Eyed in Gotham" series beckons toward an interesting future, and we sincerely hope and believe that this feature will prove popular with our readers. Take it away, Reuven Frank!

From The Nursery; or Pardon Us--We're Sixty

We feel rebuked and chastened, almost crushed in body and mind. For just when we thought we were getting on in the world, with sixty years under our editorial belt, our downtown friend, the Toronto Daily Star, took the wind out of our sails by briefly stating that even if we are sixty years old we don't act our age. In fact, says The Star, "it's going un-like sixty." (We imagine The Star smiled with satisfaction as that devastating witicism flowed from the venerable pen.)

And so, as we clamber over the sides of our crib, and toddle off to kindergarten (or are we really older than that?), we gaze in childish awe at the wise, dignified and venerated Star, and we wonder just what we should say. In fact, we have a sneaking suspicion that The Star will think we have displayed our childishness by responding at all. (Perhaps we merely had to fill up space, as we suspect The Star found it necessary to do.) It really doesn't matter a great deal what we, a mere child of sixty, say anyway.

It's going to be hard to act our age, because we somehow had the idea that it would be nice to stay fairly young and vigorous, in mind and in action, and this growing up business sometimes stiffens the brain. We wonder if The Star would like us to compliment it on acting its age? It seems the obvious answer. So congratulations are in order. But we do hope that when (and if) The Star lives to a great old age of a hundred years or so, it won't try to "act its age." We have rarely heard of anyone reaching such a venerable and respected age without a decided loss of physical vigour, intelligence, judgment, and mental capacity.

Oh, by the way, The Star is in its forty-eight year.

Oh, let's forget it! We were only acting childish.

The Bells

"The bells, bells, bells, bells, bells." Poe.

"What the 'ell's the Bells?" Sam Kehner, Varsity Sports Staff.

(In case you missed yesterday's instalment of this thriller-diller, here is a resume. Fotheringham and Marlborough-Beach, two of the jolliest investigators of the occult who ever said "Good Gad," are disturbed at their diggings by the strange and fateful clangour of The Bells. They sally out to investigate and arrive at the Tower. Now catch your breath and read on.) "Come on," I shouted, and we rushed toward the Tower entrance. To our unspeakable horror, the door was open. "After you," said Marlborough-Beach with a sudden outburst of British courtesy.

Pausing only to tie my shoelace, I followed Marlborough-Beach through the grisly portal and up the cadaverous stair. At the macabre top of the ghastly landing we hesitated, horror plucking at our viscera.

The room was murky lit by a single spluttering taper, which cast its sickly yellow light on the carrolleer's bench. "Good Gad," we cried simultaneously. I cannot adequately tell of the sight on which Marlborough-Beach and I looked that night. It passes mortal comprehension, so overpowering was the aura of horror which saturated the scene.

Seated at the console with his back to us was a tall, emaciated figure who was pounding on the keys. In front of him was a ghastly piece of music entitled: Mozart—Concerto in D Major. As we watched, he suddenly ceased playing and rendered the ensuing silence all the more hideous by grotesque wailing of his arms.

"Good Gad," we cried again as soon as we recovered our powers of speech. At our second exclamation, the figure turned and faced us. Imagine our horror when we perceived that he was not hunchbacked! Then his face broke into an impious leer.

"Algy, old boy," he said, "could you spare me a cigarette?"

"Reggie," I gasped awe-stricken, for it was none other, "what are you doing here?"

"They locked the studio," he explained sheepishly, "and I'm playing with the orchestra next week. I had to practise somewhere."

I looked at Marlborough-Beach; Marlborough-Beach looked at me.

"GOOD GAD!" we both said.

Minos and Omar.

Coming soon! "The Man with the Syncopated Heart-Beat". By the authors of "The Bells," etc.

ART, MUSIC & DRAMA

MUSIC CAN BE PROPAGANDA

Before embarking on my large-scale attack on N.M.'s article published in this column yesterday, I want to point out that I agree whole-heartedly with his argument that the mere fact that there's a war on should not make the slightest difference in the type of music played in Canada. But the arguments expressed in support of N.M.'s view are so sweeping that I wish to point out several important points to which I take exception, as well as a few cases where our tolerance might conceivably be strained.

In the first place, although the vast majority of great music has no political significance, very little that has been written since the time of Mozart does not show national characteristics. By national characteristics I do not mean that the drummer gets up during the finale and waves a flag; I mean that the music is imbued with idioms that are characteristic of a people. Folk tunes may be used, or else a mood may be created which is typical of some nation or racial group. There is no end to the number of subtle distinctions which may set a piece apart as German, Russian or Bohemian.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Owen Prichard

There have come to our widespread ears of late a few rumblings of distress from other Canadian camps at the radical changes in athletic programs necessitated by the recent decision of the Canadian universities with regard to inter-collegiate sport. Bill Lawrence, sports-ed of the Queen's Journal, banged out a gloomy "obituary" and gave up the ghost. From the University of Alberta comes a "gesture" of discontent with the present ruling in a determination to bend all efforts toward the re-establishment of intercollegiate sport next year, come what may.

All of which prompts us to repeat that Varsity is fortunate in possessing that brain-child of "Mac" McCutcheon's, the intramural set-up.

Thanks to the intramural director and his committee, we have had in operation for the last few years the one system which is perfectly suited to our present needs. The aim of the Athletic Directorate and the Intramural Committee is to provide full opportunity for every student to participate in some branch of sport. In spite of the unusual situation in which college sport finds itself, Varsity's great athletic machinery is geared to absorb the shock and is preparing to expand as well as modify where the situation so demands.

LET'S GO COLLEGIATE

Interfaculty players are likely to be supplied with blinkers this year, until they get used to seeing a goodly number of spectators on the sidelines. It is conceded that the rugby tilts will draw the largest crowds to the intramural tussles. Which brings us to the question of the chatter with which the gladiators are encouraged to do or die for old Somewhere. This was the year we had planned on inaugurating a new era in spectator-participation. Chief among the plans now laid aside was the proposal for girl cheerleaders. The idea had been bruited about on the campus ever since the lovelies from Western, Queen's and McGill appeared on the Varsity greensward. The studies of St. Mike's and Trinity had organized rooting at the Mubok Cup play-offs last year, and the student interest was considerably heightened. The point we are trying to make is that now is the time for a real corporate spirit at this fall's interfaculty games. Pep rallies could easily be held in the various common rooms, say on the night before the opening games. Let the students meet the teams; let them learn their college yells. In short, let the various athletic societies plan their activities with a view to giving the non-participant a chance to help in the faculties' drive for intramural honours.

CAN THOSE BALMIES DO IT AGAIN?

A reshuffle of the football dates has resulted in a full schedule for Saturdays at the Stadium. Saturday, October 5th, brings the Hamilton Tigers to clash with Balmy Beach. The registration card will once more take its possessor into the reserved section for students. The attendance at the Argo-Balmy clash augurs well for a new record in student attendance this weekend.

Intramural Points

The manner in which intramural points are scored in competition for the coveted T. A. Reed Trophy, emblematic of interfaculty championship, was outlined by Intramural Director "Mac" McCutcheon yesterday. He suggested that interfaculty team managers clip this bit of information for future reference.

The fourteen faculties are divided into three groups, commonly known as A, B, and C. Those comprising Group A include S.P.S., Meds, Vic and U.C. In Group B reside Dents, Trinity, St. Mike's, O.C.E., and Pharmacy, and in Group C we find Wycliffe, Knox, Emmanuel, Forestry and Aerial Navigation.

Team entries in Class A receive 25 points, while those in Classes B and C receive 40 and 60 respectively. There are three and four team loops. A Class A entry in the former gets 15 points, and in the latter 10 points. Those teams in Classes B and C get 22.5 and 37.5 points respectively in the former, and 15 and 25 respectively in the latter.

A Class A group winner cops 50 tallies, B 70, and C 115. If a class A squad gets into the finals, it's worth 10 points, and Classes B and C get 50 and 100 respectively. An interfaculty champion from the first class wins 25 points, a Class B winner 120 points, and if a third-classer wins, it means a rake-off of 250 points.

These point entries refer to the following sports: rugby, hockey, basketball, indoor baseball, lacrosse, water-polo, soccer, and volleyball.

Following are the points to be gained for entries in interfaculty swimming, and outdoor and indoor track:

Class	A	B	C
Entries, per man	5	10	20
First place winners	10	20	40
Second place winners	5	10	20
Third place winners	2	4	8
University championship	50	100	150
University finalists	25	50	100
Interfaculty record	25	50	100
Bonus for entering all events	25	50	100

The following points apply to barrier:

Class	A	B	C
Entries	5	10	20
University championship team	50	100	150
University second place team	25	50	100
University third place team	10	20	40
Individual winners (1st to 10th)	10	20	40
	to	to	to
	1	2	4
Bonus for entering full team (5 men)	10	20	40

VARIED CLASS ATTRACTED BY WARTIME NURSING

Enrolment in the School of Nursing shows a slight increase over last year's figures, it was learned today. Officials said the increase was probably due to the added interest in the nursing profession during wartime.

Students from all parts of Canada, the United States, Panama, Brazil and Japan are registered in the course.

Graduates of classes in recent years are now serving in Australia and the Fiji Islands as well as in contingents overseas. Two of last year's graduates who had come from Denmark and Greece have been unable to return to their homes and are at present exercising their profession in the United States, it was learned.

Entry Lists Increase As Tennis Battle Nears

S.P.S., Meds, U.C. Are Already Represented Among Those Who Contend for Interfaculty Title

FIELD WIDE OPEN

With the interfaculty tennis tournament now exactly two weeks away, the entry list is growing fast, with S.P.S., Meds, U.C. and Vic all represented. Although there is a goodly number of entries, the best players have yet to sign on the dotted line.

Varsity's gift to Canadian Davis Cup play, blond Bruce Hall, intends to enter and defend his interfaculty singles title and the McCaheen goblet that goes with it. But Bruce hasn't seen much play of late. He entered but two tournaments during the summer, one in Edmonton, and a Red Cross benefit. The lad who looks like the closest challenger to Hall is Owen Gray of Meds, a cousin of Cam "Square Toes" Gray, captain of Varsity's rugby squad in '38. Hall ran up against Gray in Edmonton, and managed to beat him, but had to trot plenty to do it.

Competitors should not be scared off, however, by these two. The field is wide open. Expected to enter are Bob Roulund of St. Mike's, Jack Mullett of Dents, who was ousted in the final last year by Hall, Ian McCallum, beaten in the semi-final by Bill Small of Vic. Bill Small graduated last year and his absence will be felt in Varsity tennis circles. Emmanuel also has a new prospect in the person of Johnny Wayland of Princeton.

The doubles field is also wide open. Bill Small and Bruce Hall teamed up last year to win the Victoria Tennis Club Cup. Hall may work beside Doug Green of Emmanuel for the extra points for their faculty. If the pair should win, it would give the Theologs a great boost Reed Trophy-ward.

There should be a great deal more spectator interest this year as well, for the tournament is being played on the university's courts, and not on the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club surfaces, as in former years.

NEW YORKERS MURDER ENGLISH LANGUAGE

character out of this city as profoundly as did Mayor LaGuardia's razing of the Sixth Avenue El.

For Elias Lieberman has passed a decree—illiberalo bullen ala—that English is to be spoken at all junior high schools. This is little short of revolutionary. And the venerable Dr. L. goes even further: English must be spoken not only in English classes but in all classes. Figures-vous! French classes will no longer be conducted in an East Side brogue; chemistry students will never again orate regarding the refining of "ter"; history students will scold Al Smith of his brown derby and denounce him as a boor, a vulgarian, a defiler of the rhythm of English prose.

The aim of it all is to get the junior high school students to speak a correct and beautiful English at all times, and it is precisely there that Dr. Lieberman's campaign becomes pernicious. It is all very well for correct speech to be studied academically, and then forgotten, as are the Pythagorean theorem and the use of the subjunctive in Latin. But we must not forget that the junior high school student of today is the New Yorker of tomorrow, and the New Yorker of tomorrow will be a weak, insipid thing indeed if Dr. Lieberman's correct English fifth column gains its ends.

The coloured boy who shines your shoes is momentarily distracted by a coloured girl rushing by.

"Mah, mah, mah. They's one beautiful chile." He drags out each syllable with fondness and relish.

Obviously she hears him, for she trips on the steps that lead into the subway.

"Naow, don't yo'-all fall, honey," he calls after her, "or ah'll have to come to yo' reskew." He flashes a grin of half a hundred white horse-teeth at you.

"Ef ah doan' have three dollar' an'

After the War.

"It was decided," said Miss Silverthorn, "that women in the federation should attempt to make a detailed survey of historical and economic conditions in order that they might be of use in helping to solve the problems of youth that will confront Canada after the war."

RESULT OF U.C. ELECTIONS MADE KNOWN AT BANQUET

Results of elections for offices in the University College Literary and Athletic Association were announced at the annual Soph-Frosh Banquet held in Hart House last night.

Results were: third year president, Gordon Pyne; third year athletic representative, Ken Hignell; first year secretary-treasurer, Robert Alexander; first year athletic representative, Allan Grant.

fifty cents to-mo'w, mah lan'lady, she goin' to come to mah reskew! Yas, suh!"

He is silent for a few minutes, then again, "She sho' goin' to come to mah reskew!" He laughs.

"Hyah, hyah, hyah..."

The junior high school student of today is the citizen, the worker, the sports fan of tomorrow. Imagine a scene in Ebbets Field twenty years from now. The Dodgers are back in the cellar, where they belong, and are currently battling to overcome a twelve-run lead. The stands are packed—and quiet. The umpire calls "Strike two!" There is a murmur. A murmur! Why back in 1940, the benches could do better than a murmur in the dead of night with no one sitting in them. The umpire calls "Strike three!" and from out of the deadly hush comes a voice in the bleachers, "For shame!"

Or will Tony Galento III, preparing for his bout with fifty year-old champion Joe Louis, say to the press, "I'll moider de bum. I'll push his face in. I'll knock him cold so fast he'll think he was hit by a truck?" I am afraid not. We are more likely to read, "I shall do my best to pound Mr. Louis into a state of unconsciousness, or at least semi-consciousness."

It's debilitation, that's what it is! The national energy bids fair to be sapped since spurious culture is depriving it of the tools of its vigour, a healthy slang, and a disregard for the rules of language. The crowning shame will come on July 4, 1963, when the Daily Mirror will announce the following Independence Day sports events: American Stadium—cricket, Mr. Ebbets' Field—rugger, the Polo Grounds—polo.

The freshman at City College who protests the arbitrary decision that he take non-credit speech classes because of some minor defect, is told in the registrar's office, "You'll have to take them." Threepeth clatheth are compulsory."

let's go places

"Hired Wife," an unassuming little comedy of the do-I-or-don't-I-love-her type, is handled with the necessary light touch by Brian Imperial. Ahern, Rosalind "HIRED WIFE" Russell and Virginia Bruce. We particularly enjoyed Ahern's suave handling of situations which might have seemed off-colour with less adroit manipulation.

The brilliantly buffoonish Bob Benchley is funnier than he has any right to be, and the picture was almost stolen by something new and different in comedians, John Carroll.

Bogging down a bit as the plot labours to a stereotyped conclusion, "Hired Wife" is still good for a few gentle laughs, and at least one hearty roar at the ralleries of Mr. Benchley. The supporting program includes a "Canada Carries On" short, featuring the Commonwealth Air Training Scheme.—M.O.M.

For a combination of thrilling action, foreign intrigue, romantic interludes and carefully pitched suspense, we haven't seen a better picture than Alfred Hitchcock's "Foreign Correspondent", now in its second week in town. As numerous critics have pointed out, there are flaws aplenty when it comes to a question of plausibility, and if you really took time out to think about it, you could tear the story to bits.

But with your heart pounding as newspaperman Huntley Haverstock (Joel McCrea) creeps through creaking, Nazi-instilled windmills, or crawls along a hotel ledge ten floors above an Amsterdam street, or gets taken up to high towers with obvious intent to murder, or breaks up a little Nazi third-degree party—well, you just forget that someone mentioned flaws. And the final ten minutes from the inside of a flying boat, shot down in mid-Atlantic, add the final touches to the nervous breakdown. However, it is wonderful entertainment, with the celebrated Hitchcock "suspense" touch in evidence throughout. And it's fine to see ex-villain George Sanders come through with an excellent piece of acting in a "straight" role.—L.N.S.

We ambled in with the preconceived notion that much of English humour was really no humour. We ambled out still weak with laughter. Much of the humour in "It's in the Air" UPTOWN is pure, unadulterated IT'S IN slapstick, with the usual THE AIR shots of a runaway airplane zooming through hangars and grazing the buttercups, but the slapstick is admittedly well done. The real attraction, however, is the honest, grinning face, the dry-cracking voice, and the "terrific" ukelele playing of George Formby. He wins the audience completely, and carries the whole picture.

A technicolour short featuring Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra gives the girls an opportunity for some grand arrangements and the cameraman a chance for a truly artistic bit of design.—L.N.S.

ART, MUSIC & DRAMA

harmless. No German folk-tune, however beautiful, will have the slightest effect on its listeners except to make them feel glad that they are alive. There is, however, music which is national in the more warlike sense. This kind of music can, on occasion, prove to be political dynamite. The premiere of the Rococo March at Budapest nearly started one revolution and the Marseillaise contributed largely to another. In fact, an enthusiastic rendition of the latter in a Vichy theatre today might cause considerable reverberations.

At this point we have a few pertinent words from Deems Taylor, discussing the Marseillaise, Mr. Taylor points out that if it were not for the words, the piece would be no more than a stirring march. According to Mr. Taylor, it isn't the music that hoists a nation's blood-pressure, but the associations of it. On this plea Mr. Taylor would give all music a clean bill of health as far as nationalistic associations are concerned. Following the same method of reasoning, a swastika in a white circle on a red background is merely a pretty pattern to those unacquainted with its political affiliations. Therefore it would be a good idea to hang a few festoons of them in Massey Hall the night of the opening T.S.O. concert!

Getting back to Wagner (as any article of this type invariably does), while the fact that he is Hitler's favourite composer is not sufficient evidence to send Reginald Stewart to jail for conducting the Tannhauser Overture, an anti-Wagner brief may be drawn up on other charges. The music of all of Wagner's operas is so closely bound up with the text that the two could not possibly be completely separated, even by Mr. Taylor. It happens that the libretti of Tannhauser, Lohengrin, Meistersinger and Tristan are largely non-political in content, but the four Ring operas are not free from between-the-lines significance. This does not imply that Wagner's Siegfried was conceived in the image of Adolf Hitler or of the National Socialist state. However, the saga is no innocent fairy-tale, as may be seen by a glance at any of Wagner's non-musical writings. Wagner ner was a member of a group of political thinkers whose influence on National Socialism was more than slight. Although Wagner's Siegfried was probably intended to be on an infinitely higher plane than his would-be emulator the influence of his son together with the help of other Nazi experts has transformed the whole cycle into a powerful Pan-German rallying cry.

Perhaps the hacked-out pieces of opera performed in all-Wagner programs reflect very little of this propaganda to most listeners, but any German whose opinions are not firmly decided might well be moved by a call framed in the language of Wagner's magnificent music.

This argument is neither as complete nor as well-substantiated as I might wish to make it, but the main point stands in direct opposition to N.M.'s concluding statement. Music, whether inherently or by association, can be and is nationalized to make powerful political propaganda. And if the propaganda is sufficiently damaging to a belligerent state, that music should be banned.—E.S.

World-Famed Lecturer Joins History Department

Dr. G. G. Coulton, Termed One of Ranking Medievalists of World to Remain at University for Rest of Year

LAOUEO BY CODY

Dr. G. G. Coulton, termed one of the ranking medievalists of the world, has joined the Department of History staff, The Varsity learned yesterday, and will remain at this university for the rest of the academic year.

Dr. Coulton, for many years a fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, and lecturer in medieval history at both Oxford and Cambridge Universities, has written a large number of books, mostly ecclesiastical histories.

Interviewed yesterday concerning his impressions of the University of Toronto, Dr. Coulton said, "I am immensely impressed by the beauty of the campus and the buildings. No one would imagine himself in the middle of such a large city in these surroundings."

Comparing Varsity to English colleges, Dr. Coulton said, "In the teaching of history, they lean more towards the methods of Oxford than those of Cambridge. I am extremely interested in studying the methods employed here."

Dr. Coulton, when asked for his opinion as to the duration of the war, stated, "I try to think about the war as little as possible except when my actions depend on the outcome of my speculations. But, if I were compelled to bet on it, I should say the war will be over by next spring."

University authorities were emphatic in the expression of their pleasure that Dr. Coulton has come to this campus.

Dr. H. J. Cody, President of the university, said, "It is a great privilege for both staff and students of this university to have among us for the academic year one of the great masters of historical writing and historical research. From him students will learn how to discover and to interpret historical matter from a past age. His delightful personality will win him the friendship of those who come to know him."

"Dr. Coulton, of course, has been for years one of the ranking medievalists of the world," said Professor Chester Martin, Head of the Department of History. "We want as many of our students as possible to share our privilege of knowing him while he is with us this year."

U. OF T. RED CROSS BUSTLES TO PROVIDE SOLDIERS' CLOTHES

Odds and Ends All Utilized by Red Cross to Make Garments for Soldiers and Refugees in England

SHIPPED OVERSEAS

Even car linings are utilized by members of the University of Toronto Red Cross unit which since last January has produced 5,576 sewn garments and 1,361 knitted garments to be sent to England to clothe soldiers and refugees.

Members of all university faculties participate, each section under a convener, working one day a week, to produce everything from windbreakers, to mittens and babies' slippers. Left-over pieces from bolts of cloth are also used to best advantage, with children's helmets and babies' bonnets being made from fabric left over from pneumonia jackets.

The local group, 166 members strong, is a unit of the Toronto branch of the Red Cross. The work is done under supervision on machines in the Household Science Building, and at home knitting is also done.

Surgeons' coats, women's coats, dresses, sweaters, socks, mitts and dresses are made. A most important part of the work, requiring expert workmanship, is the making of the linings for boxes used as containers for sterile dressings.

JAMES HOZACK ACTS AS THEATRE MANAGER

Acting manager of Hart House Theatre for the duration is to be James Hozack, who has been the box office secretary for the past four years.

Mr. Hozack is replacing Willard Thomson who is a first lieutenant in the Royal Regiment of Canada. "In the meantime," the acting manager said, "we intend to carry on as always."

Herb Hale, former electrician of the Hart House Theatre, has also joined the colours, and is now a pilot-in-training with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Jack Plaxton Works Out with Newest Edition of School's Senior Rugby Squad as Engineers Vie for Positions

FORESTRY ENTERS TEAM

The S.P.S. rugby aspirants are turning out in full force on the back campus every night now in an attempt to convince Manager Bell and Coach Annis Stukus that they would be valuable assets to the senior squad.

Although more emphasis has been placed thus far on the physical conditioning of the boys than on the actual ball-toting, the few scrimmages that have been held give promise that the Engineers will vindicate their early defeat last year.

Manager Bell is not willing to commit himself at this early stage on exactly who will occupy the various positions, but it is certain that Jack Plaxton, passer extraordinary of the Varsity senior squad last year, will play a prominent part in the backfield. Herb Barret, Stew Munro and Jim Hurst, all former intermediates, will also take their

STUDIO GROUP OPENS CHARITY SERIES

Beginning a four-day run in Hart House Theatre last night, "Keep it Flying" was presented by the Playwrights' Studio Group as the first of a series of productions to be staged in aid of war work charities during the coming season.

"Keep it Flying" is a revue containing original songs and sketches by members of the Group and presented under the direction of Arthur Gelber. This year the Playwrights' Studio Group instead of presenting their usual schedule of nine one-act plays a year, are staging the present revue.

Pioneers of the performance will go to women's auxiliaries of the Canadian Active Service Force. Performers include the Boris Volkoff dancers, Cora Sheard, John Pratt, Jane Mallett, Dora McMillan, Norma Green, Barry Fitzgerald, Barbara Davis, Peggy Rhoades, can can dancers, and the C-A-T-S Chorus.

Satterly To Feature Frozen Fish

Liquid Air Experiment by Physics Department Professor Has Become University Institution

4 P.M. TOMORROW

Professor J. Satterly of the Physics department will deliver his popular "liquid air" lecture at the first meeting of the Engineering Society in the Physics Building at 4 p.m. tomorrow. Professor Satterly will use three gallons of liquid air during the lecture to demonstrate its properties. Among the objects to be "frozen" will be vegetables and fish which in former years have been shattered, to the amazement of the audiences.

Prof. Satterly's liquid air demonstration is an annual affair at the University of Toronto, and it invariably packs the large lecture room of the Physics Building with students of all faculties. The colourful results produced by the physics professor provide an experimental display which few other universities in the world can produce, because of the costly apparatus required for making the liquid air.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE ELECTION RESULTS

Officers elected at St. Michael's College on Wednesday, Oct. 2, were: Fred Battersby of Elmira, N.Y., president of the First Year Varsity; Edward Gorman of Syracuse, President of Western; and William Gorman of Elmira, Athletic Director for Western.

The rest of the officials will be elected at a later date.

Co-eds Take Up Needles; War Work Under Way

University Women's War Activities Beginning in Colleges. Red Cross, Motor Mechanics, Ambulance Courses Begun

RED CROSS DRIVE FRIDAY

All the co-eds are keen to do their share in Canada's war effort, a survey revealed yesterday.

Although few organized groups have appeared as yet, the women of the university will soon all be picking their fingers and clicking their needles for the worthy cause. St. Hilda's hopes to begin work in the near future under the leadership of their W.A. chapter.

According to Margaret Fyfe of St. Joseph's College, the girls there are all doing their bit in the Red Cross work. Stacks of hemmed handkerchiefs and piles of knitting have already been handed in.

"The freshies, especially the American students, are anxious to enrol in the motor mechanics and St. Johns Ambulance course," she added.

"We are to have a speaker from the Red Cross after dinner some night soon who will tell us the various kinds of work to be done," said Mary McCreery, II U.

"Tomorrow we are having a Red Cross drive in the different houses of Whitney Hall in collaboration with the city drive on Saturday."

Glenna O'Gorman of Loretto College said the girls there are working on Mondays and Thursdays at the Household Science Building in the women's war work room. Up to date the Annesley Hall girls have no organized group but most of them are busy knitting.

Savings Stamps Will Burn In Patriotic Ritual At All-Varsity Dance

! STAFF MEETING !

An important meeting of the entire staff of The Varsity will be held today at 4.30 p.m. sharp in the University College Women's Union, 79 St. George St. All staff members must attend.

COUNCIL APPOINTS NEW PRESIDENT

William W. Small, B.Comm., 470, former president of the Victoria College Union and tennis star, was elected new president of the Students' Administrative Council at a meeting held yesterday afternoon.

Appointments to the masthead of The Varsity were also made, as follows: Women's Editor, Irma Thomson, 471; Managing Editor, Norman Altstetter, 471; News Editor, H. Dent Hodgson, 472; Women's News Editor, Marg Parks, 471; Sports Editor, Owen Pritchard, B.A.; and Exchange Editor, Michael O'Mara, 473. Other appointments to The Varsity masthead will be announced later.

Torontonensis, under the Editorship of Albert Mallon, will have the following staff: Associate Editor, Donald Bladley; Proofs Editor, John Griffin; Photographic Editor, Erol Cahoon; Organizations Editor, Bruce Williams, and Assistant Organizations Editor, Paul Deacon, and Sports Editor, John Dallyn.

While details as to the orchestras at the dance have not yet been arranged, E. A. Wilkinson, assistant secretary of Hart House, announced that five orchestras are expected to be in attendance as in previous years.

Only one thousand tickets will be printed and experience since the dance was inaugurated two years ago leads the committee to expect that the total capacity will be sold well in advance.

For this reason, students are urged to buy their tickets early.

Although the committee deliberated for some time before announcing the dance, it announced that preparations are being made with the full consent of President Cody, who has asked the continuation of informal social events.

STANDARDS HIGH

With the object of training an efficient corps of women to take the place of men, when and if the need arises, the Canadian Red Cross has organized the Canadian Women's Transport Service, a section of the Women's Voluntary Service Corps.

While they have only been training women (between the ages of 18 and 45) for the past two weeks, they are making great headway and find the women very enthusiastic, according to Commandant Arnoldi of the Toronto detachment. Several present and former university students are enrolled in the course, including Marcia Wallace, this year, and Joy Bristol.

The course is no child's play, according to reports. For six weeks, the women are required to take three hours a day of physical training, drill, stretcher bearing, map and compass reading, air raid precautions, military law and truck and convey driving. Prerequisites for entrance into the service are St. John Ambulance certificates for first aid, motor mechanic's certificate, and three years' driving experience.

Lectures on these subjects are delivered to the members of the service every evening by military authorities. They drill every morning at the Fort York armories.

The members wear khaki uniforms which bear Red Cross arm bands, when

HELO OCTOBER 25

Giving students a chance to contribute to the war effort besides its usual attraction as the first large-scale social event of the season, the All-University Fall Dance will be held Friday, October 25, according to an announcement released by the House Committee of Hart House, which will be in charge of the dance.

Although the admission price of the dance has been reduced to $1.00 per couple, the Committee has ruled that no couple will be admitted unless a War Savings Stamp is affixed to their ticket in the space provided. The stubs containing these stamps will be removed at the door, and a ceremony will be held in the Great Hall during the evening, in which the stamps will be burned.

For the convenience of the students, the committee has arranged that War Savings Stamps will be on sale at the Hall Porter's desk, and may be purchased with the tickets. Stamps may also be obtained at the Simcoe Hall Post Office or at any other post office in the city.

While details as to the orchestras at the dance have not yet been arranged, E. A. Wilkinson, assistant secretary of Hart House, announced that five orchestras are expected to be in attendance as in previous years.

Only one thousand tickets will be printed and experience since the dance was inaugurated two years ago leads the committee to expect that the total capacity will be sold well in advance.

For this reason, students are urged to buy their tickets early.

W.U.A. FIRST YEAR EXECUTIVE ELECTED

Jean Ross was elected president of the first year executive of the Women's Union Association of University College, yesterday. Susan Bickle will be the secretary of the first year.

Other officers of the first year elected were: Barbara Duff, treasurer; Susan Goulding, social service director.

Meds, Schoolmen Tussle Fiercely In Freshman Fray

Meds and School Freshmen tangled in a tie-clipping fray yesterday afternoon. Both sides claim a victory.

When the diuvinine green bedecked freshmen sauntered out of the School building at exactly three and one half minutes to five, they stared aghast at the entire freshman class of Meds lined up on the front campus in battle array and escorted by two of the university police force. Dabs of shoe polish and microchrome had been smeared on their faces by enthusiastic sophomores.

With a mad cry of "School" several hundred S.P.S. men hurled themselves at the redskins, only to be met by a barrage of ripe tomatoes. Braving this they met in pitched battle to the sound of shearing ties.

NEW RESIDENCE TO BOAST POOL ROOM

Trinity Men to Move Next September to New, Well-Equipped Residence, which will Feature Refreshment Booth

TRINITY HOUSE ON SALE

Although the old Trinity House of St. George and Harbord is now being offered for sale, it will not be until next September that Trinity College men will be able to take up residence in the new building now being built in conjunction with Trinity College, it was learned yesterday.

Like St. Hilda's College, Trinity women's residence completed several years ago, however, it will be on its completion next August, second to none among de luxe residences of the campus. A pool room, a dining hall suitable for holding dances, and what Pat Strathy, bursar of Trinity, calls a "co-educational refreshment booth," will be features of the new building.

"The new residence will be a well-equipped building," said Mr. Strathy, "but it will in no way conflict with Hart House as a recreational centre."

The two wings running north from the present building will be capable of housing 142 students and six dons, compared with the capacity of 117 students in the old Trinity House. Proceeds of the sale of Trinity House will finance a third wing, closing the quadrangle behind the college.

"In all probability," added Mr. Strathy, "a co-educational refreshment booth will be installed in one of the new wings, where students might partake of a friendly 'coke'."

The Gothic architecture of the original wing will be maintained by the use of Credit Valley rubble stone and Indiana cut stone trim.

The west wing will contain the dining hall with a seating capacity of 250. Oak paneled walls, a stone fireplace and a gallery at the south end of the dining hall will be the outstanding architectural features of the room. The recreation room is located beneath the dining hall. The east wing in the main part will consist of the sleeping quarters for the men students.

A substantial part of the cost of these new wings is being met by a gift to the college, but $90,000 is still needed to cover the complete cost of the buildings.

The complete building will not interfere with the playing field to the north of the college, Mr. Strathy said.

U.C. PLAYERS' GUILD ATTRACTS MANY FRESHIES

Over 100 freshies attended the first meeting of the U.C. Players' Guild at the Women's College yesterday.

Mayor Moore, the Guild's president, outlined the policy for the coming year. The trend in recent years has been to produce plays of a too serious nature, which usually overstepped the ability of the average amateur, the president said. This year more comedies will be produced.

Special committees are to be formed to instruct the new recruits in the variety of the theatre. Acting, costumes, directing, stage sets and lightings are among the phases to be included. Today at 3 p.m. a general meeting to read parts will be held in the Women's Union. Undergrads who could not attend the first meeting yesterday are urged to drop into the Union today.

University Red Cross

There is no organization in the entire university more deserving of our whole-hearted praise and support than the university branch of the Red Cross. The university branch was organized last year by wives of faculty members, alumnae and a few undergraduates who have devoted much of their time to making it a success. It has accomplished an admirable amount of work, sewing and knitting, hospital supplies, soldiers' supplies and clothing for refugees. Since its organization last January, the women responsible for its success have been working steadily, many of them all day long, with only a three week respite in August and September. From January to August, members sewed 5,576 garments, knit 1,361 garments and sewed large quantities of hospital supplies.

Every conceivable type of garment is at present being made at the Red Cross workrooms, to be sent abroad for refugees. By the end of October, the Toronto Division of the Red Cross must supply 100,000 such garments alone. Night clothes, women's coats, dresses, children's clothes, dressing gowns are only a few of the things being made. An example of the ingenuity displayed by the society in utilizing every ounce of material is evident from the supply of mittens, caps, and even a man's jacket made from the upholstery lining of a Ford car.

Such tireless and unselfish work on the part of so few demands the utmost support which the undergraduate women of the university can give. The limited number of machines in the workrooms and the fact that these machines require skilled workers make it impossible for most co-eds to help in this way. However, sweaters for refugee girls of college age, as well as for children, would be greatly appreciated. Since the demands on the Red Cross have been so heavy and so expensive, it would be impossible at present for them to give out wool to co-eds who are willing to knit it into sweaters. However, the suggestion has been made at the committee rooms that the girls get together and hold a "wool shower" and contribute any spare balls of wool that they might have at home. If every girl in the university contributed just one ball of wool, the total would be more than worth the slight trouble it might take. The wool can then be knitted into multi-coloured sweaters with a dark band and then succeeding bands of different coloured wools. This process was used in Windsor with great success, and since the skirts which are to accompany these sweaters are a solid gray, they would be especially appropriate.

If for any reason you cannot assist by knitting, you may still contribute your share of the wool by handing it in to the Red Cross workrooms in the Household Economics Building, where it can be given to others to knit into sweaters. Busy as you may be, there are still those spare hours or even minutes when you could be knitting for the Red Cross. There are so many clubs and meetings, so many social gatherings on the campus every week co-eds might quite appropriately take along their knitting.

If you prefer to help by giving financial assistance instead, the National Red Cross is now conducting a drive for $5,000,000 with which to carry on their work. If you wish, contribute to it so that the Red Cross may supply others with wool for much needed refugee clothing.

It is one of the finest causes in the world, and it is one concrete way for the women on this campus to contribute to the war effort.

Do You Speak French?

National registration last month has caused a great many university students to stop and think. There were a few questions scattered here and there on the registration cards which might cause more than a few arts students at least to wonder just what they were getting out of a university education. What use is a B.A., you might ask yourself, when you have to stop and ponder over that little query toward the end of the questionnaire—"What other work can you do well?" No one, of course, will deny that education for itself alone is an excellent thing, but likewise no one will deny that it is necessary to acquire practical knowledge to get along in the world today—and most of us find it very necessary to get along. Unfortunately we cannot afford to be impractical.

We spend years studying languages, for instance, and it has always seemed like a worthwhile expenditure of time and money, but then we are rudely shocked into a state of doubt by a few simple questions such as, "Do you speak French?" "What other language can you speak, read and write?"

The study of foreign languages is an excellent thing, certainly, but is it going to be such an excellent thing if you emerge from many years' study of them and find that you have only learned to read them? All you language students, how much would you really know about a foreign language if it came to a test in war time by making use of languages you have been slaving over for many years? Actually, DO YOU SPEAK French, or German, or Spanish?

If your answer to these questions in August was "no", then a little propaganda would seem to be in order for the additional emphasis on the utility of languages taught. For reading and writing purposes, the present courses seem to be beyond reproach. But at present only those students taking honour courses in French, and other languages, receive any conversational instruction whatsoever. In the numerous pass arts language courses the student spends perhaps three years, tacked onto his five years of high school language, trying to learn the language without conversational classes. Admitted the teacher often asks questions in the language, but the answer is usually an embarrassed giggle, a dull stare, or an "I beg your pardon?" The result of the whole setup is that if you are not in an honour course, you don't learn to speak a language. And the solution through incorporation of a few conversation classes is so simple.

Of Measles And Sheep

Science and medicine are wonderful things these days—there seems to be no end to their discoveries. It is a bit unsettling, however, to see them snatch your lifelong pet theories out from under your nose, pull them scientifically apart and toss them in the waste basket. For instance, a doctor recently issued statements to the effect that the old-as-the-hills theory that you can lull yourself to sleep by counting sheep is completely erroneous. Counting sheep, he says, will only result in keeping you awake. This, of course, may have already been suspected by more than a few insomnia victims.

Now two American doctors have found a way of ridding children of a disease that always seemed as much a part of their growing-up process as milk and porridge—common measles. The successful measles vaccine has been discovered by Dr. Joseph Stokes, Jr., of the University of Pennsylvania's Medical School and Geoffrey William Rake of the Squibb Institute for medical research. They obtain active virus from blood or throat washings, treat this material with ether or by filtering to remove bacteria, pass it into chicken eggshells through a small hole made with a dentist's drill, and inject it into the chick embryo's outer membrane. After allowing four or five days for the virus to propagate they open the eggs, remove the membrane, grind it, mix it with broth and centrifuge it. The vaccine is then ready to use. Tests were made on two groups of children and proved the vaccine a success.

A vaccine for measles may seem like a relatively unimportant discovery in view of the fact that it has always been regarded as almost a natural part of every child's existence, but in view of present day conditions it may prove to be a very worth-while discovery indeed. Even the most trivial disease can be a serious problem in England today, where people are herded so closely together in such large numbers in air raid shelters and like accommodations. Any disease would of course spread rapidly, and under such circumstances even minor diseases might have disastrous results. During the last war, pneumonia following measles was a common cause of death, and any lessening of such danger must be considered an important contribution in these days.

the man with the SYNCOPATED heart-beat

It was high noon on a splendid autumn day, and Marlborough-Beach and I were discussing yesterday's winner of the third at Woodbine over a brace of double malteds at the St. George St. diggings, when a sudden lull in the conversation brought Marlborough-Beach to his feet with a jerk.

"What's that?" he snapped, staring fixedly in my direction.

"Oh that," I said, attempting to smile, "it's that perfectly topping royal purple tie I was telling you about. Don't you like it?"

"Not the tie, you fool," he said impatiently, "listen!"

As we both sat silently, we heard a strange throbbing sound, which I shall attempt to reproduce as follows:

Thump thump Thud-ump thump
Thud-ump thud-ump thump thump
Thump tiddle thump thump
Ching!

"I say, old man," I said, "your watch needs looking after."

"My watch is in lock," Marlborough-Beach retorted, "how about yours?"

"The tailor has it," I replied laconically.

Marlborough-Beach tactfully said nothing. It was a painful moment. In the silence, suddenly we noticed that the strange throbbing was continuing.

"Algy," Marlborough-Beach said, "how many malteds have you had?"

"Don't be a fool, man," I said with some hauteur, "one doesn't keep count of these things."

"I've had five," said Marlborough-Beach glumly.

"Buck up, man," I replied, "five malteds couldn't do that to the heart of a babe in swaddling clothes. It must be merely another manifestation of the occult."

"I'm none too sure," said Marlborough-Beach.

ART, MUSIC & DRAMA

Playwrights' Group

"Keep it Flying", a Playwrights' Studio Group revue directed by Arthur Gelber, opened a four-night stand in Hart House Theatre last night. It will probably be a better show by Saturday.

First-night jitters bothered some of the less experienced of the cast, and the show as a whole did not run smoothly enough, although the first half moved at a fairly respectable pace. But the second half dragged deplorably, particularly in the "Indian Fantasy" number, which could have had fifteen minutes cut from it without the audience knowing the difference. Although the cast seemed to enjoy their work most of the evening, it struck me that they were no happier about the whole thing than I was.

Tomorrow's Golf Tournament Initial Interfaculty Sport Contest

Eighty-two Entries to Date for Meet Scheduled to Start Friday Morning at the Glen Eagles Club; Prizes Awarded

U.C. HOLDS TITLE

Eighty-two entries have been received to date for the university golf tournament to be held at the Glen Eagles Golf Club (not at the Woodbine Club as in former years) tomorrow at 9 a.m.

It will be divided into four flights and prizes will be awarded in each flight for low gross and low net scores. The interfaculty championship will be decided on the basis of the four low gross scores. Last year, Bill Kinnear of University College turned in the best individual score of the day and along with Herb Epstein, Buddy Rothschild and Bill Laird made up the winning team.

Late entries will still be accepted at the Athletic Office.

INTERFACULTY GOLF DRAW

Post entries will be accepted.

Speaking OF SPORT

IT'S HERE

Well, almost here, anyway. Sauntering home by the back route behind Hart House last night, thinking foolish thoughts, such as having a grandstand seat at the World Series, raucous voices reached our ears from the locker rooms. Once again could be heard cries of "Hey, Butch, hand me that towel, huh," and "Who can work this bloody lock?" And then we realized that what we've been waiting for for the past week and more is upon us—interfaculty sport.

Exactly one floor above, labouring day in and day out, holding meetings, granting interviews, drawing up schedules, forming new rules, making new plans, signing up officials, answering a hundred and one questions per day, toil the near-continuous occupants of the Athletic Office.

Mac McCutcheon is enthusiastic to a degree over this year's set-up. "Plans are to run as full an intramural program as facilities and time permit, and as the organization becomes more closely knit such a full program can be operated so that the lack of intercollegiate competition will not be materially felt." So quoth Mac. That's a pretty big order, in any man's language, but Mac is not one to get giddy over his favourite occupation.

Let's take a gander under the curtain. Already on stage is the golf tournament, and championing in the wings we can spot almost fifty-seven kinds of sport ready to make their annual showing. About this golf. . .

DOWN THE FAIRWAY

Last night at the Athletic Office the draw, which will be found elsewhere in your favourite paper, was held for the golf tournament, coming off tomorrow. Those who failed to get their names down on the entry list and who still wish to compete, need not be disappointed, for late entries will be accepted. To date there are eighty-two contestants, with the Engineers, U.C., Dents, Meds, and Trinity all well represented. Taking a quick glance at the list, we recognized but a couple of the lads who beat out a low score last year, so it looks as if the tournament is going to be wide open. Blessed with fine weather it should be a huge success, though it is doubtful, what with lectures going on at the same time, that there will be much of a gallery.

So goes up the curtain on a great year of interfaculty sport.

THE OTHER FIFTY-SEVEN

At last we see that the rugby practices are getting under way. And that is as it should be, with the initial whistle-blast to sound forth in about a week. Bernie Taylor, coach up at Vic, gave the boys a workout the other night that they will not soon forget. U.C. is going through somewhat the same mill, and School and St. Mike's are also doing heavy duty. We have yet to hear from Meds and Trinity.

A word on this new four-downs ruling in rugby. Warren Stevens thinks it will speed up the game no end. There is something even more interesting about it. It may be an excellent proving ground for ideas which may be suggested to the Canadian Rugby Union. The C.R.U. could use a few good ones.

The soccer season will weigh anchor as soon as possible. Wycliffe, who bowed out to Vic in the finals last year, is the only club to do any hoofing as yet. The lacrosse and volleyball skeds will be starting as soon as the heavy outdoor activity is over. The novice and senior track meets are fast approaching. And tennis. The Victoria Tennis Club has offered a brand new cup for interfaculty competition, and it's a lulu, well worth a place on any faculty's mantlepiece. Vic, who won the team championship last year, is at present the proud possessor of the golden goblet. And swimming too. The extra hours in the pool are to be utilized by the inclusion of a series of meets which will be operated as a round-robin sked and decided on a team basis.

THE FIFTY-SEVENTH

You guessed it—Jiu-jitsu. Ever since Art Mcenzies graduated from Vic more than a year ago, Varsity has lacked a qualified instructor in the art of Japanese wrestling. It is good news to learn that this year, engaged in theological work at Trinity is a Japanese student by the name of Shimizu, no less than a black belt holder of the second grade. He will without doubt make a valuable contribution to Varsity wrestling.

From the other side of the world, Japan to be exact, a little book in the form of a special edition, put out by a Christian frat operating among the Japanese, arrived at the Athletic Office the other day. In it is contained a very interesting article by Mr. Kurose, who, with the assistance of Mr. Matsumoto, formed the first Varsity jiu-jitsu club, and a picture of the first jiu-jitsu class here. J.J. sure gets around.

ON THE RECORD

The inclusion of senior intercollegiate men, except those who have played two or more games with outside senior teams, should be a big boost to the T. A. Reed Trophy race. Some looked askance at this, but most of last year's senior squad graduated, and what ones are left, it so happens, are evenly distributed among the faculties.

We might remind faculty athletic representatives that in order to be near the top in the trophy race, they must have a large volume of entries in individual tournaments. And there's no better time to start than tomorrow.

A correction on yesterday's column. . . Beaches play Hamilton Alerts in the Stadium Saturday, not the Tigers, as stated. . . they had the same kind of trouble at Montreal for years. . . St. Mike's is going to miss Father McGahey, a great gentleman as well as a great coach. . . he is now a chaplain in the R.C.A.F. . . Annis and Frank Stukus are handling the coaching problem for S.P.S. . . to whom it may concern. . . there is an intramural sports committee meeting at 5 p.m.

By Marg Foulds

Well, at last we really have some sports to write about. No aspersions, of course, on the "games" played last Monday afternoon at the Mississauga, that was sport, all right.

Basketball is threatening to begin rather soon, so we thought a little discussion on same might be in order. This year, owing to the international situation over which, we must sadly admit, we of this column do not seem to have much control, there seems to be no small amount of doubt about the presence of intercollegiate events on the girls' athletic program. The boys have definitely cancelled all intercollegiate activities for the season, but, so far, the girls have been undecided. However, it now seems pretty definite that they, too, will drop these from their schedule, but just what will be substituted, will remain a mystery, probably until next week after the Athletic Directorate has assembled for further discussion on the subject.

Meanwhile, interfaculty teams will start off the middle of next week, in order to get the regular matches underway within a week or so. Definite dates for first turn-outs, subsequent practices and matches, for all colleges interested enough to make the information available to us on one of our wild dashes abroad, or through other more convenient channels, will willingly be given out just as soon as we can get hold of it. Watch your Varsity.

under 25 on July 1 will attend this Parade. This does not include students who have enrolled for the Officers' Training Course with the C.O.T.C. nor does it include male students who were 18 years of age at the date of registration in the university and were not 20 years of age on July 1, 1940.

III Trainees will assemble on the roadway in front of University College and will be formed as a battalion in mass facing north. Markers will be detailed and will report to the adjutant on the Parade Ground at 1330 hrs.

(3) To facilitate the organization of the battalion the following tentative arrangement of companies and platoons positions on the first team.

The S.P.S. junior squad, which reached the semi-finals last year in the battle for the Mulock Cup, only to be eliminated by St. Mike's, also loom up as a definite threat in their particular league. Manager Sloan announces that Grosskurth, Rowland, Kelly, Hamlin, Biggs and Gow of last year's team will see action again this season. Frank Stukus has taken over the coaching duties.

The sporting public will also be glad to learn that after a season of inactivity, the School of Forestry has again decided to enter a team this year. Manager Bert Day trooped the boys out on the back campus for the first time on Tuesday, and the lads seem to make up in ability what they lack in numbers.
Their chances are enhanced by the presence in their ranks of three former intermediates, Grant Puttock, who will probably end up in the quarterback spot, and two hefty linemen, Bill Eccles and Don Davidson.

ART, MUSIC &amp; DRAMA

attempted was Stanley Raven. One or two of his miming interludes were worthy of a better setting. Also outstanding was John Pratt, who saved the show from dying an untimely death with a burlesque rendition of "Trees," which doesn't sound amusing, but was.
Jane Mallet was another bright spot in the evening with a monologue a la Cornelia Otis Skinner. She suffered by comparison, of course, but that's Miss Skinner's fault, not hers.

The closest the show got to being hilarious was in "Moment Romanticque" with Beatrice Fair and Stanley Raven.
A sympathetic house lapped it up.

The presentation of what was apparently intended as the hit song from "Keep it Flying," "Whistling in the Darkness" was spoiled by poor routining. Two choruses of the number done on a dimly lighted stage were enough; turning on the lights for another chorus was a poor move.

A surprisingly efficient little tap-dance chorus was good in "Moderne" and credible in a can-can number.

"Keep it Flying" is a good little amateur show which tries hard. It doesn't quite click, but, as I said, it will be better as it goes along.

MORE THINGS WERE CURI-OUS ABOUT. . . Who was the short-sighted bloke who waylaid one of the leading fights of the Department of History the other day, when said leading light happened to be sporting a rather matty green cravat, and bawled at him "Tie out, frosh!" And how was it that a man, after carefully dialing the phone number of Knox College one night this week, was greeted by a jocund voice saying "Hello. This is Whitney Hall"? . . . We repeat, THIS SORT OF THING MUST STOP.

DOUBLE ENTENDRE. . . Opening meeting of a campus dramatic society, see? The president is making an impassioned appeal for more girls to join the make-up staff. . . "You girls have all had lots of practice putting it on yourselves," says he. "Now I'd like you to practice putting it on other people." . . . THE CRUDE AP-PROACH.

ELECTION FEVER. . . Down at the Ontario College of Art, is a bohemian acolyte of artistic endeavour rejoicing in the glamorous nickname of "Doodle". . . Seems he's running for the presidency of something or other, and guess what his campaign slogan is?
DON'T DIDDLE, VOTE DOODLE.

What next?

PARACHUTES OVER L.S.U. . . .
Hitler may have some of his blitzkrieg thunder stolen, if the Louisiana State pilot training scheme lives up to expectations. . . . Malcolm "Sparky" Wade, former All-America basketball ace and new aeronautics instructor at L.S.U. is adding a course in "technique and care of parachutes" to the curriculum. . . . Think what a man will be able to accomplish with the aid of a parachute that has been cared for!
We bet Hitler treats his parachutes something awful.

PICTURE . . . The annex of the Great Hall yesterday at lunch hour.
Some two score lusty trenchermen ensconced at one of those long, long tables they have out there. A plate bearing one lonely lord at one end. A wistful green tie sitting at the other.
Says the wistful green tie, sotto voce, to his green-tied neighbour, "Say, do you think there's a chance of. . ." His voice trails off. The neighbour turns to his neighbour and says something.
And so on down the line. The whisper reaches the other end of the table and the anchor man picks up the plate in question. Eyes it longingly. Passes it to the next man, who passes it to the next man, who passes it to the next man. It gets back to the originator of the ripple. "Gee," he says, "thanks."

Fourteen Hundred Men Commence Military Drill On Saturday Afternoon

Organization Parade will inaugurate Varsity's Largest Military Effort Since Versailles

NATIONAL MOBILIZATION

Without fanfare or flag-waving, Varsity's largest military effort in a quarter of a century will get under way tomorrow afternoon. Well over fourteen hundred undergraduate recruits will assemble for organization parade on the front campus at fourteen hundred hours—2 p.m. to the minute.

Without exception, males between twenty and twenty-four—those who are affected by the National Resources Mobilization Act—will turn out en masse in order that they may be arranged in their various platoons. This is the necessary first step towards the 110 hours of military training to be completed during the college term.

It's a matter of starting from scratch, because nothing definite can be done until the officers arrange a time-table to suit the recruits, but tomorrow is to be the starting point, and from then on matters will become more organized.

During the term, recruits will take the same training as that laid down in the syllabus of the Department of National Defence for all trainees across Canada. By spring most of the male undergraduates in the university will have received instruction in elementary foot drill, rifle drill, anti-aircraft and (Continued on Page 6)

COUNCIL SECRETARY AIDED PUBLICATION

Miss Parkes Assisted in Bringing Out First Women's Issue of The Varsity During War of 1914-18

WOMEN ON THE STAFF

Miss A. E. M. Parkes, present associate secretary of the Students' Administrative Council, assisted in bringing out the first women's issue of The Varsity in 1915, it was learned yesterday.

Before that time the women had very little to do with the paper. A woman's associate editor had been appointed in 1892 but she acted only as a representative and had no definite job to perform.

In 1897 a column known as the "College Girl" appeared weekly. This was (Continued on Page 5)

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

TODAY'S VARSITY DIFFERS WIDELY FROM PREDECESSOR

Supplying Material to Suit Every Student's Taste the Newspapers Covers Campus Field

MORE NEW FEATURES

Today's issue of The Varsity is a far cry from the timid literary journal of sixty years ago. Appearing five days a week, it now gives ample justification of its title of "The Undergraduate Newspaper" by supplying material to suit every student's taste.

On Page One the news round-up of the campus is to be found. Important news stories head the list—stories of activities in all faculties which are considered important enough to receive prominent placing. Hart House plays host to child refugees over the summer; the university adopts compulsory military training; a U.C. lecturer takes part in the work of the de Gaulle Committee, and the story is given the "top-right" or "top-left" position which is held open for really important news.

Secondary stories deal with topics with a less widespread appeal. Activities of faculty, college and Hart House clubs, interviews with professors, and similar material come under this heading.

At the bottom of the page come features, dealing with amusing (though not necessarily important), incidents around the campus. All material used deals with university activities.

Gift Marks "Major's" Retirement

Chief Houseman of Hart House Presented with Illuminated Address After Long Years of Service

ALL STAFF PRESENT

The "Sergeant-Major" has retired as chief houseman of Hart House. Now 70, he will not be entirely dissociated from the House, for he retains his office of ticket taker at Hart House Theatre. His retirement last June was made the occasion late in May of a presentation before the entire staff of the House, assembled in Great Hall.

The "Sergeant-Major" was really William Camm by name; but few of his acquaintances knew him by any other name than that of his rank in the Royal Canadian Regiment. He will be remembered as an integral part of the institution he served. So much is this true that his retort, but stately military figure has been memorialized, posed in the quadrangle of Hart House, in the famous illustrated map in the House.

W. R. Cowan, assistant-comptroller of the House, says that the Sergeant-Major was "a sort of father-confessor to both undergraduates and staff." (Continued on Page 6)

Hunter College Will Dedicate New Building

Inauguration of New College President will feature Ceremonies in New York City Shortly

TERRACES REPLACE CAMPUS

New York: Ceremonies marking the dedication of Hunter College's new sixteen-story, $6,500,000 building in New York City and the inauguration of Dr. George N. Shuster as the fifth president of the college will take place the second week in October. About 1,500 representatives of educational and civic organizations and government officials will be present, according to Professor James M. Hendel, faculty marshal.

The building will be dedicated on Tuesday, October 8 in the college assembly hall. Speakers will include Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, and Robert P. Tristram Coffin, who will read the dedicatory ode. One of the speakers at the dedication dinner which will be held the same evening in the Hotel Savoy Plaza will be Lewis Mumford, noted author. On Wednesday, October 8, guests will be invited to visit classrooms and to see a program of entertainment planned by the Student Self-Government Association. Dr. (Continued on Page 2)

MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT CODY ON THE VARSITY'S BIRTHDAY

Sixty years ago the mind of the undergraduates of this University was for the first time publicly and regularly expressed in the columns of a weekly magazine styled "The Varsity—A Weekly Journal of Literature, University Thought and Events." When I was an undergraduate the paper was still young. Early editors were still familiar and honoured figures. Among them were Archibald MacMechan, afterwards Professor of English in Dalhousie University (my own instructor in Modern Languages at Galt); R. E. Kingsford (afterwards Police Magistrate of Toronto), William Wilfred Campbell (the poet, clergyman and civil servant), T. Arnold Haultain (for many years secretary to Mr. Goldwin Smith), Robert Balmer (who later was a high civic official in Buenos Aires, Argentina), T. B. Phillips Stewart, W. H. Blake (son of the Honourable S. H. Blake, whose sketches of life in Old Quebec were a delight), F. H. Sykes (afterwards President of the Women's College at New London, Connecticut), W. J. Healy (afterwards librarian of the Manitoba Legislature), Andrew Stevenson (a distinguished teacher of English in Ontario), Hugh Cayley (afterwards a Judge in British Columbia). Time would flog me to tell of all. In my own day two of the chief editorial contributors were John O. Miller (afterwards Headmaster of Ridley College, St. Catharines) and Frederic B. Hodgins (afterwards on the staff at Ridley and later an Editor of The New York Churchman—happily still living). The Varsity office was located in Moss Hall, an old white brick structure that stood near the site of the present Biology Building and that housed all undergraduate activities, athletic, social and literary. At the beginning The Varsity was published once a week. It was not a newspaper but a literary journal, in which many a famous Canadian poet first essayed his powers of verse. In the course of years it has become "the undergraduate newspaper of the University of Toronto". This development was slow but almost inevitable. Now it summarizes the daily happenings of our academic life, and in its editorial columns discusses both local and general topics that are relevant to student interests. A student paper may be a great factor in unifying or in disrupting the University. So far as my own experience as President goes, The Varsity has been a strong element in securing co-operation among our varied constituent parts, in supporting helpful changes, and in stabilizing and clarifying student opinion. I wish thus publicly to express the thanks of the University authorities for the help rendered by The Varsity to the welfare and the progress of our Alma Mater.

Continue your wise policy of collecting and printing accurate news and of interpreting it fairly. Remember the responsibilities that the dignity and privilege of journalism necessarily involve. The Press has come to stand as the ultimate guardian of free speech (free, that is, within the law), and of our democratic constitution. It is a business organization; but it is also a symbol of the free, as opposed to the totalitarian, State. I hope that from the staff of The Varsity many will be found to happen sometime.

The Undergraduate Daily Reviews Its Long Past Of Sixty Glorious Years

VISITING ACTOR STARS IN TRIO OF COMEDIES

The Supporting Cast will be Composed of Leading American and English Actors Including Diana Barrymore

PLAY BY COWARD

While a man in his life plays many parts, it is unusual that any actor should star in three plays in one week; this, however, will be the distinction of Bramwell Fletcher, blonde and blue-eyed, boyish stage-star, who will commence a week's engagement at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, commencing Monday evening, October 7, in the three top-ranking comedies of that play-cycle which the fabulous Noel Coward blanketed "To-Night at 8.30."

His leading lady will be Diana Barrymore, beautiful and sparkling daughter of the famed John Barrymore and niece of Ethel and Lionel. Mr. Fletcher will have a distinguished supporting cast of English and American players.

According to theatre-goers who have seen the entire nine plays in the series, the best are "Red Peppers," "Hands Across the Sea," and "Fumed Oak." These therefore comprise the trio to be presented at the Royal Alexandra. It may be recalled that the Noel Coward triple-trilogy introduced Bramwell Fletcher to Toronto theatre-goers two seasons ago; he was also an outstanding success in "Outward Bound," which led off the summer play-festival at the Royal, and repeated requests have bargained the management for the return of this splendid actor.

"Hands Across the Sea" recounts the discomfort of a globe-trotting titled London hostess who, in her peregrinations (Continued on Page 5)

The Varsity Has Grown with the University to an Eminent Position Among Campus Dailies

BOOKLET FIRST EDITIONS

Sixty years ago Monday—on October 7, 1880—the first edition of The Varsity rolled off the presses and into the hands of students of the University of Toronto.

Since then, through a varied and sometimes hazardous existence, both in peace time and war time, while the campus grew to tradition-mellowed maturity, federated and affiliated colleges and faculties grouped themselves into a united university, freshmen enrolled and seniors graduated, the undergraduate newspaper has climbed to a position of eminence as one of the leading campus dailies on this continent.

The first issue of The Varsity was the result of the efforts of a group of enthusiasts who had formed an organization known as "The Varsity Joint Stock Company" with shares of no par value selling for five dollars per share. For the first 29 years of its existence it appeared as a weekly.

U.C. PRIZE WINNERS PREPARE FOR FUTURE

Jim Jenkins, first year Mathematics and Physics student in University College, holds three scholarships valued at $1,075. He holds the Prince of Wales, the First Edward Blake, and the Rupert Wells Leonard scholarships.

Jenkins ranked for seven scholarships with a total cash value of $4,000, but holds only three of them. He intends to carry on in scientific research after graduation. At present he is conducting experiments in chemistry in a home laboratory.

Margaret Callan of Niagara Falls, first year Mathematics and Physics student in University College, holds a general proficiency scholarship. Miss Callan's tuition is covered by the scholarship for her four years at university if her marks are up to the required level. She intends to enter actuarial work upon graduation.

Pushball Becomes Casualty As Soldiers Clash in Sport

Injuries to an oversized soccer sphere which has a diameter of six feet and a bladder which costs $200, are disconcerting rubber manufacturers in various Canadian cities and holding up tradition at Victoria College.

The gargantuan globe, only specimen of its kind in the Dominion, has been the proud possession of the University of Toronto for some years, and is bound up in a Victoria College tradition concerning freshmen and sophomores, who call it a pushball.

A number of Varsity students saw it at one of the Bloor Bowl games last year in the Meds soph-frosh clash. Those who were there will remember seeing a huge, $850 ball with assorted embryonic meddles pushing and milling about it, and tossing flour, eggs, fruit and other projectiles.

Whether or not the soldier boys knew about such finer points of the game as egg-tossing is not known, but they certainly pushed it around. Between that and the fact that the bladder was uncounted years old, something was bound to happen sometime.

And it did. When it came back from Petawawa military camp on the upper Ottawa River where it had been loaned for soldier sports for the summer, the big ball had suffered a casualty and was so sadly deflated that it was in no condition for the annual undergraduate fray.

At present the bladder is in Ottawa at a vulcanizing plant where workers are doing their best to repair it in time for the Vic soph-frosh competition. Before seeing Ottawa, it made a tour of various rubber plants, but the experts eyed it with dubitation. A slip might have required a costly replacement.

Anxious Vic sports officials await the ball daily, and keep in touch with Ottawa for word on how the major operation on their rare possession is proceeding.

"If it gets here in a couple of weeks," said Ted Gray, Vic College Union president, "the pushball performance will go on. Otherwise we may have to resort to a tug-of-war or something," he added gloomily.

Readers Of The Varsity Toss Brickbats And Bouquets

Tom Paton, third year student at Victoria College, said yesterday "there is not enough use made of factual material in The Varsity and too much imagination is used on the part of the reporters." He expressed his opinion in a survey made on the campus yesterday to learn the opinions and suggestions of students regarding the subject matter and news presentation of The Varsity.

Mary Bruce, president of University College W.U.A., said, "In a sense college life depends on The Varsity. How else would we know where to go, when, or what was happening? A paper is essential to university life."

A group of S.P.S. students asked for more humour, more S.P.S. news and a gossip column. Two aeronautic enthusiasts, Johnny Price and Don Beatty, suggested more news on Aerial Navigation.

The associate president of the Debating Parliament, Mary Winchester, recommended that there should be more publicity given to the different societies.

"The Varsity is an excellent job in the face of the criticism of downtown papers which it gets continually and which is very rarely justified," commented Ted Gray, president of Victoria College Union.

Jack Lillac and Paul Flahere of St. Michael's suggested that there be a column on "campus favourites," giving interesting facts about individuals.

Alec Young, on the Victoria freshman executive, said he enjoyed the (Continued on Page 6)

Happy Birthday To Us

Birthdays come and go. Some are important; the majority pass unnoticed into the misty pages of the past. Especially true is this of newspapers who do not make a practice of celebrating their own anniversaries except on the really important milestones.

We feel, and justifiably so, that this is an important occasion for The Varsity. For on Saturday, October 7, sixty years ago, was sown the seed from which this daily newspaper has sprung.

We are not of the opinion, however, that we are justified in delivering a long eulogy on The Varsity in these columns. You have read about our anniversary and our functions here previously, and you may read about them today in the front page news columns. Today, silent restraint concerning ourselves has disappeared, and in a burst of self-consciousness we have printed articles dealing with various aspects of the paper. That should be enough for now.

We thank President Cody for his kind tribute to The Varsity and the services it has rendered the university. As we cross the threshold of the next sixty years, we can only express our sincere resolve that The Varsity continue its function of constant service. That, first and foremost, must be and is the guiding policy of this paper—service, both to the individual student reader, and to the great university of which we are privileged members.

Covering The World

If there were any serious doubts entertained, prior to World War I, as to whether or not that lusty young giant, radio, had reached adulthood, they must certainly have been totally dispelled by radio's performance in the first year of the war. Radio has performed a dual role, and in each it has proved beyond all doubt its importance in modern life, and in modern warfare. For in addition to its prophesied function of bringing the war as it is fought into each and every home, radio has become almost a fourth armament to supplement the three established arms of war.

That radio has performed well its task of making all of us ear spectators of this vast struggle there can be no question. For almost two years before the outbreak of war the networks were preparing to cover the world if need be. In the crisis-packed months preceding the war we became accustomed to the once-thrilling words, "This is London" or "You have just heard Berlin." Split seconds after the events, we were transported by radio to the scene; and from capital alter capital we heard discussions and forecasts and predictions, as the black clouds loomed high. Then on a dark Sunday morning across thousands of miles a thin, breaking voice shattered the quiet of countless North American homes: "This country is now at war with Germany." A year has passed, and radio has constantly diminished the gap between America and Europe. Many times a day we hear commentators from England, from Berlin and other continental points. We have been treated to the sounds of bombs over London, and we have heard an eye-witness account of a naval battle in South American waters. Truly radio has made this war "Everybody's War."

Radio as a fourth armament in modern warfare is, as are all weapons, double-edged—a curse as well as a blessing. Today it is the chief weapon of the propagandists of every nation, and it is doing twenty-four hour duty. Although pre-war experts predicted that the air during war would be jammed and counter-jammed by rival broadcasters, this has not come to pass. Both sides are broadcasting vigorously, to their own people, to their enemies, and to the neutral world. The B.B.C. is performing a herculean task, radiating news bulletins, speeches, commentaries and entertainment programs to all parts of the world and in twenty-one foreign languages. This calls for a tremendous amount of preparation by a huge staff of experts. For instance, two different groups of announcers are needed for Spanish and Portuguese programs because the language used for Spain is almost entirely different from that broadcast to Latin America. A flow of propaganda, ranging from lists of German dead or captured to mouth-watering recipes for economy-chained German housewives is constantly directed toward Germany. A monitoring service has been developed which is responsible for listening to the whole world, recording, summarizing, analysing and passing on what is worthwhile. From a mass of more than half a million words a day, an edited daily digest of some 45,000 words is produced containing the news of the whole world.

We have said nothing about radio in actual fighting, in the contact between plane and base, or between ship and port. In a multitude of ways radio is doing its share in the winning of the war. It is performing a great service in keeping the Commonwealth in touch when physical contact is made difficult, and it is doing much to rally the interest and effort of allies and neutrals alike behind a right cause.

On Campus Publicity

During the past few days there have been a number of complaints lodged with us with regard to the amount of publicity given to respective colleges and faculties. This is a problem which reappears every year, and it is one which should and can be easily settled.

The Varsity staff claims to be neither omniscient nor omnipotent. We offer no claim to be supermen, capable of knowing everything that happens on this campus, and what is more important, of being there to cover it when we don't know it is there. We only claim to be human, and to be sincerely willing to publish everything that is fit for our columns. But we need co-operation. We too have lectures to attend, essays to write, and exams to pass; we too have to take military training; we too have meetings to attend; and we are doing our level best to put out the best newspaper possible.

All we ask is the co-operation of any group which desires publicity. A phone call or a note to the news editor is all that is necessary, for he then knows what is going on, and can act accordingly. And the story will be covered. But he can't spend his twenty-four hours a day searching into every corner of the campus trying to find some club which wants publicity. Just let us know what is happening and when it is happening and we'll do the rest.

The reason some colleges seem to receive more publicity is because they have co-operated, by sending us the information, or by sending tickets to the function, or by having one of their members serve as a regular reporter on our staff, in charge of the publicity for that particular college. That system has always worked efficiently, but some colleges seem unwilling even to discuss arrangements with our news editor. If that condition persists, there is little more that we can do. So we urge that every faculty and college and club get in touch with our news editors and make arrangements about covering their functions. If the publicity is worthwhile, surely it is worth a little effort on the part of those concerned. The Varsity always has tried to do its part, and it always will, but as in the past, we need your co-operation.

ARCADE MUSIC

Promenade Symphony Orchestra

While the reason for the presentation of an all-Spanish program by the Promenade Symphony Orchestra at this time is perfectly obvious, the actual presentation of the program has provided us with several perfectly good reasons why it should not have been held.

First and foremost among these reasons is the simple fact that there is not a sufficient amount of good Spanish music to fill a two-hour program. The fact that de Falla was completely omitted hardly improved the quality of the residue, but even the inclusion of a few of his pieces would not have changed our general verdict.

Among all composers represented last night, the best, most rhythmic, most melodious and most truly Spanish was Rimsky-Korsakov. His Capriccio Espagnole may be one of the most hackneyed of his compositions, but it stood far above all the music

'TUNNEL' ESCAPE IS ENGINEERED BY 43 PRISONERS

Interned Prisoners Tunnel Their Way to Freedom With Use of Great Hall Knives and Map

DYNAMITE FOUND

Someplace somewhere, October 4—Forty-three interned prisoners are at large on the campus today following a sensational escape which has university police baffled, but certain that "the prisoners will be captured shortly."

Interned in a secret prison far below the Hart House Theatre ever since the war began, the prisoners tunneled their way to freedom with the aid of Great Hall cutlery, a map of the campus stolen six months ago from the Map Room, and a C.O.T.C. bayonet. The exit to the "escape tunnel" was found sixteen and a half paces south-west by south of the south door of Baldwin House.

After thoroughly examining the scene of the escape police officials stated the escape must have been planned months ago. The problem of the disposal of the dirt from the tunnel seemed to be answered when Hart House pool was emptied, revealing a three-foot sediment on the bottom. Students who heard that Great Hall knives had been used to carve the escape shook their heads in disbelief. "I just can't believe it," said Joe Gloop, interviewed in the Hall as he struggled with the roast beef special.

Officials termed the tunnel an ingenious piece of construction, and definitely stated there was no evidence of co-operation from S.P.S. engineers. It wound around underneath the campus before coming to the surface near St. George and College Streets. Members of the searching party lost precious hours following various side tunnels, one of which bore signs of heavy traffic and led to one of the Whitney Hall residences. Once back on the right track, the searchers soon found the entrance.

It is believed the actual escape was engineered shortly after two o'clock last night. Prison guards stated that at that hour they were awakened by a terrific outcry as the prisoners sang, shouted, whistled and set off homemade firecrackers. Radios were blaring and an average of one radio for every two rooms was found. They had evidently been constructed out of parts smuggled in with the food. Enough dynamite and nitroglycerine to blow up Hart House was uncovered. It was removed.

After subduing the prisoners the guards went back to sleep, but at roll call this morning the mass escape was discovered when one prisoner tried to answer for all forty-three fugitives.

An investigation has been promised. Jones

HUNTER COLLEGE DEDICATES BUILDING

Shuster will be inaugurated on Thursday, October 10, in the college assembly hall. Van Wyck Brooks, author of "The Flowering of New England" and the recently published "Indian Summer", will be one of the speakers. It will be followed by an inaugural dinner.

As the final event in the week's activities, prominent educators will participate in an academic symposium on Friday on "The Role of the College Woman in a Shaken World."

The new building which was opened on September 16 to 5,000 day session students and an equal number in the evening session replaces the 63-year-old edifice that was demolished by fire in February 1936. Described by President Shuster as "probably without peer anywhere in the United States as an educational building," it has been designed to admit a maximum of daylight with almost half of the outside wall space given to windows.

More Outdoor Work is Prescribed for This Year in an Aim Towards Greater Physical Fitness

DRILL ALSO TAUGHT

Dr. Porter today revealed that the first thousand physical examinations have been given to male undergraduates of the first two years. "We are getting them through as fast as we can," he said.

Examinations should be completed by Oct. 13, since gymnasium classes start on the 15th. The customary classes of former years will be held for those under eighteen.

Those of military age who are rejected for military training or others with physical defects may take special classes under the supervision of Dr. Porter's office. Hector Phillips, who is well known for his gym work, will conduct these classes.

More outdoor work is prescribed this year for the gym classes. The aim, more than ever, is toward complete physical fitness. Elementary military drill will be taught in order that those under military age may be prepared for military training when their turn comes.

As in former years credit will be given for work done in swimming classes. Of these the Learn-to-Swim and Lifesaving classes will be held. There is some doubt as to whether advanced swimming classes will be held this year.

Since the stress is on drill this year it is doubtful whether credit will be given for attendance at intramural practices.

THE UNDERGRADUATE TO UNDERGO CHANGES

Traditional policy in The Undergraduate, official student publication of University College, will undergo radical changes according to Ken McNaught, fourth year modern history student, who has been appointed editor for the coming year.

McNaught, a contributor to The Varsity for the past three years, and Associate Editor Bruce Williams, also a fourth year history student, expect to introduce radical changes, although details have as yet been disclosed. Organizational work is well under way, they stated, and further information will be released soon. Plans under consideration will make the Undergraduate a much more significant event in the life of the college, said Charles Dubin, literary director.

The editors announced that the editorial board is nearly complete and will include many students well-known around the college. Among the new appointments are J. Mavor Moore, literary editor, S. J. Key, art editor, John Dallyn, sports editor, and a contributing editorial board consisting of Barry Coutts, Peter Turchin, Tom Fletcher, Dent Hodgson, John Ross, Winnifred Hillier and Mary Shortt. Official representative of the W.U.A. will be Ruth Brunke.

Business manager this year will be Colin MacCulloch, who has his staff organized, with considerable results to show already, the editor stated.

NEWMAN CLUB PLANS
COMMUNION BREAKFAST

On Sunday morning, Oct. 6, in the Oak Room of the clubhouse, Newman Club is planning to enjoy its first communion breakfast of the new school year.

It is expected that many undergraduates and alumni will hear Mass at 10 o'clock in the chapel adjoining the club and then gather for the breakfast and program.

Mr. Bill O'Brien, a Varsity graduate and now president of the financial organization of Newman, will be speaker of the day; he has many stories to relate of the early struggles and humorous episodes that marked the beginnings of Newman Club on Varsity's campus before the last war.

AUXILLIARY BATTALION

U. of T. Contingent, C.O.T.C.
PART I ORDERS

By Major W. S. Wilson, E.D.
Acting Officer Commanding, Auxiliary Battalion, University of Toronto Contingent, Canadian Officers' Training Corps

Wednesday, Oct. 2, 1940

(7) Organization Parade.
An organization Parade of the Auxiliary Battalion, C.O.T.C., will be held Saturday, Oct. 5, 1940, at 1400 hrs. on front campus of the university.

(1) All male students between the ages of 20 and 24 inclusive on July 1, 1940, i.e., those who were over 20 but under 25 on July 1 will attend this Parade. This does not include students who have enrolled for the Officers' Training Course with the C.O.T.C. nor does it include male students who were 18 years of age at the date of registration in the university and were not 20 years of age on July 1, 1940.

(11) Recruits will assemble on the roadway in front of University College and will be formed as a battalion in mass facing north. Markers will be detailed and will report to the adjutant on the Parade Ground at 1330 hrs.

(8) To facilitate the organization of the battalion the following tentative arrangement of companies and platoons has been made:

O Co. University College

St. Thomas' Church

Harvest-Thanksgiving will be observed at both services at St. Thomas' Church on Sunday. The Rev. C. Sanger of Trinity College will give the sermon at the 11 o'clock Solemn Eucharist, and at 7 p.m. the sermon will be given by Rev. D. R. L. Clarke.

Music to be heard during both services will include an introit "O Holy Jesu" by MacKinnon, a setting of the Eucharist by Richardson (organist at St. Albans, Holborn), Cesar Franck's "Panis Angelicus", a festival service by Sir Charles Stanford, harvest anthem "O praise the Lord" by Sir John Goss, and a motet "O Trinity most Blessed Light" copied from a manuscript in the Bodleian Library at Oxford.

COUNCIL SECRETARY AIDED PUBLICATION

the first real recognition given to the fair sex.

It was not until 1915 that an active women's editor was chosen in the person of Miss D. J. Ferrier. With the assistance of Miss Parkes Miss Ferrier brought out the first women's issue. During the war the feminine influence increased much more rapidly than it would have done in normal times as women were badly needed to fill the gaps in a depleted men's staff.

Since that time the women have held a definite place on the staff and do their share of reporting and editing.

U.C. FOLLIES CASTING TO BE HELD TODAY

Casting for those who wish to take dramatic parts in the skits of the University College Follies will be held in the junior common room of the college at 3 p.m. today. Places for men, especially, are open, officials of the show said.

Cliff Blackhall, director of the revue, announced that casting for the chorus will take place some time next week. Definite dates will be announced in The Varsity, he said.

Plans for the annual show are well under way, officials said. Rehearsals are expected to get under way within a week, it was said.

The Undergraduate Daily Reviews Its Long Past

newspaper were a modest lot of journalists, who for the first two years did not print their names on a masthead, as is done today. It will probably never be known which of a group of five men was the original Editor-in-Chief.

The first editions of the paper were printed in booklet form, with a cover similar to that found on "Punch." They were sold at eight pages in length and sold to students at five and later 10 cents a copy.

After a decade of financial trials, through periods of narrow economic escapes, the joint stock company went into bankruptcy, and during the 1889-90 school year disappeared from the campus.

In the following year, the University College Literary and Scientific Society took the paper under its wing, and while The Varsity dwindled in interest for a time by the managerial change, it flourished financially, until, in 1895, the women of University College and the students of S.P.S. were granted a measure of control over it.

First Controversy

First controversy of any great size aroused by the campus journal was the same year, when, led by the present Prime Minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, and some university officials, it helped in securing an investigation of the Ontario Government into the administration of President Louder.

In 1902, The Varsity was handed over to the Undergraduates Union, and representatives from U.C., S.P.S., Medicine, Knox College, Wyndlife, the Dental College and Pharmacy were included on its staff.

Became Real Newspaper

It was not until 1909 that its editors decided to convert the publication into a newspaper, and after October of that year, it appeared twice a week as a four-page, five-column paper. Two years later it became necessary to enlarge it to a tri-weekly edition with six columns.

"The Press" Opens

It was in the following year, 1910, that The University Press opened its doors to The Varsity.

Journalists took up their editorial quarters in the second floor back room corner, where for the past thirty years night editors have laboured and brought forth, proudly or sheepishly, every issue which has come off the rollers since.

Two years later, student journalism fell once more into disfavour when they demanded in their editorial columns a public apology from the Principal of Harbord Collegiate, who had publicly stated extreme views on the morality of a group of students who one day invaded his school. This battle waged on for some time, finally petering out with neither side securing a victory.

Women Enter News Field

Although admitted to the staff in 1892 in official capacities, women undergraduates were suppressed as news-writers until about 1915, when they began to invade the sacred prerogatives. A Women's Editor was appointed, and for the first time, the women of the campus had an editorial voice in The Varsity.

On January 26, 1916, the first women's issue appeared, and owing to the disruption of the men's staff by the war, women took a more and more active part in its publication, until today, the women's staff of The Varsity outnumbered the men's. As yet, however, no woman editor-in-chief has been appointed.

Becomes Daily

In 1921 and 1922, a group of experienced young journalists came to the campus and radically revised the policies of the newspaper. Importance of the women's staff dwindled markedly and was, in fact, almost abolished, and The Varsity became a daily in October, 1923. It was in that year that an associate membership in the Canadian Press was almost secured, and the Champus Cat, long a favourite with lunchers in the Great Hall, became a daily feature.

Varsity Goes on Strike

Apart from its failure in 1889, a student strike in 1894 which led to an Ontario Government investigation of the university, and other smaller excitements and misfortunes, The Varsity ran through the decades with comparative smoothness and only minor frictions until 1929.

In that year, controversy was aroused between student journalists and officialdom over an editorial entitled "To Pet or not to Pet." Attacked by the university officials, the editor in his last editorial as editor of The Varsity demanded an investigation into explicit charges he laid against the Students' Administrative Council.

Dismissed from his post, the editor, Leonard Ryan, rallied the staff, who went on strike, and for a time secured a page in The Toronto Telegram and carried on his controversy with a makeshift staff of The Varsity while the battle assumed a position of national interest. Finally the investigation was granted, and the staff returned without its editor.

Policy Changes

Throughout its sixty years of publication, The Varsity has had its ups and downs; sports columns have assumed greater or lesser importance; humorous columns, personal columns, gossip, exchanges, literary discussions all had their day; jazz issues and pseudo-jazz issues came and went, to be finally banned from the university campus. In general, however, the policy of The Varsity remained the same.

From its beginnings in the Victorian period, The Varsity maintained a virile, youthful outlook, attempting to reflect student opinion and at the same time adopt firm stands in an endeavour to mould student opinion.

Co-education Early Subject

One of the early attempts to give an editorial lead to public thinking is shown in its early editorials on the subject of co-education.

"This objection to co-education," said an early column, "while unfair to the fair sex, implies a want of control on the part of the men and a lack of disciplinary ability in the lecturers."

While the women were allowed to enter the university in 1885, a reaction set in about 1904. One editor explained: "The women make the men less vigorous and manly, and they do not like girls to know more than they."

Published in 1914-18

When the First Great War came, 4,500 men enlisted and the university institutions and clubs were either dominated by women or fell into a dormant state. Social affairs were held on a much smaller scale and part of the proceeds went to welfare societies. The Varsity continued to publish through the war years, however, and refusing "to disgrace the cause of the Allies by ignoring both sides of the question," maintained a sane, clear-thinking policy which brought it into some disrepute among downtown newspapers.

Now More Efficient

Since its inception, The Varsity has progressed calmly enough from a technical point of view. Nowadays, friction is minimized, and the 100 yearly issues roll out and are distributed about the campus in a comparatively efficient manner. Editors, reporters, columnists, critics and desk men combine into an organization modelled on the lines of a large daily newspaper. It has also taken its place as an integral part of the recently-organized Canadian University Press, and both last year's editor and the present editor have acted as president of that organization.

of Albeniz, Granados and the others. The most plausible explanation of this paradox is the inferiority complex suffered by Spanish composers which makes them slightly hesitant about taking full advantage of the orchestra. In contrast, Rimsky-Korsakov, completely uninhibited about his own capacities, attacks his project with the fury and enthusiasm of a Russian Alek Templeton and emerges with a lusty piece of music, Spanish from beginning to end, and containing a piquant dash of Russian harmony that sets it off to perfection.

Carola Goya, the soloist of the evening, did a great deal to enhance an otherwise dull program. Perfectly at home in her meter, Miss Goya performed a varied group of Spanish dances, all of her own composition, with more than usual brilliance. An extraordinarily full characterization, superb technical skill and unbelievably adroit management of the castanets made her appearance here a notable one.

A drawback of Miss Goya's perfect castanet work was the consequent disclosure that the orchestra lagged considerably in several of her numbers. This faulty timing was particularly evident in Reina de Andalucia, a sprightly double-step, and Maloqueña Gitana, perhaps the most interesting selection on the program from a ballet point of view, in which the castanets differed sharply from the orchestra's tempo and the listener instinctively felt the correctness of the former.

Among Miss Goya's other dances, a burlesque Jota was most popular with the audience. Ensenada, a tango by Albeniz, was effectively staged, presenting some of the best native music as well as one of the most striking ballets, who was represented no less than seven of the orchestral selections by Albeniz, times on the program, Triana and Narvra were the most interesting. The latter contained the only real burst of lyric melody of the entire evening.

A feature of the program was the excellence of Harold Sumberg's violin solo passages in the Rimsky-Korsakov. It is strange that of the composers represented, only the Russian should have taken advantage of the magnificent work which a solo violin can do in Spanish music.

On the whole, the orchestra had an excellent evening, the brass and woodwind sections showing exceptional improvement over earlier performances. The performance of Chabrier's Espana Rhapsody, which concluded the program, was easily the best of the evening, the orchestra showing to best advantage in the frequently-played work.

tions, is cordially inviting people to visit her and then forgets their names and the circumstances when they arrive. "Fumed Oak" is bitter satire but the uproariously truthful saga of the Gow family—husband, wife, grandmother, child—and the story of a man who was a worm for fifteen years but finally turned. "Red Peppers" deals with an English musical hall turn touring in the provinces and is an enlightening expose of back-stage intrigue.

Fourteen Hundred Men Commence Military Drill

gas drill, platoon and company drill, and physical training, as well as lectures on organization and tactics. When training has got well under way, there will be an inspection by one of the Military District Headquarters officers.

After academic examinations have been written, the whole battalion will be taken to a military training camp somewhere in Ontario for completion of its training in another two weeks of life under conditions more military than that experienced during the preceding months.

Should anyone fail to put in the required 110 hours, he will be liable to be called up for a full month of training in camp rather than the two weeks otherwise required. For that reason attendance will be taken at all drills.

Students have been urged to bring their university registration cards and their complete academic time-tables in order that convenient times may be arranged for drill of their own particular platoon.

Many have been wondering what type of uniform will be worn by Varsity's Auxiliary Battalion, and in answer Part 1 Orders decree that officers and instructors will parade in service dress, and that recruits will parade in mufti. In case any of the aforementioned trainees have mental pictures of themselves marching in uniforms not khaki, but another colour—multi, the Concise Oxford Dictionary answers a real need and declares that multi are plain clothes worn by one who has a right to wear a uniform.

As many officers as possible will be taken from the local Officers' Training Corps, but more than their number will be required; in order to make up the shortage and to supply the company with commanders many ex-service men will gain parade in uniform and shout out their commands.

IOLANTHE CHOSEN BY VICTORIA CLUB

With the click of knitting needles as accompaniment, the Victoria Music Club commenced operations last night with an open meeting at Wymilwood. Many of the patrons who have contributed so much to the club were present: Dr. and Mrs. Brown; Mrs. Starr, honorary president; Mr. and Mrs. Jennings; and Miss MacPherson. Lloyd Rutledge, acting president, announced the opera chosen for performance this year was Iolanthe. Dr. Crawford, music director of the club, went into details of the production, and under his direction recordings of the opera, along with the necessary verbal and pianistic comment, were played. Dr. Crawford urged male students not to be deterred by the added drain on their time by the new military training, but to join in the production of this opera, and preserve unbroken the tradition of sixteen years.

Peggy Evoy, Vera Argument, and John Watson were highly applauded for their performances of several numbers from last year's production, Patience. A general sing-song was held at the close of the formal program. Newcomers are urged by the officials of the club to join even if they are not experienced vocalists. Make-up artists, a stage crew, ushers, are needed, they said.

The executive for this year is Norah Patterson, assistant president; Elizabeth Young, business manager; Eleanor Clark, secretary; Bill Graff, treasurer; Paul Deacon, publicity manager; and a business manager who is as yet not elected.

The first meeting will be held on Wednesday, October ninth in Alumni Hall at 7 p.m.

THIS ISSUE OF THE VARSITY marks the 60th anniversary of publication for "The Undergraduate Newspaper". . . This column was only inaugurated within the memory of the sports editor, and we, personally, have only been connected with The Varsity for slightly over a year; therefore congratulations on our part might seem almost presumptuous. Nevertheless, we offer them. . . THE FIRST SIXTY YEARS ARE THE HARDEST.

FROM OUR DEAR DEPARTED COLLEAGUE, Reuben Frank, comes this superlative bit of poesy, which he says is original, and which we firmly believe is original. . . How could it be anything else?

FROM READERS' DIGEST, that snappy little compendium of culture, is culled this morsel. . . Aunt Maria, ancient coloured maid at Randolph-Macon Women's College since its founding, has the welfare of the students at heart. She was recently heard admonishing a taxi-driver waiting for a passenger: "Man, yo-all take good cayuh of ouah chilluns cause dey waywahds so easy." . . For those unversed in deep south dialect, "waywahds" means "strays from the straight and narrow path." . . We don't consider this terribly funny either, but if it amused the bulging brains that publish Readers' Digest, surely it ought to amuse us.

"Champus Cat" and the sports stories, but would like to see some cartoons or caricatures. Alice Evans, also on that executive, expresses her admiration of the paper.

Occupational Therapy freshies, asked for more girls' sports and those in Physiotherapy are amazed at the amount of material accumulated each day.

Professor M. Woodside, of the history department, suggested that it should be more like a bulletin board and more newsy with less padding.

Ruth Thompson, IV Vic, General Course, and senior student, says The Varsity is a "good thing" but would like more features. Marg Grant, IV Vic, associate president of the Victoria College Union, said that it is a fine paper particularly as a social stimulus.

The opinion expressed by D. B. Richardson and Lionel Dent was that The Varsity is too biased and does not contain enough news of the medical faculty.

Lorna Ross, IV Household Economics, said the paper keeps girls in her course in contact with events all over the campus.

Jane Leippen, secretary of the W. U.A., thinks that campus activities are written up very well. Frank Evans, IV General, says The Varsity as a bulletin board is an excellent idea.

An outstanding girl athlete at Victoria College desires more credit given to girls' sports.

"SERGEANT-MAJOR" LEAVES HART HOUSE POST

ing his years as houseman, he built up a circle of friends from among the student body and the faculty that is now world-wide, as is attested by his voluminous correspondence from all parts of the world, Mr. Cowan stated. He added that many graduates visit Toronto merely to renew their acquaintanceship with the Sergeant-Major.

To a still greater group he will be recalled as ticket taker and general factotum of scores of dramatic productions in Hart House Theatre.

Born in the fen country of Lincolnshire, England, he came to this country in 1896. After a year's farming in Manitoba he went to the Klondike during gold-rush days as a member of the R.C.R., detailed to help the Mounted Police keep order. He returned south in 1900, and to use his own phrase, "soldiered all over the country, from Halifax to Vancouver."

His first contact with Hart House, then uncompleted, was in 1917, when he became an instructor in the School of Musketry, operating in what is now the theatre. The close of the war began for him 21 years of service as houseman.

The illuminated address given him is the work of Wendell Lawson, artist and architect. Set in a walnut frame presented by the Royal Ontario Museum, it opens on hinges to reveal the signatures of all the members of the House staff, who were present in Great Hall for the event.

The address is decorated with etchings of familiar haunts of the Sergeant-Major, such as the theatre, the pool and the mechanical room. The etchings are separated by decorative grills based on motives suggested by designs to be found in the structure of the House. In contrast to the monochrome of the etchings, the crests of all the colleges, worked into the design, add a bright touch of colour.

Presentation was made by Dr. Henderson, chairman of the finance committee, and T. A. Reed, secretary of the Athletic Association.

The words of the assistant-controller assess the Sergeant-Major's true value as a man and a beloved figure in the life of the university:

"High tribute should be paid to him for his work and influence; and it was fortunate indeed that a man of his calibre should be associated with the early years of the House. His kindness and accurate judgment of men were outstanding. The whole staff has expressed deep regret at the prospect of his absence."

Casting for men's and women's dramatic parts in the skits of the University College Folies, in the junior common room of the college at 3 p.m.

CORRECTION

It was incorrectly reported in the Varsity recently that Jim Carson, president of the Forum Club, and John Ross, secretary of the club, are students in Victoria College.

The Varsity regrets that the mistake was made and reports that both are affiliated with University College.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

continue to enter the ranks of journalism in our own land and abroad, and to maintain the ideals of freedom, justice and honour.

From an early number of The Varsity I quote some lines which admirably express the loyalty of an old graduate to his University and which, I trust, will be the experience of many of you in this generation:

Three-score and ten, a wise man Said, were our years to be.
Three-score and six I give him back,
Four are enough for me.
Four in these corridors,
Four in these walls of ours,
These give me, Heavenly Powers,
'Tis life for me!

"Boom Town" may be summed up briefly. A four-star cast working for about an hour and a half in a remarkably poor vehicle.

LOEW'S The plot of this BOOM TOWN drawn-out panorama of the oil-fields is singularly amorphous, and boringly repetitive. In fact, it drags.

Clark Gable is just as handsome as ever, and his cars are even bigger; Spencer Tracy suffers spiritual agony in just as noble silence; Claudette Colbert is just as beautiful as ever and Hedy Lamarr even more beautiful. (We admit that she didn't wow us the way she did in "Algiers" but we were just a callow youth then.)

The supporting cast, topped by Fred Stone, worked hard also; but they and M.G.M.'s finest could do little with the picture. If you like the stars individually well enough to sit for an evening just to watch them, by all means go to "Boom Town"; if it's a good show you want, stay away.—M.O.M.

those interested with reviews of important events in and outside the university. Editorials on controversial topics dealing with the arts also appear in this column.

The third column of the second page is given over to the Champus Cat, a daily department of burlesque humour which has won a reputation, peculiarly its own, in the collegiate press.

Page Three is traditionally the sports page. All university athletics are given complete coverage, from the most crucial Mulock Cup game to the humblest volleyball struggle. The "Speaking of Sport" column provides topical comment by the Sports Editor and his assistants on university athletes and their doings.

Not the least of the services provided by The Varsity is the Bulletin Board and Coming Events. Here any campus society may insert information concerning its meetings. A notice inserted in the Coming Events column is repeated in every issue until the date of the event. A second notice then runs in the Bulletin Board. This service gives students a chance to hear well in advance of the activities of the societies in which they are interested.

Also a regular back-page feature is the Hither and Yon, a round up of amusing anecdotes culled from the college dailies of the continent, as well as colourful features of the struggle for existence on our own campus.

The facilities of the Canadian University Press, organized three years ago by university papers throughout the country, The Varsity carries up-to-the-minute news of every college in the Dominion. "Wide-Eyed in Gotham," a CUP feature appearing weekly, gives news and views of New York as seen by Reuben Frank, former Exchange Editor of The Varsity. "The Canadian Campus," giving news briefs of universities across Canada, will appear shortly as another weekly feature of the Canadian University Press.

Newman Club History Traced By Chairman

"Chapel, Library, Club" Principles of Cardinal Newman Stressed by Speaker at Communion Breakfast

28TH ANNIVERSARY

"Chapel, Library, Club" — the three principles of John Henry Cardinal Newman on which the Newman Clubs are founded was the idea stressed by Mr. William O'Brien in Newman Hall yesterday morning. Mr. O'Brien, chairman of Newman Club Ltd., the financial organization of the club, spoke at the first Communion breakfast of the new term for the undergraduates.

Mr. O'Brien mentioned that this week is the 28th anniversary of the founding of a Newman Club in Toronto, one of a large number at universities all over the continent. He outlined briefly a few facts about the club's history.

It was founded as an outgrowth of a similar organization known as the Columbian Club, but on a much broader cultural basis. Until 1920 monetary support was furnished by the Archbishop of Toronto but in that year he felt obliged to withdraw it. That the club might carry on its work, which is religious, intellectual and social, the corporation was formed by a group of Toronto business men. Newman Hall was established in its present location on St. George St. and in 1927 the Chapel was built.

The two buildings together are considered the best Newman Club property on the continent. The Chapel, modelled after a European church, is fifteenth century Gothic in design and an eminent American architect a few years ago called it one of the most beautiful buildings on the campus.

The primary purpose of Newman Club is to take the place of a home parish for those students from out-of-town who are engaged in higher learning in Toronto, Mr. O'Brien said. Its main aspect is thus religious but the frequency with which important figures address the members and the holding of such activities as discussion forums attest to the importance attached to the academic sphere. Social activities are also frequent, the principal ones being tea-dances, informal evenings and amateur shows, Mr. O'Brien said.

Orientation Tea To Be Held For Vic Frosh At Wymilwood

Ketchum to Address Tea Held Wednesday to Aid Newcomers in Adjusting Themselves to College Life

"The Importance of Education in War-time" is the subject on which Professor J. D. Ketchum of the Psychology Department will speak at the first Orientation Tea for students in their first year at Victoria College.

The tea to be held on Oct. 9 at Wymilwood is one of a series of events, sponsored by the Victoria College Union to help first year students to adjust themselves both academically and socially to university life. Orientation Teas are being introduced on the campus for the first time this year and are adopted from a plan followed in many American colleges where a week is usually set aside as Orientation Week for the frosh, it was learned.

Casting Continues For U.C. Follies

Casting for skits and chorus of the University College Follies will be held in the rehearsal hall of Hart House Theatre at 4 p.m. today.

All those who submitted their names to the producer, Cliff Blackhall, in the previous casting have been asked to report at the casting today. Those who have not yet applied but are interested in taking part in the revue are requested to attend, Blackhall said.

Both men and women are expected to report at the rehearsal hall at 4 p.m. where the casting will be continued.

Students Arranged in Companies and Platoons at First Drill Under Dominion Resources Mobilization Act

ORILL 7 HOURS PER WEEK

A total of 1,500 University of Toronto men between the ages of 20 and 24 assembled on the front campus Saturday afternoon to be divided up into platoons and receive definite instructions as to the hours of drill they will receive during the academic year.

President H. J. Cody, chairman of the group which secured the arrangement with the Dominion Government whereby university students will not be called for military training under the National Resources Mobilization Act, looked on while the Auxiliary Battalion was organized from the crowd assembled in front of University College.

Following their arrangement into Companies O, Q, R, S, T, and W, and into platoons averaging 50 men each, recruits were told that they must take training seven hours a week during the academic term, to bring their training up to a total of 110 hours.

As the Auxiliary Battalion was formed, an even more military aspect was assumed by the back campus, where graduate companies of the C.O.T.C. were holding parade.

Arrangements were made for time-tables of drill for each of the platoons. In the majority of cases, this will occur in two mid-week periods from 4 to 6 p.m. and a Saturday afternoon drill from 2 to 5 p.m.

While the battalion held its organization parade in multi, it is expected that members will shortly be provided with uniforms of battle dress, supplied by the Dominion Government. The battle dress would be worn by students only during drill periods.

The battalion will also be provided with rifles, according to E. A. Mac-

Arts Students Ejected From Liquid Air Lecture

Schoolmen Bodily Remove Artsmen as Engineering Society President Asks Outsiders to Leave Lecture Hall

Unusual colour was added to Professor John Satterly's liquid air demonstration Friday when several Arts students were forcibly ejected from the large lecture room in the Physics Building, according to reports received by The Varsity.

The ousting was said to have followed a request from Bruce Davis, president of the Engineering Society, that, as the gathering was a meeting of the Engineering Society and most engineers had not yet had a chance to arrive, "all artsmen had better leave."

The president, in an interview with The Varsity later denied that any use of force had been made or even threatened at the meeting.

"Well in advance of the time of the lecture," he stated, "two or three hundred Arts students were gathered in the lecture hall. I requested those to leave in order to make room for Schoolmen who were unable to get to the meeting early on account of lectures."

Rhodes Award Still Tenable Despite War

Scholarships Suspended Until End of War Except in Special Cases; Ten Awards to Canadians

SELECTIONS IN DECEMBER

Despite the daily flights of Nazi bombers over England, scholarships established by the will of Cecil Rhodes are tenable at the University of Oxford, according to a government statement received last night.

Except in special cases, however, all scholarships to which elections are made during the war will be suspended until after the war is over, the statement said.

Students elected to Rhodes scholarships during the war may make application to the Rhodes trustees to be allowed to study at Oxford. Should the committee decide to grant the request, the student may travel to Oxford to study for two years.

Ten scholarships are awarded annually to Canadian students, on the basis of character and literary and scholastic attainments. Candidates must (1) be a male, unmarried British subject and have resided in Canada at least five years; (2) be over 18 and under 25 years of age on October 1, 1941; (3) have completed the first year and entered upon the second year of his course at a Canadian university.

Two scholarships each are allotted each year to Ontario and Quebec, one each to Alberta, British Columbia, Manitoba, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan.

Selection of Canadian Rhodes scholars for 1941 will be made in December, 1940. Applications must reach the secretary of the selection committee for the province not later than November 10, the statement said.

Further details may be found in a notice which will appear today in Hart House and other university buildings on the campus.

Most of the men and women who had packed the lecture room by 3.40 p.m. left immediately they were requested by the society president, but from several quarters reports have been received that "about half-a-dozen" reluctant Artsmen were bodily removed from the room by the engineers.

Members of other faculties had assembled in the lecture room under the impression that the lecture was to be the regular annual demonstration given by the physics department professor. It was then announced that Professor Satterly was giving a special lecture, in addition to the regular one attended each year by members of all faculties on the campus, for the Engineering Society's first meeting of the year. The regular lecture will be given in the same room later in the season.

"Because in two former years I had been unable to get standing room, I made it a point, at no small inconvenience to myself, to be especially early," said G. Taylor, 111 U.C.

"It five minutes to four," he continued, "after waiting more than half an hour, our somewhat boisterous hosts forcibly ejected all who were not members of the Engineering Society because it was an 'exclusive showing.'"

Principal Brown will also Attend Tonight's Meeting at Wymilwood; Study Groups Announced

KNIGHT IN ENGLAND

World-travellers including Robert Mackie, of Geneva, general secretary of the World Student Christian Federation; George Jacob, student from India; and Dr. Leopold Kohr, refugee from Austria, will be present at a meeting at Wymilwood at 7.30 p.m. today, sponsored by the Student Christian Movement of Victoria College.

Dr. Walter Brown, principal of Victoria College, will also be present at the meeting.

Jim McNeill, secretary of the club, revealed that G. Wilson Knight, professor of English at Trinity College, who was responsible for the creation of the study group on Creative Imagination will not be present. Professor Knight is at present in England.

The club committee said that they have planned study groups to consider subjects most important and pertinent to the lives of the students of 1940.

The groups are: Jesus and His Teachings, led by John Coleman; The Hebrew Prophets Speak to Modern Problems, led by Professor T. C. Young; Mythology in the Bible, led by Professor H. N. Military Authorities to Handle Cases of Conscientious Objection at University of Toronto, Macdonald States

Students from the University of Alberta who refuse to take military training in connection with their studies will be expelled, according to reports received from Edmonton. University of Toronto officials, however, will leave cases of conscientious objectors entirely in the hands of military authorities, it was learned Saturday from E. A. Large Field Competes in First Interfaculty Sports Event of Year; S.P.S. Totals 330 Points

BRUNOIT BAGS LOW NET

Bob Spence, a second-year Schoolman, copped the individual honours out of a field of 108, and at the same time held his team-mates to victory in the annual interfaculty golf tournament, held last Friday on the Glen Eagles course.

And thus the School of Practical Science, present holders of the T. A. Reed Trophy, is off to a flying start once more on the road to interfaculty supremacy. Not only did School walk off the 18th green with all the honours, but she also had the largest number of entries, which means additional points.

Spence, who last winter performed with Jimmy McPherson's junior hockeyists, shot a low gross of 77, seven over par. Only two other golfers came close to threatening Spence, Trowe of Medicine, who bagged out a 78, and Donny Boxer of Trinity with a 79. Colman of Trinity and Milder of Meds both shot 81s, while Martin Kinneair, last year's champ, worried around in 82.

Spence's 77 inspired his team-mates to combine for the low gross total of 330, three points better than U.C., last year's winner, who tied Trinity with a gross of 333. S.P.S.'s winning squad included, besides Spence, R. Smart, 82,

Wanted: More Publicity

Some people around the campus may neither recognize nor approve the idea, but what this university needs at present (and as a matter of fact as a permanent feature) is a good publicity campaign. It may be a sad commentary on the advance of civilization, but sad or not the fact remains that this is an age of self-publicity, and for survival, that fact must be recognized and procedure conditioned by it. The need for good publicity always has been great, but it has increased infinitely since the war started.

We have no intention here of criticizing the publicity work being carried on now by the overburdened Department of University Extension and Publicity, other than a criticism of degree. This department handles the stiff, stereotyped releases to the daily press, and it publishes and circulates a great number of calendars and pamphlets dealing with the university's academic and extension courses. It is doing good work. But this type of publicity is not enough nor is it efficient in achieving its purpose. Press releases are not particularly interesting; and as a matter of fact when the downtown press recently wished to handle the introduction of a new course in a feature style which would undoubtedly attract favourable attention, certain authorities thought it best to refuse permission, deciding to stick to the formal release. As for calendars and pamphlets, they are fine in their limited scope but they fail to meet the need for wide-scale publicity.

POSITIVE PROGRAM NEEDED

The need for favourable publicity, although always great, has grown during war-time. There has been a general tendency for the public to base its judgment of the university and its value upon the treatment given it by the downtown press. The result has been that graduates report that people throughout the province often have a rather low opinion of this institution, thinking of it as a pleasure paradise for the parasitical progeny of the rich. A well-directed publicity campaign could undoubtedly alter this opinion. Then too, as we have all been told, the university in war-time occupies a privileged position, and the public conception of the intility of university and a university education might become even more wide spread unless strong measures are taken to stifle it. Cutting out pyjama parades, theatre invasions and bed races are well and good, but they are purely NEGATIVE; what the university needs is a POSITIVE program and it needs such a program right away.

Numerous suggestions come to mind, and it is not impossible to make them a reality. Prime need is a distinct Department of Publicity, freed from the burdens of planning extension courses for some five thousand persons, and endowed with ample financial resources. This department, it must be emphasized, should be devoted wholly to publicity. It should endeavour in the first place to achieve closer co-operation with the downtown press, with a view to obtaining coverage on the constructive rather than the destructive or over-exuberant activities of the university. Even more pamphlets dealing with the life and work at Toronto should be scattered broadcast through the province to schools, churches and other organizations. There should be an attempt to supplement the formal academic calendars with something more lifelike, and livelier college magazines circulated to provincial schools would help. If possible members of the publicity staff or perhaps outstanding senior year students should be sent out to speak at schools and civic organizations throughout the province.

USE MOVIES AND RADIO

The best results of a publicity campaign would be obtained, however, by making use of two inventions which seem the logical answer to the need, the moving picture camera and the radio. We admit that this would perhaps be a big step for a Canadian university to make, but it would be a sane, realistic step.

The scope of the motion picture is unlimited. Short reels could be prepared to cover the campus from stadium to study, from laboratory to lecture and from military training to extra-curricular activities. There would be no easier and at the same time more effective method of putting this university in a favourable light before the public, and thus letting both prospective students and the general public know what the university is like. Such films would be circulated for public and private showings to schools and other organizations. Radio also could be utilized, although to a lesser degree. Already university professors have led radio discussion groups; why could not this be expanded by actually buying time on the radio?

We should like to forestall the natural and inevitable answer by admitting that such a publicity campaign would be expensive. Certainly it would. But in the end it would be infinitely less costly than a continued and growing critical attitude toward the university, an attitude whose elimination is not being given much constructive attention at present. We hear talk about the war effort of the university, about its research, its military training, its air of gravity and sacrifice. But talk is not enough unless it is province-wide. It must be supplemented by a planned program of putting the university before the public through good publicity campaigns, and then letting the university stand the test of public opinion.

Congratulations

It is with sincere pleasure that we offer our congratulations to Mr. William Small upon his election to the presidency of the Students' Administrative Council for the coming year. Mr. Small was elected to his new office at last week's Council meeting.

At the same time, while welcoming the new holder of the office, we wish to express in these columns the gratitude of the entire student body for the service rendered by Mr. Sydney Hermant who was president of the Council last year. Those who had the opportunity of coming in contact with him will vouch for the excellent way in which he performed his duty in a really responsible position.

Bill Small is well-known to the majority of present undergraduates by virtue of his distinguished university career. A graduate of Commerce and Finance, he was president of the Victoria College Union last year and a member of the Hart House Board of Stewards. He was also an outstanding university athlete and was holder of the Senior Stick at Victoria College. Having graduated only last year, Mr. Small is still in close touch with the university and its affairs, and the student body may rest assured that he has its interests at heart. We are sure that he will make a success of his new position and we wish him the best of luck as he takes over the reins of office.

SUBVERSIVE MUSIC

It is admitted that a belligerent nation cannot tolerate any influence which might nullify the war spirit which is so necessary for a final victory, but the urge which seems prevalent to forbid music or the other arts as subversive, to read propaganda into the musical classics, is not only beneath but also dangerous to our civilized rationality.

Art is art, no matter whether the genius which produced it was fortunate in the allegiance of his parents or unluckily landed in a country which has since become our enemy. Beethoven, Mozart, Bach, Wagner, Haydn, and Brahms lived in a "Germania" which was far from being our enemy. What has since crept into their works to make them dangerous to the citizens of democracies? Why should the sins of their descendants (we would like to think that they could not be descendants) be visited upon their heads?

We in Canada, when Hitler was purging German art, looked askance, but passed it off with a shrug and, "What can you expect of the Nazis, and besides look at all the good music they are shutting their ears to." It now looks remarkably similar for us to condemn a composer because of race—even Richard Strauss. We acknowledge that this ban will

RIOTING TRAINEES RESIST OFFICERS OF AUXILIARY CORPS

"Auxiliary Means Dames, Don't It?" Shout Students Storming Orderly Room of Auxiliary Battalion

VARSITY REPORTERS HURT

A serious view is being taken by the university and military authorities of a mutiny which marred the first parade of the Auxiliary Battalion of the C.O. T.C. In the course of this affair, the officers of the battalion were besieged in their headquarters in Hart House. The authorities eventually gained the upper hand and fortunately few casualties resulted.

The trouble began when a now notorious U.C. freshman demanded truculently, "Where's the nifty babes?" The cry was taken up almost immediately by all the freshman platoons and soon the whole battalion was angrily shouting, "We been robbed." "Auxiliary means dames, don't it?" S.P.S. men were especially vociferous. Spontaneously forming a mob, they pursued the officers to their refuge behind the screens in the Hart House Orderly Room. Reinforcements were soon arriving and the combined mob kept up a sporadic attack on the battalion headquarters armed with scythe blades, razor blades, coke bottles, shillelachs, and hurley sticks.

A group of engineers devised a means of hoisting the two cannon from the foot of the campus flagpole to the top of the Hart House Memorial Tower. When these had been changed with liquid air, in the manner recently demonstrated by Professor Satterly, and trained on the beleaguered officers, with a threat to blow them all to somewhere, the besieged asked for a truce during which they might arrange with the government for a Board of Conciliation.

This truce was treacherously broken by a C. & F. student who sought admittance to the stronghold disguised as a piano-tuner. This ruse was discovered in the nick of time by the head of the Department of Military Studies, who, with the greatest presence of mind, pounded the truce-breaker into submission with his trench mortar-board. The mutineers were finally quelled when the Hall Porter relieved the garrison with fresh supplies of ammunition, Great Hall Buns, and Tuck Shop Doughnuts and Biscuits. It was these last which caused the most serious casualties.

Severe punishment is being contemplated by the authorities. Rumours of compulsory memorization of the Manual of Military Law, and Plato's Republic are rife.

There were but two grave casualties. After order had been restored, the mutilated and almost lifeless bodies of two indefatigable Varsity reporters were found under a pile of screens in the back part of the Orderly Room. They had evidently entered by the chimney. Doctors, while pessimistic about their ultimate recovery, are hopeful that they will soon be able to give an inside report of the disturbance. Complete identification has yet been impossible, but it would seem that tentative identification would reveal them to be none other than Kanga and Roo.

Russlan and Kratko

end at the close of the war, when it will be again safe for us to listen to an alien civilization.

Art is art, and if we cannot accept it without a blue-blooded pedigree enclosed, then we not only lack the necessary breadth for its real appreciation but also we are unworthy of the gift of freedom in thought. If we cannot be trusted to discriminate between good and bad, in art at least, why are we worthy of being called citizens of a democracy? Of course music possesses national traits, and Smetana, Chopin, and hosts of others should be applauded for theirs. Even Wagner's Ring Cycle (Continued on Page 4)

POOR FROSH!

The University College freshmen are going to be treated to a liberal education in the topography of Varsity and vicinity, if Athletic Director "Ged" Clawson's latest plan succeeds. He plans to send the long-suffering frosh over the hills and far away to bolster the Royal College's aggregate of intramural points. The compulsory event in which Clawson hopes to send U.C. winging toward the T. A. Reed Trophy is the Freshman Harrier. Last year this intramural feature surpassed all previous records in the number of runners entered. The Faculty of Medicine had literally droves of frosh participating (twenty-seven, if memory serves).

The way "Ged" Clawson explains it is this: University College, since it has one of the largest registrations in the university, gets less points per entry and per place taken than the smaller fact foundries. He wants to even things up by compelling all the newcomers to pound the turf for the dear old Red and White and extra points. Sophomores, juniors and seniors are to be "strongly urged" to enter.

It's little of our business what the Athletic Director of U.C. "strongly urges" anyone to do; still we view this latest venture with mixed feelings. We cheerfully admit that "interest" is added to athletic events by such methods, and perhaps a few hitherto-undiscovered trackmen will be brought to light. However, we recall a year way back in the infancy of the intramural point system, when the chief contenders for the coveted Trophy were School of Science and Wycliffe. Here was a perfect test case for the "massed entry" method. One of the largest registrations on the campus was pitted against a comparatively small faculty. The Theologs were piling up a goodly total of points with just the average number of entries, plus some bonuses for wins and intercollegiate team members. Then came the Interfaculty Swimming Meet, where the small colleges were granted about twenty points an entry as compared to a corresponding five for each Engineering splasher. A tidal wave of aquatic enthusiasm swept the Hoskin Avenue outfit; frenzied practices were held daily, every man in the college was "strongly urged" to enter. On the day of the meet Hart House pool was a bedlam. The lanes were crowded with struggling swimmers. The walls hurtled back and forth the shouts of the new Wycliffe slogan, "It's not the game, it's the points!" One weary water-churner gave up after ploughing his way half-way up the tank. His colleagues immediately gathered round and gave him a pep-talk on the importance of his twenty points, whereupon after a short rest he slid back into the pool and finally reached the other end, the closest anyone ever came to drowning in a swimming race.

The upshot of it all was that Wycliffe gained a magnificent number of points, a great deal of fun and renewed athletic interest, and (unfortunately) the misunderstanding of quite a few outside the college. School felt that the Anglicans were pulling a fast one, and this column contained a suggestion that the intramural point system might soon develop into a farce. Both angles of the question can be easily understood.

Much as we would like to see our old alma mater make a tolerable showing in its hunt for the T. A. Reed Trophy, we doubt whether a man of the age and intelligence of a university student can be aroused through compulsion to take an interest in a particular game such as harrier. We suggest a sounder scheme would be to discover the bent of a student's athletic preferences and work along those lines in showing him where he can have a lot of fun and also do something for his college.

ITEM

At the maritime universities of Acadia and Oshouse (we are informed) they, like the rest of Canadian colleges, have no university football teams. But these universities have C.O.T.C. units, and the C.O.T.C. units have football teams, which play against the Army and Navy at Halifax. Cute, eh?

Well, folks, here follows a sermon. It's very interesting, we think—at least the facts are—and should, perhaps, settle the questioning mind of a curious one.

The University of Toronto Women's Athletic Directorate—pause for breath—has met and definitely decided to abandon all intercollegiate competition which involves travelling for this year. Western and Queen's have done likewise, and although definite word has not yet been received from McGill, we assume they are following suit. You may have noticed in the Globe and Mail of Friday, October 4th—the Women's Page, our male reader(?)—an article stating a plan undertaken by McGill to include, in their curriculum, a compulsory course in war-training for women. This course follows a four-hour-a-week schedule including 2 hours of physical training, one of first-aid work and one of mechanical training. It is, of course, much more possible to carry out a system of this sort successfully in a college of the numerical size of McGill, than in one of that of the University of Toronto. We have well over 2,000 women enrolled in the different faculties on our campus and just how such a compulsory system might be organized seems difficult to imagine. However, the directorate has under consideration, at present, a program which might replace intercollegiate sports for the women athletes of Varsity. Its decision will not be known until after Tuesday night when the directorate meets again. Meanwhile, keep on knitting—2 per 1, 2 plain, slip one, and whatever you do, don't drop it.

Tennis seems to be having a hard time getting itself underway. Trinity is planning on getting its matches going today, but the rest of us, since we are mostly courtless, may have to wait a little before proper courts may be located, to allow us to get started. If there's one thing that is rare around this dear old institute of learning, it is a tennis court, and a tennis court, and another one. Maybe someday, when we have slid into a state of permanent carelessness, we will be able to see the youth of tomorrow romping about on tennis courts galore, with a vacant court here and there, and a vacant court there, and a vacant court there. Trouble is, those impudent beings will probably find tennis too infinitely slow for them, and will be having intercollegiate flying races from here to Hawaii, and grumbling because there are only enough planes for 5 entries from each college instead of 6, or maybe 8. Who knows?

W. Pentland 85, and J. Fitzpatrick, W. Bundrit, and E. Frost, each of whom had an 86.

This year's number of entries far surpassed last year's list, due mainly to the cancellation of senior sports and the fine golfing weather.

School was the best-represented faculty with 22 entries. Meds, who placed third, entered 20 golfers, and the two faculties who tied for second, U.C. and Trinity, 19 and 16 respectively. Eighteen dentists turned out, and four divot-diggers came from Vic and St. Mike's. Aerial Navigation was represented by a twosome, while Wycliffe and Emmanuel put in an appearance, one golfer from each college making the round.

"Red" Brundit of S.P.S., with a handicap of 28, turned in a phenomenal 86 to win the low net championship with a 58.

Irish Sophs Edge Frosh In Grid Tilt

First Interfaculty Game Under New Four-Down Rules Won by Last-Minute Deadline Kick

Four-down rugby made its first appearance on the university campus Friday afternoon and tradition nearly took a bad tumble at the same time, when the St. Mike's soph team eked out a 11-10 win over the Jack Ronayne-coached Irish frosh squad in their annual football classic.

By and large, the new rules governing interfaculty play opened up the game a lot, and it would appear that Warren Stevens' idea is going to create a lot more spectator interest in rugby this season.

The sophs won in the closing minutes of the tilt on a punt to the dead-line by Jim Coughlin, after the frosh had tied up the old ball game in the fourth quarter after trailing by 10 points.

Jack Ronayne's boys were carrying the tilt to the second year men, when Paul Fox caught a long kick, tricked the two ends who had descended on him to make the tackle, and then skirted the entire frosh team to dash 70 yards for his team's first major score. In the second stanza, Guernot grabbed a was conceived before the present rulers in Germany took over. That they have decided to use this story sequence as Germanic history, does not alter the fact that Wagner conceived it as art, and it remains such.

At the outbreak of this war, famous musicians of this city were saying, "Don't let us hear any nonsense of condemning German music because we are at war with Germany." That is the attitude to which we would like to think they were still clinging, in spite of all too many evidences to the contrary. We should at least keep our broadmindedness, for that, if nothing else, should distinguish us from the Nazis.

We therefore are offering membership to future history students and to those who, if they do not definitely know they are entering the course, are at least interested in our activities." Graduates of Modern History are to be admitted as members for the first time this year, it was also announced. The club, which is starting on its third season, has prepared a more ambitious program than ever was contemplated before. Five meetings are planned with historical subjects being treated by well known speakers. There are under consideration trips to historical sites and other tours and expeditions. An informal Christmas party will take the place of the dance held downtown in previous years. Skating and skiing outings are also planned so that members may get to know each other and become better acquainted with the staff. In the spring a closing dinner is held.

The first meeting on Wednesday starts at 8 p.m. in the Women's Union. Following Professor Martin's talk will take place the election of officers in first and second years. Refreshments and dancing follow.

thirty-yard toss on the dead run and kept on going till he reached pay dirt. Attempted converts on both these touch-downs failed.

That made it 10-0, but the frosh kept pressing. In the third quarter they worked the ball down the field. When they reached the 10-yard stripe they were stopped cold, but not to be outdone, Dominic Zino heaved a field-wide pass to Dan Fox, who crashed over for the touch. In the final chapter Zino and Fox presented a second showing of their play, only this time it was the St. Mike's famed flea-flicker pass. As the sophs had done, the frosh failed at both attempts at conversion.

With but a couple of minutes left, the sophs wasted no time hoofing the point that gave them victory as soon as they had the ball in frosh territory. The Zino-Fox combination was a standout. The Irish are just now bawling the fact that neither one of these boys, being first-year men, is eligible for interfaculty competition. The sophs had some good material on display, in the persons of Jim Coughlin, Ed Maloney, and Batteries, to mention a few of the more prominent ones.

OUTSIDERS EJECTED FROM LECTURE

"It is quite proper to have an exclusive meeting of the Engineering Society," he added, "but why was it not announced?"

Another Artsman present at the meeting was loud in his indignation at the treatment received. He stated also that, at five minutes to the appointed hour, those present were informed "that any Artsmen present were to understand that an immediate departure was necessary before violence should be applied."

"Had we had any intimation to the effect that it was to be exclusively an elite S.P.S. affair," he continued, "we would have been only too glad to remain absent."

As always, the popular liquid air demonstration was highly successful. Following a few opening remarks about the composition and liquefaction of air, Professor Satterly opened his experiments.

Corks popped, balloons burst, and various articles, such as bananas, grapes, flowers, and even bacon and eggs became so brittle when immersed in the fluid that they splintered easily when tossed about the room. Sparks from tightened cotton wool soaked in the liquid air showered to the ceiling as the experiment concluded. The regular lecture will be given at a later date.

The course to be taken by these students will include elementary foot-drill, rifle drill, anti-aircraft and gas drill, platoon and company drill and physical training, as well as lectures on organization and tactics.

Training, which officially began Sept. 7, although recruits did not drill, will assume a more real aspect this week, when the campus will resound each evening with the tread of marching feet as the various platoons begin elementary foot drill.

Following academic examinations next spring, the battalion will go to a military camp for two weeks to complete their training.

Charles Comfort Speaks At Hart House Exhibition

Informal Group in Art Gallery of Hart House Hears Mr. Comfort Review His Pictures

SUBTLE POINTS SHOWN

"It seems to me as fitting that a simple gourmet should deliver a discourse on the physiology of digestion as an artist should discuss art," said Mr. Charles Comfort, addressing an informal group in Hart House Art Gallery at 1.30 p.m. yesterday. That an artist should need to explain his pictures, he said, suggested an obscurity in his art. "Seldom," he claimed, "is an artist coherent or articulate enough to discuss art."

After these few preparatory remarks Mr. Comfort went on to point out the finer and more subtle points of some of his pictures on exhibition in the Gallery.

ENGINEERS HEAR EXPERT ON COLOUR

Mr. C. R. Conquergood Conducts Experiments to Show the Fallacy of the Human Eye as Judge of Colour

Colour pictures in magazines will show a great improvement in the next three or four years, Charles R. Conquergood, president of the Canada Printing Company, told a meeting of the Toronto Section of the Illuminating Engineering Society in Room S-25 of the Engineering Building last night.

Mr. Conquergood, described by Professor K. B. Jackson, chairman of the society, as "one of the leading authorities on colour in Canada," predicted the improvement would be the result of a more comprehensive blending of pigment and filters.

The speaker conducted a series of experiments with coloured cloth to show the effect of varied backgrounds upon samples of identical cloth. The experiments, Mr. Conquergood said, showed the fallacy of the human eye as a judge of colour and indicated that certain definite rules of vision must be followed by illuminating engineers.

Ineffectiveness of camouflage of warships and other military objectives was stressed by the visitor.

Mr. Conquergood said that "colour blindness" was an improper term. It should be called "colour difference," because the main body of persons with such vision, while unable to distinguish (Continued on Page 4)

S.C.M. BOOK SALE HAS GOOD TURN-OVER

Striking Feature is the Few Theological Books Brought in in Comparison with Number of Last Years

Despite a slow start, owing to the fact that books were not received until the opening of the academic year, the S.C.M. book exchange has had a comparatively good turn-over this fall, the manager, Al. Ongley, said yesterday.

Most striking feature about this year's exchange, he said, was the fact that very few theological books were brought in for sale. The previous year there had been an abundance of them, he stated.

As yet, no complete financial statement could be given, but the manager believed that the gross turn-over would be about $2,200. Of this, 90 per cent is returned to those who brought in books. The remaining 10 per cent is divided between the Student Christian Movement, and the S.C.M. Book Exchange, the former receiving 30 per cent of the dividend, the latter 70.

Mr. Ongley said that there was much less "junk" brought in this year, although the total of books brought in was less than last year. However, the exchange had "bigger" single days, and one afternoon a whole shelf, devoted to medical books, was cleaned out, he (Continued on Page 4)

COLISEUM CHORUS PREPARES FESTIVAL

Organized by Augustus Bridle, the Chorus Presents Benefit Concert for War Service Organizations

Considered one of the finest choral groups in Canada, and certainly the largest, the Coliseum Chorus will hold an autumn festival in Maple Leaf Gardens on the evenings of October 18 and 19.

Organized only last month by Augustus Bridle, prominent Toronto music and drama critic, who envisioned the presentation of a gigantic choral festival at the Canadian National Exhibition, the chorus consists of some 2,000 voices. After only two weeks' respite, a committee was hard at work arranging this festival as a benefit concert for four War Service Organizations: the Canadian Red Cross, the Salvation Army, the Y.M.C.A., and the Knights (Continued on Page 2)

DANCERS TO BE CAST FOR U.C. FOLLIES

Casting for the dancing chorus of the University College Follies will be held in the rehearsal hall of Hart House at 4 p.m. today, producer Cliff Blackall announced yesterday.

Casting for the skits was completed yesterday, he said. Names of those who will take part in the dramatic part of the show will be published in The Varsity tomorrow.

Jack Lemen, well-known dancer and instructor, will be in charge of the chorus, it was announced. He will be present at the casting of the chorus today, Blackall said.

Music for the revue, which is to be presented on Nov. 15, has been completed, the directors announced.

Dr. Walter Brown Present At First S.C.M. Meeting

Mr. Jacob, Student from India, and Mr. Lee of China told of S.C.M. Movements in Their Own Countries

Dr. Walter Brown, principal of Victoria College, was present last night at the opening meeting of the Victoria College S.C.M. meeting at Wymilwood, at which details of study groups to be held this year were revealed.

George Jacob, a student from India, and Mr. Lee, of China, were also included in speakers at the meeting. Each told of S.C.M. movements in his own country.

Many interesting study groups will be held during the year, it was announced. Mrs. Kav Riddell's group, which is the fresh group, will discuss with the Christian girl's view of herself, her friends, her course at college, the campus and, lastly, herself.

Mrs. Goudge's groups will attempt to discover for themselves the needs for social security. Besides doing practical social work, they will discuss the problems of crime, drunkenness, gambling and racial minorities. Each group leader gave a short talk on the subjects to be (Continued on Page 4)

VARSITY EDITORIAL ABOUT PUBLICITY RAISES COMMENT

General Opinion is that More Publicity of a Positive Type is Needed for University of Toronto

BENEFICIAL TO UNIVERSITY

Considerable comment has been occasioned on the campus by an editorial captioned "Wanted: More Publicity", which appeared in The Varsity yesterday and was reprinted in part by one of the downtown papers. From coffee shop to class room, undergraduates were discussing the need or otherwise of more publicity for this university.

In practically every case, the opinion was that the University of Toronto needs more publicity of a positive type directed through proper channels to the man in the street. Too often, it was thought, misleading and adverse publicity reaches those who matter most.

There are many ways in which the university could benefit from controlled publicity, it was more than once stated. Varsity's reputation could be cleared up; more students could be enrolled; more big names could be included in the list of faculty members; and college students in general could be cleared of the charge of prodigality and frivolity.

The single objection was that further publicity is not needed because Varsity's enrollment is large enough and that its reputation is not sullied in other universities.

Doug Best from fourth year Medicine declared in positive tones that that was the sort of editorial needed and that its idea was one which could be worked out very profitably. Said he, "It is the growing belief in public circles that university students spend all their time uselessly and wantonly. Many people fail to realize that we spend forty hours a week in class, many more away from labs and lectures, and hundreds of dollars so we can go back into society to make our contribution there. And besides, some sort of an arrangement should be made with the downtown press to get news, undistorted and of the proper kind, into print."

Universities Must Carry Torch of Knowledge and Young People Serve the State, Claims Earl of Athlone

TRIBUTE TO JAMES MCGILL

Montreal, Oct. 7.—(CUP)—Disagreement with the idea that university life should be held in abeyance until after the war was expressed today by His Excellency, the Earl of Athlone, who received an honorary LL.D. degree in a ceremony held in the new gymnasium-armouries at McGill University.

He asked young people to offer themselves to the service of the state, and declared it was up to the universities to seize and pass on the torch of knowledge. Each generation faced a world of strife with a genuine desire to better it, he stated, and students should carry on just as their forebears did in former times of darkness.

"We now have not only ignorance to combat," said His Excellency, "but the clever, unscrupulous methods of a despot who prates of reason when he has reason." (Continued on Page 3)

REGISTRAR SUPPLIES FORM LETTERS

Students Notified to Present Themselves for Thirty Days' Training Should Apply for Certificate from Registrar

Students of the University of Toronto who receive notification from the Department of National War Services to present themselves at a military camp for 30 days' training should apply to A. B. Fennell, Registrar, at Simcoe Hall, for a letter to Military Headquarters, it was learned yesterday.

The registrar has a supply of form letters, certifying that the applicant is a student at the University of Toronto and will have to take compulsory military training at the university unless he proves to be physically unfit.

These may be procured at the Registrar's office upon presentation of a university registration card and the notice by which the applicant was called up, a spokesman of the National War Services Board at 65 Victoria St., said in an interview yesterday.

The letter should then be mailed, along with the call-up notice, to Military Headquarters of the district from which it was issued, he said.

E. A. Macdonald, Lieutenant and Acting-Adjutant, told The Varsity a check will shortly be made upon all members of the Auxiliary Battalion to make certain they are students of the (Continued on Page 4)

Cody Announces Appointments To Faculty

President H. J. Cody announced yesterday that Dr. W. G. Cosbie has been appointed assistant professor of obstetrics and gynaecology in the university. Two other recent appointments to the faculty are Bora Laskin, lecturer in law, and Miss Dorothy Young, instructor in women's physical education in the Ontario College of Education.

The President also has announced that Professor F. B. Kenrick, head of the department of chemistry, has been granted leave of absence till the end of December on account of illness. The following have been granted a leave of absence for the duration of the war: Dr. G. E. Hall, professor of medical research; J. W. Brennan and C. H. Watson, demonstrators in surgery; J. R. Mills, fellow in surgery; R. I. Macdonald and R. B. Kerr, demonstrators in medicine; L. S. Laughland, lecturer in electrical engineering; J. E. Sharpe, demonstrator in psychiatry, and P. E. Ireland, junior demonstrator in otolaryngology.

These nine members of the staff are now concentrating their efforts in the interests of the successful prosecution of the war.

No Freshies Found in Dentistry But Medicine Boasts of 16

Varied Aims Are Revealed to The Varsity by the First Year Women Enrolled in the Medical Course

Sixteen women have registered in the first year of the medical course, it was learned Saturday. No women have registered in first year dentistry, which has two women in the second and one in the fourth year of the course.

Phyllis Irvine, first year student in the medical course, said in reply to a query regarding her reason for wishing to enter the medical profession, that she "was brought up in an atmosphere of medicine and never considered choosing anything else for a career." She revealed that her father is a doctor.

Miss V. Duggan, also of the first year of the course, said, "for about 10 years I have wanted to be a missionary, but several years ago I decided that I wanted to be something more than a (Continued on Page 4) missionary, that I wanted to be a medical missionary, so here I am." Research work will be the goal of Ruth Easser, first year medical student, she told The Varsity. Ruth Merritt, first year, aspires to a general medical practice.

CORRECTION

Owing to an editorial error, The Varsity yesterday stated that the University Settlement, a social service group, would hold a tea Wednesday, October 29, at the organization's home at 23 Grange Road. The tea will be held at 4.30 p.m., Wednesday, October 9. Students of all faculties are invited to attend. The work and aims of the organization will be outlined by Mrs. F. H. ## United We Stand

A subject calling forth much comment today—and practically all favourable comment—is the growing spirit of cooperation and unity between the British Empire and the United States. It is a spirit that has grown by leaps and bounds in the past months, a situation that was bound to arise when the United States realized that a British defeat would leave her in a precarious position. Britain, of course, needs any assistance that the States can give. With Japan threatening her in the Pacific, and the Nazi threat from South America, the United States is beginning to realize that she too needs the British Empire and the British fleet.

Political leaders in both England and the States talk continually, if somewhat vaguely now, of a union of the English speaking peoples of the world, a union that will last not only for the duration of the war, but will continue on afterwards in an attempt at a permanent peace settlement. Proof that such a union is being seriously considered in England is offered by the fact that recently the British government felt it necessary to assure Parliament that no such momentous step would be taken without full discussion.

Some sort of union for the duration of the war is bound to come sooner or later, but afterwards—how long would it last? Peace once more established and the immediate need for any such union seemingly gone, might not these countries slip back again into the same relations they bore before the war? Perhaps they won't—it scarcely seems likely they will quickly forget how soon a defeated country can rise again.

At any rate, such a union could only be for the benefit of all concerned. The combined might of the British Empire and the United States of America would not be easily disregarded by any country. If such a union were properly handled, it might prove in the post-war years to speak the only language that aggressive nations understand—power, and the determination to use it as soon as and whenever it seems necessary.

In the words of Robert Sherwood, famous American playwright and strong supporter of such a union—"We could give to the oppressed people of the captive nations the proof that at last there is dynamism in the democratic faith." That at least is something the aggressive nations will understand—dynamism. It is probably the only thing that they will understand.

Summing up his extensive plans for such a union Sherwood writes in a recent issue of Life magazine: "By a union with the British commonwealth, we cannot hope to reform the world, either with moral preachments or at the point of a gun. We cannot expect to redraw the map of Europe at another Versailles. But we can promote our own future security—for 100 years, 200 years—and how much permanent progress of civilization may not have been made in that time.

"We can, moreover, achieve these immediate gains:

"We can prove that the power of collaborative organization is not on the totalitarian side.

"We can end Hitler's dream of world domination through world revolution. All of the alliances he may make with the other totalitarian states of Europe and Asia—alliances based on nothing but mutual greed—will be ultimately profitless while control of the seas and of world trade remains with us."

The question of union is a vital one, a question which cannot be settled here but one which is worthy of serious and considered thought in the immediate future. If it does not become a reality before the war is ended, certainly it must be recognized as a fundamental of post-war reconstruction.

While The Sun Shines

With daylight saving time now established here on a permanent basis, practically everyone seems to be determined to dislike it on general, if somewhat vague principles, but equally determined to cheerfully accept it if it will assist the government in any way.

It is a plan that may cause considerable confusion in some businesses, but it should be no drawback to the average citizen. One of its chief disadvantages appears to lie in the fact that so many sections of the province are on standard time while the rest are on daylight saving. Less confusion would be caused if the order-in-council made daylight saving time compulsory throughout the province, instead of permanently establishing two different times.

Around the university in the winter months night has fallen and the lights are on long before many students are through their day's work. An extra hour of daylight would certainly be more to their advantage than otherwise. Of course the reverse may also be true—students who live at a considerable distance from the university and are therefore accustomed to rising at a fairly early hour may find themselves getting up in what appears to be the middle of the night. It is not likely, though, that many of us will be troubled in this respect.

However if the extension of daylight saving time will enable the government to save money which it can use to help prosecute the war, then there should be no complaint about any slight inconvenience which it might cause.

The Eternal Shakes

Advertising has in the last quarter-century reached a position in which it has become the very life-blood of the newspaper publishing business. Without advertising, the healthiest of journals must fade from the scene, and any publisher who has investigated possibilities of starting up a paper in a field already provided with publications will tell you how necessary advertising revenue is.

The Varsity finds itself in the same position as the average metropolitan daily in respect to advertising. We cannot live without it. However, we can boast, along with very few other newspapers today, that our advertising sources cannot influence our policies. Be that as it may, the fact remains that The Varsity cannot exist without advertising.

For that reason we urge all readers to patronize our advertisers. It is they who make our publications possible, and it is they also who support our extra-page editions. This year our revenue may drop. The continued friendship of our advertisers is imperative, as are your efforts as readers to ensure it. When you buy, try to buy from merchants who have advertised in The Varsity, and when you get your change, just mention The Varsity by name. We will appreciate it, and so will the merchants for they want to know what results their expenditure is bringing.

This is your paper. You can by your cooperation help actively in ensuring its publication through these times of stress.

"To-Night At 8.30"

If you can meet the Royal Alexandra's fall prices, it's worth your time to put in an interesting evening at "To-night at 8.30" this week. Bramwell Fletcher and Diana Barrymore star in three plays from the Coward series, that give good variety and dramatic scope to the players. This scope is often taken, and often left.

Hands Across the Sea was a poor beginning to an otherwise entertaining evening. It is a little comedy about a sophisticated couple who entertain rather muddle-headed some strange travel acquaintances whom they had forgotten. Perhaps such comedies are dated. In itself, though adroitly written, the play is slight and "obvious." Fast and subtle playing could make it a clever farce, but the cast's painfully deliberate striving for laughs marred the play in spite of the redeeming efforts of Mr. Fletcher and the clever comedy of Bertram Tanswell, whose portrayal of the nervous Mr. Burnham rocked a full house with laughter.

Fumed Oak, next on the bill, is a satirical comedy of South London domestic unhappiness. Here the playing was brilliant. Mr. Fletcher's Henry Gow—from the silent man at breakfast to the self-liberated husband (aided by whisky and soda), was a sheer delight.

Ann Andrews redeemed herself from the pseudo-Lawrence gushing in Hands Across the Sea by a Seated one day at the typewriter, weary and ill at ease after a tough night down at the Press, Minos and Omar indulged in the following dialogue:

MINOS: Let's blow the joint.

OMAR: Sure, we can snag a street-car at Spadina.

MINOS: Oh, pardon me, but surely you mean Spadeena?

OMAR (coldly): Spadyna was the term I used.

MINOS (earnestly): But, look here, Spadeena is the authentic pronunciation.

OMAR (coolly): Oh?

MINOS (pleasantly): Yes, the Oxford Dictionary says...

OMAR (warmly): Not in my edition.

MINOS (taken aback): Oh?

OMAR (hotly): NO!

MINOS (after thinking it over for a while, his lips moving inaudibly): I do think Spadeena sounds much more euphonious.

OMAR (torridly): Don't talk dirty.

MINOS (broken in spirit): I only meant...

OMAR (at white heat): Look here, you take Spadeena and I'll take Spadyna and I'll be at Casa Loma afore ye.

MINOS (inconsequentially): What do you want to go to Casa Loma for? I bet you haven't even got a quarter.

OMAR (investigating): No, of course not.

MINOS (triumphantly): I told you so. There!

OMAR (bewilderedly): Uh...

Where?

MINOS (after a long pause, brightly): At Spadeena.

OMAR (coming to life again): SPADYNA.

of Columbus.

The huge chorus consists of a nucleus, an inner choir, composed of 250 members of the Toronto Mendelssohn, Bach, and Conservatory Choirs, augmented by an outer choir made up of members of almost every church choir in Toronto, and some even from Hamilton. The Toronto Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Sir Ernest MacMillan, will make its first appearance of the season as a special adjunct to the chorus. Dr. Charles Peaker, leader of Hart House Glee Club, will be chief conductor of the choral numbers.

Working in the huge arena of Maple Leaf Gardens, the producers plan not only two evenings of fine music but also two thrilling spectacles as well.

The closing part of the concert will bring the evening to a patriotic climax. Representatives of His Majesty's fighting forces will parade to the large stage for the mass singing of There'll Always be an England, O, Canada, and the National Anthem.

splendid characterization of the nagging Mrs. Gov.

Diana Barrymore inherits the family tradition of stealing the lime-light, and we do mean steal. In Hands Across the Sea she verged on the obvious, but in Fumed Oak she damaged her clever comedy by overplaying the unattractive daughter. Moderation in her part would make her a very capable actress.

Mention here must be made of Valerie Valaire. Her sympathetic playing in Hands Across the Sea and as the quarrelsome mother-in-law in Fumed Oak, did much to help the performance.

A cross-section of cockney vaudeville back-stage life makes Red Peppers a very funny interlude. Although the timing appears a little faulty, the difficulties of the play are nevertheless remarkably overcome.

Bramwell Fletcher has done much for the theatre, and it is to be hoped that Toronto audiences will give him and his cast the support which they work hard to deserve.

GYM SESSIONS START THIS WEEK

Gym sessions are due to get under way by the end of this week. Instructor Charlie Zwygard announced that most of last year's gymmen, except the few that graduated, are ready once more to swing aboard the high and low bars, parallels, horse and rings.

For the usual reason, the interfaculty tournament will be the big event in gymnastics this year. Zwygard's charges will not have the opportunity to defend their intercollegiate title, which they have not had much trouble retaining for the past seven years. Exhibitions will no doubt be continued, he said. Instructor Zwygard himself, who hails from Denmark, and is a former holder of many Olympic titles, put on a thrilling between-halls show with the assistance of his class at the Wayne-Varsity basketball game last spring.

Besides such old hands as Toye, Mendisabel, and Mark, a crop of new gymmen has appeared, and are shaping up well.

DR. MORGAN TO ADDRESS ACADEMY OF DENTISTRY

The Junior Academy of Dentistry, an organization of fourth and fifth year dental students of the University of Toronto, will hold its first meeting of the academic year tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Newman Hall, it was learned last night.

Organized three years ago under the Toronto Academy of Dentistry, the junior organization holds meetings each month to keep in touch with current dental topics. The speaker tomorrow will be Dr. George A. Morgan, prominent local dentist, who will discuss dental surgery.

WYCLIFFE COLLEGE TO ENTER TEAM IN LACROSSE LEAGUE

Arnold Kerr, Former Meds' Man, will Manage Anglicans' First Venture in Interfaculty Lacrosse

WILL ENTER FIVE SPORTS

Wycliffe College Athletic Society expanded its program last night with a decision to enter a team in the interfaculty lacrosse league.

This is the first time the Anglicans have participated as a faculty in the gutted stick pastime, but the prospective players (though novices) are expected to provide spirited competition in the forthcoming schedule.

Arnold "Moose" Kerr was appointed manager of the newly-formed squad at last night's meeting. Kerr was on the Meds lacrosse roster last year but is at present out of the game with a bad knee.

Athletic President Bill Coleman outlined the fall plans for Wycliffe's sports. The Theologs intend to enter teams in soccer, volleyball, swimming and track.

TRAINING PROGRAM OPENED SATURDAY

U. of T. Men Learn Rudiments of Squad Drill as Auxiliary Battalion Launch Training Schedule

The first day of training for the Auxiliary Battalion of the University of Toronto began yesterday on the front campus for several platoons.

Throughout most of the day, several platoons could be seen in front of University College, each under the charge of a khaki-clad officer, who was teaching them the finer points of such elementary squad drill as "mark time," "about turn," "right dress" etc.

Before the end of the present week, all 1,500 students in the battalion will have received the first four hours of their 110-hour training quota, and soon will be progressing to rifle drill, bayonet drill, platoon and company drill, and air and road game training.

Settlement of students' training timetables when the battalion was organized Saturday was regarded as having lent a touch of certainty to the campus activities of recruits, many of whom previously had hesitated to join various campus organizations until the hours of their training became clear.

MYSTERIOUS AUTOMOBILE FOUND AT WHITNEY HALL

Early risers at Whitney Hall this morning were slightly disconcerted when a small sedan-model automobile was discovered resting peacefully in the enclosed entrance to the quadrangle.

The question of how it got there was answered by a couple of Varsity reporters who witnessed the incident. Returning from press at 1.30 a.m. they saw a horde of freshmen descending upon Whitney Hall with the automobile in tow, to the accompaniment of cheers. It was hauled up the six steps into the entrance.

The question of what to do with it was not so easily answered and the car still sat there at breakfast time, the object of all eyes.

FOUR-MAN BASKETBALL

The number 4 seems to be predominant in university athletic circles this year. Last week we told you of the new ruling in interfaculty rugby with regard to four downs instead of the usual three.

This week, number 4 centres around the basketball setup and although 4-man interfaculty basketball is still in the "perhaps" league there is more than a remote possibility that it will be accepted in the immediate future.

Thumbing through Varsity files of two years back we read an article by Bernie Shiffman, former sported, on the vrey problem which we still face today in the upper gym of Hart House. There is absolutely no room for a better brand of basketball with 5 players on each side and a harassed referee in the middle. The game is slowed down, becomes to some degree a survival of the fittest and is no fair criterion of the kind of ball interfaculty hoopsers can play.

In case you haven't already guessed, 4-man basketball is another of Warren Stevens' brain children. He did not have the opportunity to present it at last week's intramural athletic meeting, but it is to be hoped that he'll bring it before the body at the next meeting.

In answer to the query, "Won't that put two men out of a game?", we give you a most emphatic "No!" Because with 4-man basketball, play will be much faster, contestants will get tired correspondingly faster, and if anything more players will get games.

What is more, should games be switched from the upper to the lower and larger gym it will be a comparatively easy job for team coaches to add another man. Interfaculty basketball is not down so fine that a change of this kind cannot be accomplished without any harmful results.

GOLF TOURNAMENT FINE START

This year's golf tournament was a huge success for the one simple overmastering reason that there were 108 entries as against a mere 48 last year. Mac MacCutcheon was very pleased with this early display of interfaculty interest in the T. A. Reed Trophy race, especially because students this year are faced with a heavier time table due to military requirements.

He added that this year too, faculty representatives had a clearer understanding of the points system and that any changes in the system would be decided upon by the intramural committee on as fair a basis as possible.

ADDENDA

The Novice Track Meet is to be held this Friday at 1.30 p.m. Entries should be in the Athletic Office by Thursday, Oct. 10 and all those competing must have passed their medical exam. Any man who was on a senior or intermediate track team in any university or has won a junior event before is not eligible for this meet. . . . Chesty Martin, physical training instructor, says that all those under 20 who take physical training classes will have P.T. of a military character. . . . The story of Don Crowe, Balm Beach backfield flash, is an interesting one. He tried out with the Argonauts at the beginning of the season and everything was fine until he walked into the dressing room. No "howya doin's, no hellos, no nuttin'." Don didn't like this one bit. So he upped and told the Sculler manager he was leaving because the dress room was much too cold and not because of lack of heat either. Honey, look at him now. . . . And don't forget that this Friday is the last day to get your medical exam in Hart House.

INTRODUCING A NEW SERIES—SIX LESSONS

This will serve to introduce a series of lectures on "How to get back into condition." There will be six lessons in the above-mentioned gentle art (if the sportsed hearts about this there may be fewer) and they will be a weekly feature which will be read with deepest interest by every Varsity student. I said "studie" not stooge.

It is the request of this author that these lessons are not confused with six lessons given in other parts of the globe by various other illiterati who might answer to the name of La Zonga and such. Rosita will not give you lesson one either, but I will in my own inimitably foolish style. Read on from here if you dare. . . .

LESSON ONE

You have just returned from a summer of hard labour at some concentration camp or other and find, mirabile dictu, that when you try to touch your toes without bending your knees it is an impossible task. Or better still you essay half a dozen pushups and find to your sorrow that it ain't like the good old days. You just get a stabbing sensation in those great big brawny shoulders as if some wise guy was sticking a needle in the flesh and wasn't particularly anxious to drag it out.

You give vent to a little hollow laugh and smiling bravely say "It don't mean a thing." Not much, brother, not much.

And then you run briskly over to the bicycle and start pedalling like mad and watch the mileage indicator move fast—real fast. Hot dog, this is the stuff! So you're not in condition, eh, so you don't feel like a million bucks, eh, so you . . . oh lawdief who heck is grabbing your legs, who the—well, maybe you are a little out of condition. Maybe you should listen to me. Maybe you should have stood in bed.

Don't forget to read next week's Varsity where you will get lesson two—and I'll get to Scotland afore ye.

POLISH CLUB PLANS YEAR OF VARIED ACTIVITY

"We need more women," said Lillian Karmalska, Meds VI, president of the Polish Students' Club which met last night at Newman Hall to discuss plans for the coming year. Members of Polish descent from all faculties will be welcomed, she said.

A feature of the meetings will be impromptu debates and skits in Polish, it was decided. The social activities of the year will be crowned by a formal dance at which members will dance the polka and the oberek.

Dr. Krieger of the Mathematics staff of the university, as guest speaker, emphasized the social aspect of "sharing in common the rich heritage of our culture."

U.C. FOLLIES ORCHESTRA

Lack of Numbers Will Not Stop School of Forestry Rugby Team

NO MEDS TEAM

Apparently the boys from the School of Forestry don't intend to let the deficiency in numbers stop them from walking off with the top spot in the interfaculty rugby set-up. Although they usually scrape up just enough men to run through a scrimmage on the back campus these evenings they don't intend to let the grass grow under their feet and have shown that fact by recently acquiring the special talents of Don Graham in the coaching capacity.

No one who has ever frozen a toe watching Varsity rugby has to be told of the superb job Don did in marching the U. of T. junior squad to city championships year after year. It's good to see him out there on the back campus once again and here's hoping the boys from Forestry don't let him down.

It's the Engineers, however, who still look like the bunch to beat from this point of view. Under the expert guidance of Annis Stukus the backfield is beginning to take definite shape and we may rest assured that Jack Plaxton, Don Finlayson, Jim Hurst, Stew Munro and Jim Hawkins will give a good account of themselves along the back line.

Noticeably missing from the back campus are the students of Medicine. There are rumours to the effect that the potential doctors are holding their practice drills along the corridors of the Anatomy Building and using the "stiffs" as tackling dummies. These, however, have been discounted as just so much S.P.S. propaganda. Seriously, we would hate to hear the Medicine men have given up the ghost.

VARSITY TRACK TEAM TO BE SELECTED

Although Intercollegiate Meet is Off, Interfaculty Stars will Form Squad as in Previous Years

NEW TALENT GOOD

Though there will be no intercollegiate track meet this season, it has been decided nevertheless to select a Varsity squad from among the stars of the interfaculty meet, thus keeping the fires of competition burning as fiercely as ever.

Leading the parade of returning stars is the familiar brother team of Wally and Harold Brown, who last year bagged six firsts. Also back are Bob Miller, low hurdler extraordinary, miller Tom Barnett and Delaney, Goodwin, three-mile intermediate champion, and Gerry Proderick, fast-travelling sprinter from Vic.

Coach Hec Phillips reports a promising turnout of freshman prospects. Among those who have shown definite possibilities in training are Tippetts, Norman and Eades in the sprints, Lormer, a former U.T.S. champ in the high jump, and Peckover in the half-mile jaunt.

An innovation this year and one designed to create keen rivalry between the faculties is the introduction of the four-man relay team to run the quarter,

HAVE YOU A HOBBY? . . . Oklahoma Professor Ralph Bienfang collects smells. . . He has over 250 varieties of oils and aromatics filed away for reference. . . His students in the Department of Pharmacognosy test their nasal I.Q. by identifying some of them by smell alone. . . None of the odours are obnoxious or asphyxiating simply because Professor Bienfang doesn't like that kind. . . Since he first received publicity as a smellbinder, Bienfang has received contributions from all over the world. . . WE WONDER HOW GERMANY'S SMELLING THESE DAYS?

POWDERED LIMESTONE HAS been substituted for alfalfa in the diet of cattle at Kansas State College. . . I SUPPOSE THEIR COWS GIVE LIME RICKEY!

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD. . . We wondered at the time how it happened that the thorough S.P.S. housecleaning at the Satterly lecture last Friday (for further particulars see yesterday's Varsity), failed to include at least half-a-dozen Artsmen. . . Two Varsity staff men cleared up this point by explaining that they stifled their passionate loyalty to one of the Arts colleges sufficiently to join the Schoolmen in a lusty Toke Oike. . . WHY THAT'S PRACTICALLY TREASON!

"UNUSUAL" TALENT ASKED TO TRY OUT FOR U. SYMPHONY. . . (headline in Minnesota Daily) . . . May I play too? My friends tell me I'm a woe on the slide-whistle.

FROM MCGILL comes the news of a real, honest-to-goodness Freshman Strike. . . It seems that sociable upperclassmen have become accustomed to receiving cheery greetings from the lowly frosh. . . But this year, no smiles, no hellos, no nothing. . . The situation has reached the point where a desperate appeal in the McGill Daily a placid with the haughty frosh to take a little notice of their seniors. . . WE HOPE THEY HOLD OUT FOR A LONG-TERM AGREEMENT.

FISH STORY FROM MIAMI. . . Alice McGrain, University of Miami co-ed, was emulating Izaak Walton in an Indiana creek last summer. . . Suddenly a 13-inch bass leapt out of the depths into her boat. . . Nothing daunted, Miss McGrain slipped off her shoelace, brandished it fiercely and walshopped the fish with the heel. . . The fish didn't meet the bell in the second round. . . Her cousin didn't believe that one either, so next time he went along. . . Just as they were discussing the incident, another fish about the same size leapt into the boat. . . She felled him with the same slipper. . . "NOW MAYBE YOU'LL BELIEVE ME," SHE SAID. (Do we?)

YOU MAY HAVE NOTICED yesterday's column a short bit of verse concerned with mother's use of cold cream and similar interesting info about people's home life. . . Maybe you thought it funny, maybe not, but we just wanted to tell you that friend O'Mara has been risking life and limb to get the gem into his column. . . Four successive night editors were presented with it and ruthlessly backed it out of the type when space began to get limited. . . Yesterday, by covering the night-ed (me) with a gun, he finally got it in. . . PERSEVERING CHAP, O'MARA.

A number of his unconventional portraits, he said, had caused a good deal of criticism and even evoked doubts of his sanity. ## Strange Figure Haunts Staid University Campus

by prower

Unsuccessful Search Made by Members of Varsity Staff to Find Ghosts who Performed Dancing Duet

Disillusioned individuals who feel that the staid old campus of the University of Toronto is sadly lacking in ghostly shapes and fairy happenings, should go down to the electrical workshop, in behind the McLennan Labs, some night a few hours after sundown.

They may, if it happens to be just the right turn of the moon, see the enchanting figure of a lovely young creature, whirling and tapping out wild rhythms of the night, her dancing form grotesquely reflected on the pavement in the sharp light of an overhanging street lamp.

Into the echoing ramparts of the workshop buildings that huddle behind the buildings fronted on St. George street she flings the clattering tempo of the castanet. Such was the picture viewed, with unbelieving eyes, by a foot-weary Varsity reporter a week ago as he wandered down to the Press with a late item. Amazed, he stopped and stared, purely incredulous, wondering if he saw aright. He took a step forward but the strange figure paused in her whirlings, observed that she was not alone, and shyly vanished into the cluster of shadowy buildings. The reporter stayed in silence awhile, shrugged his shoulders, and continued. . .

Last night there was a recurrence when another member of The Varsity staff saw not one, but two of the strange figures performing a dancing duet under the same street light. He made straight up to the Press office and informed his comrades who started an investigation, but before the group could reach the scene the dancers had again disappeared. It was exactly 10.17 p.m., the reporter said. . .

stated. "The whole trouble with this year's exchange," said the manager, "was that we could not get enough books. If we had had the right books we could have sold them as there was a constant demand." There were about 75 fewer individual accounts this year, but the gross revenue was about the same. As usual there were four or five hundred French texts unsold, but very few in other subjects.

Unusual purchases were a set of medical "Clinics," two Sabotta's "Anatomy" texts, at $11 and $13, a sixteen dollar slide rule, and two dissecting kits.

would see to it that articles in an entertaining and educational form should be released to help counteract such negative publicity as bed-rates and so on." And he went on to deplore the fact that so many believe that the university is a hangout for the indolent offspring of the idle rich. "The truth of the matter is that most students spend the whole of their summer months working in order that they may be able to attend college at all."

Melvin Oliver, Victoria III, felt that the university "could stand quite a bit of advertising to counteract the adverse publicity that gets around, and to raise the number of students here. As it is, University College is handling only half the students it is equipped for."

Paul Olynky, a former McGill student now doing postgraduate work here, states that "Toronto is known as the 'chichest' university in Canada. I've been here for a year and so far I have not run across anything to justify that opinion. In all fairness something should be done to get rid of the idea."

Bill Ketcheson, a second year student in Victoria, pointed out that controlled publicity would mean a larger enrollment, a larger income for the university, and consequently, more "big names" could be included on the faculty, more research could be conducted, and an all-round better university would result.

Vincent Bethel, a demonstrator in electrical engineering who has previously attended two other universities, says he has never heard any charges of snobbishness laid against the University of Toronto and that no advertising needs to be sent in that direction.

Lambert To Be Director Of Women's Glee Club

Well-Known English Baritone Hopes Third Year Under His Direction to be Most Successful Yet

ALL STUDENTS ELIGIBLE

The U.C. Women's Glee Club has announced that they will again have George Lambert, the well-known English baritone who is now residing in Toronto, to direct their choir.

"This is my third year with the Glee Club and, although it has improved each year, I am hoping that this will be by far the most successful year," stated the musician when questioned by The Varsity regarding his plans for the Glee Club. "All students are eligible and we invite them all to enlist for it is an opportunity for getting a great deal of pleasure as well as preparing a fine program," he said.

Mr. Lambert is a well-known figure in musical circles and has been very active during the past three years. Not only has he been soloist with the Conservatory Choir and with the Symphony Orchestra under Sir Ernest MacMillan in Beethoven and Wagner programs, but he has also given recitals throughout the dominion by radio.

Varsity herself has not been ignored by Mr. Lambert. Annually he has given a recital in Great Hall, Hart House, and for the past three years he has sung the Christus in the St. Matthew Passion at Convocation Hall.

FALL PLAY PLANNED BY ST. MICHAEL'S

Under the experienced direction of Father Joseph O'Donnell, C.S.B., the Dramatic Society of St. Michael's College, together with students of St. Joseph's and Loretto Colleges, is now preparing its fall production, "The Marriage of St. Francis."

The play is scheduled to be presented in Hart House Theatre on the evenings of November 11th, 12th and 13th.

Thomas McDermott, remembered for his excellent work in "The First Legion", which the society presented in Hart House two years ago, will play the lead.

In the role of Lady Poverty, there will be a newcomer to dramatics in this university, Miss Maureen Murphy, of Loretto College, here from England for the duration. Miss Murphy has had considerable experience in dramatics and can be expected to give real life to her role.

The play is a French classic by Henri Gheon and is well known to students of the drama.

Casting was completed Sunday night when the supply of potential actors far exceeded the demand.

Casting For U.C. Follies Continues; Jack Lenem To Direct Chorus

Both women and men are eligible for places in the University College pit orchestra, Cliff Blackall, producer of the show said yesterday. Applicants are requested to come to the junior common room in the college at 1 p.m. today, he said.

Jack Lenem, well-known dancer and instructor, has been engaged to direct the chorus, it was revealed. Mr. Lenem made a movie short for M.G.M. in 1937 for which he has become famous throughout Canada and the United States. In 1936 he was one of the three Canadian representatives who danced at the Olympic Games in Germany. Mr. Lenem was associated with Boris

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

NORWEGIAN COURSE OFFERED THIS YEAR

Course Conducted 2 Years Ago by Mr. M. Joos Renewed Again This Year for Honour German Students

Classes in Norwegian will be open to students in Honour German courses in the university, according to Mr. M. Joos, lecturer in German in University College. A meeting of those interested will be held in room 44G, University College, at 5:15 p.m. today.

Mr. Joos said that he conducted classes in Norwegian here two years ago when more than 20 students started the course.

The first part of the course, which will extend until January will deal with Norwegian grammar. After January the class will study a Norwegian novel. Mr. Joos said that he intends to announce the course alternate years. Students from all colleges who are enrolled in Honour German courses are invited to attend, he said.

B. KOENMAN APPOINTED MINISTER OF PUBLICITY

The Knox College Association Parliament appointed Burleigh Koenman, B.A., as minister of publicity at their opening meeting. The Parliament has been in secret session for several past school terms but this year are making known their undertakings.

The department of social affairs announced that its activities will commence with a dance on Tuesday, Oct. 15. The minister for the department, Ferguson Barr, 410, advised freshmen that suitable partners would be obtained for all those who so wished.

STADIUM USHERS

There will be a meeting of the Stadium ushers on Wednesday, Oct. 9 at 5 p.m. A full turnout is essential.

BANQUET WILL END INITIATION PERIOD FOR VICTORIA FROSH

Sophs and Frosh of Victoria College to be on Equal Footing after Banquet and Candle Light Service Tomorrow

FORMAL INITIATION

Tomorrow night Victoria College freshmen and freshmen will be formally inducted into the student body of the college at the Soph-Frosh Banquet and the Candle Light Service which will end the initiation period.

Each freshman's uniform consists of a card bearing her name, course and year in red letters, and a scarlet mortarboard tied under her chin with scarlet and gold ribbons. In addition to wearing these, she cannot wear makeup and must carry her books tied with heavy cord and slung over her shoulder.

Freshies must open doors for sophs, carry their books, and generally obey orders.

The girls in residence are also required to make beds, eat meals with the left hand, go upstairs one step at a time and deliver Versities to the rooms. Failure to comply with these rules will be dealt with in court, the freshmen are warned.

On Thursday, the freshmen must all know-how to sophs anywhere in Vic or the residences.

Most freshmen admitted that the initiation wasn't as bad as expected. Helen Stewart, I Eng. Language and Literature said, "The one thing I don't like is having to do without make-up." Betty Watson, a freshman in Moderns, thinks it is kind of fun so far but fears the worst when how-towing starts on Thursday.

Audrey Davis, II Hist., expressed the opinion of most sophs when she said, "I think they're getting off too easy this year. After what we had to do..."

Rumours Dissipated By Varsity U.C. Workshop Investigated

Rat-Traps Made There Are Spread Over the Country to Lure Field Mice for Biological Research

METAL WORK DONE

Many passing students have glanced idly at the workshop behind University College, some perhaps wondering what role it plays in college life. Rumours have circulated to the effect that a craft course is to be instituted as a pass subject on honour courses. Another tale, better substantiated, has it that the shop is solely engaged in the production of rat traps for university buildings.

Intrigued by these rumours, The Varsity invaded the sanctum yesterday to learn the truth.

Rat-traps are actually produced in the U.C. workshop, but they are not intended for university rats, one of the workmen revealed. They are in great demand at the Biology Department, which spreads them about the country to lure inexperienced field mice to their faculty for purposes of research.

Rabbit cages are another staple product of the workshop. These as well as other animal cages are used in scientific laboratories throughout the campus.

But the principal work done in the shop is the production of all metal equipment needed for maintenance of the university buildings.

BONNER FORECASTS U.B.C. EXPANSION IN POST-WAR PERIOD

Urges Campaign Similar to that of 1922 when Students Petitioned for Completion of Construction of Buildings

AT CAIRN CEREMONY

Vancouver, October 7 (CUP)—Expansion of the University of British Columbia and all Canadian universities after the war is won, was forecast today in the traditional Cairn Ceremony by Robert Bonner, president of the Literary and Scientific Executive.

Speaking to the undergraduates who gathered around the Cairn, Bonner advised them that as alumni they would be called upon to support a student campaign for more buildings and expansion that would rival the historic campaign of the 1922.

It was then that students, tired of the cramped quarters in the traditional Fairview Shacks, petitioned the provincial government to complete the construction of the University of British Columbia at Point Grey which had commenced in 1915 and stopped because of the first World War.

As part of a detailed plan the students marched and hiked from Fairview to the Point Grey campus, some six miles distant, singing college songs in an effort to arouse support from the public.

SEMINAR TO BE HELD AT McLENNAN LABORATORY

The department of physics will hold a seminar under the direction of Professors H. A. McTaggart, D. S. Ainslie and John Satterly in room 43 of McLeNann Laboratory on Thursday, it was announced yesterday.

Subjects to be discussed will be Lithium-Fluoride Quartz Apochromat, Solid Fluorescent Materials and Absolute Determinations of the Acceleration of Gravity.

INTERFACULTY MEET FOR NOVICES ONLY

Varsity will have its first glimpse of the current new crop of cinder-scorchers at the Stadium on Friday, when the starting gun opens the Interfaculty Novice Track Meet.

As the name implies, entries in this meet are welcomed from all who have not participated in an intercollegiate track meet or who have not won or placed in any interfaculty track competition.

The University of Toronto Track Club is making every effort to ensure the success of Friday's meet. The club executive is fortunate in having for an advisory committee a group of men who are well-versed in track matters. This advisory group includes Larry O'Connor, former intercollegiate hurdling star.

The object of this meet is to give the novices a chance to show their prowess on the track and field, and to scout any promising material which might be developed into championship calibre.

A full program of events is scheduled, including sprints, hurdles, distance events, discus, javelin, pole-vault.

AUXILIARY BATTALION

Due to Thanksgiving Day, there will be no drill Saturday afternoon for the Auxiliary Battalion of the C.O.T.C., said E. A. This arrangement was made to avoid conflict with any holiday week-end arrangements which members of the battalion may have made, he said.

PARKS TO ADDRESS HART HOUSE MEN

"Youth and Marriage" Lecture to Open Series of Speeches on Problems of Youth by Religious Leaders

The Rev. J. D. Parks, who led the popular series last year on "Marriage", will address the men in the Music Room, Hart House, today, from 1:30 to 2 p.m., on "Youth and Marriage." This is the first noon meeting that the S.C.M. has had this year, but plans are being made for a series which will be conducted by the best available religious leaders.

Mr. Parks, who for several years broadcasted from Carlton Street United Church (familiar to many as "The House of Friendship") is now minister of High Park United Church. He is noted for his keen interest in students, and is a friend of many theological students on the campus. If the men show sufficient interest Mr. Parks will give again as last year a series of talks in the afternoon on youth problems in relation to marriage.

"MODERN TRANSPORTATION" TO BE SUBJECT OF ENGINEER'S TALK

"Modern Transportation" will be the subject of an address to be delivered at a meeting of the Toronto Section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in Room 21 of the Electrical Building next Friday evening.

The speaker will be G. W. Painter, Railway and Traction Engineer of the Canadian General Electric Company of Toronto.

A sound film entitled "Moving the Millions", presenting various types of trolley buses, Diesel coaches and street cars, will also be shown.

The meeting is open to anyone interested, the Institute announced.

NO BLACKOUTS IN CROSSING

By Rex Wilson

"My trip was practically normal," said George Jacob, Vincent Massey Fellow in the School of Graduate Studies, when questioned concerning travel in the Pacific in these uncertain times. "From Hong Kong to San Francisco there was not even a blackout aboard ship."

Mr. Jacob, an M.A. from St. John's College, Agra, the one town in India concerning which this reporter was able to speak with any semblance of intelligence, is here for a year's graduate study. He is a soft spoken, friendly and cultured young man who brings to this university a keen interest in student life and in his own field of study.

The Student Christian Movement which is active in the Christian colleges of India, claims a good deal of his interest.

"The universities of India are made up of affiliated colleges," he said. "Like the University of Toronto," the brash reporter ventured to suggest. "No, not quite," he explained patiently. "You see, India is a poor country with a much lower standard of living than you have here, therefore, to save expense to the students colleges are founded in each locality and are affiliated with the university of the province. The university consists usually of a governing body and examining board, with perhaps a school of graduate studies (Continued on Page 4)

Speech By Brewin Made Yesterday To C.C.F. Club

"The preservation of civil liberty is necessary if we are to preserve democracy," was the keynote of the talk given last night to the University Canadian Cooperative Federation Group by Andrew Brewin, a member of the provincial council of the C.C.F. who is actively connected with the civil liberties council in Toronto.

Mr. Brewin stated that although the state must be empowered to prevent anti-war propaganda, these powers should be limited to exclude repression by people who use this power for their own ends.

"In conclusion," said Mr. Brewin, "the exercise of one's democratic rights is important since peaceful change can only be achieved in a world where these rights are respected. We must see that these matters are viewed in a sane light. The real struggle will be after the war is over."

Fine Art Students Plan Club To Benefit All Years Of Course

Plans for a Fine Art Club will be discussed by students of all years of the Fine Arts Course at a meeting in the Women's Union at 4:30 p.m. today.

Projected plans for the new club call for a meeting each month in order that students of different years may meet and listen to guest speakers chosen from among prominent artists, art critics, museum directors and Toronto art gallery directors.

The first class of the Fine Art Department, now entering the fifth year of existence, was graduated last spring. Students of the course said need for some such organization as the Fine Art Club has been felt since the inauguration of the course and that the course is now firmly enough grounded to warrant foundation of the club and expectations of its success.

The first executive of the club will be elected at the meeting today and plans for the regular meeting will be considered. Martin Baldwin, director of the Toronto Art Gallery, is expected to be the first guest speaker.

For the present only students enrolled in the Honour Fine Art course are eligible for membership, it was announced.

Johnny Get Your Gun

Today some 29,000 young men will pack their dunnage bags and leave home for a thirty-day training period in thirty-nine different centres throughout the Dominion. With part of each week-end off, they will in reality spend about twenty-two days actually preparing for the possible future defence of their country. Yet here on this campus a military training centre larger than any of the others has taken shape. For with fifteen hundred men on the drill grounds last Saturday, and with several thousand others attending lectures and drills this week, the university has become a military centre in which over four thousand men are receiving training. Furthermore, they will be trained all year long, spending an average of six hours a week or more, and two weeks at camp will follow exams in the spring. Surely the response of this and other universities must draw the admiration and respect of the whole country.

The size of the university training scheme is of such a large scale that organizational details have not yet been wholly completed. Military staffs have been working at high pressure to get the program underway, with every prospect that all difficulties will be ironed out within a few days. By next week the entire male undergraduate body should be training in one of the three divisions of the plan.

If the public needs an illustration of the loyalty and sacrifice and seriousness of university youth, we can think of none finer than the fact that on our campus some four thousand boys are preparing themselves for Canada's defence. Not only are boys over 21 and thereby subject to the National Resources Mobilization Act receiving training, but all male students over 18 are engaged in the military scheme. The university is thus carrying out its part of the bargain whereby permission was granted to continue academic instruction and military training at the same time. In addition, we feel that the university is making one of the most concrete contributions to the future security of this nation, realizing that youths now under the age limit will probably be called upon in a year or so, and that preparation now will stand them, and the country too, in good stead. Apart from the two divisions mentioned, there is the time-honoured university contingent of the C.O.T.C., in which close to a thousand men will be studying to take their places as future officers. Surely there is no one blind enough to maintain, in the face of such a stirring performance, that the university is anything but loyal to the hilt and is not making its full contribution.

We are proud of the role the university is playing in this way, and we are proud of the fine spirit shown by the male undergraduates on this campus who have been called upon to make necessary sacrifices of time and energy for the future guarding of our shores. A fine example of this spirit was shown the other day when members of one faculty, faced with full time-tables, offered to train from five to eight p.m. on their particular night in addition to Saturday afternoon parades. There has been no grumbling. Rather, the challenge has been met with a responsive spirit which must surely make the leaders of this country feel that Canada's future is safe with Canada's youth.

The Students' Council

At the top of this column there appears daily the sentence: "Published five times a week by the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto." In this, and in a multitude of other ways, students throughout their four years on this campus come into contact with some activity carried on by the Students' Council. Each student pays a Council fee, and each student receives numerous benefits from it, but when one actually gets down to brass tacks, few students really know much about the organization and function of the Council, or S.A.C., as it is familiarly known.

The S.A.C. is the official student government body of this university. It is composed of a general secretary-treasurer, and an associate secretary, both of whom are graduates, and the heads of the student government organizations in each college and faculty. Thus its prime function is to act as the official representative body of the students, at the same time serving as a communication link between the university officials and the student body. Again, it is one of the few really all-university organizations on the campus, and does much to promote the spirit and interests of the university as a whole.

Out of fees paid by students, the S.A.C. provides numerous services which are being continually expanded under the excellent direction of Mr. E. A. Macdonald, permanent secretary-treasurer. The Loan Fund, the proportions of which have now reached a high figure, has proved of infinite value in assisting undergraduates to continue their education. Each year an undergraduate employment bureau is operated, and close to two thousand students were referred to positions of various types last year. Hundreds of part-time jobs are found for students during the school year, in addition to summer jobs.

The Students' Administrative Council is also responsible for the publication of The Varsity, the yearbook Torontonensis, and the familiar "bible" or Handbook presented to each student at the first of the year. In the past the S.A.C. has sponsored the Band, and it makes a yearly grant to the University Symphony Orchestra. The annual garden party given at Convocation in June is also another feature offered by this body.

The Council carries on a tremendous amount of worthwhile work, much of which is done by a small, hard-working permanent staff. It is an organization of which the student body may well be proud. It is of course the expression of the will of the students, for its members are the elected representatives of each college and faculty. Therefore a lively interest in its workings, a hearty support of its measures, and a keen appreciation of its many services are the just tributes which Varsity students can and should pay the Students' Administrative Council.

Avoid The Rush

Just about this time of year the Bursar's office in Simcoe Hall becomes the busiest spot on the campus, for the day is fast approaching when all student fees must be paid. In the past this has usually meant that on the final few days before the deadline hundreds of students storm the teller's cage, with the result that they have to wait in line for as long as two hours.

A rational approach to the problem of paying fees would, we feel, do much to make things easier both for the students and for the staff in the Bursar's office. We know how hard it is to part with money before it is necessary, but since it has to be parted with anyway, it seems a wise policy to part with it early and avoid the rush. Fees are payable any time at the office in Simcoe Hall at present. However, an easier method is to send a cheque by mail. If this method is followed, students are urged to state their name, address, faculty and course to assist the office in its work. The whole thing adds up to the fact that a little forethought will save a great deal of future trouble and foot-weariness. Besides, just think of the lectures you won't have to miss.

THE PROBLEM OF PYROTECHNICS

Many instrumental pieces on first hearing leave the listener dazzled and applauding vociferously, but tend to lose their appeal as they are heard oftener. These are the so-called "display pieces." First-class artists play them rarely as encores, but the amateur who has acquired some technical skill usually stuffs his program with them to the delight of his friends, and the boredom of the rest of the audience.

Most of the great composers have been guilty of a few of these circus freaks, tossing off their Staccato Etude or Perpetuum Mobile in the mood of

Thump thump Thud-thump thump
Thud-thump thud-thump thump thump
Thump tiddle thump thump
Ching!

(This ghastly sound climaxing a double milled ory at the St. George St. diggings shattered the usual savoir faire and bonhomie of our two immaculate investigators of the occult, Fotheringham and Marlborough-Beach. Fearing that the sound portended an early and horrible demise from heart-disease, as the result of a consistent and thorough-going policy of Not Living Right, the boys decide to turn on the gas and end it all. Marlborough-Beach reaches for the switch and turns it on full. Now read on.)

A rushing sound filled the air, almost drowning out the horrible throbbing. I closed my eyes and awaited the Great Releaser. My breathing became slower, deeper. A great peace stole over me. It was suddenly shattered by an agonized cry from Marlborough-Beach.

"Good Gad!" he screamed. "My feet are getting wet."

"Either another manifestation of the occult or else it is the waters of the Styx lapping about them," I replied, trying to steady his nerves during the last grim moments.

"Don't be a fool, man," snapped Marlborough-Beach. "I turned on the wrong tap."

I opened my eyes. It was so. He had turned on the water.

I rose from my chaise longue, and waded over to the basin. Turning off the tap, I faced Marlborough-Beach grimly.

"This is a bit awkward," I said. "You've gotten the carpet all wet, and besides, I just remembered. We can't use the gas. The man came and turned it off yesterday."

"We must find a way somehow," said Marlborough-Beach. "I can't stand that infernal sound!"

"Come on," I replied, "lets get out of this."

As we tottered down the stairs, we met my landlady. Politeness forbade my leaving her for the last time without a kindly word.

"And how are all the little ones, Mrs. Greenbaum," I enquired, smiling wanly. "Haven't you hear about mine Sammy," she replied in cultured accents, "he practising all time to be drummer in jazz band."

At this point a particularly loud thump-a think-a think re-echoed from the lower regions of the house. I looked at Marlborough-Beach. Marlborough-Beach looked at me.

"GOOD GAD," we both cried.

the life of the party displaying his latest card-trick. Although the inexperienced listener may be more deeply impressed, the majority of the audience accept the tid-bit in the spirit in which it is offered.

It is in concertos that the problem of pyrotechnics becomes acute. Obviously the concerto was originally designed as a medium with which composers could experiment—a single instrument or group playing against the background of the full orchestra. Soon the solo instrumentalists realized that they were being given a perfect opportunity to display their virtuosity, and composers began to leave blanks in the score for cadenzas in which the artist could improvise. In these passages, he could cut loose with all kinds of intricate manoeuvres which would leave the audience gasping. Soon this procedure became the accepted tradition and composers would write concertos especially for outstanding performers, endeavouring to make the pieces as brilliant as possible. Even composers who were interested in the concerto only from the academic point of view were

Speaking OF SPORT

By Fred Hall

"OH, YOU FARMER!"

During the second half of last Saturday's Balmly-Alert game, one of the forward passes of the Hamilton team zoomed right into the hands of the acting Beach quarterback, Johnny Manson. When Manson dropped the ball, one of those grandstand quarterbacks rose and yelled "Oh, you farmer!"

That is all the thanks a player gets for doing his best for his team when he was handicapped by a broken finger.

Early in the second quarter Manson stopped one of the Hamilton plungers and in the tackle, a finger was broken on his right hand. Manson left the field and Bobby Porter again took over at quarterback. The Beach trainer taped Manson's finger until it could be set by a doctor after the game and Johnny returned to the bench to watch the game.

Then soon after the kick-off in the second half, Bobby Porter dislocated his left shoulder and had to retire. Alex Ponton was now in a tight situation for both his quarterbacks had been injured. But Manson volunteered to go back in the game, broken finger or no broken finger.

Later, that Alert pass dropped into Johnny's hands, in fact the tip of the ball landed squarely on Manson's injured digit. Naturally, the pain forced him to drop the ball... it would have forced anybody to do likewise.

BANANAS

was around again the other day. Who was that? According to Steve he was one of the best linemen Varsity ever had.

While covering a sports assignment recently, I found the Athletic Office door blocked by a huge mass of humanity who was conversing with Steve. After the conversation ended, we pried our Athletic Director as to the identity of the disappearing athlete.

Griming broadly, Second Lieutenant Warren Stevens replied "That's the kind of rugby player we used to have. His name is Edmund Alexander Perry." In the autumn of 1934, Joe Carruthers was confronted by huge Perry, who asked if he could have an outfit. Surveying the huge frame of the rookie, Joe said "Yea, I guess you can. What size boots do you take?" Edmund calmly stuck out his foot and said "Fourteens."

A special pair was made for him and since he left Varsity they have been unused. Later the nickname "Bananas" was applied because of his enormous hands which looked like two bunches of bananas.

Perry was a great player. Steve says he will never forget what Perry did in a Varsity-Mustang game in 1935. Apparently two Mustang linemen trapped Bananas on each leg and tried to push him aside to make a hole for Boyce Sherker, Western's 190 lb. plunger. But Perry looked them. As Sherker came plunging past him, Bananas stuck out his hand and grabbed the front of Sherker's sweater. Perry's arm was swung back till it clicked and then Boyce was lifted off his feet and bounced smacko at Perry's feet. Yes, Steve often has wished that more fellows with size fourteens attended Varsity.

SOMETHING TO FINISH THE COLUMN

The gym has just received its annual shiny coat of varnish, and team practices for lacrosse and volleyball may now be held. Reservations for practice hours will likely commence next Wednesday.

ART, MUSIC & DRAMA

forced to conform if they wished to have their music performed. They even wrote their own cadenzas as a protection against excessively free improvisation.

Many surviving concertos suffer in one way or another from this custom. The formal and slightly dull nature of the first movement of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto, contrasting with the freer flow of the two later movements, is a product of the fashions of the day. The real fire and brilliance of Liszt's First Piano Concerto is marred by the profusion of tricks of the trade which dot its pages and which lose their effectiveness when heard more frequently.

It may be argued that a virtuoso will attract an audience which would otherwise show little interest in good music. While this may be true, the crowds that gathered would probably flock to Madison Square Garden to hear a performance of Beethoven's Fifth played simultaneously by five of the world's finest stop-watches to time the winner. With Mike Jacobs in charge of publicity, a couple of good waltzweights in the semi-final and Wendell Wilkie firing the starting gun, the affair would probably draw a capacity house, but on the evening of the performance, all music-lovers would be at home beside their radios listening to Artie Shaw.

—E.S.

PERISHABLE GOODS

Nothing achieves more popularity than a good, fresh drawing-room comedy. Hollywood turns them out by the dozens, and they draw capacity houses while The Grapes of Wrath just gets by. The free and easy, gag-laden atmosphere is one of the most relaxing types of entertainment known. But for some reason, these witty little pieces never manage to hang on for more than a few seasons.

The appearance of Hands Across the Sea at a local theatre this week is an emphatic statement of this fact. Probably no playwright has achieved anything in the drawing-room comedy field

Gridders To Begin Fight For Historic Mulock Cup

Sinus Trouble Prevents Jack Guigley, Member of Last Year's Team, from Playing this Season

INTENSIVE TRAINING

The grass on the back campus is taking an awful beating these days from the combined tramping of the trainees and the cleated sabots of the inter-faculty footballers.

With the opening whistle of the football schedule a matter of days away, the gridders are bearing down on the conditioning and signal practice before starting the grind which will bring to the champions at season's end the historic Mulock Cup.

The Fighting Irish of St. Mike's are expected to provide a spirited defense of the inter-faculty crown which they won last year after a thrilling final play-off with Trinity College.

One of their star performers of last year, Jack Quigley, contracted sinus trouble shortly before returning to Varsity from his home out west, and will not be wearing the Double Blue this season. However, Jack Ronayne, who came through with a touchdown in the play-offs last year, is very much in evidence, as are those pass-snagging outsiders Jack Roberts and Costello.

The Irish are at present bawling the fact that two of their most promising frosh are not yet eligible to play in the intramural league. These young stars are Dan Fox and Dominic Zino. It was Zino-to-Fox-for-a-touchdown on two occasions last Friday when the St. Mike's freshmen tallied 10 points against their sophomore rivals in a tussle which the sophs won by 11-10. The Fox lad is a rangy fellow with a sure pair of mitts. He was chosen as all-county for his position when he played in the high school league in Rochester last fall.

Little word has come out of the Trinity camp concerning the present outlook for the Anglican gridders. The Red and Black made a grand fight last year before bowing out to the present title-holders from Bay Street.

The Meds men are expected to be right in the fight this year, with their stellar punter Clincekett back on the team. The Senior Meds are under the tutelage of Earl Selkirk. The Junior Meds are running through their plays as directed by Coach Jim Murray.

Annis Stulus is teaching the Engineers a nice assortment of plays which will make the Schoolmen a real threat to those in their group. Jack "Special Delivery" Plaxton, formerly of the Varsity senior intercollegiate squad, is on the School half-time.

The Little Faculty of Forestry is fortunate in having for its coach the veteran mentor Don Graham. Oon is giving lots of attention to the fundamentals of the game, and is making sure from the beginning that the Woodsmen have a compact time which can keep the opposition from gaining by the ground route, and which can also confuse the opposing secondary through efficiency in making two-hole and four-hole openings for the ball carrier.

Coach Bernie Taylor and Captain Pete Quetin are optimistic concerning Victoria's chances this year. A number of linemen have come out to bolster the front wall, including Bob Irwin who has been on the sick list until recently.

PRACTICES

For this week only the back campus will be available for soccer and rugby practices. Managers are asked to watch The Varsity for further notices.

The Trinity field is available for all faculties from Monday to Friday until 4:45 p.m. Managers are asked to make reservations through the athletic office, Hart House.

DENT'S FOOTBALLERS READY FOR ACTION

Team Made Up of Old Players Plus Several Rookies is Shaping Up Well Says Coach Freddie Parrott

Dent's footballers have been turning out for practices of late and from reports it appears that their newest rugby edition is shaping up well.

Last year's squad is practically intact, and there is some impressive looking rookie material on hand, which Coach Freddie Parrott hopes to add to his store of veterans. Murray Houghton is back in his old position as kicking half, and at present is getting away 50-yard punts pretty regularly. Coleman and Corcoran are holding down the same spots as last year. The team is also fortunate in retaining the services of the North Bay lads, Wee Terry McKee, star hockeyist with Dents, on flying wing, and Big Bill Hamblly.

Amongst the newcomers John Milne, up from last year's city champs, Webster and Tripp look best.

JACOB RELATES PROBLEMS IN INDIA

attached. Its main function is to supervise the standards of scholarship in the colleges.

In reply to a question about the political interests of Indian students, Mr. Jacob said, "Their interests are quite lively, especially since elected cabinet ministers have taken the places of the appointed ministers who formerly held the positions. The Congress party now controls seven out of eleven provinces." "What about the native states?" inquired the reporter, just looking for a chance to show his ignorance. "That is quite another thing," Mr. Jacob answered. "The native states are all under rajahs and the people have no place in politics there. The existence of these states is a big obstacle to the united and independent India of which the students dream."

"What about government in the native states?" Mr. Jacob was asked. "It varies according to the state and the whim of the ruler. Mysore and my home state, Travancore, are the best governed and have the benefit of progressive rulers. On the other hand most of the native states are backward and suffer from the neglect of whimsical rulers." The British, he added, prevent the most severe abuses and keep peace between the states.

In the field of literature, which is Mr. Jacob's own field of teaching, progress in the vernacular of India is restricted by the lack of a tongue common to the whole country. "English," he said, "is the language of the educated man and the modern literature of Congress party would like to establish a common vernacular, he stated, but with the existence of a large number of languages and dialects in the country such a project seems futuristic.

they constructed the Cairn with available rocks and placed in it the signatures of 51,000 citizens of Vancouver and British Columbia who supported their demands for a newer and better university. They won their case but not before Ab Richards, president of the Alma Mater Society had to appear before the provincial legislature with his arguments for immediate construction. Subsequently the university was erected and finally opened in 1925.

This trek and campaign has developed into a tradition which is revived in spirit each year at the Cairn Ceremony.

ART, MUSIC & DRAMA

Drawing-room comedy can never be anything else but perishable. A wartime audience may be glad to relax while they are regaled by an evening of streamlined gagging, hair-pulling and face-slapping, but the plays that will live must be of sterner stuff. A play with a solid backbone of plot and characterization will hold people's interest, unconsciously perhaps, though they disclaim all knowledge of "that sort of thing." But the comedy which is meant merely to amuse must constantly be replaced by something louder and funnier until the noise of the side-splitting laughter can blot out entirely the sound of bursting bombs.—E.S.

brought together the members of the Glee Club for the first time this year at a meeting held yesterday in the Women's Union under the leadership of Mr. Lambert.

Lois Lloyd, club representative to the Women's Undergraduate Association, announced that the executive for the coming season will be elected at the next meeting, Tuesday, Oct. 15.

The organization meets once a week throughout the year to prepare songs for its two annual performances—the Dean's Christmas Party and the final concert given usually in March at the Women's Union.

The songs sung at the meeting were: Here's a Health unto His Majesty, Traditional; The Long Day Closes, Sullivan; The Dance, Elgar.

Graham, II Vic.

Tom Paton, III Vic, when asked how this initiation compared with others he had seen, replied "It seems a very passive initiation—it lacks the verve of other years."

Many freshmen object to the harshness of the stiff orange ribbons on the mortarboards, which, they say, chafe their chins considerably. However, this inconvenience is compensated for by the fact that all and sundry autograph the little hats. Some of the signatures are prized very highly and the freshmen are anxious to hold on to them.

Wide-Eyed In Gotham

By Reuben Frank

(A Canadian University Press Feature)
Last of the Health Clowns

Flushing, N.Y.—The stage attractions at the New York World's Fair (of 1940) are variously good, bad and indifferent, but they are all spectacular. A bevy of beautiful dancers swimming to the music of Vincent Lopez' orchestra at the Aquacade; Gypsy Rose Lee at the Streets of Paris; a chorus of thousands singing Irving Berlin's songs on the world's largest revolving stages at the American Jubilee . . . and then the "girlie" shows, Zorina, Living Magazine Covers, 20,000 Legs Under the Sea and so on down the Great White Way. Women are the keynote, women in bathing suits, women in tights, women in gradual diminishings and just women. There is still a bit of the circus stuff, but when a show on the Midway (Great White Way to you) wants to draw a crowd for a thirty-foot monster, it exhibits two pretty women as nearly dechabelle as Mayor LaGuardia will allow, and from the National Cash Register to Liberty Lake all you can hear is " . . . undraped and undraped . . ."

Yet, the best entertainer at the Fair is a man who wears yellow pantsloons, a green jacket, a silk hat and a putty nose. Actually, his hands and his eyes are the only parts of his anatomy exposed to public view. What is more, he isn't even on the Great White Way, but in the heart of the exhibit area, in the Federal Works Agency building, where he does three a day and four on Sundays flanked by the New York City Symphony and the American Folk Dance Group. His friends call him Lucas, but the kids—and there are thousands of them—know him as Doctor Zip, the health clown.

"Now I'm going to do some magic." See this little piece of tissue paper? Read what is written on it: "Good habits make good health." You stick to your good habits and you will always have good health. All-rightie, now I am going to tear up this piece of paper into two . . . four . . . eight . . . oh, lots of pieces. Then I'll sprinkle some woolfe-dust from my vest-pocket here on the torn ends of paper. Woolfe-dust is a very magic powder. . ."

His shoes are two feet long and his putty nose is not much shorter. As for his tricks, well, they don't show much of an edge upon any professional magician. You know the stuff, making an egg disappear and then appear where it wasn't, untying the knot in one bunch and tying up the other bunch of silks without even so much as looking at them. But he speaks in a childish drawl, and when he pulls dry handkerchiefs from a cylinder full of water, they are printed with beets, carrots, potatoes and other vegetables, "and are very good for you, too."

"The name Zip was the original when I first started using it." The putty nose comes off very easily, but the make-up sticks in spots. "Now, of course, they are using it for depilatory creams and all sorts of things, but back in 1924 in Detroit, when I first started, it was original. No, I never was a vaudeville magician; I got into this through puppetry, strangely enough. I was asked to rig up a puppet show for the Tuberculosis Association, out there, and they wanted some clowning in between the acts, while the puppets were being prepared. Well, I never did get around to the puppets. . ."

There have been five hundred thousand New York public school children who were glad to miss an afternoon of reading and arithmetic to see the funny magician. Mr. Lucas has figures to prove it. His work for the Board of Education is followed up the next week by hygiene lessons, but the real value is derived when the children see him pour eight glasses of water out of an empty pitcher "and you can get your eight glasses of water a day from the tap."

Six months touring with Tony Sarg as a puppeteer, a few months with the Borestell Stock Company, starring Ann Harding, a turn or two on Broadway, acting between lay-offs, but by and large he has been Doctor Zip since 1924. In 1930 he left the consumptive of Michigan to amuse the school-children here. He made the change—well it seems that health clowns are all employed by charitable institutions, "and you know what happened to them in 1930."

There were seven health clowns at one time. "That's the peak, and the number has been diminishing gradually until I am the last, so far as I know." The first one was Cho Cho (he's long since dead) who took his name from the Children's Health Organization. And there were others, but they have found other things to do. There was Healthy, the Milk Clown who used to work for the Dairymen's Association, but has made quite a success as a writer since then.

"Those damned bells!" In our far from humble opinion, the speaker ranks second only to health clown Lucas among the entertainers at Cousin Grover's Carnival. But technically he is even less of a professional entertainer than Doctor Zip. From his stand, a spit and a whistle from the lagoon of nations, he sells concave metal discs. Two discs are stuck together and you can talk or hum into them. The slight vibration if properly controlled can give the illusion of a trumpet, a saxophone or even a violin.

But it's not a gasoo. "What makes the noise in a gasoo? I'll tell you, tissue paper. Sometimes the tissue paper breaks, and you go upstairs for more. It's two-to-one the door is locked." And so his line progresses, raw gags and pathos mingled; his voice is very reminiscent of George Jessel — and those vest-pocket orchestras of his sell with amazing speed. "I got a few more left in the case here so I want to sell them tonight. If there aren't enough in the case left for the people who want to buy them, don't worry, I got plenty more cases."

In front of him is the Standard Braids Building, with a puppet show going on night and day. Behind him as he talks is the Belgian building, topped by a pretentious carillon tower. Every evening, from eight o'clock to nine, the carillonner peels forth Long, Long Ago, Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair, Auld Lang Syne and other "folk-tunes" and "lighter classics." To the man on the stand it's just "those damned bells."

His voice breaks as he tells his woes. "I pay a hundred and fifty bucks a week for this stand." It is about the size of a phone booth, but he attracts a crowd four yards deep all around him. "That's more per foot than any big exhibit in the whole Fair, and extra for lights. But when I sign the contract, they don't tell me nothing about them bells. Does anybody listen to them? No, but my best time, just before the people are going to see the amusements, and they play bells."

"I used to close up when they played, but I can't afford it, so now I talk myself home. O.K. so I like a bell too once in a while. You hit a bell and it goes 'Bong' and it sounds beautiful. You hit it again, and it goes 'Bong' again, not so beautiful as before but still beautiful. But they go on for hours. Do you know what they're trying to do on the damned bells?" He pauses for dramatic effect. "They're trying to play a song with them."

SETTLEMENT HEAD SAYS STUDENT AID ESPECIALLY WELCOME

Mrs. Crowther, Speaking at Tea, Says Volunteers Are Needed in All Branches of Settlement Work

CARRY ON REGULAR WORK

Mrs. K. F. Crowther, head resident of the University Settlement, said yesterday that the Settlement feels that it can best meet the needs of the present situation by carrying on its regular work, thus giving a necessary feeling of security to those served by the organization. Mrs. Crowther spoke at a tea held to acquaint students with the work and aims of the organization. Mrs. Crowther said that volunteers are needed in every branch of the work and added that Varsity students are especially welcome in assisting with the nursery school, handicrafts, and English classes, as well as caring for the children and taking an interest in the Little Theatre. Men students who are interested in athletics and manual work are also needed by the Settlement, she said.

Equipped with a permanent staff of seven, the organization strives to promote a sense of community responsibility among its 1400 members, and to adjust the people of European origin to a Canadian culture. By means of clubs in which all recreations are taught, and which are conducted for all age groups, the Settlement endeavours to serve the entire family.

VIC SOPHOMORES EJECTED FROM FROSH BOB PRACTICE

An extra note of enjoyment was added to the Vic freshman Bob practice at the Central "Y" last evening when a number of sophomores attempted to crash it. Despite the use of outdated and purloined registration cards, the second year students were given two minutes to retire to the street, and then were materially aided in doing so.

At the same time, the sophs were holding practices in a different part of the city where no crashes were reported.

Mel Elson, Varsity Graduate Now With R.A.F., Awarded D.F.C.

Melbourne A. Elson, graduate of the School of Practical Science, now serving with the Royal Air Force, recently was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, it has been learned. Elson was active in rugby, rowing and boxing activities during his stay at college.

Rated as one of the finest outside players that ever played on the University of Toronto team, he played on the senior intercollegiate team from 1929-31 and received his first colours during that period. The following year saw him the star of several games when Varsity battled to the intercollegiate championship.

A sports-writer of one of Toronto's daily papers discovered Elson one summer working as a labourer in the construction of the reservoir at Spadina Road and St. Clair. Elson explained that he was working there in order to build up his shoulders for the coming football season.

Representing the University of Toronto on the intercollegiate boxing, wrestling and fencing team, Elson fought at 165 lbs., and received his 3rd colours in this manner.

Elson's ability was not limited to athletic achievement, for in his junior year he was awarded the Semi-Centennial Award for achievements inside the classroom and out. He was also the president of the first year Applied Science course. Elson received his Bachelor of Science degree in this course, when he graduated in 1933.

Dhami, Indian Psychologist To Open Lecture Series

I.S.S. Work Outlined

Senior Tutor at Victoria Sketches History, Work and Aims of International Student Service

RAISED $1500 LAST YEAR

R. G. Riddell, senior tutor at Victoria College, told The Varsity yesterday that the International Student Service is conscious of the secondary importance of its appeal compared with the war effort.

Mr. Riddell said, "The organization is based on the assumption that the reorganization of the world, in the long run, requires the preservation of university life amongst all kinds of students, and to rescue a few from central Europe and from China at this time is to help in the restoring of a sane world."

Mr. Riddell sketched the history of the organization which was begun at the end of the last war, when the university careers of many central European students had been destroyed by war or revolution. He cited particular cases of students who are now in responsible positions in Canada whom the I.S.S. had helped at that time.

The 1920's were marked by less acute problems of this sort, and the organization devoted itself to the establishment of international student activities and conferences. With the German revolution of 1933, the problem of student relief reappeared, and has continued; the outbreak of war changed this problem, but did not remove it. Mr. Riddell mentioned that since the I.S.S. appeal is registered under the War Charities Act, there is no question of any of the money raised being used in territory controlled by the enemy.

It has always been the endeavour of this organization to give relief to students of real ability, regardless of their (Continued on Page 3)

Purpose is to Present Psychology So that Ordinary People Can Use It in Daily Life, Dr. Dhami Said

POPULAR LECTURES

Sadhu Singh Dhami, M.A., Ph.D., of Punjab, India, eminent psychologist and lecturer, will open a series of lectures for the public in Toronto on Oct. 17. The series of Monday night lectures is entitled "Twelve Great Men, Their Lives and Thought." A second series of Friday night lectures is "About Yourself and the Other Fellow."

"My purpose is to present psychology in such a way that ordinary people can make use of it in their daily life," Dr. Dhami said. The lectures will be informal and are designed to give the truths of psychology in popular form, he said.

Dr. Dhami left India in pursuit of learning and now feels that he can study India and the East much better from a distance. Except for two years at the University of Benares, the ancient centre of Indian culture, he has pursued his college and graduate study in Canada and the United States. He has attended the University of Toronto, where he obtained his doctorate, the University of British Columbia, the University of Alberta, and the University of California.

Dr. Dhami considers Toronto one of the best universities in Canada, especially in its "very capable" department (Continued on Page 4)

Dr. Cody's Message To Undergraduate Women

After consultation with the Red Cross officials, I am glad to authorize the formation of an organization for undergraduate women's war work.

A unit of the Women's Voluntary Service Corps of the Red Cross Society of Canada is to be established in the University of Toronto as an activity of the Women's Athletic Association. The unit will be known as the University Women's Service Training Detachment. The purpose of the Detachment is to prepare students for future enrolment in the Women's Voluntary Service Corps and for other forms of national service in which they may wish to participate.

The general course of training will include instruction in Red Cross organization and objectives, office duties and administration, military correspondence, military law and K. R. & O., military department, military drill and Physical Training. The general course will lead to further specialized instruction in preparation for specific types of service.

Regulation uniforms will be worn by members for drill and instruction periods.

The Red Cross lays down the following general requirements: (1) Applicants for enrolment must be undergraduates fully registered in the University of Toronto. (2) They must present two personal character references and a certificate of physical fitness from the University Medical Adviser for Women. (3) They must be between the ages of 18 and 45 years. (4) The Red Cross reserves the right to limit the enrolment to 200 and to select from the applicants those who will be best fitted for future service by virtue of previous training, physical condition, nearness to graduation and general aptitude for the type of work to be undertaken. Special consideration will be given to athletes and students with experience in executive work.

H. J. CODY, President.

CLAWSON DEFENDS FRESHMAN SPORT CONSCRIPTION

As University College freshmen filed through the junior common room yesterday noon, signing entry blanks for the interfaculty hockey run to be held October 26, Ged Clawson, Athletic Director of the U.C. Literary and Athletic Society discussed with The Varsity the recently-announced ruling whereby all U.C. fresh must enter the event.

"The lit has been criticized recently," he said, "by many U.C. men who term this action high-handed. Although the move is a new one for this college, I consider it perfectly justifiable."

"U.C.'s initiation is admittedly a very mild affair. Surely none of the freshmen will have cause to complain unduly at having to compete in a two-mile race. And surely none of the other colleges should object on the grounds of unfair competition because our executive shows sufficient initiative to make an effort to get all the frosh out for this event. This is the only athletic event in which they must enter."

"The move was criticized in Owen Prichard's column in Monday's Varsity," he continued. "Many of Owen's points were well-taken, but I thought some of his comments were unjustified. After all, Wyche was always the worst offender in entering complete novices in athletic events. I have no intention of entering such men in senior events, but I see no reason that novices should not enter junior events. Surely it is for this purpose that they are conducted."

"This new ruling is not a method of compulsion, but of organization," he

REV. PARKS SPEAKS AT INITIAL MEETING OF NEW S.C.M. SERIES

Minister Declares that Failure in Life Due to Three Main Causes — Ignorance, Low Ideals, Lack of Self-Control

MARRIAGE AS COURSE

"Christianity offers the truest picture of the way the marriage instinct is to be utilized for happiness and joy in life," said Rev. J. D. Parks, minister of High Park United Church, in his address in the Music Room of Hart House yesterday. Mr. Parks spoke on "Youth and Marriage," the first of a series of noon hour talks sponsored by the Student Christian Movement.

Mr. Parks said that marriage should be a recognized course on the university calendar and that it was a subject in which those taking courses in medicine, teaching and theology should be particularly interested.

Failure in life is due to three main causes—ignorance, low ideals and lack of self control, he said. "Anyone who does not know well the physiology and psychology of sex is ignorant, or at least more ignorant than he should be," said Mr. Parks.

He pointed out that everyone has a philosophy of sex and that a philosophy concerning the facts of life is essential. "Man must control sex in order to be a powerful personality," Mr. Parks said.

Ketchum Tells Students Much Present Knowledge May Be Useless Later

History Club Hears Martin

Facing Existence of New World Order "British Commonwealth Alone Stands in Arms to Resist It," Said Martin

RECORD ATTENDANCE

Facing the existence of a new world order, "the British Commonwealth alone stands in arms to resist it," said Professor Chester Martin in the keynote address to the opening meeting of the Modern History Club last night. A record attendance of eighty, including students and staff members, made the meeting the largest in the organization's history.

Members of the executive stated that the record attendance was due mainly to the fact that first year students in Social and Philosophical Studies are being admitted for the first time.

Professor Martin encouraged the students to take a spirited part in all discussions, stating that the most significant thing that the club will do will be to help members to understand their relation to the times in which they live. "The fortunes and prospects of Modern History in this university are in your hands," concluded Professor Martin, head of the History Department.

The prime purpose of the club, said Harold Nelson, president, is to promote friendship and mutual admiration between students and staff. Social events for the year were outlined by Bob Phillips, social director, and these will include a weiner roast, an informal Christmas party, a banquet and possibly several skating and skiing outings. He emphasized that social activities of the club would not, however, supersede the more serious phases of its activity.

Education May Seem too Remote in War-time, Yet Win or Lose, World Bound to be Different, He Says

ADVISES ACTIVITY

Professor J. D. Ketchum of the Psychology department yesterday told students that much of their present knowledge may be useless after the war. Professor Ketchum spoke at the Orientation Tea at Wynnwood, sponsored by the Victoria College Union. "To the student in war-time, education is apt to seem too remote," Professor Ketchum said. "Yet we must realize that whether we win or lose the world is bound to become almost unrecognizably different."

Professor Ketchum states that if the university has anything to contribute it is in emphasizing that in applying intelligence in an unbiased way to international and social problems will man ever emerge victorious. "Students should benefit by training at the university when stereotyped solutions are running wild," Professor Ketchum said. "Education is neither less nor more important in war-time than in peace-time—its aim is to teach human beings to think things through."

Professor Ketchum told students that they could not remain in an emergency state of mind perpetually. "Those who worry themselves sick about the war are not emotionally healthy," Professor Ketchum said. He advised students to keep active and busy.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE TO INITIATE FRESHIES

For the first time in the history of the faculty, the freshies in Household Science are being initiated. For a week the dietitians will display a cap and broom as emblems of house-wifely endeavour.

Miss Lindsley, of the secretary's office of the Lillian Massey Building, said that up to this time no form of initiation has been undergone by the freshies.

Eminent Toronto Professor To Teach At Columbia, Princeton

Recognized as one of the greatest scholars ever to come to the University of Toronto, Professor Jacques Maritain is spending the present term giving two series of lectures in the United States. During the first semester, Professor Maritain will be lecturing on philosophy in the graduate school of Columbia University, and after New Year's will present a similar course at Princeton.

In his early fifties, Doctor Maritain himself is known internationally as a philosopher and was once a student of Bergson in Paris. For the past twenty-five years he has been a great friend of poets, musicians, and painters among the bohemian crowd in his native city and during that time he has had a very marked influence on their works.

As well as lecturing in the United States, Doctor Maritain is a professor of philosophy at the Institute Catholique de Paris, and at the Institute of Medieval Studies in St. Michael's. During the past twenty years he has written some twenty-five volumes in both French and English on philosophy as well as innumerable shorter essays.

Unless war interferes, Doctor Maritain will be the Gifford Lecturer at St. Andrews University, Scotland, for the years 1941 and 1942. This is a lectureship which is held only by the world's most eminent scholars.

COMMITTEE DINNER ADDRESSED BY CODY

The thirteenth annual dinner of the committees of Hart House was held in the Great Hall last night. A cablegram of good wishes and extracts of a letter received from the Warden, J. B. Bickerseth, on leave of absence in England, were read.

The speaker of the evening, Dr. H. J. Cody, was introduced by Acting-Warden J. R. Gilley. President Cody stressed the fact that in such times as these no one must be allowed to say that university students held a privileged position. It was necessary that they justify their existence as never before. "Surely it will be the part of educated persons . . . to save civilization from decay, from rotting away . . ." he said.

"The spirit of England, seeming 'to grow finer as the blows grow harder, . . . was a constant challenge to us,'" President Cody continued. He was confident, however, that everyone would do his part with the fullest measure of determination.

The evening closed with the showing of the movies taken by Acting Controller W. R. Cowan.

Women's War Service

Since the discontinuation of intercollegiate sports was decided upon, the Women's Athletic Directorate of the university has been striving to find a suitable activity which would involve training for national service for women athletes who had previously participated in intercollegiate competition. The plan announced today by Dr. Cody (see page one) is the result of these efforts.

It was felt by the Directorate that the Red Cross would be a logical place to obtain advice and assistance in deciding just what form this war training work would take. The plan just announced is the result of various conferences between Mrs. Plumtre and Mrs. Errington Christie of the Red Cross, and representatives of the Women's Athletic Directorate. The co-operation of the President was most valuable in completing arrangements.

THE UNIVERSITY WOMEN'S SERVICE TRAINING DETACHMENT is to be a special section of the Administration Service of the Canadian Red Cross Women's Voluntary Service Corps. The Corps is a very important new branch of Red Cross organization and is national in scope. All training which is undertaken under its auspices is in preparation for essential national service and each section will prepare its members for a type of work which is already needed. The Red Cross, however, does not in any way guarantee that openings will be found for those who take the training.

The Administration Section under which the University Detachment will be placed, will be made up of women trained in the various types of office administration, secretarial duties, general executive and organization work and specialized fields such as telephone switchboard operation, comptometer operation, and simple accounting. They will have a background of essential military terms and procedure, and may be further trained in vital military auxiliary work of a confidential nature.

The Red Cross officials feel that the university graduate is especially qualified for this type of work by her background and education and that the university is also a logical place to look for trained officers and instructors in the various fields. In the communication from Mrs. Plumtre confirming the formation of the University Detachment, she makes the following significant statement:

"We all think it is essential that students should sign an application form for the proposed training course on the lines of the application for the Corps as this will give them the idea of serious enlistment for training, with the idea of carrying on in service for the future."

The University Detachment will wear for drill and lectures a simplified form of the regulation Corps uniform. Each member must provide her own uniform but caps and accessories will probably be provided by the Athletic Association.

The timetable for drills and lectures has not yet been drawn up but it is hoped to have two periods of outdoor drill from 5.15 to 6 p.m. each week while the weather is suitable, with one evening lecture. Later two evening lecture hours and one of drill will probably be required. Three hours work per week will in any case be the maximum, and an effort will be made to divide this between two mid-week evenings. The course will run for approximately eight weeks in the fall term and 10 weeks in the spring term, finishing about March 15. Detachment members will be expected to pass tests on the term's work before Christmas and in March and it is intended that specialized courses will be arranged after the university examinations for those who qualify.

List of requirements for entrance to this course will be found in the President's message on Page One of this issue. Application blanks are now being printed and will be available by Wednesday, Oct. 16. These may be obtained from the Athletic Office, Room 82, University College. Students desiring further information should see Miss Parkes in that office.

It is to be hoped that the undergraduate women of the university will realize that if they are granted permission to take this course, they are being granted a great privilege. No one is expected to apply for admittance unless they are earnestly desirous of making use of the work taught when they are free to do so. Enrolment will probably be limited to approximately 200 and thus space will be too valuable to be wasted. In addition, such a course is naturally an expense both in valuable time and in money to the Red Cross and the Athletic Directorate, and should therefore be fully appreciated by all who propose to take it.

No More Melodies

All you enthusiasts of popular music had better keep your ears glued to the radio these days and absorb all you can of your favourite melodies, because you may not be hearing them much longer. At least you won't be hearing them over any major United States radio station, unless a compromise is reached by ASCAP and the radio networks before the first of January. Lack of any such compromise will mean banning from the air practically all of today's most popular songs.

ASCAP—short for the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers—owns most of the music you have been enjoying via the airways for many years back. Until this year, they have charged every American radio station 5 per cent of their gross income for the use of their songs. Recently they decided to boost the charge to what stations claim will amount to almost twice as much, with the new rates going into effect January 1. Broadcasting corporations figure they are being "held up" on the deal and have refused to accept it, with the result that at the end of the current year they will sever relations with ASCAP and its music. This decision was made by the networks that cover all the larger stations. Some substitution will naturally have to be made for ASCAP music, so the B.M.I.—Broadcast Music Incorporated—has been formed by the broadcasting union to replace it. Example of B.M.I. songs now being successfully "plugged" by American stations are "Here I Go" and "Practice Makes Perfect."

If the networks manage to get along on B.M.I. music for the first few months, it will probably not take ASCAP long to come to terms with them, since in addition to the large loss of income they will sustain, it would be practically impossible for them to put any song across with a very great degree of success if it were never played over an American station. Meanwhile, the B.M.I. is on the lookout for new talent in the song writing field, and is busy developing new songs so that the networks will not be left totally at a loss when the year ends. The networks feel that the going may be a little difficult at first, but it will not take long for ASCAP's songs to drop from demand when they are no longer heard on the airways.

One of the major Hollywood studios found this out a few years ago when it withdrew from ASCAP and its songs were dropped from the air. It soon got back into the fold when it discovered that its musical comedies were proving very unsuccessful, because few people had ever heard of the songs in them. It may be added that Canadian radio stations will have no such experiment to face, because rates here are regulated by the government.

ART MUSIC

THE CRITIC AND YOU

Now seems as good a time as any other to discuss the relation of the critic to his reader. Every year, scores of threats are made against his very life by those artists, musicians, and actors (to say nothing of their innumerable idolaters) who have been unfortunate enough to suffer at his hands. He is accused of prejudice, favouritism, and at times even prevarication. He is sneered at and scoffed at by those who claim greater erudition. These few words from one of them may serve to at least explain, if not to justify, his case.

Criticism, in any art, is bound to rest finally on the personal reactions of the critic to the subject under question. Certain canons of criticism have been ponderously laid down in an immense volume of writings (by the critics), but on analysis at least the greater part proves to be nothing more than their same personal whims disguised under a more lofty style than day to day criticism. Music and Drama are even worse than Art criticism in this respect. There, the criticism revolves not only about the work itself, but also about the performance it received. In music itself, the "makers" are nearly all

Heil Harrier!

(The scene is the common room of St. Pancras. The New Boys are assembled, cringing about the walls, and the Head Boy, Ned Dawson, is addressing them.)

NED DAWSON: Look here, you chaps, we simply must win the athletic meet against Harrow. We're bigger than they are, so let's wipe the floor with 'em.

(A New Boy giggles nervously. Dawson glares at him and continues.)

DAWSON: We've been easy on you chaps this year. We've treated you like gentlemen so far. We've bullied you no more than usual and nobody has had their arm twisted off yet as they do at dirty old Harrow.

(Chorus of cat-calls and cries of "Dirty Harrow," "Shame" and "Cheese it!")

DAWSON: But any chump who doesn't win the Harrier is going to get clucked into Coventry jolly quick. (A nervous New Boy bursts into tears and is harshly silenced by the St. Pancras Publicity Director.)

PUBLICITY DIRECTOR: Shut up, you, no blubbing. (He boxes his ears.)

DAWSON: All the prefects will be running. . . .

(The prefects burst into tears and are silenced by the New Boys.)

DAWSON: So will the publicity director.

(Publicity Director bursts into tears. Dawson boxes his ears.)

DAWSON: Fine propagandist you are.

(Publicity Director blows his nose and retires into a corner, sniffing audibly.)

DAWSON: All classes will be cancelled during the Michaelmas term in order to give everyone a chance to finish. Anyone scratching their entry will be canned without trial. The Tuck Shop will be closed so that everyone can get into training.

(Everyone bursts into tears. They start boxing each other's ears.)

TIM SMEED (waving his crutches pathetically): Do I have to run too, zur?

DAWSON: We'll put casters on your crutches so you can make better time.

CRANSTON MAJOR: Just a minute, Dawson, you'll have to run too, you know!

THE END

dead, and when the critic starts to write, the only contemporary he can bring in is the artist. The artist looks to the box office for his bread and butter and, if he is "panned," begins to get worried. He will, if he is wise, laugh and keep his sanity because to all appearances very few people are guided by any critic in the choice of their entertainment.

What should your attitude towards the critic be? I should like to recommend sympathy, but we can hardly expect that. When the listener is enjoying the music or the play as an emotion (very few people go deeper in their reaction to art) the critic is sitting there watching for the French Horn solos, or, if he is slightly farther advanced, analysing the tempi and comparing the interpretation with the last performance he has heard. If it is a play, he is on his toes for faulty timing, bad lighting, and a host of other incidents which are foreign to a complete enjoyment of his evening. Then, since The Varsity is a morning paper, and the deadline comes soon after midnight, he must give a spur of the moment decision about what he has heard, and write it in recognizable English, tailored to fill the still-remaining gaps in the issue.

When you read the criticism next morning, try to remember that the writer was human too. He may have been forced to listen to so much Techni-kowsky even at this early stage of his career that he is already tired. Maybe the steady diet of "English" music which has been ringing in his ears has almost overpowered him. There is such a lot of it exactly the same. Perhaps he has a dislike for noisy

OVER THE NET

A Davis Cup Team member. Three intercollegiate champions. A couple of newcomers that can stay with the best of 'em. The play to be right on the campus. A new Trophy to go gunning for. Doubles and singles fields wide open. The entry fee cut in half. What more could you ask for? And it's all yours to watch from Wednesday on next week.

This interfaculty tennis tournament (in case you hadn't gathered as much by this time) promises to be the biggest thing in years, both from the contestant and spectator angles. And we're not just trying to drum up trade, O cynical one. We haven't mentioned it much before, because it's almost too hot to handle.

Perhaps the gladiolus note in this big splurge is that the tournament is to be played on campus courts, the St. Hilda's courts, to be specific. Bruce Hall and Warren Stevens have fought an uphill battle for a number of years with this very object in mind. And now, with the opportunity to behold some real racquet-ting, it's up to you, dear studes, to make the brief trek to Devonshire Place, opposite the Bloor Bowl. It seems too bad that the courts could not be secured for late afternoon play. Thus those with lectures right through the day will be unable to view their favourites in action. Setting the date one day ahead is a commendable move, for if the entry list grows to normal length, it will mean that prelims will occupy the rest of the week, and the finals may be staged on Monday instead of Saturday, as the case would be, when everybody has hied off to watch the proceedings in the Stadium.

A definite aid to contestants this will be, too. There will be no prying eyes of the folksies down at the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club, where the tournament was formerly held, to make the lads nervous. Well, gosh, what more can be said?

Three members of last year's university squad will probably be taking part, one for sure. Bruce Hall, the genial blond chap from Emmanuel, who played on Canada's Davis Cup Team a couple of years back, strokes nightly with Owen Gray of Meds. But Bruce, who ordinarily would be conceded the interfaculty title which he won with ease last year, without a murmur, hasn't seen much of the courts this summer. He played against Gray out in Edmonton, and once in a Red Cross benefit, and that just about takes care of the situation. He beat Gray all right, but Owen kept him trotting.

Then there are Jack Mullett of Dents and Ian McCallum of School, who advanced to the intercollegiate doubles finals at McGill last year. These two, with Bruce Hall, Bob Rouland, and Bill Small, last year copped the intercollegiate honours. If what collegiate sportswriters are bewailing right now had not happened, Varsity would be gunning for its fifth straight intercollegiate title. Bruce Hall thinks they would have had no trouble repeating, with Johnny Wahallon and Owen Gray filling the shoes of Bill Small and Bob Rouland. We don't doubt Bruce a bit. In fact, we second the motion.

New names possibly to the readers are those of Owen Gray and Johnny Wahallon (pronounced Waylan). Owen we have mentioned before. Johnny is nothing less than a Warren Stevens dream-man. He can play basketball, rugby, and—tennis. Vic has been angling for his services on their grid team, and little wonder, for this short-set grad of Princeton can kick and pass a pigskin farther than Charlie Prince, and Charlie was never known as any slouch when it came to gridiron antics.

Johnny and Bruce are going to team up for the interfaculty doubles and the cause of Emmanuel. This may be just that bit of oomph that the Theologs need to start them on their way in the Reed Trophy race. After the great showing they made last year, we're in there with a "Poosh 'em up Totty!" for every advance they make in the right direction.

We don't mean to imply by all this that there is scant use of anybody else entering the tournament. As we said before, Bruce isn't up to his usual par, and it Mullett and McCallum team up for a bang at the doubles title, then things are really doing to hum. This tournament is almost too hot to handle.

THE LAST WORD—WE HOPE

Ged Clawson, Athletic Director of U.C., has come through with the words that we wanted to hear, and which are on display elsewhere in this issue. He has no intention of introducing compulsory sports, we learn, but merely regards the freshman barrier as a sort of initiation. That is well and fine. What our sportsed feared, and he was not alone in the thought, was that with men required to enter sports, interfaculty competition would become a farce. The situation is saved. The matter is closed.

of philosophy and psychology. "I have the greatest admiration," he said, "for the Toronto professors and their democratic ways." He finds the city of Toronto fascinating and very interesting. "It is quite the cleanest and quietest city in my experience," he said.

The lecturer feels that the American continent has a great future "lying as it does between the East and the West." He admires Canada and the United States for their democracy and "lack of snobishness."

Dr. Dahmi favours a synthesis of the East and West. He suggested that "although the East is slow to change and hangs on to its ancient principles it still has much that is worth while to give to the world. In due time the true East will absorb the best of the West—its efficiency, its organizing genius, its scientific method."

Entry List Grows Slowly with Bruce Hall, Jack Mullett, Ian McCallum and Wahallon Yet to Sign

ON ST. HILDA'S COURTS

The date for the initial proceedings of the interfaculty tennis tournament has been moved ahead to Wednesday, Oct. 16, the Athletic Office announced last night. It had been formerly set for Tuesday, the 15th.

The entry list is growing slowly, in view of the fact that this week-end is Thanksgiving, and consequently there remains scant time to sign up. To date there are 32 singles entries, and 10 doubles. Only notable singles player to enter thus far is Owen Gray, of Meds, but the names of Bruce Hall, Jack Mullett, and Ian McCallum, all on last year's intercollegiate racquet squad, are expected to appear soon. In fact, it is definite that Bruce Hall, Canadian Davis Cup player, is going to participate under the colours of Emmanuel.

It is being stressed by Hall, president of the Tennis Club, that play this year is to be entirely on the St. Hilda's courts, and not on the surfaces of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club, as in former years. This will give the students a good opportunity to follow the play as they duck back and forth to lectures, for Mac McCutcheon, guide of the intramural scene, said that the courts have been reserved every day during tennis week until 4 p.m.

The strongest doubles team on paper is Bruce Hall and Johnny Wahallon of Emmanuel. But so far there are five other teams entered that cannot be counted out. The Victoria College Tennis Club has offered a brand-new trophy for the interfaculty championship. With all the big colleges entered, and points awarded for entries, the tournament promises to be a wide-open affair. What with the entry fee cut in half, the list should pile up rapidly in the next few days.

INEFFICIENCY IN HIGH PLACES . . . An acquaintance of ours (we make it our business to know all sorts of people) decided the other day that he wanted a book that he knew to be reposing in a locker adjacent to his own . . . ### FEMININE DEBATERS PLAN THE TRY-OUTS FOR VARSITY'S TEAM

Women's Interfaculty Debates Union will Hold its First Meeting in Women's Union Next Wednesday

OFFER PINS FOR POINTS

The Women's Interfaculty Debating Union will hold its first meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 16 at the Women's Union, it was announced yesterday. Try-outs will be held for the intercollegiate team which will compete with McGill, Queen's and Western in the intercollegiate debating championships.

This year the Women's Interfaculty Debating Union is offering a pin to any woman undergraduate who attains a minimum of 35 points per year with a minimum of 110 points while at college. Speaking from the floor of the house and general interest in debating are counted for the award.

Points are awarded as follows: Intercollegiate debates, 20 points; interfaculty debates, 15 points; college debates, 10 points; junior representation, 10 points; senior representation, 15 points; intercollegiate executive, 5 points; intercollegiate try-outs, 10 points.

Society Presents Modern Dramas

Under the direction of Miss Betty McCabe, St. Joseph's Dramatic Society last night produced Laurence Housman's "Brother Sun" and two of Maurice Barings' diminutive dramas, "The Drawback" and "Catharine Parr."

The leading roles in each play were taken by first year students. "Brother Sun", starring Gen Hopkins and Ruth Sullivan, traces the adventures of St. Francis of Assisi in the Sultan's court. Betty Mondo and Eileen Mulligan in "The Drawback" gave a humorous presentation of how a young man lost his love. Mary Ann Griffin and Agnes Moynihan in "Catharine Parr" presented an interpretation of a breakfast scene between Henry VIII and the last of his wives.

Daughter of the Great Profile

WON'T TALK ABOUT COLLEGE MEN

By Win Hillier

"Being a Barrymore is a big help," Diana frankly admitted, as she chatted with The Varsity backstage at the Royal Alex yesterday. But then, she added, it did have its drawbacks. You could get any job you wanted, but once you had it your worries began in living up to the family tradition.

While the Barrymore brow wrinkled in an effort to recall which of her twelve schools she had last attended, we took a few notes for the benefit of our feminine readers. . . . The youthful representative of the theatre's royal family came to meet us minus hat, gloves or bag, her long dark hair hanging loosely on her shoulders, and hands thrust deep into the pockets of a belted polo-coat.

It was ultimately established that Aiken College in South Carolina had been her last Alma Mater, which she left five years ago at the tender age of fifteen. (We did some rapid mental arithmetic.) Before that, however, there were eleven other schools, in America, England, Italy, and Paris, with emphasis on the latter, for Miss Barrymore spoke French even before she learned English. It was during these

APPLES ARE OFFERED BY SCOUTS SATURDAY

Plans have been completed by Toronto's Boy Scouts to stage the biggest "Apple Day" in the Scouts' history.

For weeks past the boys have been organizing every last detail to make sure that everyone knows about the day before it arrives. Banners have been erected now over most of the railway suburbs in the city. Billboards to the number of 56 have been secured by the boys. Radio and newspaper advertisers have been asked to include in their advertisements an attractive apple which says: "Buy a Scout Apple, October 12. Keep Democracy Alive." And operators of truck fleets have been supplied with bumper-streamers advertising the day.

Five thousand boys will be on every street in the city from dawn onward on Saturday. They will be laden with baskets of rich, ripe Canadian apples, which they will ask the citizens to buy for as much as they can afford.

THIRD YEAR DENTISTS WIN ANNUAL RELAY AT THEIR FACULTY MEET

With Dental Nurses turning out en masse to cheer on their favourites, the Faculty of Dentistry held their annual track meet at Varsity Stadium Wednesday.

Channell, Loaring, White and Bajurny, members of last year's Varsity track team, won awards.

The relay was carried off by the third year team consisting of Feasby, Grainger, Johns and Smyth. The prizes will be presented at the annual banquet-dance to be held at Hunt's Savarin.

War Savings Stamps which Are to be Affixed to the Tickets will be Burned at a Special Ceremony

PRESIDENT TO OFFICIATE

Tickets for the All-University Fall Dance will go on sale at the Hall Porter's desk Tuesday, it was announced by the House Committee of Hart House, which is sponsoring the event.

"The All-University is open to students of all years in all faculties and has proved very popular during the two years since its inception, due to its informal nature," said E. A. Wilkinson, Assistant Secretary of Hart House.

Added interest will be provided by the provision that 25 cents of the usual admission fee will be given over to the purchase of a War Savings Stamp, which will be attached to the door. No couple will be admitted unless a stamp is attached to the space provided, Mr. Wilkinson pointed out.

During the evening, the stamps will be ceremonially burned in the Great Hall. The committee has asked President Cody to officiate at this ceremony.

Stan St. John's orchestra has already been engaged for the dance, Mr. Wilkinson announced. Other orchestras to be engaged as the sale continues are those of Fred Evis, Karl Mueller and Bob Shuttleworth.

Ticket sale will be closed at five p.m. on Friday, October 25, the day of the dance, but Mr. Wilkinson gave warning that both last year and two years ago the supply of one thousand tickets had been exhausted well in advance of the closing date.

CAMPUS SECRETARY STARTS U.C. GROUP

To seek together a more abundant life was described by John Coleman, men's secretary of the University College Student Christian Movement, as the purpose of the S.C.M., at its first meeting, held yesterday in the Women's Union. Miss M. B. Ferguson, honorary president of the S.C.M., was present at the meeting.

"This organization is essential to any university," said Mary Bruck.

PLANS MATERIALIZE FOR ANNUAL VIC BOB A WEEK FROM TODAY

Victoria's Sixty-eighth Consecutive Bob will be Held in Hart House Theatre October Eighteenth

DANCING AFTER SHOW

A dance in the main hall at Victoria College will be an after-the-show feature of the 68th Vic Bob to be held on the evening of Friday, October 18 in Hart House Theatre. As usual the traditional function will feature skills on the Victoria professors and eccentric freshmen, and a third act of comedy. The evening will be interspersed with rhymed insults sung and shouted by the rival years, 4T3 and 4T4.

This year's Bob is under the direction of Frank Evans. He is assisted by a committee consisting of Tom Paton, Bob Hurst, Gerry Stone, Jim Carson, Tom Nixon, Harry Johnson and Munroe Johnston. The Bob Quartet, Gerry Stone, Ed Kirkland, Ian MacLeod and Ted Gray, will assist in heaping abuse and advice on the freshmen.

Tom Paton is preparing one act for the show and Ted Gray and Ed Kirkland, comedy stars of last year's "Bobapoppin" are preparing and will star in the third act.

George Carty's orchestra will be in attendance both in the pit at Hart House and at the dance at Victoria after the show.

Vic And U.C. End Freshie Ordeals 'Mid Mellow Glow Of Candle-Light

Vic Freshies No Longer to be "Considered Inferior to the Other Members of the College", They Are Told

"Education for women is a relatively new thing, which is still in the pioneer and experimental stage," said Dr. Brown, in addressing the girls. The Principal added that the women now entering university carried the responsibility for the furthering of higher education for women.

Following tea in Wymlywood, the freshies and sophs adjourned to Amesley Hall, where all those who had not complied with the rules of initiation were dealt with accordingly by the court, under Judge Carefoot. These charges ranged from "Intimidation of sophomores" to "Congesting traffic and generally cluttering up the residence."

Last night, according to time-honoured tradition, Victoria freshettes formally became members of the college, at the annual candle-light service. After enduring a week of rather embarrassing treatment at the hands of the sophomores, the freshies were assured that they would no longer be considered inferior to the other members of the college.

Led by Miss Macpherson, the freshettes and sophomores singing "The Lamp of Learning," marched with lighted candles to Victoria College Chapel, where Donna MacLennan, president of the sophomores, handed the traditional Lamp of Learning to Alice Evans, president of the freshettes. Miss Macpherson pointed out that the symbol of the lighted candle really represents the function which education performs, in that it illuminated the mind.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

Alderman Claims They Are First in Canada at Instituting War Service Program to Match Men

200 MEMBERS ONLY

"Toronto University is the pioneer in a scheme of university women's training course for war service," stated Alderman Adelaide M. Plumptre when questioned about the plan mentioned in President Cody's message to The Varsity yesterday.

The University Women's Service Training Detachment is to be a separate unit of the Women's Voluntary Service Corps, Mrs. Plumptre added. The Detachment will be established as an activity of the Women's Athletic Association.

It was revealed that the Central Committee of the Red Cross has authorized that this unit of the Women's Voluntary Service Corps be formed in any university, as Canada has made no provision for taking women on in any of the services.

As the plan is experimental only, a limit of 200 members will be taken on in the class, Mrs. Plumptre informed The Varsity. The desire is to develop an outstanding group in the first year, in order that the course can be continued next year on a larger scale.

All arrangements regarding instructors and training facilities are being made by the Red Cross, Mrs. Plumptre revealed. The course will run for eight weeks in the fall term and ten weeks in the spring.

Tentative date for the opening of the classes is the end of October, in order to allow time for outfitting of the girls with the heavy uniforms required. The corps members will provide their uniforms, which will likely be grey belted coats to be worn over a wool dress.

Registration blanks for the University Women's Service Training Detachment will be ready at Room 82 of U.C., or at Dr. Davies' office, it was announced. Applicants must have a medical certificate signed by Dr. Davies and must be between 18 and 45 years of age.

U.C. FROSH TO DANCE AT NOVELTY MIXER

Regarded by many as the feature of the social season, the U.C. first year dance with its annual slogan of "Come single, go home double!" will be held next Wednesday, October 16, at 8 o'clock in the Women's Union.

The first year's executive, under the direction of Gordon Bishop and Jean Ross, anticipate an attendance of 400 U.C. students, at the yearly "mixer-upper", and have announced that extra-precautionary measures are being taken to keep out Engineers. The men of S.P.S., successful in crashing the party two years ago, have vowed that they will get in this year—or else.

Two orchestras will provide rhythm for dancing both upstairs and downstairs, and a feature of the evening will be a "Hobby Horse Novelty."

The Varsity Decorates Graduate And Thus Makes Tactical Blunder

Through an editorial error, The Varsity yesterday carried an article stating that Mebourne A. Elson, graduate of the School of Practical Science, was recently awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Mrs. Harold Couch, Toronto, sister of the ex-Schoolman, told The Varsity yesterday afternoon that the report is entirely erroneous.

"Mebourne is now a lieutenant in the Royal Canadian Engineers," she stated. "He is not a member of the Royal Air Force, and has never been in the air in his life."

Telephones jangled in The Varsity's news room yesterday, as downtown papers tried to verify the story. Somewhat abashed, harassed mast-head men admitted that for once The Varsity had erred.

We Are Thankful

Monday is Thanksgiving Day. Perhaps, in moments of disillusion, there is a tendency to scoff at the idea of giving thanks, a questioning of whether or not there is anything to give thanks for at this particular moment of the world's history. We have heard such pessimistic, defeatist talk on occasions since the war began, and we may hear more of it as time rolls on. Yet to adopt such an attitude surely is to blind one's soul to all that is good in the universe and in our individual lives. For there are a multitude of blessings for which we may be thankful if we but take the trouble to reflect upon them. The unfortunate truth is that we have come to take too many of our blessings for granted, and only when perhaps we have lost them will we think of them. How much better to quietly give thanks for them now when we may.

We should be truly thankful that as yet we have the right to live our lives in a peaceful country, just now flooded with a changing beauty under the magic wand of autumn. As we think of all the things that are our Canadian autumn—the crispness of the air, the haze that hanks over the reddening countryside, the tangy smell of burning leaves, the first wisps of smoke from chimneys, the glorious tints of our own national maple, the warmth and comforting friendliness and beauty of the land—as we reflect upon these things we cannot be but deeply thankful for this land of ours.

And apart from the physical beauty of our native land, we may give thanks for its institutions and traditions which give us the privilege of living a free life of individual initiative and endeavour. Hard-won democratic rights are ours—let us give thanks that they are still with us, and let us also be grateful for the duty and privilege we have of fighting for their preservation. Our thanksgivings are inevitably of a religious direction, whatever be our personal religious code. Is it not worthy of thanks that each and every one of us has the right, fast disappearing in many lands, of worshipping as he pleases, secure in the knowledge that he has the tolerance and sympathy of others.

Turning our gaze to the campus which surrounds us and forms our little world, grateful must we be indeed for the privilege that is ours in receiving an education in which emphasis is still upon truth and knowledge rather than upon distortion and bias. The sum of the world's knowledge and achievements is here for us to absorb—let us fully realize the heritage and privilege thus handed to us. We have been given the opportunity to equip ourselves to meet this life, a life in which more and more equipment is every day needed. May we be truly thankful for that opportunity.

There are many occasions through the year which should be times of reflection. Thanksgiving is one of these. We could go on, adding up the many blessings which have been heaped upon us, blessings the existence of which many of us have forgotten. A few of the more prominent ones have come to mind and found their way rather haphazardly onto this page. For these, and for the countless others, may we each and every one give heartfelt thanks, on this Thanksgiving Day, 1940.

Oriental Boomerang

The heartening announcement by Prime Minister Churchill that the Burma Road, strategic war supply route into the interior of China, will be reopened marks the definite recognition that appeasement is neither a sound nor a practical policy, whether it be in Europe or in the Far East. Reopening of the road may be looked upon as an emphatic counter-blow to the recently solidified Tokyo-Berlin-Rome axis whose threat against the United States has backed fire to the extent of spurring the American Republic on to more intensive aid to Great Britain.

Britain agreed earlier in the summer to the closing of the road until October 17, with the definite purpose of trying to persuade Japan to come to a peace settlement with China before the expiration of the time limit. Besides, Britain at that time was in no position to take a more defiant stand. October 17 is fast approaching and instead of a settlement of the drawn-out conflict, hostilities have been intensified, and Japan has openly threatened Britain and the United States by joining with the dictator powers. Mr. Churchill, realizing that appeasement is out of the question, has wisely decided against keeping the road closed. Britain is in a stronger position now, and the United States is definitely on her side in the world struggle that is shaping, although she is not an actual war ally. For the United States has interests which are deeply involved in the Far Eastern situation.

The whole trend of international events since Japan made her aggressive announcement has been a stiffening of the democratic front, leading to a general crisis in the East. Certainly events have been the reversal of those expected by the Nipponese who hoped to render the United States submissive. The United States has suspended its wheat export subsidy program to Far Eastern ports, with the exception of the Philippines. Most of the ports were in Japanese control. She has also laid an embargo on all iron and steel scrap to Japan and has lent $25,000,000 to China. The gravity of the situation in the near future seems to be indicated by the fact that American residents of China have been ordered to evacuate.

There is an inherent danger to the Allied cause in this Far Eastern crisis. That is that too much attention, particularly American attention, will be diverted to the Orient, away from what is still the immediately vital battle-ground, England and western Europe. Perhaps the two wars will be merged, but at present and as far into the future as we can see, the English channel and the surrounding land area still form the field of battle. American newspapers have taken pains to emphasize this point, warning that the United States must not strengthen its hand in the East at the expense of weakening it in Europe. They realize that the real battle is being fought in Europe, and urge that American action in the East ought to be judged on the basis of whether it strengthens or weakens her ability to aid Britain. The East may develop into another major-war-front, but if the real battle on the English Channel can be won, a war across the Pacific may not be necessary. But it means that we will have to keep our eyes on the other side of the world as well.

ART MUSIC Drama

Promenade Symphony Orchestra

So you liked it, Toronto! That of course was why they gave it to you. Simplicity and impeccable ancestry marked every selection on the program, and you lapped it up.

Everything started off with a burst of fireworks in the Enesco Rumanian Rhapsody No. 1. This was a great warmer up and the orchestra made a really good job of it. It was quite a shock, almost an unpleasant one to move to the serenity of the MacDowell Concerto in D Minor. This work has a first movement which might be written by Wagner, a second characteristic (almost pastiche) of Tchaikovsky, and a finale more than slightly reminiscent of a brass band. The piano solo might better have been written for second orchestra, especially in the first movement. Poor Mr. Hutcheson did his best to dominate the orchestra where necessary, and still keep quiet; the orchestra tried to listen for the soloist and still be heard; neither succeeded. MacDowell should shoulder the blame, rather than the performers, for this entire lack of correlation.

When Mr. Hutcheson began his solo-group he descended to what was evidently the mental age of the majority of his audience. Inconsequential morsels were served up from Liszt's, Chopin's and Schumann's lured moments, which, to many of the audience, should have been forgotten long ago. What else could he do? His listeners labelled it "culture" and swallowed it like any other pill.

An arrangement of the Bach Chaconne by Durieux, did not come off as well as could have been

Obituary

It is with the most sincere regret that we announce the death of two of the most valued and versatile correspondents of this paper. It is given to few of us to die so nobly. Kanga and Roo, off duty, ran up against the biggest, the goriest, but unfortunately the last, story of their career. After the recent unfortunate incident, their battered bodies were found. From the beginning, their recovery was almost hopeless and the end came yesterday at 2.37.

They regained consciousness long enough to report the existence of an unpublished manuscript. This was later discovered among their effects, and it is the belief of these writers that the English department would appreciate a wide dissemination of this, their last and greatest masterpiece.

Speaking OF SPORT

Owen Prichard

Track gets under way at 1.30 today with the opening gun of the Novice Track Meet at Varsity Stadium. Many a frosh will be running his first college race this afternoon, and we hope the entrants will not be running past a lumberyard of empty bleachers. Don't get the idea that the word "novice" in the meet's title means that a bunch of inept tyros will be fooling around with hurdles, javelins, and such. Some of these lads have been practising steadily every afternoon under the tutelage of Hec Phillips, and while nothing spectacular is expected in today's performances, it will certainly be worth a gander from the student body. Besides, these fellows will be piling up points as their contribution to your faculty's bid for the T. A. Reed Trophy.

It is difficult to pick the winners in such a meet, but School of Science is the heavy favourite to bag the greatest number of titles. Lorrimer is a threat in the high jump, and in the middle-distance department Lionel Peckover (also of School) has consistently been turning in a time of 2:5.

In the field events there will be some keen competition; Hec Phillips has about six of the aspirants in the high jump clearing the bar at five feet six inches. Smith of Knox shows promise in the shot put. The Presbyterian set the high school record for heaving the apple up Sault Ste. Marie way.

Phillips is counting on Geoff Parke-Taylor of Wycliffe to come home in front in the three mile. The Anglicans have one-sixth of the student body competing in today's events. Credit for this interest in novice track work at Wycliffe goes to Tom Barnett, the college track manager. An intercollegiate distance runner of last year, Barnett is now secretary of the University Track Club. The Hoskin Avenue bunch anticipate a victory in the javelin event, as their entry Fred Sutherst tossed the stick over 138 feet in the college meet last fall.

LINEMEN WANTED. APPLY U.C.

University College rugby manager Bruce Williams is roaming the halls of the Royal College hoping for the sight of a few husky footballers to complete the roster of the Red and White interfaculty grid team. Tough luck has dogged this department of the U.C. team since the beginning of practices. Bus Johnson of Pembroke, who played for U.C. last year, is returning to the gridiron wars, but Wikie Davey, a middle on the '39 squad, is still among those missing from rehearsals. Essery and Hare are still busy with C.O.T.C. Another blow was dealt to the managerial chin yesterday when the doctors in Hart House withheld permission for Fred Robinson to play for the Red and White. The hefty midfielder had been turning out regularly to practices, and will be missed when the season starts. Fred is sorry he is out of the game, but concurs with the medics' dictum. Last winter while playing in an interfaculty hockey fixture at the Arena, Robinson landed on his noggin on the ice, with a concussion as the result; hence the doctors' ruling. They were wisely guarding against a recurrence of the tragedy of a few years ago, when a School player received fatal injuries during an interfaculty game.

The U.C. outfit has a nice backfield, with the veteran Hal Axon and two of this year's acquisitions, Bus Nelson and Jim Bitove. These halves will go places if they can be sure of a balancing front wall, so if any of you Royal Collegians want a middle or inside berth, turn out on the back campus this afternoon and do your bit to bring up to par the Red and White squad's strength in all departments.

By Marg. Foults

Now that we have all the court situations settled in the tennis tournament, and we have nothing more to grumble about—grumbling really is wonderful sometimes, makes you feel so superbly sorry for yourself—let's look a little into the personnel of this sort of competition and see what or who we can dig up.

St. Hilda's seem to have the sunniest outlook, Nadine Beardmore, now a member of the Red Cross Women's Military Unit, being the only one of last year's team-members missing. Connie Harrison, Adine Seagram and Mary Sheeles are all back struggling academically and excelling athletically, maybe a little of both in each case, and great things are promised for these three. Beth Stewart will be missed in the U.C. tournament, but Prox Bryans is still with us, and Bobbie McDonald is still being presented to take in tennis as well as basketball. This year the two overlap, and Bobbie hasn't quite decided what to do about it. We see her dilemma, but hope she decides for both. Bet she does! . . . bet she doesn't. Who said that?

St. Mike's have lost Win Flanagan and that, as we have mentioned, seems to have been the extinguishing blow to their college contest.

Vic boasts Betty Bell, Ida Tipp and Vera Argument from last year's team, and seem to be pinning a good deal on a little miss freshie, Virginia Rappelle—tell her her phone number later! Vic has lost Ruth Carleton, who has transferred to the new Physical Health Education Course, thus relinquishing her connection with a college. Marj Mosbaugh, the medical starlet, will also be missed in this year's competition. However, the interfaculty event will be held Oct. 21st, 22nd and 23rd on the St. Hilda's courts—thank you Saints!—probably between the above mentioned "still-heres", and a few surprises perhaps.

We hope you read, noted and consumed the words contained in Dr. Cody's message to us women, and the editorial thereon in yesterday's Varsity. The V.W.S.T.D.—V's for short—seem to us a "thundering good idea"—borrowed from the vocabulary of Dr. Ball of the Anatomy Dept.

straint in his singing and often his "pianissimo" fades into an artistic "fal-setto", as for example in the lovely "Reve" from Massenet's "Manon".
Above all, Mr. Crooks has such a clear enunciation that your reporter understood not only every English word but at times was even able to distinguish such French expressions as "amour" and "charmant", perhaps because they recurred rather frequently during the concert.

The operatic part of the program consisted of "O Paradis" from "L'Africaine", "Le Reve" from "Manon" and an aria from Lalo's "Le Roi d'Ys". The audience after applauding vigorously the Meyerbeer aria, seemed so anxious to hear more operatic selections that the other two numbers had to be given as encores. The one disturbing feature in all these and a few other renditions was that the artist drew a very audible breath as the last note was fading out, almost as if he were slightly indisposed and had some difficulty in breathing, though in case this was true, his voice did not betray it. Half way between the field of opera and song came the two Handel selections, one from "Samson" and the other "Love Sounds the Alarm" from "Acis and Galatea"; in the latter Richard Crooks gave us some fine orator-ic, singing smoothly through several difficult runs. From the large number of songs that were offered, Grieg's "Dream", "Plaisir d'Amour" by Martini and an encore "Songs My Mother Taught Me" were perhaps the finest in interpretation for in them flawless technique was combined with an intensely personal power of expression. Among other offerings we heard "I Love Thee" by Grieg, "Festival of Love" by Wein-gartner, "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" as well as many lovely en-cores including Schubert's never-fading
"Serenade" and "The Rose and The Nightingale" by Rimski-Korsakoff.

All in all it was a concert that appealed to the average listener. The severe critic might have found many

THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15th, 1940

No. 13

Record Library, Carnegie Gift, Comes to Varsity

"Through the generosity of the Carnegie Corporation, the University of Toronto is to receive a set of musical records, the best-known works of the greatest masters," Dr. H. J. Cody told The Varsity last night.

These records will arrive here about the middle of November. They will be stored in the women's common room of University College, not in Hart House as it was originally planned. In commenting on this, Dr. Cody stressed the fact that the records will be available to all students, both men and women, each afternoon between four and six.

"Their purpose," the President continued, "is to acquaint the students of this university with the really great music of all time."

Similar sets of records have already been sent to other schools and they have invariably proved popular, Dr. Cody stated. In conclusion, he mentioned that the generosity of the Carnegie Corporation in this instance was in line with their former gift to the Fine Art Library some ten years ago which the university has not forgotten.

Lockhart To Speak In S.C.M. Series

The regular series of monthly noon-hour addresses sponsored by the Student Christian Movement will be inaugurated Wednesday at 1.30 in Hart House Music Room. Rev. Dr. Wilfred A. Lockhart will speak on "The Necessity of Faith." The general theme of this year's series will be "Basic Convictions."

Dr. Lockhart was formerly secretary of the S.C.M. on this campus, but left last April to assume the charge at Sherbourne St. United Church. He has been actively interested in sports and boys' work, and was secretary of the S.C.M. for five years. John Coleman, his successor, indicated that future speakers would include prominent ministers and academicians.

Extension Registration Jumps In Occupational Therapy

Increased Importance of Occupational Therapy and Physiotherapy in War-time is Held Cause of Increase

Enrollment in extension courses in Occupational Therapy and Physiotherapy in the University of Toronto shows an increase this year. The value of these courses in war-time is believed to be the cause of this increase.

The enrollment in Occupational Therapy in the first year is 60, almost double that of last year, while the senior class shows an increase of 13. Physiotherapy freshies have increased in number from 34 to 43 of whom, for the first time in the history of the course, two are male. Because of the marked increase in O.T. registration, it was necessary to find more room for the work to be carried on and now, in addition to the rooms in U.C., there quarters in the north-east part of the front wing in Trinity House.

Both courses are the only such of their kind in Canada, and are fairly new even yet, since the first O.T. graduating class here was in 1928, and the first Physiotherapists graduated in 1931. It was near the end of the last war that some people who already had some medical training organized a group to help the soldiers by teaching them craft work. At that time there was a course begun in Montreal, which

Scarlet and Gold Footballers Rout Irish in Exhibition Tilt; Attack Featured by Passing Plays

FLEMING OPENS SCORING

Displaying a far classier brand of attack, Vic gridlers routed St. Mike's Freshmen 27-0 in an exhibition rugby game played at Vic athletic field Saturday morning. Although they were out-classed in every department, the "fighting" Irish lived up to their name in battling gamely to the last whistle.

The Vic attack was featured by a splendid forward passing system and a hard-hitting front line. While St. St. Mike's relied mainly on line plays, the Frosh team was made up mainly of American players who were not very familiar with Canadian rules. Inexperience and lack of weight along the line put them at a great disadvantage.

Fleming opened scoring for Vic in the first quarter with a field goal, and on the first play in the second quarter he went over the line for a converted touchdown. On the kick-off the St. Mike's half was routed to give the Scarlet and Gold another point, making the score 10-0.

Girls to Drill in Some Convenient Outdoor Place to be Chosen; Plans for Uniforms Completed

PART-TIME WORK INVOLVED

"Enrolment in the University Women's Service Training Detachment necessarily involves a promise to do future volunteer work," Miss A. E. M. Parkes, associate secretary of the S.A.C., said Friday.

"But when the girls complete their courses they will not be bound to devote all their time to war work. They may do only as much as their time will permit," Miss Parkes said.

"There is some doubt," Miss Parkes continued, "whether or not students of the medical and social sciences should be excluded from receiving this training, in view of the fact that they might be much more useful doing other kinds of work. The matter of such restrictions, non-existent as yet, will be decided soon."

Plans for obtaining a convenient place for outdoor drill are now being made at the superintendent's office. The question about the cost of uniforms has also been raised. To each girl the cost will probably be about four or five dollars, Miss Parkes stated.

Senior girls will certainly not be the only ones accepted for the University Women's Service Training Corps, because, as she pointed out, next year there will be opportunities for girls who have completed their first year of the course of becoming officers and instructors, or of receiving further and more specialized instruction.

Drama Committee Series Opens With "Air Raid"

INTRAMURAL TENNIS OPENS WEDNESDAY

Prominent Varsity Racquetters, Hall, McCallum, Mullett, Whallon, Gray, Enter Net Tourney

The stage is set for the interfaculty tennis tournament, due to get under way on the St. Hilda's courts tomorrow morning about 9.30. The names of the best players are now securely attached to the entry list.

Mid-Saturday morning it was found that there were fifty singles and twelve doubles entries. Some last-minute entries were expected today.

The prominent names, which have been awaited all week, have finally appeared, namely those of Bruce Hall, Ian McCallum, Jack Mullett, and Johnny Whallon. The first three mentioned played on Varsity's senior intercollegiate squad last year, while Johnny Whallon, a grad of Princeton now studying at Emmanuel, is a sensational newcomer. So also is Owen Gray of Meds, who signed on the dotted line earlier in the week, and who ran against Bruce Hall, former Davis Cup team member, last summer in Edmonton.

Students are being offered an admirable opportunity to watch their favourites in action, as the tournament is being played on the St. Hilda's lawn, not the surfaces of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club as in former years. (Continued on Page 3)

Magazine Auction Closes Thursday At Hart House

Periodicals Go on Block This Week; Forms for Bidding Obtainable at Hall Porter's Desk

LISTS NOW POSTED

The annual Hart House periodical auction has long been a stronghold for the man who doesn't mind getting his magazines a little late as long as he pays far less for them. This year, however, bidders pay far less than they usually do.

The reason for it all is that Hart House put in its order for this year's magazines before the recent rise in prices and students are being allowed to take advantage of this difference. Men who object to paying seven cents for their nickel favourites may now have them at the old price or less, depending on how high they bid, by taking advantage of the Hart House auction.

To bid for his favourite periodical, the member of Hart House fills out a form which he can obtain at the Hall Porter's desk. Lists of the magazines and their prices when new are also posted up there. Subscriptions start on October 1 and run for eight months or a year. Successful bidders get the magazine when the new copy comes into the Reading Room, that is, in the case of weeklies, a week after publication. No money accompanies the bid.

All bids must be in by this Thursday at 6 p.m. Then the successful bidders are notified. They are the ones who get their current reading inexpensively. Unfortunately there is no provision for those who don't bid; they will just have to go on paying the new high prices and envy those who got magazines in the Hart House auction.

U.C. Players' Guild Presents One-Act Play by Keith Winter, Author of "Shining Hour"

The effect of an air raid on the lives of an actress and two male corners of a triangle is the subject of "Air Raid," to be presented on Wednesday by the U.C. Players' Guild, it was learned yesterday from Elizabeth Stone, director.

"This play by Keith Winter, who wrote 'The Shining Hour,' is a sophisticated comedy, of particular topical interest," she stated. The members of the cast are Mavor Moore, Jeff Johnson, and Elizabeth Stone.

"Air Raid" is the first in a series of Wednesday afternoon plays to be presented in Hart House Theatre under the auspices of the University Drama Committee. They will be produced by the U.C. Players' Guild, the Trinity Dramatic Society, and the Victoria Dramatic Society in turn.

HART HOUSE ART CLASSES

As in former years, art classes will be held in the art gallery of Hart House again this year. The organization meeting will take place on Thursday, 17th October next, at 7.30 p.m., when all members of Hart House interested in drawing and painting and in arts and crafts work are invited to attend. Mr. Gaven Atkins, well-known artist, who is to be the director this year, will be present to discuss plans for the season. He is an experienced teacher of art and also well versed in the various branches of arts and crafts such as etching, modelling, line cuts, colour block printing and wood carving.

It is realized that because of the military training scheme some members may not find it possible to come on Thursday evenings. If there are any who wish to avail themselves of these classes but are unable to come at this time, will they please leave their names at the Warden's office in Hart House and state an evening on which they could come. Former members as well as beginners will be welcomed.

Music Committee Plans Recitals

The first of a series of eight Sunday Evening Concerts for members of Hart House, will be given by the Hart House String Quartet, Oct. 27, it was announced by the Hart House Music Committee yesterday.

The concert will begin in the Great Hall in Hart House at 9 p.m.

The committee decided that the Friday Afternoon Recitals will be continued at present on an experimental basis to learn how many members of the House are able to be present.

Viggo Kihl, well-known Toronto pianist, will be the guest artist at the first Friday Afternoon Recital for this season on November 1.

The committee also decided to continue the Friday sing-songs under the direction of Ross Workman. The first will take place Friday, November 8, at 1.30 p.m. in the east common room.

Plans are being made for a number of informal recitals by outstanding musicians at different times throughout the year.

The committee have announced that Sunday Evening Songsters have been discontinued.

Japanese Occupation of Conquered Territory Highly Theoretical, Implied by A. Boyd, III Meds

RAINS HALT TRAFFIC

"The closing of the Burma Road, while it did hamper the Chinese Government, was not the heavy blow it might seem," was the view expressed by Arthur Boyd, third year medical student from Tientsin. "The period of closing coincided with the rainy season during which there is little traffic on the road."

Boyd's family are now in Chungking, capital of Free China. His sister, Dorothy Boyd, is a nurse at the Canadian Mission Hospital there which was damaged in a recent Japanese air raid.

The position of missionary in the zone occupied by the Japanese is very difficult, he said. "There is no official ban on the missions as far as I know," Boyd said, "but missionaries are continually discouraged by unpleasant incidents. Most of them have been forced out now. Only a few posts remain."

Japanese occupation, Boyd implied, is largely theoretical. "The army may occupy the larger centres, but the countryside is impossible to control. Farmers by day are guerrillas by night and when an attack has been made they disappear. "But doesn't it go hard with the guerrillas when they are caught?" this reporter asked. "Yes," was the reply, "but it is very difficult to catch them."

When questioned about puppet rulers he was of the opinion that, "They do not signify any strong pro-Japanese element among the Chinese people but are just the usual run of traitors to be found in any national group." The Chinese are more unified than ever as a result of Japanese aggression, Boyd said.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

Wallace Announces Lectures On Contemporary American Authors

Series, Inaugurated by Norwood, Includes Talks on O'Neill, MacLeish, More, Falkner, Steinbeck, Becker

A series of six public lectures on contemporary American authors will begin Thursday, October 17, in Room 8, University College. A similar series of lectures last year proved very popular.

M. W. Wallace, Principal of University College, stated that this series was not provided especially for English students, but for all, undergraduates, staff, and public, who are interested in the modern world and enjoy a good lecture. It was these people who crowded the hall last year, he said.

The lecturers themselves are, for the most part, not members of the English staff. This Thursday's lecture will be by Professor Norwood, head of the classics department of U.C., on Eugene O'Neill. There will follow talks on Archibald MacLeish, librarian of Congress and celebrated poet, Paul Elmer More, the most effective literary critic of the conservative school, and William Falkner, John Steinbeck, and Carl Becker.

The Shining Truth

The task of ascertaining military truth in wartime is tremendous. From a mass of conflicting communications and press reports, the observer has to choose carefully if he is to approach the truth, and he must always remember the propaganda element.

It seems evident, however, that never before has the world (excepting German-controlled areas) been supplied with such up-to-the-minute accurate reporting of a war. This is due primarily to the great work being done by the three big press associations on this continent, by the major radio networks, and by trained correspondents of independent newspapers in the United States. Operating chiefly from Britain, where the facts are not kept in a dark closet, the news agencies have been able to give us fairly accurate pictures of the war as it is fought—outside Germany. The other extreme is shown in Italy, Germany and Russia, where the reporter must stick closely to the official reports or else face immediate eviction. Stories must pass three censor boards on an average, with the result that those countries have dried up as legitimate news sources. Evidence of this was given in the testimony of New York Timesman Gedye who recently left Russia after closing the Times' office there. No news was the problem.

A fine example of the comparative accuracy of the free American press associations and the controlled German press is seen by comparing their respective treatment of the Graf Spee sinking as a major news event. Early Thursday, December 14, 1939, United Press scooped the world with the story of the naval engagement between German and British battleships off South America. It was reported that the Graf Spee, badly damaged, had taken refuge in Montevideo harbour. Associated Press confirmed the story. Both A.P. and U.P. reported damage, which the German Embassy spokesman dismissed as "insignificant," adding the charge that the British had unfairly used mustard gas.

Thirteen hours after the first report, D.N.B., the official German news agency, first mentioned the battle, terming it a great German victory. Stating that the "Exeter" was "shot to pieces" and that the "Ajax" fled, D.N.B. stated, "The battle ended with the victory of the Graf Spee which in the evening entered the La Plata estuary and anchored in the harbour of Montevideo." Long accounts of the glorious victory follow, with slight regard for facts. Much stress was laid on the "mustard gas" charge. On Sunday U.P. announced that the "Renown" and the "Ark Royal" had arrived at Rio. D.N.B. reported the arrival of the former, but omitted reference to the "Ark Royal" whose sinking they had announced so often in the preceding months. That day long accounts of the scuttling of the Spee were sent to America, but not till the next day did Germany hear the news in a forty-word item buried at the bottom of the page.

Another D.N.B. blast came with the description of the funeral of the 36 fallen sailors. "British seamen spat on the coffins of the German sailors during the funeral procession, caterwauling went on in the background during the funeral sermon, and the climax of this behaviour was reached when immediately after the burial they threw a dead dog on the tomb." Even D.N.B. had to retract this story after an Argentine paper had editorially criticized its validity.

D.N.B. had little more to say on the subject, and the incident closed on an A.P. report on January 10 that the Uruguyan Medical Commission had found no evidence whatsoever that mustard gas had been used.

We don't know exactly what moral to point out after this recital. It should speak for itself.

Singing in the Tub

On the relative merits of singing in the bath-tub as ART, the critic would doubtless be inclined to sneer scornfully, or perhaps cast a sympathetic glance at the unlearned soul who dared to mention it. But as a form of recreation there is much to be said in its favour.

From bath-tub to Hart House Glee Club might seem a far cry, but there is a family resemblance. For the Glee Club raises such singing to the realm of art under the guidance of Dr. Peaker, who disciplines the raucous tones of the most barbaric bath-tub voice to produce the stirring harmony and precision that has become traditional with the club. Here even "monotones," people who cannot carry a tune, may experience that sense of release which comes from singing in the tub.

The Glee Club each year is made up of one hundred male singers, and there is still room for many more. Meeting every Tuesday in Hart House Music Room this organization provides an excellent means of recreation and at the same time works toward producing the annual concert, one of the outstanding events of the campus musical season. So even if you have never seen a note of music, fill out that gap in your education and let your musical impulses go, by joining the Glee Club today.

The All-University

Many people have expressed regret at the lack of university social activities, events which embrace students from every faculty. Each college has its big dances, and students in other colleges often attend them, but they are not university functions in the true sense of the word. The opportunity to attend a truly all-university social function will soon be at hand, however, when the annual All-University Dance is held in Hart House, Friday, October 25.

The All-University is an infant as far as campus social events are concerned, but since its institution two years ago it has become one of the most popular affairs at Varsity. It is a dance which students from every campus may attend, and they come not as members of any particular college, but as students of the University of Toronto. For this reason alone it is a function which should, and will, be well patronized. In the past all tickets have been sold out three days before the dance. Tickets go on sale this morning, and from past experience, we urge students to get their tickets as soon as possible.

This year the All-University will have an added feature of a patriotic note. Each ticket (per couple) will cost one dollar, to which one twenty-five cent war savings stamp must be affixed. These will be bought with the ticket. Then in a fitting ceremony during the evening, President Cody will burn the stamps, thus turning them into an outright student contribution to Canada's war effort. Hart House has cut the dance price this year, thus enabling everyone to make a contribution without over-taxing the budget. It is a worthy gesture, deserving of full student support. So let's make the All-University truly all-university!

Eminent Professor Torpedoed on Way to Lecture

Professor Huntberry Sunk by an Unusually Reliable Report in Skirmish with Armed Cruiser "Horowitz"

LOOK, MA! NO HANDS

Toronto, Oct. 15—(CUP)—On his way to a lecture today Prof. Vincent Huntberry was struck by a torpedo and sunk with all hands, the Admiralty announced. The professor was a cruiser of the "Hippopotamus" class and was engaged in conveying Meds students past the Engineering Building, when the incident took place.

Naval observers from the Casino Theatre have announced that there will be an inquiry. It is hazarded that the sinking took place on Spadina Avenue when the professor had a skirmish with an armed Merchantman named Horowitz. The professor was shot in the skirmish, a painful place indeed, the Admiralty chucked.

In answer to a strongly-worded protest, the German Embassy in Switzerland sent an apology over the incident.

SO SORRY STOP THOUGHT HE WAS A HOSPITAL STOP.

"Philadelphia Story"

The greatness of the production of The Philadelphia Story at the Royal Alexandra this week consists largely of trivialities. Outside of the performance of Katharine Hepburn, there is very little in the production that a reviewer may single out as exceptional. It is the consistent presence of the unmentionable details, of the minimum requirements that are supposedly beneath one's notice—these are the ingredients which make The Philadelphia Story the nearest thing to perfect drama that the writer has ever seen.

The story of the play, seemingly trivial, gains significance as one thinks it over. At first sight it is the usual Hollywood type of matrimonial handiwork with the outsider coming from behind in the stretch run to take a close decision at handsome odds. But behind this is a good deal of shrewd satire, excellent character portrayal, and, save the mark, social significance.

Besides being a thorough master of comedy style, Philip Barry is a thorough playwright. It is sheer joy to watch the play unfold. Adhering to the unities as strictly as any of the classics, it manages to be racy and modern enough to shock any Victorian purist into apoplexy.

Katharine Hepburn is perhaps even more striking on the stage than in her films. Besides beauty, poise and all the technical requirements, Miss Hepburn possesses force of character seen in only a very few of the top-ranking actresses of our time. We cannot think of anything that would have added to her portrayal of Tracy Lord, proud and high-spirited daughter of one of the most exalted families of Philadelphia's smart set.

Much as we would like to, we cannot single out any of the supporting cast for special mention. The whole company was as flawless as it possibly could have been. In view of the long run the play has had in New York and elsewhere, the absolute clicking and perfectly timed pace of the show is all the more remarkable. For this, full credit must go to Director Robert B. Sinclair who took full advantage of an intelligent and wide-awake cast.

composer must have received an excellent performance. There is a cadenza at the close of the first movement of the Mozart Concerto in G Major which Kreisler handled with superhuman dexterity. Every selection he played seemed absolutely without flaw in execution; if any existed, it had to be ignored in face of the perfection with which it was surrounded.

Fritz Kreisler has a dexterity in his right hand which although great, might be matched by other lesser violinists. It is his facility with his bowing arm that must leave everyone at least some distance behind. There is no "static" in his tone, nothing but pure music which can fill Massey Hall with its whisper, and which loses nothing of its purity in its louder passages.

AUXILIARY BATTALION

U. of T. Contingent, C.O.T.C.

Part I Orders

By Major W. S. Wilson, E.D.
Acting Officer Commanding Auxiliary Battalion, University of Toronto Contingent, Canadian Officers' Training Corps
Monday, October 14th
(10) Officers' and N.C.O.'s Refresher Class.

A Refresher Class for officers, N.C.O.'s and instructors of the Auxiliary Battalion will be held daily commencing 9th October, 1940, at 1700 hours. All officers, N.C.O.'s and instructors will attend when they are not on duty with their companies at the hour noted. Fall in at the front entrance to University College.

(11) Students 18-20 Years of Age.

All students who were 18 years of age on date of registration in the university but were not 20 on July 1st, 1940, must take military training as required by the university and outlined by the Department of Physical Education. Report to Mr. Rimmer at the Key Office, Hart House, as soon as possible to enroll in classes. Compulsory classes start October 15th, 1940. (12) Ten Minutes Break.

During training periods, a long blast of the whistle on the hour will be the signal for a ten-minute break. Training will be resumed on the whistle, ten minutes after the hour.

(13) General Information.

The following excerpt from Sec. 69 of the Militia Act is republished for information.

Every officer and man of the Militia shall be subject to such acts, regulations and laws.

(b) "during the period of annual drill or training under the provisions of this Act;

(d) during any drill or parade of his corps at which he is present in the ranks;

(e) when going to or from the place of drill or parade."

(14) Saturday Battalion Parade.

The Auxiliary Battalion will parade on Saturday, 19th October, at 1345 hours.

U.C. PARLIAMENT PLANS TO CHALLENGE COLLEGE STAFF

Procedure of Parliament to be Different from Former Years; Two Series of Debates is New Feature

DUBIN, SPEAKER

The University College Parliament announced last night a change in their procedure from former years which will result in two series of debates—one within the college and a second one with other faculties on the campus.

Charles Dubin, speaker of the house, said that there will probably be four or five interfaculty debates with Victoria, Trinity, and Osgoode Hall. Plans are being arranged for a debate between members of the parliament and members of the staff of University College.

Parliamentary procedure will be the rule of the house, it was announced. Members of visiting debating teams will take the opposition while University College students will take the place of the government.

The debates will take place in University College junior common room. Since there will be no debating on topics regarding the prosecution of the war, topics will be restricted, said Dubin. More emphasis will be laid on the art of public speaking itself, he stated. Plans for debates with other universities are possible but not likely, Dubin said.

The competition for the Robinsette debating trophy will be continued this year, it was stated. Competition will be held within each year to pick entrants for the final debate.

DENTAL FROSH INITIATION TO BE ENDED BY DANCE

Dental freshmen will mark the end of their initiation period tonight at the annual Banquetdance to be held in their honour at Hunt's Savarin.

According to Ab Fyfe, chairman of the dance committee, an exceptionally fine turnout is expected. A 12 piece orchestra has been engaged, a chicken dinner will be served, and dancing will continue until at least 1 a.m.

The Banquetdance was instituted three years ago in the place of the Soph-Frosh banquet. It proved such a success that it has been continued ever since, and has become one of the outstanding Dental affairs of the year.

Vic Music Club Chooses Comedy Of Far East

AUCTION

Members of Hart House are reminded that tomorrow is the last day to get bids in for the auction of periodicals from the reading room and art gallery. Forms are obtainable at the hall porter's desk. Bidding is being made on the basis of the rates which were in effect early in the summer regardless of the recent rise in price of many periodicals.

MUSIC'S POPULARITY DISCUSSED BY FRYE

Professor Stresses Music's Association with the Past as Important, at Meeting of Women's Lit.

DISCUSSES THE DANCE

"A continual stream of musical stereotype influences our emotional reactions to music," Professor F. E. Frye told the music group of Victoria College Women's Lit. last night. "Ordinary folk react to music only through the medium of its association with past events," he said.

"New music has difficulty in becoming widely popular because it fails to 'bring back memories,'" he said. "Older people," Professor Frye said, "react less intensely and hence their latest responses are of less importance to them than their earlier ones."

The speaker illustrated the national stereotypes which we have set up, showing them to be often a quality of second rate music. These national qualities are a development of later years having come with romanticism and nationalism. The dance is the origin of national traits," Professor Frye told the group. "To increase the quality of appreciation of music, we must increase our 'wide-awakeness' to music," he said.

The music group welcomes all interested Vic women, and men students will be allowed to attend the meetings.

ART

The organization meeting for classes in drawing and painting as well as arts and crafts work will be held in the Art Gallery of Hart House at 7.30 p.m. on Thursday, October 17.

Music Club Swings from Gilbert and Sullivan Performed by the Club for the Past Five Years

T. J. CRAWFORD TO DIRECT

San Toy, the story of a British colony in China, is the musical comedy to be produced by the Victoria Music Club this year. Written by Sidney Jones, this performance will be a swing from the works of Gilbert and Sullivan which have been produced by the club for the past five years. The production will be directed by Mr. T. J. Crawford, F.R.C.O., organist at Eaton Memorial Church.

San Toy was first produced in Daley's theatre, London, in 1899. It ran for 768 consecutive performances and was a rolicking success. It was said to have "an amusing and ingenious plot, refreshing tunes," and to provide complete relaxation. Some of the most amusing of the songs are "Rhoda and Her Pagoda," "Six Little Louses" and "Puck a Pong."

The cast is not chosen yet but it is expected that the principals of last year's production, "Patience," will again take the lead. Among these will be Peggy McEvoy, Vera Argumant, Jack Watson and Elmer Phillips. Voice trials are starting tonight. These trials are intended not as an examination, it was stated, but as an indication of what material is available.

The club plans to rehearse twice a week. Once a month these meetings are to be extended to an informal dance after rehearsal. The production will take place early in January in Hart House.

S. A. C.

The meeting of the Students' Administrative Council, which was to have been held today, has been cancelled.

Dance Impresario Deplores Canadians Lack Of Ingenuity

"What happened to the jitterbug?" asked a panel of Varsity reporters, according to Da Costa, the Toronto dance impresario and mentor.

"Not half what should have," he replied. Then in a more serious vein he added, "Aside from being a nuisance on the dance floor, the jitterbug had did help to bring the dancers away from the traditional closed position of dancing." In reply to a lifted eyebrow Da Costa went on to explain that this made it necessary for the girl to learn to dance independently of her partner.

"Unfortunately," he mourned, "when the jitterbug went back to its birthplace in Harlem Canadian dancers went back to the old closed position."

Da Costa is very positive about the Canadian male as a dancer. "He just can not dance. Oh yes, he can fox-trot. He can fox-trot to anything, but can he waltz? No. And when it comes to anything like a rumba the case is hopeless."

This situation Da Costa lays not to our ineptitude, but to a sort of reticence where dancing is concerned. Add to this the fact that, in his opinion, Canadian bands seem to have difficulty with the Latin rhythms.

Yet despite this he says, "The Conga is definitely the dance this winter. However, it is really an easy dance."

When asked about some of the older dances Da Costa replied that the waltz has been back for at least four years in London and New York. The showy old fashioned waltz, he opined, is as

WOMEN TO FEATURE UTILITY OF ARTS AT DEBATES TODAY

Intercollegiate Try-outs to be Held Today; All Faculties to Compete at Women's Union; Eight-Minute Limit

TO JOIN OTHER COLLEGES

The utilitarian aspects of an Arts course will be presented and refuted at the Women's Union this afternoon when the try-outs for the intercollegiate debating team are conducted by the Women's Interfaculty Debating Union.

All women are invited to come and speak for or against the motion, "Resolved that the primary function of an Arts course is to prepare students to earn a living." There will be a five to eight minute limit on the speeches. Debating Union president Agnes Ireland of St. Hilda's will be chairman, and the judges are Miss Ferguson, Dean of Women, and Genevieve Taylor.

The Union joins with similar groups at McGill, Queen's and McMaster in arranging for teams to represent each university in intercollegiate debating.

S.C.M. GROUP STUDY CURRENT AFFAIRS

The discussion of those parts of the news which confuse, is the theme of the Current Affairs group of Vic S.C.M. The group met yesterday in Victoria College, with Miss Jean Hunter as leader.

Members of the group are to lead in the study of the attitudes of the various periodicals which influence public opinion in Canada. "The group should be of especial interest to men of medicine, history, and sociological and philosophical studies," members said.

out of place on the modern dance floor as the Lindy Hop. The Polka seems to be in the same spot. "However," he said, "the old fashioned dances are always good as novelties, and if they have only learned to play the 'Beer Barrel Polka' right we might have seen the polka revived. There was the chance but we muffed it."

Further light was shed on the origin of the Coki-Old which broke out sporadically last winter in different parts of the continent by Da Costa. "It comes from a nursery rhyme about a little boy whose mother couldn't get him to bathe. So they made a game of it, 'Put your right foot in, etc.' and the kindergarten teachers made a dance out of it."

SECOND BOB PRACTICE
HELO BY FROSH

Featured by the absence of sophomores, the Vic frosh held their second Bob practice in Trinity United Church last night with an attendance nearing the century mark.

Songs and yells heaping abuse upon the second year were received and practised with enthusiasm that culminated in a medley of assorted school cheers.

Bill Blackmore, president of first year class, expressing satisfaction with the practice, said, "I'm sure the frosh this year will give the sophs the best run for their money they've ever had. There is lots of enthusiasm and I'm positive the Bob will go over well."

Pontifical Institute Celebrates Anniversary

W. S. T. O.

Application forms for admission to the University Women's Service Training Detachment of the Red Cross Women's Voluntary Service Corps will be available in the Athletic Office, Room 82, University College or in the Medical Adviser's Office, 44 Hoskin Avenue, on Thursday, October 17. (Due to the holiday, there has been a delay in printing.)

Applicants who have not already arranged for medical examination should make appointments with Dr. Davey immediately.

It should be emphasized that a promise to give voluntary service in the line of training is NOT essential for admission to the Detachment. The Red Cross does, however, wish to be assured that students who are trained will be prepared to offer some degree of national service, as their time will permit in the future.

TRINITY TO HOLD OLD BOYS' REUNION

Old Boys and Trinity Team Meet in Rugby Match Before Annual Dinner in Trinity Hall

ALL TRINITY DANCE

Trinity Old Boys will gather next Tuesday night for their annual get-together at the Trinity College Old Boys' and Athletic Association Dance to be held at Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's.

The dance will follow a rugby game between the Old Boys and the Trinity team in the afternoon and the Old Boys' Dinner in Trinity House.

Generally considered to be the main social attraction of Trinity College for the fall term, the dance is for all Trinity men, past and present, the Dance Committee announced.

Bob Shuttleworth's orchestra will provide the music, and a sit-down supper will be served.

The ticket sale for the annual dance, which opened several days ago, has been going briskly, members of the executive stated last night. However, there are still many tickets available, it was reported. They may be secured from the Trinity Hall Porter, from a member of the Trinity College Athletic Executive, or of the Board of Stewards.

Opening Ticket Sale Reaches 800 For All-University Frolic

Only 200 Tickets Remain for Largest Informal Party on Campus; Five Orchestras in Attendance

FOOD SOLD AT COST

More than 800 out of an available 1000 tickets were sold for the All-University Dance this Friday when the sale of tickets opened yesterday.

Only those who rush off to the Hall Porter right away will get a chance to enjoy the biggest, best and cheapest informal party on the campus.

Five big Toronto orchestras are expected; three of them, Stan St. John, Fred Evis, and Carl Muller are already engaged for the Big Gym, the Great Hall, and the Reading Room (C.O. T.C. orderly room to you frosh) respectively, and the other two will probably go in the east common room and the Debates Room. Tuck shop food will be served at cost in the Music Room and the Grad Dining-room, and on top of all this entertainment at such a low price every student there will have the satisfaction of seeing $250 worth of War Savings Stamps go up in flames, the satisfaction of doing his share in the common effort even during his entertainment.

Decree Issued by Pope Pius XII in 1939; Degrees to be Granted by St. Michael's According to Statutes

PROMINENT MEN LECTURE

This week marks an anniversary of one of North America's greatest centres of medieval learning, for it was on October 18, 1939, that His Holiness Pope Pius XII issued the decree whereby the Institute of Medieval Studies, a school of graduate studies in St. Michael's College, might grant academic degrees according to its approved statutes.

On that date the Institute of Medieval Studies was permitted to offer students the opportunity of qualifying for the pontifical degrees of Licentiate and Doctorate of Medieval Studies.

Endeavouring to bring to the university a special contribution in the field of scholastic philosophy and particularly of St. Thomas Aquinas, St. Michael's has brought prominent professors and graduates from European universities.

Among these was Professor Etienne Gilson of the University of Paris, who suggested that the college broaden its scope to include the whole range of medieval culture; and accordingly in 1929 the Institute of Medieval Studies was founded. After 1935, the work of the Institute, which up till then had philosophy, was broadened to include being confined almost exclusively to theology, medieval history, history of canon law and liturgy, medieval Latin and vernacular literature.

Apart from the list of scholars who compose the staff, the library is the most imposing thing about the Institute. It is housed in the new structure facing Queen's Park and provides space

M'CALLUM SUGGESTS ATTITUDE TO SCIENCE

"To vindicate religion in the science of today is to do religion a great disservice," Professor H. R. MacCallum told students at the first meeting of the Vic S.C.M. group on Religion and Science in Victoria College yesterday.

Professor MacCallum explained that science is a changing thing and that religion, a far vaster thing, could not be measured by a varying standard.

"There can be two attitudes to the subject," the speaker said. "Religion can be considered divorced from science or they could be shown to interlock."

The group will hold a supper meeting every two weeks, it was learned.

Player's Guild Stages "Air Raid" To Open Dramatic Season

Plays Are to be Presented Every Wednesday Under the Auspices of the University Committee

PLAY BY WINTER

Today marks the opening of the university drama season, with the University College Players' Guild presenting "Air Raid", a one-act comedy by Keith Winter, at Hart House Theatre this afternoon. The play will be under the direction of Elizabeth Stone.

One-act plays will be presented every Wednesday afternoon by the dramatic societies of U.C., Vic and Trinity under the auspices of the University Drama Committee.

The Drama Committee, now in its third year, embarked on the present policy of weekly one-act plays rather than a full-length production at the beginning of last year. Two years ago the Committee produced "Holiday", a full-length play under the direction of Willard Thompson.

The Inter-Varsity Drama Festival, which was inaugurated last year by five Ontario universities, was won by the Drama Committee's production of "The Rope", a one-act play by Eugene O'Neill, which was directed by Charles Joffe. Plans for a renewal of the festival this season have not yet been formulated, but the Committee hopes that, failing the Inter-Varsity competition, it will be possible to renew the annual festival between the dramatic societies of U.C., Victoria and Trinity, which the former college carried off last season with a performance of scenes from Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland."

Their Turn Now

National registration is a thing of the past to us but in the United States it is the topic of the day, for today, October 16, is the date set for the first United States peacetime conscription bill to swing into action. This makes it the third time within the past century that conscription has been used in the States.

The Selective Service Act was passed last month by the United States government with the object of training a standing defence army. It requires all American males between the ages of 21 and 36 to register today for service in the U.S. armed forces. Some 16,500,000 men will be enrolled and from among these 4,000,000 of the fittest will be selected for a year's military training. Approximately 8,000,000 will be trained each year, in order not to cripple the nation's industrial and business life.

The method to be used for selecting these 800,000 is the only fair one. All registered men will be given serial numbers. Each number will be put in a capsule, dumped in a glass bowl in Washington and at some future date will be pulled out one by one. Men holding the first 800,000 numbers drawn will be called up for service, unless exempted by local examining boards. Many of those drafted will be exempt for various reasons, such as the holding of essential jobs, families to support, or poor health. During the last war, one third of those exempted were rejected because of health.

In addition to the conscription bill, last month 60,000 members of the National Guard were called up for a year's service with the Army. Yesterday another 37,000 were scheduled to be called, with still more at intervals until, by the first of the year, 130,000 Guardsmen will be under arms.

The entire procedure is one for which the United States government deserves credit. It has lost very little time, as time is usually reckoned in matters of this kind, in swinging into action to prepare itself for home defence—and whatever else may prove necessary in the future.

The New Journalism

With the beginning of the new year, a highly important branch of journalism will be treated in Canada with the specific attention it deserves. Radio journalism is at last coming into its own, as a type of journalism quite distinct from the newspaper type. The C.B.C., which at present presents news supplied by the Canadian Press, will in the future gather its own news from various news agencies, and prepare it especially for broadcasting purposes.

In the past, the C.B.C. has obtained its news from the Canadian Press, paying it $20,000 per year for the clerical work involved only. Broadcasting stations have always claimed, however, that this arrangement tended to delay the news getting on the air until after it had appeared in the newspapers. Another drawback in the present system is that the national news summary often contains a practically word for word account of what has already appeared in the newspapers.

Henceforth there will be a distinct cleavage of news between radio and newspaper. A new technique has been developed in the United States for writing news for the air. The technique of news on the air is distinctly one of conciseness and brevity—it should be condensed down to the minimum. News facts, under the new system, will of course be the same, but they will be written up from a new angle, especially for broadcast purposes.

The key question in this new type of journalism is no longer the newspaper question, "Is it readable?" but the radio question, "Is it listenable?" Radio realizes that what is readable news is very often by no means listenable news. Realization of this fact has caused a great deal of study to be devoted to the subject recently. Scores of books have been written on radio journalism, and courses in the subject have been introduced in some American universities.

The result of all this may soon be observed. The C.B.C. will make up its own news summary to be broadcast with complete coverage of Canada, buying from news services such as Canadian Press, British United Press, and probably Transradio and I.N.S., as newspapers do.

In addition, under the new set-up, while private radio stations may purchase news from recognized services, limitations are placed on news sponsorship, which in the future will be limited to an institutional announcement, naming only the sponsor and his product. This will no doubt be good news to those who are accustomed to having their news items interspersed with commercials on the latest household appliances, or something equally annoying.

Drama To The Fore

With the presentation of Keith Winter's one-act comedy, "Air Raid", by the University College Players' Guild, the University Drama Committee begins its third season today. The Committee, formed from the executives of the drama groups in Trinity, Victoria and University Colleges, provides the coordinating factor in university dramatics.

Although the group has lost the able assistance of Willard Thompson, manager of Hart House Theatre who joined the Canadian Active Service Force during the summer, it intends to carry on under the able secretaryship of Charles Delafeld, one of the originators of the committee organization.

The committee has an enviable record. In 1938 it produced Philip Barry's "Holiday" under the direction of Mr. Thompson. Last year its production of Eugene O'Neill's "The Rope" took first prize at the Inter-Varsity Drama Festival.

Plans for the Inter-Varsity Festival for the present season have not yet been considered. However, the committee hope to continue the annual festival between the dramatic societies on the campus. The committee's present plans call for a series of plays to be presented each Wednesday afternoon in Hart House Theatre by each of the societies in rotation.

This work gives student aspirants to places in the theatre a chance to "get up on a stage" and also provides a high level of entertainment and cultural values for the student audiences.

Hart House Quartet

After a concert by such artists as the Hart House String Quartet, comment of any kind is almost superfluous. Everyone knows that the program must have been very close to the ultimate perfection of which the composers themselves must have dreamed. This quartet has a less individualistic style than many others: their playing is so pure that it is almost unbelievable that it could ever become particularized.

Three quartets made up a program filled with the most striking contrasts. Ravel, Beethoven, and Smetana chose the same medium for their art, but the results they achieved could not be set farther apart. Ravel's only quartet, in F major, is built around one set of themes. The varied effects he obtains in the different movements and the wide changes in atmosphere between them will always make this quartet one of the most interesting in the whole literature of chamber music. The second movement, Assez vite, bien rythme, is a masterpiece of tonal uncertainty. It hesitates almost continually before deciding to close on a rest chord sequence.

Beethoven's earliest quartet effort, Op. 18, No. 3, shows very clearly the composer's debt to Haydn and Mozart. Nevertheless it is as surely Beethoven as the Great Fugue. It is Beethoven while he is yet feeling his way, while he is yet thinking about rebellion against the traditions, and yet there is scarcely anything in his later style whose germ cannot at least be felt in this attempt.

Of Smetana's Aus meinem Leben quartet little can be said. It is so strikingly individualistic that ordinary canons of appreciation can scarcely apply. It

The Editor, The Varsity.
Dear Sir:

The average freshman arrives at college with little or no preconceived knowledge as to the average intelligence of sports writers on The Varsity's staff. He reads the first issue of The Varsity, presumably forming his opinion about the sports page. Before he has time to reconsider this opinion, he finds it re-echoed in the Champus Cat—a source which he respects and considers responsible. The insertion of the name of a member of the sports staff into a recent Cat, coupled with an alleged quotation which pictures him as using profane and vulgar language is only one example of the type of insidious propaganda which has disgraced the columns of the Cat for some years.

The sports staff is the home of culture and enlightenment. More than one former Sports Editor has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for research in such vital fields as the ballistics of a snooker ball, (Professor Alan Harvey, B.A., R.L.P., C.P., X.X.X.)

In addition to its usual quota of intellectual giants, this season the staff has stocked up with an auxiliary battalion of S.P.S. men and Pass Arts students, whose experience in lecture-skipping and sup-writing exceeds that of any other body of students on the campus, and whose off-colour witticisms are quoted throughout the daily collegiate press of the United States and Canada.

Furthermore, we challenge the news staff to a renewal of last year's spelling bee, demanding no more than five to one odds.

Yours respectfully,

Rigoletto Blop, 475, (Varsity Sports Staff)

is actually freer in style than the Ravel quartet. Ravel achieves his modernities by his treatment of his ideas within the classical mold; Smetana seems to work emotionally. He gives his idea its head and imposing few restrictions on its execution. The Quartet played Smetana as if he had been a rhapsody, the only way he can be played.

PROMENADE SYMPHONY CONCERTS

Last Thursday evening, the final regular concert of the Promenade Symphony series was given. It should not be inappropriate at this time to make some mention of the debt which not only the music lover, but also the general public, owes to Reginald Stewart and the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra. For years, orchestra and conductor have devoted their energies to bringing some appreciation of music to the ordinary man, and to keeping alive Toronto's music (and incidentally its musicians) during the slack summer season. The orchestra was conceived originally as an aid to the musicians of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra when the winter concerts were over. Reginald Stewart, the conductor of this new organization, soon had achieved for it an international reputation. The immense success of the Prom Concerts must be largely attributed to his musicianly guidance.—N.M.

Friday and Saturday COLISEUM FESTIVAL CHORUS

With TORONTO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Based on a superb 2,000-voice chorus, the producers have built up a program of festive, patriotic and religious music such as has never before been known.

Its two conductors, Dr. Charles Peaker and Sir Ernest MacMillan, its continuity man at the organ, and sound control microphone, its dancers, dramatic tableaux and its singing audience are as unusual as its tremendous double chorus—which is itself a musical phenomenon.

Special choir of 250 from Hamilton will take part; 150 boy chorists will participate.

Proceeds are in aid of four war services—Red Cross, Salvation Army, Y.M.C.A. and Knights of Columbus. Sponsored by The Toronto Daily Star.

All Seats Reserved—25c, 50c, $1

Interfaculty Spotlight To Fall On Footballers

Meds Clash with Sr. S.P.S. at Varsity Bowl with Vic and Jr. School Playing on the Back Campus

BOTH GAMES AT 4.30

Tomorrow, the spotlight falls on the interfaculty footballers. There will be two rugby dishes on the menu and both are scheduled for 4.30. Sr. Meds jousts with Sr. S.P.S. at the Varsity Bowl with Vic and Jr. S.P.S. fighting it out on the back west campus.

Meanwhile, our rugby heroes are out on the respective campi heaving the old apple around with the usual pre-season vigour. Jr. School had the best turnout yesterday with about twenty hopefuls doing their chores.

Sr. School, on the other hand, was not too well represented, having the usual twelve men on hand. Annis Stulus, Argo grid ace, was putting the boys through their paces and the Engineers are shaping up as a real threat in the interfaculty race.

Fugler is calling the signals, backed by a very strong half-line—Munro, Hurst, Hawken and Plaxton, former intercollegiate passing and kicking star. Vic De Paul, outstanding interfaculty grid ace for the past few years, is holding down his regular inside berth. Mize, Reuben and Herbie Barrett are other outstanding stalwarts on the front line.

Jr. Meds held their second practice yesterday and a good deal more enthusiasm was displayed both in turnout and spirit than was demonstrated in their first practice. Ken Brown and Watters at outside, Arnp at quarter and Whitley on the line are shaping up rapidly as potential threats in the Meds machine.

If practices are any indication, U.C. will be another force with which to reckon. Dynamic little Cuddy Faber is in the quarterback slot and McKinley, Alconbrack and Axon form a powerful trio on the half-line. Bob Cameron is going great guns in the upside down position and Ned Cutler is playing his usual steady game at end. U.C. defeated Forestry last Saturday in an exhibition tilt.

George Oliphant, coach of the Red and White, was asked what he thought of the new four-down ruling in interfaculty rugby.

"It should make plunging more prominent than ever," he declared, and added that once a team got in possession of the ball, their opponents would find it a real task to get it again.

Trinity gridgers were out on their own playing field and exhibited more snap and dash in their workout than any other interfaculty squad. There was little need for coach Dave Owen to make them hustle as they brushed through their plays under the able guidance of Don Boxer, flashy Red and Black quarterback.

Managers and coaches of the various outfits were unanimous in their complaints about comparatively poor turn-

SERVICE!

Some classy tennis will be served forth on the St. Hilda's courts on Devonshire Place today. Beginning at nine this morning, the first round of the Interfaculty Tennis Tournament contains enough classy entrants to outfit a team which would win any intercollegiate title even if they had to play with fly-swatters for rackets. Bruce Hall, the Davis Copper, Jack Mullett, the all-round athlete of Dents, Mel Jones, Ian McCallum and Jack Shorter, are on the star-studded draw sheet, together with such capable netmen as Owen Gray, Maurice Marcis and John Whallon.

This tourney shapes up as a rare dish for enthusiasts of the net pastime, since a number of the newcomers have enough ability in their tennis arms to upset the veterans of former years. Owen Gray, of Meds, who has been working out regularly with Bruce Hall on Vic's courts, looms as the threat to Hall's interfaculty crown.

The Tennis Club executive had quite a time last night in making the draw so that all would be given a fair start, and so that as far as was possible the initial matches would have different faculties facing each other across the webbing. With a field of 66 to handle, those responsible for the tournament will have no easy task in keeping the machinery from getting clogged. So it is the responsibility of each entrant to be on the court at the hour for which his match is called. This corner considers the 15-minute default rule a wise move, having seen the inconsiderate time-wasting on the part of some entrants in last year's tournament.

TANK TALK

Coach Winterburn had some interesting statistics for us yesterday on the swimming standards of the present freshman class. "Of 813 freshmen who have taken the swimming test this year," quoth Winterburn, "141 either could not swim at all or were such poor swimmers that they were assigned to the learn-to-swim class." The Varsity mentor is of the opinion that the U. of T. has a high percentage of students who can swim. That Toronto ranks near the top in this regard is a credit also to the work of swimming instruction conducted in Ontario's secondary schools and Y.M.C.A.'s and similar institutions.

We should like to stress here the fact that any students in the 20-24 group who want to be instructed in swimming and/or life-saving are welcome at any of the classes.

B. W. AND F.

Which, being translated means, of course, Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing. Now that we have reminded you of that edifying fact, we get down to the important business of announcing that the first-mentioned of these many arts commences tonight at 5 in the Boxing Room of Hart House. "Mel" Glionna, who has coached the fisticuffers for the last few years, is back again and ready for action. Don't labour under any delusions that the boxing and wrestling instruction is for potential Dempseys and Tarzans alone. The instructors are there to give training and pointers to any student who wants to learn the game, no matter how much of a novice he may be. These tea-time tutorials in B. and W. will continue from five to six Mondays through Fridays. "Mel" is planning to keep the mitt-men and their followers interested in the game by staging regular weekly bouts among those of the leather-slingers who show promise.

The grapplers begin their tuition on Monday, under the guidance of George Daly, while Monday is also the date set for the opening of Mr. Walter's fencing classes.

Followers of the boxing game in Varsity for the past three years will be pleased to note that Bill Ramore of School has been appointed to the Athletic Directorate to fill the vacancy created when Chuck Maclean (now of the R.C. A.F.) failed to return to Varsity this fall. Ramore was twice intercollegiate champion, last year at 155, and the year previous at 145. The Athletic Directorate will profit greatly from this addition to its numbers. Congratulations, Bill, and a hearty welcome.

Basketball practises thronged the floors of any available gym last night as all colleges, with the exception of St. Hilda's, got under way. The Saints start this Thursday, and matches should be blossoming forth any time now—let's say, next week. The U.C. seniors will certainly miss Helen Gurney, star last year's intercollegiate captain, and veteran of many an intercollegiate tussle—why do people let graduation get them—we certainly don't let it bother us! Joan Griffith and "Tibs" Annesley will be back with the Saints' senior team, and Annabelle Macdon is still with St. Mike's. The U.C. freshmen move up to the rank of juniors and we hope they'll live up to the amazing record of their predecessors, by name—no hits, no runs, and sundry errors—oh well, we tried! We hope to pay a social call on a few freskie practices this week, and will report all kinds of results, we hope.

All co-ed basketball hopefuls, of all years, all teams, all colleges, please report to Dr. Davey before your next practice—to get yourself formally approved by the medical staff.

66 Netmen To Enter Initial Tennis Round

SPORT SPLASHES

By Doug Green

Bill Winterburn in his amiable manner allowed Owen Prichard, our boss, and yours truly, to enter the swimming pool (not the water) despite the fact we had on our shoes. This is quite a concession and will probably never happen again. The news we obtained is the new set up for compulsory and voluntary swimming for this term.

Any male under 18 who cannot swim must take one hour per week in any of the learn-to-swim classes and one hour in the gym. Those from 18-20 who cannot swim and are in first or second years must take one hour military training and one hour learning to swim per week.

If there is any chap who desires to learn to swim regardless of age or faculty or year he is invited by Mr. Winterburn to join any one of the classes. These are held every Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday beginning at 10.00, 11.00, 12.00 and 3.00 o'clock. Mr. Winterburn has found that 99 per cent of beginners can swim reasonably well by showing up one hour a week until the end of the school year.

This is a sensational investment by learning to take care of oneself in the water by practising 1 hour out of the 168 hours in the week, until the end of the school year.

Life saving classes are held Thursday and Friday at 10.00, 11.00, 12.00 and 3.00 p.m. and Saturday morning at 10.00.

Intermediate swimming classes are held for anyone desiring to be more proficient in the technique of swimming Monday through Friday from 4.00 to 5.00. Strokes specialized on are the three standard ones, crawl, breast and back stroke, plus instruction in turns, starts and diving. This only continues to Christmas as water polo becomes the main attraction in the spring term.

let's go places

"No Time for Comedy" was distinguished from the usual run of parlor comedies by an unusually brilliant dialogue, a left-over from the stage play of the same name by

S. N. Behrman. A rather solid plot is another welcome heirloom from Mr.

Behrman's opus. Rosalind Russell is her usual scintillating self, managing to win James Stewart back without the swift kick which Brian Aherne found so disconcerting last week. Stewart enjoys himself thoroughly in a part that has conveniently been re-written around James Stewart. Genevieve Tobin does a first-rate job as the blonde in the case, "a Lorelei with an intellectual pater." Charles Ruggles gives one of his sound, unassuming supporting performances. If you want to look deeper into the plot, you'll also find material for a first-class argument on the role of the theatre in wartime, but don't let that frighten you away. A slight attack of slowness in the closing sequences is perhaps the only fault of what is otherwise a top-ranker in the comedy field.—E.S.

For those who like "fluffy" entertainment, (and who does not?), Spring Parade, now showing at the Imperial is recommended. Deanna Durbin shows off her pretty teeth and her voice in surroundings where even the houses look like something out of fairyland. The atmosphere is one of surprisingly realistic gaiety and extremely natural artificiality. Deanna has a supporting cast almost entirely made up of the great lesser lights of Hollywood, and they clown their way through the story almost as if they were enjoying it too.

Deanna's voice is improving with each picture she makes and the reproduction at the Imperial leaves nothing to be desired. She loves, and is eventually loved by, a soldier. He composes waltzes

Two Out of Three Margin to be Tried for by Players, Who Were Seeded on the Draw Alphabetically

HALL TO DEFEND SINGLES

Sixty-six tennis players step out on the St. Hilda's courts today in the first round of the Interfaculty Tennis Tournament. The opening match is scheduled for nine o'clock, and there is a 15-minute default rule in force.

Such a wide field will likely produce a number of interesting matches as the netmen try for the two-out-of-three margin in sets which will advance them into the second bracket. An imposing array of seeded players is on the list. These were seeded on the draw in alphabetical order. Included are defending singles champion Bruce Hall, heading a strong group of entries from Emmanuel. His practice-partner, Owen Gray of Meds, with whom Hall played in Edmonton last summer, will also be a strong contender for the title.

Today's scheduled matches are:

9:00—Beard vs. Turech; Clark vs. Koppel; Mullett vs. Amos; Murphy vs. Morris; McCord vs. Wayland; Rogers vs. Waugh; Szatoko vs. Tauber.

10:00—Willinsky vs. Duncan; Bennett vs. Longo; Bennett J. vs. Clee; Cooper vs. Leake; Browne vs. Brace; Willgress vs. Gofin; Moses vs. White.

11:00—McGraw vs. Tamblin; O'Hara vs. Hutcheson; Prideaux vs. Skinner; Dales vs. Blaker; Jacobs vs. Whallon; Callan vs. Rusted.

12:00—McCallum vs. winner of Beard and Turech.

1:00—Berg vs. Crane; McDonough vs. McClure; Stark vs. Green; Marchant vs. Kitchen; Remmer vs. Finlayson; McMurrich vs. Campbell; Hall vs. Penoyer.

2:00—Bryce vs. Fennell; Rotenberg vs. Shorter; Marvis vs. Allan; Jones vs. winner of Clarke and Koppel; Porter vs. Gray.

which Deanna sings. Everything is just too perfectly delightful. For those who intellectuals require awakening an Information Please short is included. The fact that Anna Neagle was guest expert more than made up for the many questions we couldn't answer. —R.W. & N.M.

One of the Ritz Brothers' best in a long time. They ran the gamut of slapstick, hauled out all the bearded gags and still made us laugh. The plot, in case you are interested, ARGENTINE concerns an all-girl band who go to Argentina accompanied by the Ritz brothers, to further the cause of Pan-American good-will. They are financed, by Colossal Ideas, Inc., also a brainchild of the Ritz brothers. The Andrews Sisters added materially to the picture. One of the highlights was where the Ritz Brothers impersonated the Andrews Sisters singing one of their hit songs. The faces of the two groups are surprisingly similar. We noticed a few touches reminiscent of the Marx Brothers. The other feature "Slightly Tempted", was strictly a Hugh Herbert picture, if you like that sort of thing.

NEW SESSION BEGINS FOR VIC PARLIAMENT

The Victoria College Debating Parliament will launch its 1940-41 program at its inaugural meeting in Alumni Hall on October 21.

The opening of Parliament will be promulgated, with accompanying ceremony, by the Lieutenant-Governor, Principal Brown.

At this meeting the Speaker will be elected by the college for the session now in progress, and Prime Minister Morris Hay will outline the policy to which the Government will adhere.

A debate will be heard on the Government's resolve "that initiatives in the college should be more stringent." The side of the Government will be presented by Premier Hay and Miss Helen Carefoot, the Minister of Propaganda.

Miss Margaret Grant, a sponsor of the new Orientation Movement for the benefit of freshmen, will speak for the Opposition.

SELECTIVE SERVICE

extract from selective service regs ...

The Purpose of Selective Service.

Section 1, Paragraph 101:

The purpose of Selective Service is to secure an orderly, just, and democratic method whereby the military manpower of the United States may be made available for training and service in the land and naval forces of the United States, as provided by the Congress, with the least possible disruption of the social and economic life of the nation.

On Registration, Section 14, Paragraph 241:

Every man subject to registration who is not within the continental United States on the registration date fixed by Presidential proclamation shall immediately after his return to the continental United States present himself for and submit to registration at the nearest Local Board.

Liability for Service. Section 5, Paragraph 1:

Any person who, during the year 1940, entered upon attendance for the academic year 1940-1941—(1) at any college or university which grants a degree in arts or science, to pursue a course of instruction satisfactory completion of which is prescribed by such college or university as a prerequisite to either of such degrees; or (2) at any university described in paragraph (1), to pursue a course of instruction to the pursuit of which a degree in arts or science is prescribed by such university as a prerequisite; and who, while pursuing such course of instruction at such college or university, is selected for training and service under this Act prior to the end of such academic year, or prior to July 1, 1941, whichever occurs first, shall, upon his request be deferred from induction into the land or naval forces for such training and service until the end of such academic year, but in no event later than July 1, 1941.

Wide-Eyed In Gotham

By Ruwen Frank

(A Canadian University Press Feature)

Flushing, N.Y.—"Yes sir, yes sir! Here's something you always wanted to do. Knock the girl out of bed. Yes sir, it's three shots for a dime. It's De-Bunk-Her!"

Throwing the girl out of bed is certainly more fun than hitting the nigger in the eye, but the carnival spirit has gone from the Fair. The people are blasé since this attraction was splashed by one of the picture magazines, and, anyway, de-bunking is essentially a spectator sport. So the crowd waits around until some jovial inebriate or rollicking man of the sea comes up and buys a dollar's worth of missiles. Usually, he insists on a smile from the girls, but they just stick their tongues out and go back to their books. One of them was reading New England: Indian Summer. The dollar is exhausted and the crowd disperses.

The Great White Way is full of girls. As a matter of fact, the feminine torso becomes slightly boring, even on a press pass. Here right opposite the American Jubilee is the White Way Casino, featuring dances of all the nations, where former burlesque chorines from Brooklyn become a terpsichorean League of Nations. Last year the Casino featured Miss Rosita Joyce, whose trained doves did the dirty work for her. But the management wanted her to do twelve-a-day on Saturdays and Sundays instead of the usual eight. Being a lover of man's dumb friends, Miss Joyce resigned rather than subject her feathered creatures to the task of acting as her personal maids a dozen times a day.

So this year it's Tirza and her wine dance. It seems that at a certain level which the Athenians dedicated to Bacchus, one young lady fell so violently in love with the conception of the god of the grape that she hurled herself into the fountain and was, naturally, drowned. I think the proceeding was rather silly, but it seems old Bacchus more kindly disposed and every night at midnight the fountain runs wine and the silly young lady dances about. Where the strip-tease fits in is something you have to see to believe.

Have some Salvador Dali. At the show known as 20,000 Legs Under the Sea, the artistic piece of resistance of the Fair is on view. The exhibit, which will attract the mob only because of a sparsely-clad (in twigs) damsel, is a masterpiece of delirium tremens. It is named The Bed of Venus, or something along that line, and little miss Aphrodite is attended by a plaster feminine corpse stabbed through the heart with an umbrella, a strange hand which is a photograph, and several animals which are not to be found at the Bronx Zoo.

The human participant in this tableau has no easy job of it. It would seem to us active mortals that just lying there sleeping for ten hours a day is little short of cushy, but last year's occupant of the bed of Venus complained that her continual recumbence flattened out her curves, which is no end of a tragedy. By the way, the show is called 20,000 Legs Under the Sea because there is one girl with two (2) legs swimming in a tank.

She swims quite well.

Outside, the man says, "Of course, these girls aren't fully clad, but is there any man in this audience who objects? If there is, he had better go see a doctor. He's dead." And inside they take a girl and put her in a cake of ice, there to freeze. Misogynists flock to the place by the thousands: imagine seeing a girl frozen in a cake of ice—but the catch is, after ten minutes they take her out. At the next Fair they shall beat her with whips.

But the same fifteen cents takes you (not me, I got in free) to a fan dance. There was an old fellow in a wheel chair there on Bennett, N.J. day, and it seemed very much as if he would jump out of the chair, through the glass partition and fly to her arms. They would establish the Fair forever as some new type of healing shrine where all those who have a minimum of blood left can get a maximum of action out of it. This, however, is pure speculation, because the old guy stayed in his chair.

Far, far away, on the high plateau of the interior of Asia, is a quiet, strange and peaceful country. The inhabitants practise polygamy and polyandry, but they do not drink or play pool. They worship strangely and live very humble lives, these Tibetans, and are bound forever to their rocky wastes and their thin soil. The white man is not welcome in Tibet, but Mysterious Tibet at Cousin Grover's Carnival will open like a flower for twenty cents.

The Barker has a good line. In fact, he was voted the best at the Fair. Against a background of huge pictures of pagodas, Buddhas, and mules winding their ways up mountain trails, he harangues the crowd. "And now, starting in just a few moments, we have the Tibetan Passion Dance. We have here the most beautiful, the most exotic, the most exciting amatory aphrodisiacs—Say, listen, take that kid away from here. You ought to be ashamed of yourself. These girls will dance in the secret manner. . . ."

Inside there is no Dalai Lama: no, not even a Panchen Lama. There's a gilt laughing Buddha up front who looks rather silly, and a bronze bell, green with age, which they claim is genuine six hundred years old, no less. The "five hundred seats on the inside" turn out to be a few backless wooden benches which wouldn't seat five hundred inhabitants of Morris Gest's Middletown, next door.

The program is opened by a svelte young lady in a black dress who comes out to make a speech. The way they cover up the crassness of life is something remarkable to behold, but Mysterious Tibet takes top honours over Rosita Royce or Salvador Dali. It seems that the Tibetan novitiates must spend a night resisting the sins of the flesh before they can become full-fledged priests. The story takes about twenty minutes to tell, and the young lady rolls the words off her tongue as if she knew what they meant. But when the boys from Hackensack heckle her she loses her place and has to repeat the whole speech to herself until she comes to the part where she left off.

And then it's over. A brown-robed figure comes solemnly out and seats itself in meditation. Then there are two girls. You guessed it! They don't wear very much. The dancing becomes fantastical and fantastical and the music in the background is—take it easy now!

—the Danse Macabre by Saint-Saens.

While these "amatory aphrodisiacs" strut their stuff, my neighbour turns to his pal and asks "What smells around here?" His pal answers, "Frank Buck's place is just around the corner."

So that's what it was.

for 50,000 volumes. Now it contains practically all the great collections of patristic and scholastic periods, and thousands of volumes dealing with medieval times.

Moreover, by modern photographic processes a large number of manuscripts scattered throughout a score of European libraries have been copied and are stored in vaults of the Institute. No matter what may happen to libraries in Europe, these unedited treatises are safe from destruction and will be available to students and scholars on this continent.

In the past, students have included graduates from the great Catholic, state and private universities of North America, and it is thought that due to present conditions in Europe, and the unlikelihood of students going abroad to study, enrolment of the Pontifical Institute of Medieval Studies will steadily increase.

EXTENSION COURSES GIVE INCREASED AID TO WORKING PEOPLE

Variety of Lectures Given on Subjects Ranging from Air-Conditioning to Lip-Reading; Radio Writing Popular

NO EXAMINATIONS

Extension courses in the University of Toronto are yearly giving an opportunity to a large number of working people to further their education, it was learned yesterday.

These courses are held in the evenings, and are attended by business men and women, housewives, and students, who wish to receive training in a certain subject. There is a great variety of courses, ranging from business to scientific subjects, from languages to art, music, and drama appreciation.

The lecturers in some subjects are university professors and in others are persons who are experienced in and who still work at their own particular business. These courses have been going on for about fifteen years, increasing in number as time goes on. There are no academic requirements for entrance and the tutorial classes do not

MR. STOCKING SPEAKS AT COMMERCE OPENER

Emphasis Placed on Combination of Theory and Practice in Commerce and Finance Course

"PENCIL-PUSHING" NEEDED

Speaking at the opening meeting of the Toronto Commerce Club yesterday, Mr. Stocking, a graduate of the Harvard School of Business Administration and temporarily a member of the Department of Political Economy, gave an address on the value of the Commerce and Finance course in actual business practice.

Mr. Stocking emphasized the fact that a university graduate should be able to apply himself and his knowledge in any particular situation better than an untrained man. He added that a combination of theoretical and practical learning such as is offered in the Commerce and Finance course is essential.

University College Frosh Stage Annual Mixer in Women's Union

Dance music echoed in both upper and lower floors of the Women's Union last night as University College frosh staged their annual mixer. True to the traditions of the dance, it was reported that not one freshie attending the dance went home single.

It was estimated that well over 375 people attended the dance. Among those present were W. J. McAndrew, Registrar of the college, C. N. Cochrane, Dean of Men, and Miss Marion Ferguson, Dean of Women. Orchestras in attendance were those of George Carty and John Dennis.

The executive under Gordon Ross and Jean Bishop also kept an eye open for intruders and were able to ward off several Engineers who wandered in through a side door during the proceedings. In an effort to repeat their tactics of two years ago, they began a snake dance across the lower floors. The end came as the men of science headed for an open door and the cool night air.

"Fetish of Objectivity" Made by Universities Claims Dr. W. C. Lockhart

"Family Portrait" Will Be Produced By Vic Actors

Broadway Success of Last Season to Be Directed by W. S. Milne; Shows Family of Jesus in Modern Style

TRY-OUTS AT WYMLWOOD

"Family Portrait" by Coffee and Cowan is to be produced by the Victoria College Dramatic Society at Hart House Theatre this season.

A play in modern style on the Family of Jesus, "Family Portrait" was a Broadway success of last season. The play is to be directed by W. S. Milne, who taught a course in stagecraft at Queen's this summer. Try-outs for the parts in the play are to be held this Saturday at Wymilwood, society officials announced.

The dramatic club has in addition two more plays in production. One held in Victoria Alumnae Hall under the direction of Mary Carter and another held at Hart House under the direction of Dick Stewart. The series of one-act plays at Alumnae Hall are intended to train people for Hart House production by the society.

New Course Leads To Double Degree

University of British Columbia Only Canadian College Offering Combination of Agriculture and Commerce

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 8 (CUP). — Pending ratification by the Board of Governors, a new course leading to a double degree in Commerce and Agriculture will be given at the University of British Columbia, Dean Clement of the Faculty of Agriculture announced yesterday.

Consistently higher enrollments in the Faculty of Agriculture the past few years has made the new course feasible, Dean Clement stated. At present the University of British Columbia is the only Canadian university offering the course.

ANNUAL BOB TO BE HELD IN HART HOUSE THEATRE

Weeks of preparation culminate tonight in the sixty-eighth annual Bob to be held in Hart House Theatre, and the freshmen of Victoria are formally welcomed to the life and traditions of the college.

During the night, sophs and frosh will vie in heaping abuse on each other as they attempt to out-yell and out-stage the other side.

Stage productions include skits on the professors and frosh as well as three scenes of all-comedy.

PERIODICAL BIDS

Members are reminded that all bids on the periodicals in the reading room at Hart House must be handed in to the Warden's office not later than 6 p.m. tonight.

Speaks in Hart House in Opening Talk of S.C.M. Noon-Hour Series on the Topic "Basic Convictions"

FORMER SECRETARY

The universities have made a "fetish of objectivity", claimed Dr. W. C. Lockhart, speaking in Hart House yesterday in the opening talk of an S.C.M. noon-hour series on the topic "Basic Convictions". Dr. Lockhart retired last spring after a service of five years as secretary of the university S.C.M.

The emphasis which universities have placed upon the "open mind" and the "detached attitude," along with intense specialization, has resulted, claimed Dr. Lockhart, in their students becoming neutral toward life as a whole. While the universities a disintegrating rather than an integrating force in the lives of undergraduates, he said, the latter tend to lose their earlier convictions which may have seemed simple and naive but were fundamental.

The speaker maintained that the most important thing in life was what you did with life, not what life did to you, and that, therefore, it was necessary to face it with a firm faith. "To have your feet upon solid ground you must have something to live for, which is secured by holding convictions," he said. "The situation in this country is that we are afraid to let our emotions free and to love something bigger and higher than ourselves." He pointed to the success which Hitler had with the disillusioned youth of Germany by giving them a creed to live for and die for.

SHEILA SCOTT, U.C., REPRESENTS CANADA AT NEW YORK FAIR

University College Coed Chosen by United States Company for American Beauty Court at World's Fair

OPINION PRO-BRITISH

By Michael O'Mara

Yesterday this Varsity reporter was sent on the most exotic assignment of his campus career. For he interviewed the girl who was named "Miss Canada" at the New York World's Fair of 1940.

Sheila Scott, a dark-haired, gray-eyed U.C. senior, was Canada's representative this summer at the Pan-American Court of Beauty, an institution sponsored by a well-known United States company. Other countries represented at the court were Mexico, Argentina, Brazil, and the United States.

Miss Scott is an unusual person. Unlike the ordinary type of interviewee, who merely pretends to shun notoriety.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

WOMEN'S SERVICE TRAINING DETACHMENT

(In response to various requests, Dr. Cody's announcement in regard to the formation of the Women's Service Training Detachment in this university is repeated below.)

After consultation with the Red Cross officials, I am glad to authorize the formation of an organization for undergraduate women's war work.

A unit of the Women's Voluntary Service Corps of the Red Cross Society of Canada is to be established in the University of Toronto as an activity of the Women's Athletic Association. The unit will be known as the University Women's Service Training Detachment. The purpose of the Detachment is to prepare students for future enrolment in the Women's Voluntary Service Corps and for other forms of national service in which they may wish to participate.

The general course of training will include instruction in Red Cross organization and objectives, office duties and administration, military correspondence, military law and K. R. & O., military department, military drill and physical training. The general course will lead to further specialized instruction in preparation for specific types of service. Regulation uniforms will be worn by members for drill and instruction periods.

The Red Cross lays down the following general requirements: (1) Applicants for enrolment must be undergraduates fully registered in the University of Toronto. (2) They must present two personal character references and a certificate of physical fitness from the University Medical Adviser for Women. (3) They must be between the ages of 18 and 45 years. (4) The Red Cross reserves the right to limit the enrolment to 200 and to select from the applicants those who will be best fitted for future service by virtue of previous training, physical condition, neatness to graduation and general aptitude for the type of work to be undertaken. Special consideration will be given to athletes and students with experience in executive work.

H. J. CODY, President.

(It should be noted that the Red Cross does not require any guarantee from applicants for membership that they will undergo specialized training after the completion of the college year, nor does membership in the Detachment entail further voluntary service of a specific kind. It is naturally assumed that members will wish to offer such service as their circumstances will permit in return for the valuable instruction provided by the Red Cross and military authorities.)

Application forms for admission to the Detachment will be available in the Athletic Office, Room 82, University College or in the Medical Adviser's office, 44 Hoskin Avenue, on Friday afternoon, October 18, not Thursday as previously announced.

Applicants who have not already arranged for medical examination should make appointments with Dr. Davey immediately.)

Photography Fans Hold Open House In Music Room

Camera Club Program to Include Coloured Pictures and a Tour of Dark Rooms in Hart House

NEW FEATURE THIS YEAR

Hart House Camera Club will hold open house in the music room tonight at 8 p.m. The program will include a showing of colour pictures by C. Matthews, a talk by Professor K. B. Jackson on the uses of photography in wartime and a description of the club facilities by Professor Coventry. Interested persons will be taken on a tour of the dark rooms.

The club is justly proud of its dark rooms, the best equipped in the city. There are six individual dark rooms including developing, enlarging, printing and print finishing rooms. Available to members are three enlargers, a grafex camera, copying outfit, dry mounting press, pako printer, photometer and a library of current photographic magazines.

British Columbia Enters Debates

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 9 (CUP)—

Parliamentary Forum officials today stated that the University of British Columbia will definitely enter a series of teams in the McGoun debates to be held in January. Their program, necessarily curtailed by the military training, will consist of occasional debates, public speaking classes for freshmen debaters, and the McGoun series. The present holder of the McGoun Cup, symbolic of western Canada intercollegiate debating supremacy, is the University of Saskatchewan.

Interfaculty Grid Season Opens Today at 4.30 with Twin Bill

By Dave McIntosh
Senior Meds go against Senior School and Vic tangles with Junior S.P.S. this afternoon in the curtain-raiser on the interfaculty rugby season. The former game is to be staged in the Varsity Bowl and the Vic-School tussle on the back campus.

If Meds' turnouts to practices are any indication of what they intend to do in the intramural loop, it is doubtful if there will even be a game. Tuesday night only two showed up for the workout. If they do field a team, it is unlikely that they will be much of a match for Senior School, who have shown up better-than-average in practice thus far. Jack Plaxton, former Varsity triple-threat ace, heads a strong backfield quintet. He will take care of the passing duties, and Jim Hurst will lend him a hand in the kicking department.

The Vic-School contest will be no one-sided affair, for each boasts an evenly-balanced team. Vic is the heavier of the two, but the fleet Engineer backs may overcome this. Once more Don Grosskurtz will work out in the backfield, aided by a swift crew of boys who can manipulate an extension play to perfection.

Vic has what is probably the heaviest line in the league, including Captain Radio Operator on Board the Cruiser H.M.S. Ajax Since Last June; Had Taken Training with R.C.N.V.R.

BRILLIANT MATHEMATICIAN

Sub-Lieutenant George Henry Kirkpatrick (Pat) Strathy, 22, a graduate of Trinity College last year, who held one of the most brilliant scholastic records on the campus, was killed in action aboard the cruiser H.M.S. Ajax, according to word received by his parents yesterday.

A radio operator on board the Ajax since last June, "Pat" had taken special training in wireless telegraphy with the R.C.N.V.R. before going to England last April, where he was transferred to the Royal Navy and spent a short training period in a naval training school before being posted to the Ajax. Sub-Lieut. Strathy's death occurred as a result of the action in the Mediterranean Saturday, Oct. 12, in which, according to an Admiralty announcement—

Primary Purpose to Foster Public Speaking on Campus and Between Queen's, McGill and McMaster

FOUR WINNING ENTRANTS

Eleven would-be debaters representing the four colleges, contested positions on the women's debating team at try-outs held yesterday afternoon in the Women's Union. The four successful entrants were Margo Booth, third year Victoria College, Kay McLean, third year St. Michael's, Mary Shortt, fourth year University College, and Mabel Van Camp, fourth year Victoria College. Acting as judges were Genevieve Pete Quentin, Bob Irwin, Jim Carson and Don McRae. Jack Paisley, who operated in the intermediate ranks last year and who gave one of the best exhibitions of placement kicking seen around these parts in the game against Western Colts, is a late and valuable addition to the squad, but will be out of today's game. Wee George Lewis, who played with U.T.S. last year, is quarterbacking the team, while Al Smith, Ed Shugart, Johnny Hogg and Hal Fleming will take up where they left off last year. Smallwood, who turned out with Argos, will play at end, with Jack Wolfraim at the other extremity. "Brick" Bradford will replace Harry Rutledge at the snap-back position in today's game.

AL ELLIOTT PRESIDENT OF FRESHMAN D.C.E. CLASS

Al Elliott was elected president of the first year of the Ontario College of Education at a meeting of the students of the first year yesterday.

O. R. Hurst was named honorary president and Miss Mary Asquith, honorary vice-president.

Other officers elected were: Vice-president, Bill Dallas; secretary, B. Rowsell; treasurer, Ken Yorke. Members of the committee are: Jean Mitchell, Don Hall, E. Nelson and W. Brown.

Things To Come

With the presidential elections in the States drawing closer, Canadians are showing almost as much interest in the situation as American voters. On the whole, Canadians have always rooted for President Roosevelt, and they are particularly anxious to see him re-elected at this time. Nor does it appear that they will be disappointed. The usually reliable Gallup poll, which had formerly conceded Roosevelt 453 electoral votes against 78 for Willkie, now concedes him 499, against 32 for Willkie. Willkie was conceded only six States—North and South Dakota, Kansas, Nebraska, and of course Maine and Vermont.

Roosevelt received an added boost last week when the New York Times' Rome correspondent wrote—"The Axis is out to defeat President Roosevelt. The election is of vast importance to the Axis. Therefore the normal strategy for the Axis is to do something before November 5 that would somehow have a great effect on the electoral campaign."

As far as Roosevelt is concerned, as one newspaperman said—"It's a pretty good ad." The New York Times, Willkie supporter, attempted to counteract the effect of this report by insisting that the dictators are likely to care even less for Willkie, if he is elected, than they do for Roosevelt.

Willkie's sensational election campaign has caused more surprise and comment than ever such an important election campaign might be expected to. Although the success of his pleas and arguments is doubtful, the American press is united in granting the man's sincerity, his belief in what he is attempting to do. The confusion of his campaign has been severely criticized by even his supporters, but opponents and supporters alike praise his perseverance and sincerity.

On his recent cross country tour, Republican candidate Willkie advanced many reasons why Roosevelt should not be re-elected, one of the chief of which was the 160-year-old "No Third Term" tradition. The success of this plea is doubtful since it scarcely seems reasonable that voters should follow a mere tradition at a time like this, and out a man who has proved what he can do, for a newcomer whom, politically, they know little about. This is no time for newcomers.

In his San Francisco speech on the same tour, Willkie accused the Roosevelt administration of contributing to the downfall of European democracy and opening the way to the aggressive designs of Hitler, by his actions after the London Economic Conference of 1933. Willkie went on to tell the nation just what Roosevelt should have done in the years leading up to the present war. The people of the United States are no doubt reflecting that it is a common custom these days—telling leaders what they should have done to prevent this war. No doubt they are also reflecting that, if the men who headed the governments of countries far more closely concerned with the situation than the United States could not prevent such a disaster, President Roosevelt could not be reasonably blamed for not preventing it either.

Criticizing the Roosevelt administration, Willkie adopted the outspoken, "harsh truth" methods of Churchill, saying—"The fact is, that in the eyes of ruthless foreign states we are neither a strong nation nor a great nation. Nothing we have to say is of any consequence to them, because they see how ineffective we have become. Our vast strength is still 'on order.'" A great many Americans must have been somewhat reluctant to believe this.

Another common accusation hurled at the President these days is that, in the past eight years, he has spent millions of dollars on useless projects. That may be, but no president will be expected to be infallible. At least the people know what Roosevelt's faults are—they have yet to discover Willkie's. At any rate this scarcely seems the time to worry too much about such a comparatively minor problem. America has bigger problems than that to concern it today.

Willkie, of course, has a great many powerful supporters. The influential New York Times, erstwhile Roosevelt supporter, has swung over to Willkie. Only twice before in 56 years has the Times backed a Republican nominee. Listing its reasons for such a decision, the Times concludes with—"Because we believe that at a time when the traditional safeguards of democracy are falling everywhere, it is particularly important to honour and preserve the American tradition against vesting the enormous powers of the Presidency in the hands of any man for three consecutive terms of office."

Less than three weeks time, however, will put a decisive end to the controversy now raging so strongly—the elections are practically here.

Welcome Lectures

University students—whether they are studying English or not—will miss an excellent opportunity to be both instructed and entertained if they overlook the series of extra-curricular lectures on contemporary American authors which begins today in University College.

For the past several years this series has been given free of charge, for all who care to attend, and the literary loving public of Toronto has attended each lecture in such numbers that there could be no doubt of their popularity.

Past audiences have been made up largely of non-university people, which leads one to suppose that undergraduates consider them "just another lecture", and as such ignore them. May we assure them that they would have great difficulty finding a more entertaining method of spending an hour. We will refrain from urging them too strongly, however,—the lectures are already so popular that room is usually scarce. A tip to third year English students might be appreciated though—the lecture on Archibald MacLeish next Thursday should be valuable to them, since that particular author is included on their course this year.

The university and the men who speak at these lectures deserve great credit for the entertainment and instruction that they are providing to a fully appreciative public. For those who are interested, the time is 5 p.m., the place, Room 8, University College, and today's lecture, "Eugene O'Neill", by Professor Gilbert Norwood, head of the classics department of U.C.

In Memoriam

With the death on active naval service of Sub-Lieut. George Henry Kirkpatrick Strathy, the career of one of the most brilliant and promising students to pass through Varsity in recent years has been cut short.

"Pat," as he was familiarly known around the campus, was an all-round student and a credit to the university. He was a scholarship student, especially brilliant in the field of mathematics in which he won numerous individual honours as well as a team competition. His part in extra-curricular activities was considerable, for he was head of his year, secretary of the Trinity board of stewards, publications commissioner of the S.A.C., and a member of the Hart House debates' committee. He was also secretary of his fraternity.

As a student, "Pat" was a credit to his alma mater in every way; as an officer he served well and died in the line of glorious duty. There is no greater tribute we can pay. To his family and to his many friends we offer our sincere sympathy.

DRAMA MUSIC

Drama Committee

It is regrettable that the first of the Drama Committee's Wednesday afternoon one-acters should arouse critical comment, but there were a number of glaring faults in the U.C. Players' Guild production which must necessarily be dealt with.

Most important among these faults was the choice of the play itself. When a member of the Guild told The Varsity that Air Raid was "a racy comedy," the statement was incorrect on both counts. As presented by the Guild, it dragged very noticeably despite expert ad-libbing and valorous assistance from

Four Lessons From Adam LaCatt

Across yonder page, the sports department is giving six free lessons on how to acquire manly muscles. But stop! What does the sports department know about muscles? Precious little. Turn, then, your attention to the Cat, for years the greatest authority on health and happiness on the campus. Forget the sports department, and its puny band of spindle-shanks, and let the Cat tell you how to be healthily. Besides, the method which the Cat advocates is easier on the old frame than theirs.

(1) Don't drink, smoke, swear, go out with gorgeous gals, swear, smoke, or drink.

(2) Inasmuch as you have immediately discarded Rule 1 as completely impracticable, here's the second formula. Don't go to lectures, wear yourself out at night studying, or hang around that stuffy old library.

(3) If you feel yourself drawn irresistibly toward those grim portals on the east side of the campus, however, here's a particularly handy tip. Hang around outside, and stand in one of those biting breezes we have been enjoying of late. This is sure to lead to a choice case of influenza, or, better still, galloping gangrene, and will put you in bed for weeks, far away from all the health-draining influences of college life.

(4) And above all, never, never, NEVER wear down the gray cells trying to make sense out of what you read on the sports page.

Smittypuss II, and Omar.

a too-visible prompter. More disastrous still, it wasn't a comedy! Containing lines which were scarcely in the best of taste, the play was acted with far too much seriousness, giving totally undesirable results.

For the lack of comedy, chief blame must rest with Elizabeth Stone, whose normally sound underplaying gave undesirable suspense to the supposedly funny situations created by the caving-in of an alcoholic actor and his actress-wife together with an officer ex-husband during a London air-raid.

Mavor Moore as the actor provided some comedy with a justifiable amount of overplaying. Had Miss Stone responded in like manner to his frolicking, the bad taste left in one's mouth by the serious but rather unsound moral of the play might have been tempered by happy recollections of the comedy which preceded. As it was, the audience never knew where the comedy began and where the moral ended, as almost every one of Miss Stone's lines, delivered straight, checked the laughter caused by Moore's gag-lines.

Despite these faults, the production was by no means a bad one. The set was amazingly good for a one-act play, and the complicated sound effects were brilliantly, if not always authentically, handled.

All three actors were obviously experienced, and their work ranked with the best shown in the one-acters since their inception last year. Mavor Moore's comedy was delightful; Geoffrey Johnson handled the straight part of the officer capably, and Elizabeth Stone, despite her questionable interpretation of the role, gave a finished performance as the actress.

Another regrettable feature of the production was the fact that what turned out (unintentionally) to be the funniest line in the play was unprintable.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Sam Kelnor

IT STARTS TODAY

Rugby and soccer enthusiasts will get a look at their interfaculty heroes when they raise the curtain today. Probably everyone is familiar by now with the complaints registered by coaches and managers who find it tough to get players to turn out. It is the already aged lament about heavy C.O.T.C. programs.

This, to a great extent, is very true and correspondingly unfortunate, but definitely does not excuse anything like the Sr. Med. rugby turnout of two days ago when only two men dressed for practice. The Jr. Med. turnout was not much more heartening. They had about eight men out.

The Engineers, too, have a heavy course of studies in so far as hours are concerned and yet they get their men. Twenty junior hopefuls were out in full force two days ago and the seniors had their twelve men.

On the other side of the ledger it is not our intention to engage in any wholesale condemnation. But a little more spirit would help.

TRACK RUMBLINGS

The Senior Interfaculty Track Meet goes off tomorrow at Varsity Stadium at 1:30 and all entries must be in today at six o'clock.

D.C.E. will be very strongly represented with the Brown twins, Wally and Harold, their star performers, heading the list. Wendorf, who won the intermediate broad jump last year, and Paul, who won the intermediate pole vault last year, are two other stalwarts from O.C.E.

Young Jerry Proderick, sprinter deluxe, heads the Vic line-up, along with Cass and Miller, outstanding low hurdlers.

Tom Barnett of Wycliffe, who has had a cold all week, will be running against Bob Delaney of Meds, who has had no chance to practise to date. He has had a bad case of boils. Barnett will also be running against Peckover of S.P.S. in the half-mile and mile.

There should be strong competition in the high jump. Hamilton and Lorimer of S.P.S. and Brett of Dents are expected to give Al Purdy of Forestry a real run for his money.

Any juniors who ran last week are more than welcome again. Hec Phillips hopes to run off the interfaculty relay championship next week, a matter which athletes should not overlook.

ORCHIDS FOR TWO LADIES

There are two people in the Athletic Office whom we feel have been sadly neglected by this department. They are the Misses Lee and Boyd, who are doing admirable work in handling the countless records of the biggest job on the campus, and who supply this department with numerous details for the sports page.

Right now, they are looking after a job usually handled by Mac MacCuthcheon, now extremely busy with military work. Reservations for space for lacrosse and volleyball practices can be made at the Athletic Office with the Misses Lee and Boyd.

Anyone who has had occasion to visit the Athletic Office on any matter whatsoever will know what we mean when we say that those ladies really know their business and give you nothing but splendid cooperation and assistance. Let's give them a hand!

LESSON TWO . . .

This, as you can plainly see is lesson two in that thrilling series which began last week and small wonder. After lesson one comes lesson two. The name of the game is "How to get back into condition." It is very fortunate for this scribe and his admiring throng of readers that the sported does not read this column. Otherwise, it is doubtful whether there would ever have been a lesson two.

Thumbing our way through out-of-town mags and stuff, we were startled by a story by a man named Strassle in The Plebe Log which is a publication produced by midshipmen in the United States Naval Academy at Baltimore. It is along the same lines as this noble attempt and you could swear that somebody was stealing somebody else's thunder. But much to our chagrin, his stuff is dated before mine so don't get me wrong, fellas, don't get me wrong. This is original, swelp me.

Last week we had you on the bicycle realizing that, sad but true, you were terribly out of condition—which you were. Now the next place to go is to the wrestling room where you will find the floors nice and shiny and beautifully polished. You will also find numbers of dumbbells around and about which you will do well to disregard.

Now try running on the spot for about five minutes. That's the way to do, boy Good. Now get down on the floor and lie there still—very, very still. Excellent.

Next week we return with LESSON THREE so don't forget to keep your eyes glued on the sport page. Adventure, thrills and spills—all these can be yours, and heaven too, if you stick to your knitting and do exactly as we tell you. See you next week.

Editor's note: This department will be more than glad to send private lessons by mail to ardent readers who want to get ahead of the others. All you have to do is send one, or preferably two, tickets to the All-University Fall Dance with your letter. Thank you.

A Basketball Bulletin—

Calling all U.C.'s!—We need more players, we want more players—say, come on all you fellas, let's see a wee bit more enthusiasm eh? Practices are as follows: Seniors, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 7-8 in O.C.E.; Juniors, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 6-7 in O.C.E.; Freshies, Wednesdays, 6-7 in Little Vic gym, and Fridays, 6-7 in D.C.E. Coaches are Helen Gurney, captain of last year's Varsity intercollegiate team for the Juniors, and Vivien McNeill, captain of Queen's last year's team for the Freshies. Not bad, eh?

Calling all Saints!—Eighteen freshies, so far, have signed themselves up and are eager to get started. Five regular members of last year's senior squad are back, Tibs Annesley, Joan Griffith, Freddie Baxter, Mary Skeels and Connie Harrison. Practices are as follows, with a welcome sign on every door: Seniors, Tuesdays and Thursdays, 7-8 in D.C.E.; Juniors, made up of sophs and freshies, the same time, same place. Coaches are Edith Ardagh, former B.S.S. and St. Hilda's star, for the seniors, and Hilda McLaurine, well-known in St. Hilda's sports in recent years, starting her second year with the freshies. All out, tonight!

Calling all Vics!—Watch the bulletin board for practise, all three teams. Freshies out tonight. Seniors' next practice Monday, 8-9 at O.C.E. Senior coach is Jean Lennox, a member of last year's intercollegiate team; junior coach is Marg. Hall, well-known for her swimming with Physical Ed. in recent years. Freshies will have Kay Brisson, formerly of the Western intercollegiate. Vic is still getting itself together—more later.

Occupational and Physiotherapy are combining again and were out in full force last night. St. Mike's are hoping to produce two teams this year, but tomorrow this column is all theirs via a certain reporter from same college, so let's leave it to her to tell us more.

All Seeded Racquetters Advance to Second Round

Interfaculty Tournament Starts at Nine at St. Hilda's Courts and Continues Throughout Day

EMMANUEL STRONG

All seeded racquetters advanced safely into the second round of the interfaculty tennis tournament yesterday, as play at the St. Hilda's courts, started at nine, continued throughout the day.

Bruce Hall of Emmanuel, the defending champion, got through the first round by default and then advanced into the third chukker with a 6-1, 6-3 victory over Willinsky of Meds. Johnny Whallon, Hall's doubles partner, cantered off with his match in straight sets, defeating Jacobs of St. Mike's 6-1, 6-4. Gord Shorter, who played intercollegiate tennis two years ago, used Rotenberg as a stepping stone into Round 2, winning handily 6-2, 6-0. Mel Jones swamped Clark 6-0, 6-1. Maurice Marois wrestled a tough match from Allan, 7-5, 6-1, and Jack Mullett and Ian McCallum, both on last year's senior Varsity squad, won easily, Mullett defeating Amos 6-1, 6-1, and McCallum stroking out his win over Beard, 6-2, 6-4.

Emmanuel, with two seeded players in the ranks, is going strong. Davis Capper Bruce Hall, Johnny Whallon, and Kitchen won handily, while Bill Fennell and Doug Green fell by the wayside. The Engineers still have six men in the running, two of them, McCallum and Shorter, seeded. Meds have four left, one seeded. The same is the case with St. Mike's. Trinity has three in, one seeded, Dents two, with one seeded.

Doubles play gets under way tomorrow afternoon at one o'clock. Seeded No. 1 are Hall and Whallon, and behind them come Shorter and Gray, Mullett and McCallum, and McMurroch and Jones. Hall and Whallon come from the same faculty, as do no two partners on any other of the seeded doubles. The advantage is held by McCallum and Mullett, who have played together for some time. They advanced to the intercollegiate doubles finals here last fall.

Best singles match looming tomorrow is that between Johnny Whallon and Sztakola, who is somewhat of a dark horse. Also the Finlayson-McMurroch tangle should be worth looking in on.

Results of yesterday's play:

Hall (Emm.) over Penoyer (S.P.S.), default; Hall over Willinsky (Meds), 6-1, 6-3; Crane (S.M.C.) over Berg (U.C.), 6-0, 6-0; O'Hara (Dents) over Hutcheson (Tr.), 4-6, 6-2, 6-2; McClure (Meds) over McDonough (S.P.S.), 8-6, 6-4; McGraw (U.C.) over Tamblin (S.P.S.), 6-4, 6-1; Bennett (S.M.C.) over Longo (Vic), 6-4, 6-3; Gray (Meds) over Porter (U.C.), def.; Mullett (Dents) over Amos (Soc. Sc.), 6-1, 6-1; Pridoux (S.P.S.) over Skinner (U.C.), 6-3, 6-2; Clee (Dents) over Bennett (Vic), def.; Stark (Meds) over Green (Emm.), 6-3, 1-6, 6-3; Murphy (S.M.C.) over Morris (Tr.), def.; Kitchen (Emm.) over Marshall (Meds), 0-6, 7-5, 6-3; Cooper (U.C.) over Leake (Tr.), def.; McCallum (S.P.S.) over Beard (U.C.), 6-2, 6-4; Jones (Tr.) over Clark (S.P.S.), 6-0, 6-1; Moses (S.P.S.) over White (U.C.), 6-1, 6-1; Finlayson (S.P.S.) over Remmer (S.M.C.), 6-2, 6-4; Wayland (Tr.) over McCord (U.C.), def.; Brown (Vic) over Brace (S.P.S.), def.; Sztakola (U.C.) over Tauber (Meds), 6-2, 6-3; Whallon (Emm.) over Jacobs (S.M.C.), 6-1, 6-4; Marois (S.M.C.) over Allan (S.P.S.), 7-5, 6-1; Waugh (Vic) over Royen (U.C.), def.; McMurroch (S.P.S.) over Campbell (For.), 6-4, 6-3; Rusted (Meds) over Callan (S.M.C.), 6-1, 9-7; Bryce (Vic) over Fennell (Emm.), 6-8, 6-0, 6-2; Wilgress (Tr.) over Goppin (Dents), 6-3, 5-7, 6-2; Shorter (S.P.S.) over Rotenberg (U.C.), 6-2, 6-0.

ment, the Ajax sank two Italian destroyers and badly crippled a third. Sub-Lieut. Strathy was a member of a team of three University of Toronto mathematicians who triumphed in the William Lowell Putnam Competition last year. In this competition, sponsored by the Mathematical Association of America, more than 60 universities and colleges of the United States and Canada participated. Other members of the team were J. R. Crosby and J. C. Maynard.

Born in Orpington in the county of Kent, England, Sub-Lieut. Strathy was educated at Charterhouse, England, and after coming to Canada, at Trinity College School, Port Hope, Ont. He entered the University of Toronto in 1936, holding the First Edward Blake scholarship in mathematics and ranking first for the Second Edward Blake scholarship in mathematics and physics.

His scholarships during his university career were an impressive achievement. He was awarded the Alexander T. Fulton scholarship in mathematics and physics, the American Association for the Advancement of Science scholarship in mathematics and physics, the James Scott scholarship in mathematics, the Ramsay scholarship in physics, the Second Edward Blake scholarship in mathematics and physics, the Wellington scholarship in mathematics at Trinity College, and the Archibald Hope Young memorial scholarship of Trinity College.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerard B. Strathy, Castle Frank Road, and two brothers, Flt.-Lt. C. M. A. Strathy, now stationed in Ottawa and J. G. K. Strathy, a captain in the Queen's Own, a Non-Permanent Active Militia Unit, survive.

U.C. COEO AT NEW YORK BEAUTY COURT

she was genuinely reticent about allowing The Varsity to publicize her.

Queried about her experiences this summer, Miss Scott said that she had been particularly impressed by the definitely pro-British attitude of those she had met at the Fair. "I met students from colleges and universities all over the country—Dartmouth, Princeton, Stanford, Wisconsin, Fordham," she said. "All were extremely interested in the war, and in the part which Canada was playing, and nearly everyone was strongly pro-British."

"Another interesting aspect of the Fair," she said, "was having the opportunity to exchange views on college life with the South American girls." "Our time there," she continued, "was largely taken up with banquets, dinners and other social functions. The idea was that having girls from so many different countries make appearances together would do much to improve international good-will. I believe that it probably succeeded in some measure, although relations with the United States hardly need to be improved. Americans are an amazingly hospitable people."

lead to any examination, certificate, diploma, or degree. There is one three year course in business, at the completion of which a certificate is awarded. This course requires two evenings a week for twenty weeks, and is in a different class from the ordinary tutorial groups.

In the advertising course the pupils visit art and photographic studios and engraving and printing plants, to study their subject at first hand. The lecturer is the vice-president of a Canadian advertising agency. Pupils taking the course in the art of the theatre are given the opportunity to appear in the plays of the Canada Drama League, Hart House Series directed by Brownlow Card, who conducts this class. Those who attend the classes in interior decoration visit some of the leading establishments in Toronto during the year.

The speaker then gave three hints to the 140 students present with respect to making the best use of the opportunities offered in the course. First he stressed that lectures were only a starting point, that a great deal of "pencil probing" was necessary before arriving at any "pithy" conclusion, and that the cultivation of what he termed a healthy scepticism was an invaluable asset.

WOMEN'S DEBATING TEAM HOLD MEETING IN UNION

Taylor, honorary president of the Women's Debating Union, and Miss Marion Ferguson, Dean of Women at University College.

After tea, Agnes Ireland, president of the Women's Debating Union, introduced the competitors, who spoke from five to eight minutes each. Miss Ireland outlined the aims of the Union, stating that the primary purpose was to foster public speaking on the campus and to sponsor debates between our university and Queen's, McGill and McMaster.

Open New Branch In Women's Work

University Women's War Services New Branch Headed by Harold Takefman Plans to Collect Materials

FOR MEN OVERSEAS

The University Women's War Services has established a new branch on the campus at the Household Science Building, which is headed by Harold Takefman, Iff Meds, chairman, and Bill Sedgewick, IV Meds, treasurer, it was learned today. The group concerns itself primarily with obtaining materials for the organization headed by Mrs. W. E. Gallie, such as leather, wool and heavy blanket material for making garments for refugees.

These materials are canvassed from the larger firms throughout the city, many of which have already made donations or promised to contribute materials in the near future.

It was announced the Students' War Services plans to hold a dance, the proceeds of which will be used to buy cigarettes, candy and books for students, including graduates of this university, overseas.

Students who wish to participate in the new organization—men or women—should apply either to the branch office in the Household Science Building or sign the lists in the Varsity women's office, University College. Those volunteering would be required only a few hours per week.

GIRL CHEER LEADERS WANTED IN COLLEGE

Vancouver, Oct. 11 (CUP) — The Mamooks, campus pep organization and official cheer leaders at what games UBC will play this year, is the first all male club on the UBC campus to enlist the support of coeds.

Finding that military training has practically curtailed their work, the pepsters are calling for blondes, brunettes, and redheads to lead the cheers and inspire male students. Peroxide will be supplied to any women or brunettes as blondes are desired first.

This is another example of the way in which women have been worming their way into all masculine activities. Harry Warner, president of the Mamooks, stated that the enthusiasm of the students and especially the Science-men ought to be definitely brightened up by the coeds.

"All the colleges in the States have blondes," said Harry. "It should work here."

Gift of Archbishop McGuigan Done by Francis J. Huxby to be Unveiled at Newman Hall on Sunday

DR. COOY TO BE PRESENT

In commemoration of generous benefactions to church and charity of the late Senator, the Honorable Frank P. O'Connor, K.C.S.G., an oil painting of him will be unveiled in Newman Hall on Sunday afternoon, October 20th.

The portrait is the gift of His Grace, the Most Reverend James G. McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, and is being presented to Newman Club, the Catholic student club of university life, as a personal memento of the Archbishop's respect and gratitude for the good works of this great Canadian.

During his life time, the Senator was noted for his philanthropies, and on one occasion was known to have presented Archbishop McGuigan with a cheque for half a million dollars to be used in charitable works, both Catholic and non-Catholic. St. Michael's College, and Newman Club were constantly aided by him, though he never attended a university himself.

The picture is the work of Francis J. Huxby, prominent Toronto artist, and will be hung in Newman Club which was for many years the focal point of the Senator's great interest in student life. He served as president of its Board of Directors and was later appointed honorary president of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs with which it is affiliated.

Many distinguished guests have signified their intention of being present including Sir William Mulock, Very Rev. A. E. McQuillen, Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Cody.

After the presentation, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will be given in St. Thomas Aquinas Chapel, to be followed by tea served in Newman Hall.

An invitation is extended to all the Catholic students of the university and to their parents to be present on this occasion and to join in the tribute to a great benefactor of university life.

Victoria Celebrates Sixty-eighth Bob

Victoria College formally welcomes freshmen to the life and traditions of the college at the sixty-eighth annual Bob in Hart House tonight.

This year's show, "The Tower of Babel in Three Stories," was written by Tom Paton and Ed Kirkland. As usual, skits on the frosh and the staff will be featured and Ed Kirkland and Ted Gray will continue their clowning of last year as "Owesum and Wantsem".

George Carly's orchestra will supply the music for the performance and the dance which follows in the Main Hall at Victoria.

revolutionary sight has been invented. He said that an engineer giving the principles involved in a gasoline-burning engine could do so simply and correctly with a 1916 model T Ford.

He spoke of the problem of air currents, the forward momentum of the plane and its effects on the direction of the falling bomb. He discussed the "back drift" of the target. He assured his hearers that so far as he knew the bomb sight was yet far from perfect. "As for the dive-bomber," he said, "only a primitive type of sight is needed along with a large amount of nerve and skill."

AUDIENCE PACKS U.C. TO HEAR DISCUSSION ON EUGENE O'NEILL

Classics' Head Points Out Greatness of Dramatist's Many Innovations in Play Writing

EMPHASIZES SINCERITY

"In his masterpiece Eugene O'Neill attains a height never surpassed by any other dramatist, ancient or modern, in his power to depict the naked soul," said Professor Gilbert Norwood, head of the classics department of University College, in a lecture yesterday afternoon.

His lecture was the first in the series "Recent American Writers", to be given every Thursday this fall in University College. A large number were turned away from the hall, already packed to capacity.

Unlike other great dramatists, O'Neill was quickly accepted by the critics, who "groomed him for stardom", Professor Norwood said. Yet there was no distinguished playwright "on whom it is less easy to buckle the harness of influences," he said.

Speaking of O'Neill's work itself the professor divided it into five groups according to its characteristics and outlined many of the plays individually. In the great psychological dramas he described the writer as conceiving his characters vividly and placing them against a background of conflicting emotions. Discussing the innovations in (Continued on Page 4)

Empire Games Stars To Feature Meet Today

By Ed Nickerson

Wallace and Harold Brown to Take Part in Interfaculty Track and Field Meet at Stadium

STARTS AT 1.30 P.M.

Most interesting interfaculty athletic event of the year takes place when the Senior Track Meet gets under way at Varsity Stadium at 1.30 this afternoon. Heading the list of track and field men will be Wallace and Harold Brown, famous British Empire Games stars. Both Wally and Harold are attending O.C.E. this year, resulting in this faculty being much stronger than last year. The number of entries is on a par with that of last season, Hec Phillips, university track coach, states. The relay races, originally scheduled for today, will be run off on the 23rd.

The sprints will be featured by close competition between the Brown twins of O.C.E., and Gerry Frederick of Vic, while the broad jump will again feature this trio plus V. Wendorf, intermediate champion last year.

Tom Barnett of Wycklife may catch the pay-off spot in the half-mile and one mile events. But he will see some tough opposition in the half-mile event if Charlie Peckover of School shows the same stuff that made him a winner in this event in the novice track meet. The discus throw should be closely contested with the Browns, Hugh Bailey of Vic, Bajourney of Dents, and Onasick of S.P.S. all having an even chance of winning.

R. Paul of O.C.E. showed excellent form in winning the intermediate championship in the pole vault at Hamilton last year and rules as favourite to win again today.

Bob Miller and Ron Cass, both of Vic, are favoured to win the high hurdles. In the low hurdles Cass and

LECTURES START ON INFORMATION FOR MARRIAGE

Talks Held Informally as Part of New Education Policy for All Students by University S.C.M.

PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

"Perhaps in the future such topics as I am now discussing will be on the curriculum of our educational system, and will not have to be discussed in this manner," said Rev. J. D. Parks yesterday, when he addressed the S.C.M. group in the Music Room in Hart House.

The topic of discussion, "Preparation for Christian Marriage," is to serve as an introductory lecture to a series including talks on "Facts and Their Interpretation," and "Marriage in Society".

Speaking informally, Rev. Parks explained that the succeeding meetings were to be more in the form of a discussion. (Continued on Page 4)

DANCE FOLLOWS GAME AT TRINITY RE-UNION

The Trinity Old Boys and Athletic Association dance will be held next Tuesday, October 22nd, in Cartwright Hall, at St. Hilda's College. The event is to follow the annual rugby game and banquet.

Dancing will begin at nine to the music of Bob Shuttleworth and his orchestra.

MEN'S ART CLASS OPENS FOR SEASON

Last night the opening meeting of the Hart House Art Class took place under the direction of Mr. Caven Atkins. An unusually high initial attendance of 28 men served to be an assurance that interest in drawing among the men of the university is not lagging despite the extra time needed for military training.

Mr. Atkins is this year taking the place of Mr. Carl Schaeffer who was awarded the Guggenheim Fellowship last year and is now working in the States. Mr. Atkins, who is also on the teaching staff of Central Technical School, has won for himself a place among the younger Canadian artists.

Tentative plans for the year include drawing in chalk, water colours and tempera colour, from still life and models. Work in arts and craft may be an outgrowth of the Thursday classes.

Miller will have to contend with Heinbuch and Wally Brown. Wally, in particular, is considered to have a good chance to win this event.

The javelin throw will feature Wally Brown, Bajourney, Brett and R. Moore. This may be one of the best events of the day.

The high jump will bring out such stars as Al Purdy, Forestry, Brett of Dents, and Hamilton, first year School, who is reported to be good.

Lloyd Delaney looks like the man to beat in the 440. But Bob Miller and George Lewis, both of Vic, and E. Loaring (brother of the famous Johnny Loaring) may upset the dope-cart.

Brigadier Eric Haldenby To Take Students' Salute

Canadian Officers' Training Corps and Auxiliary Battalion to March Past in Column of Route Tomorrow

TO HOLO FIVE-MILE ROUTE

Brigadier Eric Haldenby will take the salute as the University of Toronto Canadian Officers' Training Corps and Auxiliary Battalion march past in column of route on the front campus tomorrow afternoon.

The march past will be preceded by a five-mile route march in which both the C.O.T.C. and the Auxiliary Battalion will take part. This route march will be led by the C.O.T.C. band in uniform. Approximately 2800 students will participate in the parade.

Brigadier Haldenby will be accompanied by Col. H. J. Cody, President of the university and Honorary Colonel of the University of Toronto Contingent.

Brigadier Haldenby served in the last war, during which he was awarded the Military Cross. Last year, he went overseas as Officer in Command of the 48th Highlanders of the First Brigade in the First Division. Commanding the Highlanders on their brief trip to Northern France shortly before the country's collapse, Brigadier Haldenby was responsible for the successful evacuation of his regiment without loss.

Promoted to his present rank of brigadier, Haldenby returned to Canada to take charge of the Ninth Brigade, a Highland brigade in the Third Division.

Brigadier Haldenby was a member of the University of Toronto Contingent of the C.O.T.C. at the time of its formation in 1914, when he joined the corps as a cadet. He was later promoted to the rank of corporal in K Company, which was commanded at that time by Capt. H. H. Madill, now O.C. of the Contingent.

GENERAL ELECTRIC ACTS AS HOSTS TO ENGINEERS

The Toronto section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will hold a special joint meeting with Peterboro Branch, E.I.C., at the Kawartha Club, Peterboro, tomorrow afternoon at two.

Those who play golf tee off at 2.30 and those who wish to take a tour will take a trip through the General Electric factory.

Dinner will be served at 6.30 at the Kawartha Club, to be followed by a paper on "Glass Insulation". Three or four experts will lead the discussion on this subject.

First Scarlet and Gold Dance Features Fred Evis' Orchestra

The social season gets away to a good start in Victoria College with the first Scarlet and Gold of the season next Saturday, October 26. The dance will be in Wymilwood as has been the custom in former years, and the lads and lassies of the college will trip the light fantastic as late as the law allows.

Providing the minstrelsy for the occasion will be a former Vic man who has made a name for himself on the campus with his band and in Canadian music circles by way of his patriotic compositions. None other than Fred Evis will be swinging the baton for the Vic men and women.

Social director Don Ferguson warns that the number of dancers will be limited to eighty couples, and that would-be attenders must sign the lists posted in the college halls.

This is the first of the three Scarlet and Golds which will be held during the year.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

S.C.M. Organizes University Choir

All-University Choir to be Under Direction of Mrs. Cass Beggs Who Led Choir in London, England

MEET AT LUNCH HOUR

The S.C.M. is organizing an all-university choir under the able direction of Mrs. Cass Beggs. The main purpose of its formation is to get people together who enjoy singing and it is hoped that the choir will be used to sing at university services.

"This term we will study carols, for the most part, along with a few other types of music," Mrs. Cass Beggs said. The choir will meet at lunch hour, so as to avoid clashing with any of the college choirs.

Before coming to Canada Mrs. Cass Beggs, a professional singer herself, directed the S.C.M. choir in London and had charge of the S.C.M. Choral Society and orchestra.

There, the choir consisted of 50 students. "We feel that a central student choir in Toronto would be very valuable," Mrs. Cass Beggs declared. "Our aim is 30 for this term, with an increase to 50 within the next year or two. For this term at least there will be no regular voice trials. If the group progresses rapidly, these may prove necessary later."

The position of substitute accompanist is open to anyone interested. The first meeting will be held Monday from 1 to 2 o'clock at Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's, to draw up rules and regulations for the group.

FIRST YEAR STUDENTS TO HOLO WEINER ROAST

First year students of Victoria College will hold the first social activity of the class's history this Saturday. Following closely upon initiation rites Thursday and today, the party will take the form of a hike and weiner roast in the Humber Valley country in the afternoon, and an evening dance in Alumni Hall of the college.

Bill Blackmore, president of 4T4, announced that the frosh would meet in front of Vic at 2.30 p.m., and proceed to the place chosen by the executive. Those taking military training will join them later. After supper all will return to the college for the dance at 8.30 p.m.

Dive Bombing and Sighting Discussed by Physics Society

Professor Sygne of the Applied Mathematics Department, spoke yesterday at the meeting of the Mathematics and Physics Society in the Physics Building. His subject was "The Problem of the Bomb Sight."

Using as his authority a German book written in 1938, he described in simplified language the bomb sight as used by France, the U.S.A. and a German sight known as the Goerz Boykon sight.

He admitted that as the book is two years old, it may have become outmoded but stated that the principles of operation were unchanged, assuming that no

For More Debates

When college opened last year with the shadow of a second world conflagration fresh upon us, one of the first extra-curricular activities to feel the axe of war sacrifice was debating. The chief curtailment lay in the cancellation for the year of the famed Hart House Debates, one of the most popular and interest-stimulating activities in the university. Colleges carried on much the same as usual on their limited scale, endeavouring to avoid all possible controversial issues, but it was plain to see that debating as an important campus activity had passed from the scene. We are thus extremely gratified to see that University College has decided to expand its debating activities this year, and from all reports other colleges are hoping to do the same.

The University College Parliament, long the stronghold of campus spiclers and politicians, has announced a change in procedure which calls for an expansion of their debates program. As usual the Robinette Debating competition will be continued, providing members of each year an opportunity to debate in competition with other years. Debates such as these have long proved popular in this college and in others, and especially in S.P.S. where lively interest is aroused each year in the annual inter-year debates. The U.C. Parliament, however, has also made plans for a number of interfaculty debates, including one with embryo lawyers from Osgoode Hall, and plans have been made for debates between students and faculty members. It is also hoped that the tradition of a visit from Laval University debaters will be continued this year.

This ambitious program is indicative of an expansion of debating this year into an important aspect of interfaculty activities, and a partial restoration of debating to its old place of importance on the campus. Those who recall the brilliance of the Hart House Debates, often attended by government dignitaries, will realize the loss which their elimination has occasioned in university life. Debating and public speaking should form, we maintain, one of the major parts of every undergraduate's education. At the Hart House Debates everyone had an opportunity to get up and give his two cents worth; perhaps it was not spoken brilliantly, but it was a beginning and such a beginning should be followed up.

It was hard to understand the cancellation of the Debates last year. We admit they received complete coverage from the daily newspapers, and authorities were as usual frightened by the humbug of public opinion, worried about what the public might think if someone said the wrong thing. At the beginning of the war we did not quite know what amount of free speech was to be allowed. But at present we see no reason why debaters on the campus should not speak on any topic they so desire, within the limits of reason, and we fail to see why the Hart House Debates could not be resumed this year, granted of course they can be worked into busy time tables. We feel that they can, and further, we feel that they are of such importance that they definitely should be resumed.

After all the university is a stronghold of free speech, although when we say that, we do not mean that every or any speaker in the university is entitled to get up and rave along subversive, disloyal lines. That is not free speech. Free speech, as we use the term, connotes rather the free, intelligent, unhampered and unbiased discussion of any topic, particularly any of vital interest to students and their future. We have enough faith in the intelligence and judgment of the average upper class undergraduate to feel that he will act and speak sanely.

If we think he is doing this, why then worry about the public? Surely it is a travesty on those freedoms for which we are fighting to muzzle the mouth of the campus by cutting out debates.

We hope to be future citizens of this country, God and Hitler providing, and at present we are training for that citizenship. Surely the right of free discussion of vital national topics is an essential in our training as future Canadians who must be prepared to take a leading part in the post-war restoration of the nation. We admit there must be some curtailment of free speech during wartime, but we feel that any university discussion could not possibly be considered to be included in the curtailment, especially after reading some of the statements and speeches recently made by certain public officials and leaders. Therefore we think it imperative that as much time as possible be given to debating, public speaking and discussion groups where the individual may get up and unload his ideas. We are glad to see the opportunity for free discussion returning to the campus in the latest moves of the U.C. Parliament, but there is still a considerable way to go. We think it should end only with the restoration of the Hart House Debates and the return to the university of intelligent, organized, public discussion by students.

There Was A Man . . .

He didn't use the best English at times, nor did he have the opportunity to grace the portals of this or any other institution of higher learning, as the phrase goes. But he had a big heart and he made a lot of money selling people a commodity desired by all. Behind the scenes, with little if any awareness on the part of the public, he made financially secure, year after year, a club on this campus that is dear to the hearts of all Catholic students and graduates of Varsity. When he died he made a final worthy gesture by leaving Newman Club enough to clear itself of a heavy capital debt. It was through his gifts, also, that the world-famous Institute of Medieval Studies was able to move into new and more spacious quarters and adequately take care of its now priceless library. His name was Francis P. O'Connor.

A portrait of him is to be unveiled on Sunday and details are printed elsewhere in this issue. Above and beyond this ceremony and mark of gratitude is the fact that a vital lesson may be taken from his career: folk who have never been able to attend universities have often worked harder for and given more liberally to educational institutions than those who have passed through the academic halls. When we graduate, having been nurtured by the thoughts, the friendships and the influences of a university, let us remember that the partnership is not ended but beginning anew. There then comes to us an opportunity, not merely an obligation, to reciprocate, not perhaps through financial support but certainly through keen interest and a worthy life. The educated man is blessed—but he is also automatically given responsibilities. Too often both the blessings and the responsibilities are blithely accepted—and forgotten. Let us learn from one who did not forget.

ART MUSIC Drama

Hart House Art Gallery

Members of Hart House are this week being treated to a scenic display of Canada's north land that very few thought contained so much colour. The display consists of the oil paintings and sketches of Franz Johnston, many of the former having been seen before, but the sketches representing very recent work. The artist, a Toronto trained painter, brought these home from his last winter's excursion to the district around Great Bear Lake.

It was probably from the best of the paintings that Franz Johnston's National Gallery hangings were taken. Left for Hart House to see are a few large scenic reproductions of snow views and rock outcroppings, such as the Saturday Evening Post might print in full colour, double page and call "Our Alaska Wonderland".

The thirty-one sketches on display are of quite another colour. They represent something in the processes of art that Hart House needs to see more often. In them Franz Johnston gets away slightly from his rigid form and brightly marked colour and manages to blend his whole sketch into a composition. Still the person who is a devotee of photography would find much that put him in mind of camera shots.

Pep Talk

SCENE: The dressing room of the St. Pancraens.

TIME: Just before the BIG GAME.

The Red and White warriors are scalp-tinged around dejectedly, shooting desultory Congo Dominoes.

Enter NED DAWSON, Head Boy of St. Pancraens.

DAWSON: Buck up, you chaps, remember we are dedicating this game to the memory of Paddington Minor, and we must win it.

SNELL: Oh, what's the use, you chump? You know those Harrow blighters have a much better team than we have, and anyway, we're all saving ourselves for the Harrier.

Chorus of "Yah! Dirty Harrier!"
DAWSON: Pax, you blighters! (Boxes a few available ears, and stabs Snell in the back.)

SNELL (with his dying breath): No third term!

DAWSON (wiping the stains from his St. Pancraens tie): Now remember, we're dedicating this game to Snell, and we simply must win!

CRANSTON MAJOR: You can't bully Snell that way, Dawson. Put up your hands.

DAWSON: After the BIG GAME, you cad. Now remember, you're playing for the Red and White of St. Pancraens. . . .

Chorus of "What's that to us?" and "Baby needs new shoes."

DAWSON: . . . and if that doesn't move you, you unsportsmanlike bounders, there's a scout from the Tottenham Hotspurs in the stand. . . .

Chorus of "Yah! Dirty professionals!" and "Come to me, sweet mama!"

DAWSON (desperately): All right then. I didn't mean to appeal to your baser natures, but I shall!

Chorus of "Now you're talking!" and "Let's stop anyway. Tiny Smeed has all the money!"

DAWSON: Listen, you blighters. All the girls from Haverall are out there in the grandstand, and the winner of this BIG GAME plays Haverall in the finals.

Chorus of "Wheweeel!", "Let's go you chaps!" and "On to Haverall!"

Lucern Dare.

Interfaculty Tennis Meet Lists Big Draw Today

Rain Halts Thursday's Play so that Only Three Advance to Third Round of Tournament

BEGIN AT 9 A.M.

All but three of the interfaculty tennis matches scheduled for yesterday were rained out. This results in a bigger draw for today, so contestants are requested to be on hand at their given hours.

In yesterday's matches nothing startling occurred. Bob Crane took a tough two-setter from O'Hara, 6-4, 8-6. McGraw of U.C. advanced into the third round also with a 6-3, 6-3 win over McClure, while Owen Gray, seeded racketeer from Meds, won handily from Bennett, 6-3, 6-3.

Draw for today—

Singles:
At 9:00: Mullett vs Prideaux, Clee vs Stark, Murphy vs Kitchen, Cooper vs McCallum, Jones vs Moses.

At 10:00: Finlayson vs Dales, Wayland vs Brown, Whallon vs Satakola, Marois vs Waugh, Rusted vs Bryce.

At 11:00: Wilgess vs Shorter, Hall vs Crane, McGraw vs Gray.

Doubles:
At 11:00: Penoyer and Prideaux vs Marchant and McClure, Kitchen and Green vs Bryce and Dales.

At 12:00: O'Hara and Giffin vs McMurroch and Jones, Mullett and McCallum vs Wilson and Tseng, Livingstone and Campbell vs Grant and Brown, Rowat and Bates vs Shorter and Gray, Hall and Whallon vs Rotenberg and Berg.

At 1:00: Fennell and Hamilton vs Longo and Clee.

At 2:00: Bennett and Crane vs winner of Fennell and Hamilton vs Longo and Clee; Marois and Jacobs vs winner of Kitchen and Green vs Bryce and Dales.

FIRST SOCCER MATCH SEES DENTS LOSE TO DRUGGISTS

Pharmacy defeated Dents 4-0 yesterday afternoon on the back campus in the first soccer tilt of the season. It was a drab match except when a little interest was aroused as Pharmacy scored its goals from wild scrambles.

Dunning counted twice for the Druggists, and Binning and Quirk once each.

SCIENCE SCORES WIN IN SENIOR RUGBY

Jack Plaxton boomed over four singles to give Senior School its initial victory of the rugby season yesterday afternoon in a game played at Varsity Stadium against Senior Meds. The score was 4-0.

The game was an uninspiring affair for the most part. Meds had trouble in fielding a complete team, and their position was saved only by the brilliant play of Jim Murray, who handled the running, passing, and tackling departments also single-handed. The highly touted Engineers failed to impress in their first performance, due in large part to a slippery field.

Plaxton's first single came in the second stanza, two followed in the third quarter, and he finished off the job by lifting a fourth tremendous punt into the end zone for his team's final tally.

Meds turned in their best effort when they held the Schoolmen on their nine-yard stripe for four downs, and Plaxton was forced to kick to insure one point.

Senior S.P.S.: Hurst, Munro, Plaxton, Hawkin, Fugler, Barrett, Hodgson, Baker, DePaul, Reuben, Mese, Percival, Barry, Finlayson, DeMarco, Coughlin.

Senior Meds: Murray, Cody, Ross, Welles, Turner, Dixon, Dyer, Mighton, Irwin, Quigley, O'Brien.

TRACK TALK

The interfaculty track extravaganza gets under way this afternoon at Varsity Stadium at 1.30. Competition should be keener than ever now that Wally and Harold Brown have left the precincts of Victoria College to go to O.C.E. Last year Victoria ran away with the interfaculty honours as the Brown twins led them to an easy victory over the other faculties. O.C.E. is bound to get more than its usual quota of points now that these two stars of British Empire Games competition have decided to take up pedagogical pursuits.

Most closely watched athlete of the afternoon will be youthful Gerry Proderick of Victoria. Gerry scored seconds in both the 100 and 220 yard sprints in the intercollegiate meet last year, placing second to Harold Brown in both these events. Then in the indoor meets held in Hart House last February Gerry turned the tables on Harold, defeating him in the 50 and 100 yard dashes.

This looks like O.C.E.'s turn for a win now that they have the famous Brown twins out there piling up points for their faculty. Wally holds the interfaculty and intercollegiate record for the running broad jump and the shot-put, while brother Harold will not be far behind him in these events when the pay-off comes. Both these boys can sprint with the best of them, but as has been previously mentioned, Gerry Proderick may make the Meaford Meteors taste dust in the short dashes.

Not content with being a champion in the broad jump, shot-put etc. etc., Wally Brown has decided to enter the low hurdles event today. Which should be adequate cause for a headache for Messrs. Cass and Miller.

WHEN THE MANAGERS TAKE A BOW

Entries for the track meet this year are even larger than those of last season. Last night there were 65 entries recorded which is exactly the same number as last year. But there are always a few post-entries, so it's safe to say today's list of aspiring winners surpasses that of last year.

INTERFACULTY INFO

Junior School got off on the right foot when they came through with a 6-1 victory over Victoria. . . . Senior Meds must have thrown a scare into Senior School when, without a full team practice, they held the Engineers to four points, losing by the creditable score of 4-0. . . . Soccer teams would be grateful if rugby players and fans, after viewing the football games on the west back campus would not cross over the other playing field while the soccer game is still in progress, thanks. . . . An unconfirmed rumour states that Vic now even has a substitute for its soccer team. . . . Apologies to St. Mike's for a misleading heading which appeared in Monday's issue of The Varsity which erroneously stated that Victoria defeated St. Mike's in football. It should have been mentioned in the heading that it was the freshman team that went down to defeat, not the interfaculty team. . . . From U.C. comes word that in an effort to further interest in athletics they want a whole bunch of co-eds to attend interfaculty games and cheer their boys on to victory. There's nothing like a bit of female incentive—So come on, gals!!!

SCHOOL BEATS VIC IN RUGBY TILT

Junior School sloshed out a 6-1 victory over Vic yesterday afternoon on a rain-soaked back campus. It was the first tangle in Group 1 and gave a pretty good indication of the equality of the two squads.

The score at half time was tied 1-1, but in the third quarter the Engineers recovered a Vic fumble on the Scarlet and Gold 35-yard stripe, and from there worked the ball into pay-dirt.

After a mad scramble for a loose ball early in the first quarter, Bill Henry pounced on it deep in Vic territory, and when the Engineers failed to dent the Artsmen's line, Grosskurth hoisted for the first point.

Vic turned the tables on the Engineers in the second quarter when Quentinn recovered and Heinbuch booted the tying tally.

Still another fumble paved the way to S.P.S.'s major score early in the third chapter. Hambley recovered on Vic's 35, a pass netted 10, a plunge 5. From there Bill Henry scored standing up on an off-centre slash at the line. The attempted convert failed.

Grosskurth was the outstanding man on the field, but Hugh Baillie and Harry Rutledge of Vic came a close second.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL INFLUENCE

M.O. 198-1940 is repeated hereby for the information of all ranks.

198-PERSONAL AND POLITICAL INFLUENCE

The Minister of National Defence has directed that his wishes be made known with regard to the observance of regular official channels for the submission of recommendations for appointments to commissions, also promotions in the Defence Forces of Canada. The following comments are, therefore, promulgated for the information and guidance of all concerned.

2. It has been ruled by the Minister that the granting of commissions and promotions are to be determined by the proper Service authorities on the basis of merit alone, and that no personal recommendations will be made by him on these matters. Enlisted men are entitled to feel that merit will open a clear path for promotion to commissioned rank, which would not be the case if commissions were granted on the basis of personal or political influence.

3. It is very necessary that the proper channels are observed for the submission of applications for candidates for appointment to commissions, which is through the Officer Commanding the Unit in which the candidate desires to obtain a commission. Cases will also arise where information may be specially desired relative to commissions in the Permanent Active Militia, which can be made available to applicants at the District Headquarters of the various Military Districts throughout the Dominion.

4. All applicants for commissions will be dealt with solely on their merits. Attempts to urge preferred consideration of any application by the use of outside influence are forbidden and if resorted to will be regarded as an admission on part of the applicant that his case is not good on its merits. There must be no political or personal bias of any kind.

5. In connection with the above order, it is to be understood that its provisions also apply to transfers from one unit or corps to another and from one station or Theatre of Operations to another.

6. Requests for special consideration on any matter, also any complaints from officers or soldiers are to be submitted through the proper channels in accordance with R.O. 591 and M.O. 140 of 1940."

Canadian Nickel

MAKES MODERN AIRCRAFT POSSIBLE

AIRCRAFT FACTORIES are operating day and night. New plants are being rushed to completion. Planes are being wheeled from the assembly lines, put through their punishing tests, and crated for shipment.

Today's planes must be built with an ample margin of safety to stand up under terrific strains. Vital parts subject to stress, shock or wear depend upon Canadian Nickel for added strength and toughness. Nickel Alloy Steels are universally used for propeller shafts, connecting rods, gears and numerous other parts subjected to severe stresses, fatigue or wear. Nickel Alloys also protect against failure due to intense heat and corrosive fumes.

In producing increasing quantities of Canadian Nickel for the Empire's expanding industries, Canada's Nickel mines, smelters and refineries and their 11,000 Canadian employees stand ready to do their share. With its plants modernized and expanded, this Canadian industry is prepared to produce as never before.

Sir Shenton Thomas Sees Singapore Base As Bulwark of Defense

Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Straits Settlements Visits Hart House En Route from London to Far East

COMPLIMENTS 'THE VARSITY'

By Campbell McLean

"Singapore is a great institution for peace," Sir Shenton Thomas, Governor of the Straits Settlements, told The Varsity Saturday. "It is an insurance against war, and if war should arise, it would and can be of immense value," he said.

A very pleasant couple to meet were Sir Shenton and his wife, Lady Marguerite, who visited Hart House Art Gallery to view a collection of Canadian art. Tall, gray and erect, the governor, who spent his young manhood at various posts in East Africa, Uganda and the Gold Coast before being transferred to Singapore, seemed to typify all that was best in British colonial administration.

Sir Shenton, whose full title is Sir Shenton Thomas, G.C.M.G., K.C.M.G., C.M.G., O.B.E., Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Straits Settlements, and High Commissioner of the Malay States, was passing through Toronto en route back to Singapore from London. He told something of the heroism of the British people who are withstanding the nervous strain of bombing raids day and night.

"It is a great little paper you have, with 7,000 copies per diem," said the governor, himself an honorary fellow of Cambridge, referring to the university daily. "But what you students will have to learn is how to put out the paper in the midst of a bombing raid and get it out on time."

"London papers are put out all the time during bombing raids," he said, "and they get them out on time too. It is a wonderful accomplishment to be able to do this."

Sir Shenton turned from a Canadian newspace he had been admiring to remark that Hart House, the gift of the Massey Foundation, is "a very grand building. There is nothing like it in the English universities. Cambridge is composed of many different colleges, and is very much separated."

At this point Lady Thomas, a charming personality heretofore silent, entered the conversation in praise of Hart House. "We saw the Massys just before leaving London," she added, and went on to describe the Beaver Club which they have established as a social centre for homesick Canadian troops in the metropolis. "No dances have been held there since the aerial blitzkrieg started," she explained, "as the roof is of glass. There is a bomb shelter underneath the building, however."

Weird Menu For Medettes

Human eyes bathed in fluid piped in from a near-by tear duct, delectable morsels of raw rabbit, quaint twists of animal entrails constituted the menu of the buffet supper at which the medical freshmen were initiated last week.

Following this, the Epistix and the candlelight ceremony of handing the lamp of learning from seniors in caps and gowns to freshmen took place.

In conclusion a skit was presented by the freshmen depicting their first impressions of the campus in general and of the medical faculty in particular.

R.C. Archbishop Pays Tribute To O'Connor

Archbishop McGuigan Presents Portrait of Late Senator to Newman Club; Cody Terms it "Speaking Likeness"

MULOCK PRESENT

The late Senator Frank O'Connor built his life on "the tripod of business integrity, tender charity and sincerity," said His Excellency, Archbishop James McGuigan yesterday afternoon in Newman Hall as he presented Mr. Francis Haxby's portrait of the Senator to Newman Club.

The Oak Room of the club was crowded as Father McHenry, the rector, made an address of welcome following the formal reception of guests by the Archbishop. Don Morand, president of Newman Club, then gave a short history of the Toronto chapter and introduced His Excellency.

Before ordering the picture unveiled, the Archbishop spoke of its subject's simple faith, and said that his love for the Catholic Church was approached only by his love for, and civic pride in, his country and province. The lights in the room were then dimmed and the Union Jacks that covered the portrait removed.

Mr. William O'Brien, chairman of the board of the club, in accepting the picture, pointed out that, but for the Senator, Newman Club might not have been able to carry on financially in recent years.

Mr. Jack Wier, president of Newman Alumni Association, who accepted the picture for that body, said that the Senator had pointed the way for many and congratulated the Archbishop on his "excellent artistic taste."

The next speaker, Dr. Cody, president of the university, characterized the picture as a "speaking likeness." He stressed the fact that the Senator did "kind acts kindly" and pointed to his will as evidence of the way in which he remembered everyone who had been kind to him. Dr. Cody said that the Senator's life was abundantly indicative of the fact that opportunities for accomplishment, still exist in this country and said that the editorial in last Friday's issue of The Varsity ably expressed this idea.

Dr. Cody made mention of the many benefactions of Senator O'Connor to St. Michael's College and especially to discuss the possibility of trouble (Continued on Page 4)

by h. d. h.

The first fortnight of military training has trooped over the front campus of the University of Toronto apparently without mishap, and student soldiers, their first route march miles behind them, have by now accustomed themselves to taking such orders as "Right turn! About turn!" and the bold order above. We have watched these early attempts not without misapprehension. With so many platoons shifting positions about the front campus on the 1600-1800 hour evening shifts, we had felt certain that some of the more inexperienced instructors were going to forget in the nick of time how to manipulate their charges, and precipitate a tangled mass of manpower, theirs not to question why . . .

While the military heads expressed approval with Saturday's route march, some of the boys don't appear to be really striding out in best form just yet. One of our operatives reports that Platoon 7 in Q Company changed step 47 times—by actual count—in the three-miler.

C.O.T.C. and Auxiliary Battalion Take Part in First Route March of Year Saturday Afternoon

SALUTE AT U.C. STEPS

The University of Toronto Contingent of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps and its Auxiliary Battalion, comprising a total of nearly 3,000 men, the largest massed student force yet seen on the University of Toronto campus, left the campus in a body and returned to it Saturday afternoon a few hours later, after its first route march of the year.

The three-column line of men, which stretched about a mile in length, left the campus at about 2.30 p.m. on its three-mile jaunt, marched down University Avenue to Wellington Street, back up Spadina and returned to the front campus at 4 p.m. where they passed in review in front of University College, where Brigadier Eric Haldenby, in charge of the Ninth Brigade, Third Division, C.A.S.F., a former member of the Toronto C.O.T.C., who took the salute.

Before following the C.O.T.C. band back to the campus, the whole contingent halted at the east gate of the university, and the line that followed behind extended back around Harbord Street to Spadina Avenue.

While it was the first route march the students have yet experienced, it is expected that further route marches, gradually working up to longer distances, will take place on subsequent Saturday afternoons. Many of the students sang or whistled as they marched through Toronto's streets, apparently enjoying the parade. For the benefit of students who returned home cold or hungry after the parade, the Tuck Shop in Hart House, which usually closes Saturday afternoons at 4 p.m., was kept open after the parade was over. This was announced to students in the ranks before the route march set out.

Brigadier Haldenby, who received the salute, has returned from England to take up his present command in Canada. Overseas he was the Officer Commanding the 48th Highlanders of the First Brigade, 1st Canadian Division, C.A.S.F. President Cody was also present at the entrance of University College as the contingent marched past.

Officials of the C.O.T.C. and the Auxiliary Battalion expressed general satisfaction with the first route march of the respective bodies.

Sunday Songsters Are Cancelled

Owing to the added duties of the Hart House Music Committee, in military training, Hart House Sunday Evening Concerts will not be a musical feature of the University of Toronto this year, it was learned from official sources last night.

In former years, under the direction of J. Campbell MacInnes, noted authority on old English folk-music, the Sunday Evening Songsters, held fortnightly interspersed the regular Sunday Evening Concerts.

Many students have already expressed disappointment that this regular musical feature will not be held this year.

"It was one of the few really worthwhile things on the campus," said Dave Olson, III S.P.S.

Favourite old songs, in English, French and German, were featured at the informal gatherings in the music room. J. Campbell MacInnes explained (Continued on Page 4)

U.S. Students Register For Selective Service

By Lois Bradley

(The following article was written by a former member of The Varsity staff who is at present studying journalism at Columbia University in New York City.)

New York—Women, and men students on 21, enjoyed a holiday from New York City universities on October 16, as others, between 21 and 35, made history by registering for the first peace time draft of the United States.

Of the 17 million who registered throughout the country, over a million did so in New York City and of these many thousands were students. At Columbia, where 1,010 students registered, more than 50 registrars were hard pressed by the throng of early birds who wished to register at 7 a.m. These tasks had hoped to finish the unpleasant task quickly and then get on with the holiday, had to wait in line for an hour and a half.

Native Americans, of every racial extraction, aliens, men from every profession and social rank, and in all physical conditions, answered the same set of eleven questions. The general attitude seemed to be resignation to the inevitable, but there were those obviously eager for military training.

The percentage of conscientious objectors was small. Among New York students, eight held it to be against their principles to even register, though under the terms of the draft law, conscientious objectors will be exempted from military service.

These eight men were of the twenty Union Theological Seminary students who decided that the act of registration was itself warlike. Twelve finally registered as conscientious objectors, but eight have been summoned to appear before a Federal Grand Jury. They are liable to five years in jail, or a fine of $10,000.

Students are exempt from the selective service training until the end of the academic year. Other registrants await the results of the lottery draw to be held in Washington in about ten days, which will determine whom the first group of draftees will be.

68th VIC BOB LAMPOONS FACULTY AND STUDENTS

Outrunning Tobacco Road by some six decades, the Vic Bob, directed by Frank Evans, went into its 68th year Friday night in the Hart House Theatre. As usual, the capacity house of freshmen and adults, lampooned each other from the floor with songs and saw their professors and leading students mercilessly ridiculed on the stage.

This year's show, The Tower of Babel, was presented in three storeys, two of which were written by Tom Paton, IV Victoria. The other was the combined effort of Vic's own comedy team, "Owensum and Wantsem." Entr'actes were supplied by the audience, the Bob Quartet and George Carty's orchestra.

The printed program had very little bearing on the actual performance adding printed to visual and audible humor. Hitler and Mussolini materialized in the middle of storey one, a staff meeting. The reactions of the various dramatic personae to a bomb whose fuse was lit by Professors Robins and Bennett made the vaults echo with laughter for some minutes.

Storey two combined ridicule of prominent freshmen with jibes at the enforcement of Victoria Library regulations.

Contrary to custom, the third act, or storey three, was not entirely dissociated from college life. This year it briefly sketched the academic careers of Owensome and Wantsem (Ted Gray and Ed Kirkland). The climax came when the two students took over the headship of the staff and bestowed the degree of Bachelor of Junior Matriculation on the deposed Principal Brown. This latter part was played in Storey One by Jimmy Carson and in Storey Three by Tom Paton.

After the show the reconciled sophs and frosh adjourned to Victoria's halls to dance.

Screen Publicity

Two weeks ago this column declared the need in this university for a publicity campaign which would achieve something positive rather than merely prevent unfavourable publicity. That editorial met with more than average approval, receiving newspaper and radio comment, as well as provoking several letters, one of which stated that the reader "was left with a severe case of mental indigestion," and went on to suggest co-ed bathing beauty contests and radio quiz programs.

At that time we stated that there was no criticism, other than a criticism of degree, of the work being done by the Department of University Extension and Publicity. We suggested, however, that the technique of the motion picture be applied to the problem of university publicity. For such an undertaking as this, the present department would be inadequate, and a distinct Department of Publicity, as suggested and outlined earlier, would have to be set up.

The use of the moving picture is a step which is a trifle hard to comprehend at first for it is something entirely new to the Canadian campus scene. But from the standpoint of comparative efficiency, it would be by far the most effective method of distributing favourable university publicity. Information by the printed word of course remains the easiest and probably the least expensive form of publicity, and these methods should be carried on with increasing vigour. But the ultimate aim should be toward a technique which is most effective and penetrating when presented to the public. The motion picture is such a technique. The world has come to recognize that what can be demonstrated to the eye receives far greater attention and is remembered longer than what has to be read. An example of this is the widespread circulation of picture magazines today, capitalizing on the laziness of mankind, but more than that on the effectiveness of ocular presentation. Every person recognizes from individual experience that if he sees movie scenes of the destruction of London by bombers, he is far more impressed by the reality of it all than if he had merely read several columns about it in the newspaper. The reading matter is still essential, but if one can actually see the scene, the effectiveness is increased many times.

For this reason we feel that movies could be employed to great advantage in placing the university before the public, and everyone admits the need of this very thing. Short reels could be prepared, covering many different aspects of university life and work, and these could be distributed both through regular theatre systems and to schools, clubs, and churches. The subjects for such films abound everywhere. Work in laboratories, vital research projects, lectures, military training—all these present excellent subjects. Take for instance the C.O.T.C. parade on Saturday afternoon. The sight of almost 3000 men drawn up at attention on the front campus would have made a marvelous scene for a movie camera lens placed in the tower of University College, and it would have given the public concrete pictorial evidence that the university does have a war effort. We are sure newsreel companies would co-operate on an event such as that. While speaking of the parade, it was gratifying to notice newspaper photographers much in evidence.

Of course, the suggestion that movies be utilized is a bold one and we could not expect its immediate acceptance. It is a scheme which would entail much planning and organization before it was put into operation, but we feel that it is feasible, that it is most efficient, and that ultimately it will become a reality.

On Parade!

An impressive sight was that presented Saturday afternoon when close to three thousand members of the C.O.T.C. and the Auxiliary Battalion lined up for review on the front campus following a route march. And making it doubly impressive was the presence of Brigadier Eric Haldenby who took the salute from the front steps of University College.

It was especially fitting that Brigadier Haldenby, a member of the C.O.T.C. when it was formed in 1914, could be present at the first large-scale parade of that same organization as it faces the serious task of preparing officers for war a quarter of a century later. Following a brilliant career in the last war for which he was awarded the Military Cross, Brigadier Haldenby last year took the 48th Highlanders into France just before Dunkerque. His regiment was evacuated without loss in that soul-stirring exploit which saw the upholders of democracy come face to face with overwhelming odds and emerge with glory.

The cadets of the two corps here have been signally honoured in having Brigadier Haldenby present to take the salute as they marched past in column of route. And surely the sight must have made him, and the rest of the country, realize that Varsity, along with the other Canadian universities, is really doing her duty to the hilt.

Write A Letter

Any newspaper, to fulfil its true function, should be more or less a co-operative endeavour. The editor has his sacred preserve, the editorial columns; the reader too has his prerogative, letters to the editor.

Every year the editor of The Varsity receives hundreds of letters from readers of the paper. The majority of them have some valid criticism to offer; some have words of praise; others have excellent ideas which the writer wishes to convey to others. We welcome letters of every description. They are the only token we have of the real interest of students in what appears daily in these four pages, and they form the most efficient method of guiding us in changes, improvements and general policy. They are the true expression of student opinion on this campus.

Contrary to the belief held by some, The Varsity does publish letters received from readers, whether they be critical or laudatory. It is a standing principle, however, that such letters, to be published, must bear the name and address of the sender. If the writer wishes his name to be kept out of print, we are prepared to do so, but for our own protection we must have the name of the writer even if he is to appear anonymous to all other readers. Already this year we have received over a dozen letters bearing no name, or else a pseudonym only, and consequently they have not been published. So remember that you as readers of The Varsity have a legitimate right to send letters to the editor, and the editor welcomes them.

EVENTS OF THE WEEK

Tuesday: Massey Hall, Celebrity Series. Rubenstein, pianist.

Wednesday: Hart House Theatre, 5 p.m., Drama Committee play, The Harem, presented by Victoria College Dramatic Society.

Wednesday: Eaton Auditorium. First concert in Musical Manifesto Series, proceeds to War Effort. Hallett and Poole, duo pianists, and Margaret Parsons, pianist.

Wednesday: Art Gallery, Series of Documentary Films.

Thursday: Eaton Auditorium. Yves Tinayre, baritone.

Thursday: Varsity Arena. Volkoff Ballet and Toronto Symphony Orchestra. Proceeds to Red Cross.

Coliseum Chorus

Maple Leaf Gardens rocked to the volume of the two thousand voice Coliseum Chorus, accompanied and assisted by the Toronto Symphony. The first half of the program was worthy of possibilities inherent in such a union; the second unfortunately was not. In one case, the chorus even started in a different key from the orchestra. As was to be expected,

Slaughter In the Side Pocket

Seated in the St. George St. diggings, idly scanning the headlines of the papers, Marlborough-Beach noticed the following in screechingly black type.

WHIMSICAL FIEND SLAYS SEVEN WITH SALMON SANDWICH.

"Good Gad, Fotheringham," he cried, "look at this!"

"Aha," I cried, "this smacks of the occult. Read on!"

It appeared that the bodies of six S.P.S. Frosh and a Third Year Aerial Navigation student were found stuffed into various side pockets in the Hart House Billiard Room. No clue was found except for a few torn scraps of salmon sandwich and an unpaid bill for table Number Four.

"Come on," I cried, "it's high time we played a little snooker."

After Marlborough-Beach had done a neat job of sinking the seven ball, we casually approached the desk, paid our bill and attempted to draw the attendant into conversation.

"Er... nice day, isn't it," I remarked brightly.

"Possibility of showers from the south-east," replied the attendant, "which would be disastrous to the Essex County tobacco crop."

"Talking of disasters," said Marlborough-Beach, seizing the opportunity, but he got no farther.

"Yes," the attendant continued smoothly, "I always said those Argos couldn't stand up against a team with real offensive power..."

Fifteen minutes later we were able to get in a question about the murder. It seemed that the murder was discovered when an expert produced an intricate carom shot straight to the side pocket, only to have the ball bounce out again. Further investigation revealed one of the bodies occupying the pocket.

Thinking the attendant hurriedly, we examined the scene of the crime. The air was heavy with the sound of tobacco smoke and the odour of the click-clicking of billiard balls. Foul speech was heard as strong men watched carefully-planned shots misfire.

"Come on," I muttered in an undertone, and we strode over to Table Number Four.

"Good Gad," we cried as we approached the table.

Above the foul odours of the place, we could distinguish quite clearly the unmistakable odour of a salmon sandwich.

"Steady, old man," I said, bracing Marlborough-Beach as he was about to collapse, "have a swig from my pocket flask of double malted."

He pulled deeply at the flask and his eyes cleared.

"There's foul play afoot," he said firmly.

(Good Gad, what new adventures await our heroes? Can it be that someone is out to GET our cheery investigators of the occult before they can clear up the mystery? For further developments, be sure to watch this space for another thrilling instalment of this exclusive yarn.)

Minos and Omar.

The military stole the show, and received a bigger ovation for their marching than the musicians did for their prolonged efforts.

Taken as a whole, the program was satisfactory of its kind, but its limitations were too serious for comfort. The Hallelujah Chorus, fortunately broadcast, was among the most effective selections of the whole evening. Handel's Largo inevitably found a place on the program, and niches were made for Country Gardens and the Dvorak Carnival Overture. In the latter, the orchestra enjoyed to the full its propensity for volume.

It might seem appropriate to repeat the disgust aroused by a perpetual diet of "safe" music. When it comes to the stage of having to listen to There'll Always be an England sung by musicians capable of much more, the protest (Continued on Page 4)

FABER, BOXER, AT QUARTER

Trinity and University College gridders match punts and passes on the greensward of Varsity stadium at 4:30 today. It is the first time either team has played in the current schedule and both are question marks as far as league play is concerned. But if practices are any indication, the tussle shapes up as a humdinger.

Both squads have been practising faithfully and are in fine fettle for the contest. According to the lads from the land of expertia this game should tell which outfit will come out on top of group one.

Dynamic little Cuddy Faber will be barking the signals from the quarterback slot and he will be backed by a powerful group behind him. Harold Axon, Mac McKinley and Alcombrack are a trio of stalwarts who will bear close watching. Tall Bob Cameron will look after the upside down spot, and End Cutler are going great guns at end.

Dave Owen has been hustling the black and red through their paces on the Trinity playing field and has found little difficulty in making the boys go to work. They have exhibited real college try to date and are sparked by the talented Don Boxer, who played such a whale of a game in the Mulock Cup finals last year. He is holding down the quarterback position.

let's go places

Two characters play in the leading role of Knute Rockne at the Uptown this week. One is Pat O'Brien, with his nose padded and hair silvered, who plays Pat O'Brien for most of the film. The other is Pat O'Brien,

Brien, who portrays the Sage of South Bend as he appeared between halves to the football teams of Notre Dame University. Years ago we saw actual newsreels of the famous mentor's pep talks to his Fighting Irishers, and Pat O'Brien has reproduced them with a faithfulness which contrasts distressingly with the general run of the picture.

However, it is a moving presentation which Pat O'Brien gives of the career of this great man and great coach. Ronald Regan gives a talented performance in his role of George Gipp, who nonchalantly allowed Rockne to persuade him to play football, and then became the greatest back who

MULLETT OUT

Seeded tennis Owen Gray and Maurice Marois fell by the wayside, and Ian McCallum eliminated Jack Mullett over the week-end, as the interfaculty net tournament advanced to the quarter-finals.

Vaugh of Vic romped away with his match with Marois of St. Mike's 6-1, 6-0, while dark-horse Bernie McGraw of U.C. snatched a tough three-setter from Gray of Meds, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, only to lose to defending champion Bruce
Hall in the quarter-finals, 6-3, 6-3. Ian McCallum took a thrilling match from his doubles partner, Jack Mullett, in three sets, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, thereby advancing into the semi-finals against Hall.

Only one other upset took place, this time in doubles competition, as Marois and Jacobs downed McMuroch and
Jones, seeded doubles squad, 6-4, 6-1.
Other doubles matches went off as predicted. Hall and Whallon, and Mc-Callum and Mullett kept in the straight and narrow. Shorter and Gray, the fourth seeded team, did not have a scheduled engagement.

The finals in both singles and doubles will be staged tomorrow. The semifinal doubles will be at noon, and the final at 3:30. The singles final will be at two o'clock.

Week-end results:

Singles:

Hall over Crane 6-4, 8-6; McGraw over Gray, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3; Mullett over Clee, 6-0, 6-0; McCallum over Murphy,
6-4, 6-2; Whallon over Brown, 6-3,
8-6; Waugh over McMuroch, 6-0, 6-0;
Rusted over Bryce, 6-3, 6-0; Shorter

6-4, 6-0; Hall over McGraw, 6-3, 6-3;
McCallum over Mullett, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1.

Doubles:

Hall and Whallon over Rotenberg and Berg, 6-1, 6-4; Penoyer and Pri-deaux over Marchant and McCure, def.; Bryce and Dales over Kitchen and Green, 6-3, 6-1; McMuroch and Jones over O'Hara and Giffin, 6-4, 6-0; Mc-Callum and Mullett over Wilson and Tseng, 6-3, 6-2; Bennett and Crane over Longo and Clee, 6-3, 6-2; Livingstone and Campbell over Grant and Brown, def.; Marois and Jacobs over Bryce and Dales, 6-3, 4-6, 10-8; Marois and 6-0; Mullett and McCallum over Ben-Jacobs over McMuroch and Jones, 6-4, net and Crane, 6-0, 6-1.

Draw for today (incomplete):

Girls!—We have been requested by a figure of note among the masculine herd to dedicate this column today to the cause of Men's Interfaculty Rugby.
The men at last openly admit that they honestly miss our sunny faces and high-C screeches at these games, and have shamelessly asked that a plea be put to us co-eds to rally to their side, and really give them something to put the old fight in them again when the moments are darkest, and someone to show real enthusiasm and joy over their hard-earned triumphs.

We didn't jump at the idea at first, knowing that they have 15/16ths of the sports page and sometimes 16/16ths, when they get nasty!—in which to work up enthusiasm for their games, while we have what's left for our big events.
However, when we looked at it another way, we decided we really should be honoured. Well, anyway, there isn't much about us to guff about us—tennis tournaments' been postponed 'till later in the week—and besides, it's fun—so here goes—

Today, at 4:30, U.C. and Trinity are playing at the stadium—comfortable seats, see? not plush ones, but, well, seats. Since there is no intercollegiate this year, both men who have played on last year's big team, and those who would have made it this year, will be lending their support to the college teams, and therefore the brand of rugby goes up, n'est-ce pas? U.C. will have five former intermediate intercollegiate players and Trinity will have Benjie McMillan—that's what they told me, just that!—and an item which is supposed to be a drawing card is the announcement that the interfaculty games will now offer a method of attack which features four downs, replacing the old apparently too-slow three-down system.

Being my father's daughter, I must say I hesitate to place my stamp of approval on this new system, but will reluctantly admit that it will probably be at least interesting to see this direct-American-copy method in action. Nevertheless, we doggedly predict that, though a change may be noted, it will not be for the better—we can't have a split in the family now, it's too near Christmas.

Well, anyhow, the point is, let's turn out and give our boys all the support and enthusiasm that we wish they would give us! Let's really bring down the roof for them!—what, no roof?
—well, y'know what we mean. First chance, 4:30 today!

WE'RE LUCKY, CHUMS

A few columns ago we remarked that the University of Toronto was singularly fortunate in having its famed intramural system a tried and proven feature of our athletic life before the decision was made to cancel intercollegiate competition. As we read the exchanges from various Canadian camps we are even more convinced of the truth of this statement. From the far west we hear mutterings of discontent if not rumblings of defiance at the Canadian Universities' Conference's ruling. Down East they seem to be working toward a compromise by sponsoring C.O.T.C. teams. Only at Varsity is the intramural system organized well enough for the athletic program to absorb the shock of the rapid readjustments.

The saddest news of all comes from Western, a spot which was always noted for lots of try. On the fence of the beautifully-situated J. W. Little Memorial Stadium is a "For Sale" sign. We quote from the Gazette: "The money received by the university for the stadium is to be used to purchase new uniforms and a new flag atop the tower." Over on the sports page of the same journal we notice that the inter-company football idea is rapidly getting nowhere.
Sportsman Norm Burdick writes in his column: "After considerable optimism concerning the possibilities of the new Inter-Company Rugby League, officials of the league were forced to postpone the opening game of October 11 until the tail end of the schedule, November 8."

Lamenting the passing of the annual game at Toronto, the Gazette is trying to drum up interest in a "Toronto Week-end" on one of the Saturdays in November. The program would of course include a visit to the game at the Stadium, and the usual dance and stuff that follows. The Londoners seem very anxious to preserve some part of what used to be one of the greatest events in Western's school year.

KNUTE ROCKNE—MAKER OF MEN

Elsewhere in this issue we review the current film offering at the Uptown, and having tried to state our opinion of the picture as such, we would like to recommmend it to those who like to see a picture with a lot of football in it.
You are almost certain to learn plenty about the famous "Rock" which you didn't know before. Most interesting to us was the account (if it be authentic) of the way in which he originated the renowned Rockne shift which revolutionized football tactics. As the film has it, Rockne rewarded his team for winning a championship by blowing them to a show. While the gaping gridders were drinking in the aesthetic side of the chorus routine, the serious-minded Knute was jolting down the dancers' manoeuvres—and thus, kiddies, there was born Notre Dame's "one-two-three-shift".

LOCAL BOY MAKES GOOD

The stalwart assistant trainer on the Sarnia bench at the Stadium on Saturday was Larry (Zeke) McKegney, who used to be the Red Horner of Wye-life's hockey team. The Varsity's thousands of readers join in congratulating him on his brilliant bottle-carrying in his first Toronto appearance in his new role. Congratulations, Zeke, we all knew you could do it!

TRINITY AND KNOX BATTLE
TO 1-1 TIE IN SOCCER TILT

SPORT SPLASHES

By Doug Green

Trinity and Knox waged their first soccer tilt on the Trinity campus Friday afternoon, and battled on even terms to a 1-1 draw.

Both scores came in the first chuker. Art Jackson booted home the first goal on behalf of Trinity, but Dick Stewart came back with the equalizer a few minutes later. From there on it was anybody's game, though play stayed pretty well at centre-field with very few scoring opportunities presented.

Trinity: Riley, Grover, Baillie, Wagland, Clarkson, Blake, Phillips, Delaney, Dawson, Jackson, Wendel, Ker.
Knox: Thomson, Sween, Graham,
Currie, Self, Near, McKenzie, Jack,

Many students between the ages of 18-20 have the idea they must put in their two hours a week on the gym floor taking military training. This is not the case as only one hour of military drill is necessary and the other hour can be put in at swimming or life saving, in the pool.

Thirty-six hours of P.T. is the minimum required of which half can be used at swimming and half on the gym floor. Now the urgency of military training cannot be over-stressed but learning to swim and to save life is also mighty important. Mr. Winterburn is one of the finest swimming and life-saving coaches in Canada and all undergraduates or graduates are urged to benefit themselves by taking this opportunity. Anyone in regular attendance at this university is invited to join any of the following classes.

Learn-to-swim classes are held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, beginning at 10:00, 11:00, 12:00 and 3:00 o'clock.

Advanced swimming groups Monday through Friday from 4:00 to 5:00
o'clock.

Friday beginning at 10:00, 11:00, 12:00

THREE NEW RECORDS

By Owen Prichard

Gray and brown were the predominant colours in Friday's Interfaculty Track Meet at Varsity Stadium. The leaders skies supplied the gear effect, and the program was turned into a study in Brown as the famous twins led O.C.E. to an easy victory over School of Science, the nearest rival.

Romping home with 36 points out of O.C.E.'s 48 to take the Rowell Cup, the Messrs. Harold and Wallace Brown took five firsts, a second and four thirds, with two new records to boot.
The stellar pair amassed enough points between them to win the meet on their own efforts.

The second-place Engineers tallied 32 points, most of which came by a grand performance in the three-mile, as the Schoolmen took all four money places.
Victoria was an easy third with 29 points.

The inclement weather slowed up the track stars, and no records were shattered; but in the field events three in-

Indian Sentiment Favours England, Says Missionary

Student of Indian Mass Movements Sees National Unity at End Should Germany Win War

IN INDIA SINCE 1922

"There is no doubt about Indian national sentiment with regard to the war—India wants England to win," stated Rev. Frank Whittaker, a missionary in India since 1922, in an interview on Saturday.

"If Germany were to win the war," he explained, "all hope of national unity would be at an end. As a result Gandhi and his followers, which they feel they can't actively co-operate with the British Government, are passively co-operating for they don't want to hinder the British at this time. The same is true of Nehru and other leaders. The situation in India, however, is changing all the time and we have to be prepared for changes," said Mr. Whittaker, who is on his way to England. "All India is throbbing with life as a result of the national expression begun by Gandhi's pre-war program," he said.

"For the two years before the war," said Mr. Whittaker, "Gandhi developed 'national expression' in India by the stress he put on home industries, spinning and weaving in the homes, agriculture, etc. He even reformed the educational system, putting emphasis on handicraft and other useful branches. This striving for self-containment would, I feel, be a step forward for many of the poorer villagers."

"In fact a great deal has already been achieved in the way of village industries such as spinning and weaving, and, since this enlightened program was cut short by the war, it is not fair to judge it too harshly because the Government went into debt," he said.

"I am glad to say that the British loyally co-operated with Gandhi in these reforms and the governors of the provinces that no longer have popular government since the resignation of their congress ministers have pledged themselves to carry on as far as possible the policies begun before the war."

"This national spirit is equally manifest in social and religious matters," continued Mr. Whittaker. "It causes many of the people to reach out for fuller and more abundant life than has been known before. It lies behind the Christian Mass Movement. Today large communities all over India are asking for Christian instruction and millions are now seriously considering the offers Christianity makes of national regeneration. Mr. Whittaker said.

Remark from Toronto's downtown sidewalks as 3,000 students trailed down University Avenue: "Shucks, these guys that can't get a job and have to join the army."

The C.O.T.C. had just formed up for their organization parade last Wednesday afternoon, and a company of artillerymen were marched out onto Hoskins Avenue. A murmur went up in the remaining ranks. "Looks like a route march already," came a horrified stage whisper. "Hey! They can't send us on a route march!" exclaimed a rifleman. "We're the infantry—we ride in trucks!"

Woman Doctor Tells of Status Of Indian Women

Governments Co-operate with and Encourage Women's Movements in India, Says Mrs. Frank Whittaker

TOWNS HAVE Y.W.C.A.'S

"There has been tremendous development in all governments in India regardless of party, in the last few years in co-operating with an encouraging women's movements," said Mrs. Frank Whittaker when questioned Saturday regarding the status of women in India. Mrs. Whittaker is a doctor and has recently been working in Indian rural areas.

"Higher education for women has been going on at a tremendous pace for the last fifteen years and their emancipation has been much quicker than men," she said. "All the big towns have women's clubs with which women of all religions go and the Girl Guide Movement and Y.W.C.A. are also active."

"Many of the women attending the clubs have had a good education either in Christian or government colleges," continued Mrs. Whittaker. "I have attended some of their meetings and they suggest some amazing reforms with regard to child welfare and matters relating to women and children. Their demands are much more sweeping than the men's," she said.

"Ghandi is particularly keen on getting enlightenment into rural areas for women as well as for men," continued Mrs. Whittaker. "There have been one or two Christian women who joined Ghandi because they see the importance of hand spinning and weaving, but there again, Ghandi has little to tempt the Indian women from the cities."

When questioned about their customs Mrs. Whittaker revealed that in the cities the Indians did attempt to copy Western ways a little in their homes but kept strictly to their own methods of dress and cooking for which she is glad. "We want to help them preserve national characteristics, not force Western ways on them," she said. "We want to help them in their homes and get greater emancipation for the poorer classes."

EXCUSE US, WE'RE HONEST

An anonymous correspondent wishes to know "why the A. M. & D. Editor and his cohorts slam every performance and every visiting artist appearing in Toronto." The correspondent goes on to ask whether this column is trying to be "smart" or just wants to be different from the dailies.

This accusation is no new one; perhaps it is the extreme dislike I bear against anonymous correspondents that prompts me to deal with it now.

In the first place, the accusation was untrue, even at the time of writing (a little more than a week ago). It was probably motivated by a rather acrimonious review of the final regular Prom by the editor of the department. This article took issue rather violently with the type of program presented, and failed to devote a little of the small amount of space available to appreciate the technical excellence of soloist and orchestra. Perhaps the article was a trifle over-hasty and even a little unjust, but his point, while sharply stated, cannot be denied. There has been a bumper crop of corn dish out by the Proms this summer.

My own review of the program in which Carola Goya was soloist again carried considerable criticism of the choice of program, every word of which I am willing to back with my life (or reasonable facsimile thereof). But in this review the orchestra was not attacked, and the soloist was highly commended.

An earlier Prom review, written by a student whose knowledge of music exceeded his experience at criticism, was justly if uncomfortably harsh. Another article which may come under the heading of "slams" is a review in the Far East, aside from stating that at present the defences of Singapore "are very strong." The Malay States, he said, are "very rich in minerals and other natural products," and consequently of great economic value in wartime.

"Singapore itself," said the governor, "is a very formidable fortress which can be of immense value for maintaining our position and the balance of power in the East, should the need arise. There are very up-to-date naval and air bases, and a large military garrison. The George VI drydock at the naval base is large enough to accommodate any of his majesty's ships."

Sir Shenton and his wife expressed pleasure with their trip to date, which they termed "the better, as well as the more attractive, route home." They gave a thrilling account of their transatlantic air crossing by clipper plane.

game, to complete Trinity College's triple-threat social attraction of the fall season.

Ticket sales have gone briskly, it was reported by a member of the committee on Saturday. There are still tickets available from the Hall Porter in Trinity, or from members of the Board of Stewards or the Athletic Association, he said.

of the Playwrights' Studio performance, Keep It Flying. This article was written in a perfectly cool and objective tone. Good points of the revue were amply praised, and criticism offered was purely constructive. I am told that the troupe acted on one or two of the reviewers' hints later on in the week—a sure indication that they took his remarks in good part.

A more recent case, again of my own doing, is last Wednesday's Drama Committee play. It happens that the three members of the cast on that occasion were very good friends of mine, whom I found it difficult to disappoint with a rather harsh bit of criticism. But there were faults in the show which I found it impossible to overlook or even to minimize. Whether the people in question will ever speak to me again is still a matter of conjecture.

With the exception of the cases mentioned, all reviews in this column were more than kind. In no case was a visiting artist "slammed." Only in one of the cases mentioned was a performance condemned on any grounds other than choice of program. And in only one case has a reviewer shown any signs of personal disgust. Of course reviewers are admittedly humorous at times, for the sake of the many people who wouldn't read through a review that contains no promise of a gage en route.

It is only natural that we should sometimes differ from the opinions of the downtown critics, or for that matter, that they should differ among themselves. Every critic is an individual with a certain amount of experience in his line, with his own opinions and his own perspective and receptive powers. These considerations vary a critic's outlook and make it impossible for any two critics to write the same thing about the same event. There are also added the lesser considerations of what the critic had for supper and whether his car would start.

It has frequently been stressed that the main virtue of critics on the A. M. & D. staff is their honesty. We are younger, more impressionable and more open spoken than the more experienced critics. This is not altogether a drawback, as you will realize if you compare some of our better work with articles on the same subject by a calmer, more phlegmatic professional.

For the benefit of our anonymous contributor I repeat that in our reviews we make no attempt to be smart, or to differ spectacularly from our contemporaries. Our only concern is to give you our honest evaluation of the events of the events we review.—E.S.

NEW S.C.M. CHOIR HELD INITIAL MEETING

Mrs. Cass-Beggs of Oxford Leads S.C.M. Choir; Has Organized Similar Groups Throughout England

PROGRAM ARRANGED

A new organization on the campus was launched yesterday with the first meeting of the S.C.M. choir in Cartwright Hall, St. Hilda's, under the direction of Mrs. Cass-Beggs.

The program for the fall will be the study of Christmas carols in preparation for street-singing during the holidays, starting with a few Bach Chorals from "The Christmas Oratorio".

Mrs. Cass-Beggs came from Oxford last fall with her husband, Prof. Cass-Beggs, who is lecturing here in Electrical Engineering. She was in charge of organizing the S.C.M. choirs throughout England, and directed the S.C.M. choir at the Student Church in London.

At Christmas time the English choirs sing in private homes by appointment and Mrs. Cass-Beggs suggested trying the idea here. Mrs. Cass-Beggs also suggested that the S.C.M. start building up a music library, beginning by purchasing the carol music.

The choir will meet again Wednesday of this week at 1 o'clock in St. Hilda's to complete arrangements for the year.

VIC DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENT 'THE HAREM'

Victoria College Dramatic Society will present "The Harem", a one-act play by Edward Percy and Reginald Denham at five o'clock Wednesday afternoon in Hart House Theatre, second production in the University Drama Committee series of one-act plays.

The complications which arise when a philandering old sea-dog becomes involved with a number of scheming widows form the background for the play, which was described as "a play which should supply the girls with plenty of ideas on harem house-keeping" by Dick Stewart, Vic 470, director of the production.

The authors of the piece also wrote "Ladies in Retirement", and a number of other Broadway successes.

Members of the cast will be Jeanne Booth, Beth Springer, Virginia Beebe, Mary Ellen Fenwick, Marion Lyons, Joe Dales and Peter Dickinson.

"The students in the University of Brussels could not possibly be more pro-British than they were before the declaration of war," said John Defosse, first year student in S.P.S., when interviewed yesterday afternoon.

Defosse, who is Belgian by nationality, but has lived in Buenos Aires for the past thirteen years, intended to attend Brussels University this year. He tried his entrance examination, but left Belgium about a week after the outbreak of war. When asked about the political ideas of the students there, he stressed the fact that, because Brussels was a very liberal university, not state-controlled, everyone could hold their own views.

He said that, apparently, at any rate, the Nazis and Fascists had no hold whatever over the students and that in the political discussions which inevitably take place among groups of college students the opinions expressed always showed friendly feeling for England and France.

HART HOUSE GLEE CLUB

In an effort to determine the most convenient rehearsal time for the majority of members and others interested, a short questionnaire will be distributed at the rehearsal today at 5 p.m. in the music room of Hart House. This will be the final one at which new members may join unless they are unable to be present today for some valid reason.

There is an urgent need for more tenors. Neither previous experience in part-singing nor the ability to read music is essential. We ask only that you be interested. Members and any others interested are urged to be present.

If you cannot be on hand, please call at the Warden's office immediately and fill out a questionnaire, or get in touch with the secretary, Mr. J. L. MacDowell, at Ki. 0319. It is to your advantage to let us know what hour is best for you.

PHARMACY DANCE PLANNED

The annual junior dance of the Ontario College of Pharmacy will be held on Friday, Nov. 22, it was decided at a meeting of the executive of the organization.

Officials said that the dance will be held in the gymnasium in Hart House and expect that it will be "the best dance ever held under the auspices of the junior O.C.P."

Ubyssy Points Canada's Need For Engineers

U.B.C. Engineers Campaign for C.O.T.C. Time-table Change or the Resuming of Credit System

"THINKING OF WAR EFFORT"

By A. H. V. Backman Staff Writer, The Ubyssy

Vancouver, Oct. 21, 1940 (CUP)—University of British Columbia engineers have received first tangible support of a campaign through which they hope to obtain rearrangement of the C.O.T.C. time-table to fit in with the individual time-tables of the Faculty of Applied Science or credits for C.O.T.C.

Recently the engineers unanimously agreed at a meeting of the Science Men's Undergraduate Society to petition the Military Affairs Committee of the University of British Columbia, Lt. Col. G. M. Shrum, Commanding Officer of the U.B.C. contingent of the C.O.T.C., and possibly the District Military Command to ameliorate the burden which some of the upper class engineers have this year. Pending class elections no definite steps had been taken. But all elections have been held however, and now a permanent committee has been formed to present the question.

Editorially last week the Ubyssy supported the move of SMUS pointing out that the engineers would be more valuable to the Dominion as engineers rather than as partially trained officers. "What Canada needs today," the editorial said "is more engineers to develop her expanding war industries—to increase production to the highest possible level."

"The Applied Science students at the university realize that officers can be trained more easily and in less time than engineers. In the move for a change in the C.O.T.C. time-table they (Continued on Page 4)

PUBLISH U. OF T. MONTHLY

Serving as a permanent link between the university and the graduate, the University Alumni Federation is a union of the various faculty and college alumni and alumnae associations.

Besides keeping the student in touch with his alma mater, the Federation plays a considerable role in the life of undergraduates as well as alumni. A total of $68,000 has been provided by the Federation up to the present for War Memorial Scholarships. This fund was originally collected during the last war as a memorial to the men serving overseas.

The Federation also provides a loan fund for deserving students in their final year. Loans amounting to $264,000 have been given. The nucleus of this fund was the Khaki College Fund, originally intended for the benefit of soldiers in the last war. After the war, the fund was turned over to the Alumni Federation for its present purpose. The fund has since been augmented by various organizations.

Another organization under the control of the Federation is the Bureau of Appointments which places graduates in positions. All graduates, including non-members are eligible for this employment service.

U.C. Players Will Feature Bernard Shaw

"The Fatal Gazogene" Provides Sound Complications. Comedy and Serious Drama both to be Included

CASTING TONIGHT

"Anyone who has any method of impersonating or producing a bolt of lightning will be particularly welcome," stated Heather Hill, vice-president of the U.C. Players' Guild, referring to the general meeting of the Guild for casting, to be held tonight.

The lightning bolt is required for a performance of "The Fatal Gazogene," by George Bernard Shaw, which needs also a large cast, and a complicated set and sound effects, she added.

This play, "Bury the Dead" by Irwin Shaw, and "A Plant in the Sun" by Ben Bengal, will be produced by the Players' Guild at an evening performance, it was learned. The former is a serious, intensely dramatic play, the latter a comedy dealing with "a group of New York girls who resemble (Continued on Page 4)

FASCISM TO BE DISCUSSED

"Fascism—A Study in Frustration" will be the subject of a talk by Professor L. T. Morgan of the department of political science at the first meeting of the Philosophical Society tonight. The meeting will be held in Croft Chapter House, the south-west corner of University College, at 8 p.m. Officials of the club said the meeting will be open to all those interested in all faculties and colleges. They said the only requirement for membership is consistent interest.

Plans for later meetings include an address by Dean Brett on "Democracy". Officials said that many distinguished guests, including undergraduates, have been invited to begin discussions on

McGill Co-eds Must Train In War Service Program

War Service Program for Women to Include First Aid, Home Nursing and Training for Fitness

TO COMMENCE NEXT WEEK

Montreal, Oct. 21 (CUP)—"A magnificent opportunity is facing you," said Principal Cyril James of McGill as he outlined a plan for compulsory women's training to a mass meeting of women students today. The plan is to go into operation next week.

"Men have immediate work," the principal continued, "but the work of maintaining the quality of society, of facing domestic problems, of having minds of your own and of being aware of political issues—that job is yours."

"Today we are setting the foundation of tomorrow," Mr. James added, "and the shape of tomorrow is of your own choosing."

The program, devised by the Committee on a War Service Program for Women, of which Dr. Muriel Roscoe, Warden of Royal Victoria College of Nurses, is chairman, includes training for fitness two hours a week as well as courses in First Aid Home Nursing for an additional two hours weekly. The course is to be compulsory for all women students except those physically unfit.

"It is just as logical for non-Britishers to participate as for those actively engaged in the war," Mr. James told the students. "Problems of stress and strain and the danger of the ultimate contingencies that might produce a crisis are just as likely in America as here," he explained. "Therefore the willingness to face the challenge is just as necessary for Americans as for Canadians."

NURSES ELECT PRESIDENT AS INITIATION CLOSURE

Annual elections of the School of Dental Nursing, at which Janette Ball was elected president, brought to an end the initiation of the Dental Nurses last week.

With only one year in Dental Nursing, it was necessary for the 470 graduates to return to initiate the new students.

For the past few years very little has been done in this line. However, the girls rather enjoyed their ordeals, they said. Forced to wear large bibs, odd shoes and socks, curlers in their hair, and carry their books in fruit baskets, they were taken about the campus by the grads. At College and Yonge they drew a large crowd while they performed a spring dance and sang Farmer's in the Dell, during their initiation each day.

Snow Flurries Cause Excitement As Winter Creeps Upon Students

An unmeasurable "trace" of snow which fell here yesterday morning is said by the Meteorological Bureau to be no signal for frenzied ski-waxing. If hopeful winter sports enthusiasts will take note they may see that at St. Hilda's tennis is still the sport and shorts the costume for it.

However, this recent flurry of the white stuff is enough to put those who noticed it in mind of the coming white season and all that winter on the campus means.

The nip in the air shows that there won't be much of a wait before skating at the stadium after the football season closes. Sun Valley behind the university library will echo to the squeals of coasting kiddies and the audible ac-

UNIVERSITY POLICE PATROL CAMPUS

Find Students Very Good on the Whole. "They Usually Treat Us with Respect," Says Chief

PRANKS OVERLOOKED

Despite the fact that the university feels it necessary to have four policemen patrolling the grounds, the campus police themselves declare that, although they are kept on their toes, undergrads are a very law-abiding group.

"Of course, our job is to keep them law-abiding rather than to punish them after," said Chief D'Arcy. According to him there are the odd pranks which are more or less overlooked because they are really not serious, and not meant to be. City police, on the other hand, might act severely with the offender through failing to understand students. Speaking of the students' attitude the chief, himself a strong, well-built man, affirmed, "They have always treated us respectfully."

Continuity Theme Of Torontonensis

Editor Outlines Plans for More Artistic Volume of Varsity Year Book with Faculties as Units

MILITARY SECTION

Albert Mallon, Editor-in-Chief of the Torontonensis, told The Varsity yesterday that the business arrangements of the annual book have been completed. Mr. Mallon said, "By following the lines of greater continuity I hope to produce a more artistic book than has been edited in the past."

The general theme of the format will be carried throughout so as to make the book more unified, while the header pages to each faculty and college will be filled with more typical pictures of that faculty or college. The space usually given to intercollegiate sports will be filled by a special military section which will picture all phases of military activity both in the C.O.T.C. and the Auxiliary Battalion.

Mr. Mallon requests the cooperation of all those in their graduate year with regard to promptness in filling out their biographies and pictures.

companion of sitzmarks.

For the less hardy, life will move indoors. The social season will reach full bloom and in between affairs spare periods will find Hart House and the Women's Union more popular than ever. The library too will do a rushing business.

For the more energetic and less studious there will be the usual snow horse-play. This winter as in past years the campus will see its quota of snowmen built by artless Arts students and vandalized by heartless Engineers.

These happy scenes and doings are still afar off, however, and from now until after Yuletide the most noisy campus-bound student will see will be on Christmas cards.

The Case For Arts

Arts—particularly Pass Arts—students are both accustomed and resigned to being good-naturedly jeered at by students in the more utilitarian courses, because of the alleged "uselessness" and "softness" of their course. They accept these comments either as a joke, or as the customary "dig" at some one else's course, but the age-old saying "where there is smoke there is fire" can be applied to all these aspersions that seem to be cast so much more heavily at arts courses than at any others. The very fact that people find it necessary to hold to debates on such subjects as "Resolved that the primary function of an Arts Course is to prepare students to earn a living" proves that more than a few people need to be convinced that it is true.

Unless they are taking such a course for some specific purpose, such as in preparation for O.C.E., or Osgoode, or to take some similar additional course, it is to be hoped that all Arts students realize the truth behind the jeers. In the great percentage of cases a B.A. degree will prepare a student to earn a living no more than he was prepared for it by his senior matriculation. Women Arts graduates particularly will tell you that this is true. The commonest procedure after graduation is to attempt to obtain a job downtown in a business office or in one of the larger stores, since lack of necessary training usually prevents them from entering any specialized field of work. In this case the chief benefit derived from their degree seems to be a slight preference shown to them by employers over less educated applicants—provided they have supplemented their university education with a business college course.

However, even here the outlook is anything but encouraging. One of last year's Pass Arts graduates who had worked particularly hard to get her B.A. in order to begin earning her own living, describes the situation in amusing but pathetic terms. At one firm where she applied, on giving a B.A. as part of her qualifications, she was advised "not to say anything about that around the office." Fortunately however it is not everywhere considered such a stigma to be a graduate of a university arts course.

All this, of course, has been the Arts Course as seen from a purely commercial point of view. From a commercial standpoint only, almost every arts student knows that his course is impractical. Faced with the present-day emphasis on utility, his studies may seem comparatively unimportant to others. It is true that he cannot put them to such definite use as the doctor, dentist or engineer can put his, but then the world needs people educated along more than just commercially practical lines—people who understand at least a little about the world's history, about its philosophies, its languages and literature, its science and its psychology. The world needs thinkers as well as doers.

If you can afford to be impractical, or if you are chiefly in search of a little higher education you need make no excuses for your arts course. It provides a great many background studies that the more utilitarian courses have not the time to provide. It supplies you with a general all-round background that you may never be able to capitalize on, but that is nevertheless valuable. And ultimately that knowledge and background gained here will prove invaluable when applied to your future work.

In Lighter Vein

Editorials usually being a fairly serious matter, we take the liberty of presenting by way of variety one on women's clothes, about which there is little that is serious.

University girls are usually fairly sensible about this matter of what to wear in the day time at least, unless by some unfortunate chance they get lured into any of the "campus clothes" shops about the city, which seem to be conspiring to turn the co-ed into a "guess what I am" individual.

Even the best of us, of course, will go wild on hats. Women's hats have been commented upon so extensively that the subject is practically exhausted. Suffice it to say that the amount of envy your new bonnet will attract from your female friends varies directly with their inability to figure out just what it is. The situation has now reached the stage where you may pick up almost any unnecessary piece of hardware about the house, tie a few ribbons on it, add a dab of paint, and have your friends figuring that you must have mortgaged next month's allowance for such a little gem. There is also the girl who insists upon puzzling the population with a kerchief tied under the chin, a fashion brought to this country by immigrant European peasant women, who immediately discarded them when they saw our charming models, which we discarded when we saw their kerchiefs.

Shoes, which at one time could have been depended upon to give one little cause for concern, have suddenly kicked up their heels this year and gone the way of hats. Girls go trudging around in shoes that are all heels or in shoes with huge chunks eliminated from the centre of the heel. This latter phenomenon is difficult to explain, unless it resulted from a natural enough desire on the manufacturers' part to cut down on the amount of shoe and thereby add a little to his profit.

Then too there is the parka, a bundle of fur usually attached to the collar of the coat, intended, for some unexplained and incomprehensible reason, to be worn over the head. A little thought on the subject however will make it obvious that this is an extremely ingenious invention, intended to cover up the head completely and thus eliminate the expense of permanent-waving your hair, or, in the case of the busier individual, even the trouble of combing and cutting it.

The list of latest fashions is interminable—it would be futile to attempt to analyse them all for the benefit of the co-ed. She may find them in any of the numerous shops about the city that has "everything for the young college girl." As a parting bit of advice may we suggest that she not embarrass the poor, hardworking salesgirl by asking "why?" when she sees them.

To The Ladies

A possible shadow of things to come in Canada might be seen in the total cessation of the sale of silks of any kind, to go into effect in England December 1.

Commencing yesterday, a thirty-three and one-third percent sales tax must be paid on such articles as silk stockings, lipsticks, and other luxuries. It has been variously stated that, amongst much greater worries, this is likely to give English women little cause for concern. We take exception to these statements. We still think that such articles as lipstick and silk stockings have become so definite a part of the feminine life that it is likely to be a minor tragedy to most women to be deprived of them.

We don't know whether it is patriotic to suggest that you get in a supply of the above mentioned articles "just in case", or whether we should suggest that you begin to practise wearing lisle stockings and going without your lipstick instead. At any rate, it could happen here.

NORTH AMERICANA

To state that Canadians, and for that matter Americans, have no National Art, may perhaps cause a mild furor among those artists who like to imagine that they are creating within a national tradition. Undoubtedly our art already has national characteristics, but in none of these three fields: literature (about which I may know something), music (about which I claim to know a good deal), and art (in which I know only what pleases and displeases me) have we done anything which was distinctively Canadian.

For many years, those who have had anything to

VARSAITY REPORTER SERVED UP ON TRAY

Downtown Reporters Regard Human Find in Linotype Machine as the Biggest Scoop in Years

WHAT, NO PARSLEY?

Somewhere on the Campus, October 22 (CAT)—Siegfried Finkelstein, freshman reporter of The Varsity, was found in the receiving tray of the linotype machine early this morning in an advanced state of stomach hunger and mental cruelty, it was announced by his bosom pal and fellow Pass Arts student, an oriental by the name of Hymie O'Toole.

When asked by several reporters from downtown papers, who regarded the human find as the biggest scoop in years, how he endured the grueling ordeal, his only reply was a hasty "Ootqumz!"

To a chorus of "Gad, lad, how did you stooed it?" from the horrified group of downtown reporters, who regarded the human find as the biggest scoop in years, no answer was forthcoming, except disturbed rumblings from the lower regions and points south. It was surmised that Siegfried's oil line had given away under the stress of four days and three nights spent in an attempt, to digest a leaden slug. Upon further questioning, Fink turned on his heel and left in a huff and a pushcart.

Newsmen from the downtown papers who regarded the human find as the biggest scoop in years, carefully examined the ground in hopes of finding evidence of foul play, but succeeded only in discovering a song which Fink had been in the process of writing when he was side-tracked into the tray. The song bore the title of "South With the Boarder". The reporters from the downtown press immediately attempted the final chorus, which was drowned by the sudden return of Finkelstein, screaming in a bass voice, "Let's have some tray-part harmony."

The reporters left in a high state of excitement, regarding the find as the biggest scoop in years.

do with Canadian artistic attainments have deplored the fact that our culture is influenced to such an extent by that of the United States that it is almost impossible for any artist to exist outside its sphere. I have an idea that the similarity of our backgrounds is responsible for the striking similarity in our cultural achievements. The heritage of both countries is, in the main, British. To this we Canadians have added a great classical French influence, continually waning; across the border they have more than made up their deficiency in the French culture with their polyglot of immigrants. Because of their immense financial power, they dominate the continent's artistic life. We are both young countries and, while our political systems are evidently static, it is almost within a lifetime that unified artistic ideals have begun to emerge. With our same backgrounds, our same present difficulties, and our same future, is it to be wondered that our results bear a striking similarity? I rather believe the wonder would be if they did not.

Whether we be inclined to believe it or no, our cultural as well as our political future lies in a very close harmony with our closest neighbours. We have, no doubt, achieved great artistic advances. We are both terribly young in our nationhood, and perhaps Canada especially is still adolescently gauche, but we have a future which is linked to our common advantage in a very close co-operation, a co-operation all the more significant because it will be, without doubt, unconscious.—N.M.

The Final Tournament to be Held On the Courts at St. Hilda's

Jones and Hall Ready to Battle for Tennis Title This Afternoon; Hall Formerly on Cup Team

DOUBLES FINALS TOMORROW

Mel Jones of Trinity swept through three straight singles matches yesterday on the St. Hilda's courts to advance into the interfaculty racket tournament final against Bruce Hall, the defending champion, who downed Ian McCallum in a hard-fought battle to place himself in the last slot on the upper bracket.

In the early-morning match Mel took Don Finlayson into camp by a comfortable margin, and then ran up against Johnny Whallon of Emmanuel, Hall's doubles partner. The score of 6-2, 6-0 was no indication of the play, for Whallon was playing well, and most of the games went to deuce. Jones, who plays a very forceful side-arm game, out-studied his rival, and moved up one notch more to meet Gord Shorter of S.P.S., who had used Waugh of Vic earlier in the day as a stepping stone into the semis.

Mel, with two matches under his belt, kept getting even hotter. Shorter withstood the attack well in the first set, which Jones took 6-4, but faded badly in the stretch, slamming many returns into the net. The score of the last set was 6-0.

The best set-to of the tournament was the great tennis display put on by Bruce Hall and Ian McCallum. McCallum played a whale of an overhead game, and was sending back nearly everything that Hall fired across the net. Bruce, on the other hand, played cagily, putting to good use his beautiful drop-shot, and his Davis Cup experience stood him in good stead.

McCallum's hard-driving style gave him a 4-1 lead in the first set, and it seemed for a moment that he might upset the blonde Emmanuelite. But Hall, playing with masterful skill, pulled himself out of a tight spot, won the set 6-4. That broke Ian, and though he worked hard, making a number of games go to deuce, Hall held the upper hand from there on, wound up the last set 6-2.

The Hall-Jones tangle scheduled for 1.30 this afternoon on St. Hilda's courts, promises to be a thriller. Here are two lads with plenty of experience, who can shift from a smashing, deep-court game to a smart, placement one with the greatest of ease.

No doubles matches were run off yesterday, and consequently the doubles semi-final and final will not be played until tomorrow afternoon, at one and two o'clock respectively.

Doubles draw for today:

1:00: Gray and Shorter vs Livingstone and Campbell.

3:00: Winner of above match vs Mullett and McCallum.

3:30: Hall and Whallon vs Penoyer and Pridaux.

VICTORIA SOCCER TEAM DOWNS RED AND WHITE

University College came out on the wrong end of a 5-0 score in their soccer tussle with Victoria College on the Trinity playing field yesterday.

Vic had the ball at the U.C. end of the green for the greater part of the contest and were much more organized both offensively and defensively than the Red and White.

Many of the U.C. soccerists had not been out to practice before but they began to perk up toward the end of the contest and came close to the goal-mouth on numerous occasions.

Gerry Stone and Ed Kirkland played heads-up ball for the Scarlet and Gold and Bob Macaulay showed up well for the Royal College.

U.C. SQUAD INFLECTS DEFEAT ON TRINITY

Last Quarter Touchdown Brings Victory to Red and White Team in Rugby Battle in Bloor Bowl

NELSON AND AXON STAR

The Royal College's grid squad snatched victory from defeat yesterday afternoon in the Bloor Bowl with a last quarter touchdown to defeat Trinity 5-4.

The game was a dull affair until the last quarter when the Red and White cut loose with an aerial attack that advanced the pigskin from their own 25-yard stripe into the Trinity end zone. Sunny Nelson's pay-off pass to Hal Axon came in time's nick. A couple of plays later the final whistle sounded.

Trinity held the edge in play for the first three cantos, guided by the one and only Don Boxer and supported by the hard-hitting Betty MacMillan on the forward wall. Wilkie Davey was the mainstay in U.C.'s line, while the backfield played a mediocre game. Tommy Jarvis' performance at end was noteworthy.

The Black and White picked up their four points in the first three quarters. Johnny Jarvis booted a single in the initial chapter, and Boxer followed with another in the second. The hoist was an attempted on-side kick, but after a wild scramble behind the uprights, U.C. managed to grab the ball and avert a major score.

A U.C. play that went haywire, with the ball bouncing behind the line accounted for Trinity's last scoring effort, a safety, to make the count 4-0.

Midway through the fourth stanza, U.C. began their winning march. Referee Hugh Bailey ruled interference on a 35-yard pass that planted U.C. on Trinity's 40. They passed on the last down, and Jarvis was there with the goods. Nelson polished it off with a perfect toss to Axon.

U.C.: Faber, Cameron, Zierler, Nichol, Feigman, Cutler, Jarvis, Gibson, McKinley, Bitove, Nelson, Axon, Alcombrack, McNielly, Ballagh, Macdonald, Tucker, Duncan, Davey.

Trinity: MacMillan, McCormick, Jarvis, Boxer, Craschley, Frewer, Reid, Harris, Partridge, Henderson, Baxter, Klein, Gaby, Livingstone, Turner, Grieve, Pyper, Whittingham, Lindsey.

Speaking of Sport

By Sam Kelnor

INTRODUCING F. SHIMIDZU

There is a neat sign in the wrestling room which tells about instruction in jiu-jitsu and off to the right hand corner it says "Apply to coach—F. Shimidzu." And sitting silently, patiently off the right hand corner of the wrestling room was an oriental-looking little man, with black-rimmed spectacles and a forlorn look on his kindly face.

"He," we offered, "must be F. Shimidzu." Meanwhile, Chesty Martin popped into the wrestling room and discussed with F. Shimidzu the poor turn-outs, or rather, lack of turn-out for the jiu-jitsu classes, explaining that the classes were scheduled for a time which clashed with military training periods. F. Shimidzu nodded his head and agreed with Chesty's plan of waiting until the end of this week before changing the times for jiu-jitsu classes.

We then steered bland F. Shimidzu off to the right hand corner of the room and got some information about the little gentleman who will take jiu-jitsu classes this year.

F. Shimidzu is a graduate of St. Paul University and Tokyo Central Theological College and has been in Toronto since September 2nd. He studied jiu-jitsu for ten years but had to give it upon graduation because he worked for a church for eleven years.

Kurose and Matsumoto, former jiu-jitsu instructors at Varsity, met F. Shimidzu in Japan last April and asked him if he would instruct classes in the art if he came to Toronto this fall.

F. Shimidzu is a holder of the black belt, which is possessed by those in the first to the ninth grades. He is in the second grade and said that there are only two or three men in Japan who are in the ninth grade, which is the highest grade one can reach in the art. Fifteen years ago they called it jiu-jitsu in Japan but now they call it Judo.

The president of Kodokan, "a school for studying the way," (another version of jiu-jitsu) told F. Shimidzu that Japanese men were teaching jiu-jitsu in Germany before the war and that now, German instructors give lessons to Nazi parachutists so that they might know how to fall when they land, without injuring themselves.

At this juncture, F. Shimidzu apparently had to leave and said he would give us a more detailed description next week.

"Make," smiled the little post-graduate student of divinity at Trinity College, "like a serial."

CALLING ALL TRACK MANAGERS

Here is a note Hec Phillips, Varsity track coach, left us on the sports board in the office.

"A Call to College Track Managers.

"You have all helped to make the junior and senior track meets big successes. It is still up to you to help make equal successes of our interfaculty relay meet on Wednesday at 2 p.m., and also our junior and country on Saturday morning. The relays will be run at the following distances. Four at 110 yards, 4 at 220 yards, 4 at 440 yards, 4 at 880 yards and a medley at 440, 220, 220 and 800 yards.

"At these varied distances there is a chance for every faculty to get in. Try and get behind this event. Make it an annual event. Entries will be received at the track. All entries for junior and country must be in Athletic Office before 6 p.m. Friday."

H. Phillips.

HERE AND YONDER

There will be a combined meeting of lacrosse, volleyball and swimming managers Oct. 23 at 5 o'clock to get their schedules started. . . . According to Mac McCutcheon, the round robin swimming schedule should create interest. All events are arranged so that all faculties should be able to enter teams. . . . Many students under 20 and over 24 seem to still be in a fog according to Mr. Winterburn of the swimming department. Let's get it straight once and for all. Those mentioned above will get one hour of physical training of a military nature and one hour of any sport. . . . In view of the great demand for courts the squash committee ask all squash racket players to co-operate with them, in the matter of cancelling courts they cannot use. . . . There will be a notice up in Phil LeFevre's place about the English billiards tournament which will start November 1st.

LESSON THREE . . .

First, an apology. Countless letters which have kept my staff of secretaries busy until the wee small hours of the night have come pouring in complaining about the strenuous workout we gave last week, and to say that we are extremely sorry is putting it mildly.

In our minds, the only way to rectify this gross error is to give you all a little rest. All you have to do this week is go up to the track and take a short run of about fifteen miles.

But there will always be a next week so don't forget to read The Varsity where you will get LESSON FOUR.

Regular basketball matches are starting off with a bang on Wednesday, Oct. 30, as you will see by the schedule given elsewhere in this edition, and meanwhile co-eds of all colleges are eagerly limbering up on their customary half-mile early-morning jaunts. If the boys can brag of intercollegiate aces peppering their teams, why so can we, and here we go.

Beryl Pollock, Ruth Danard and Jean Crawford, Vic Seniors; Bobbie McDonald, U.C. Seniors; and Marg. Stock and Zoe Christie, U.C. Juniors, are all out with the gang. This might lead one to believe that Vic and U.C. are the only teams of any quality, but this is not the case. Many players, outstanding on their college teams, prefer to play hockey or badminton in the winter. Nevertheless they are well worth watching, and do not fall far behind the six mentioned.

Vic announces the following practice hours for their teams, and can still use a few more enthusiastic souls if they can be stirred up. Seniors Mondays 8-9 in O.C.E. and Tuesdays, 7-8 in Little Vic; Juniors, Mondays, 6-7 in Little Vic and Wednesdays, 8-9 in O.C.E.; and Freshies, Wednesdays, 6-7 in O.C.E. and Thursdays, 6-7 in Little Vic. Meds are putting in a team this year, and are very enthusiastic over a couple of freshies who have passed to brag about—in basketball. They practice Tuesdays and Thursdays, 7-8 in O.C.E., with Eleanor Hetherington as coach, and we hear they will really be worth watching this year.

keep a team of their own going, but Course—all freshies—are struggling to so far the awkwardness of practice hours and the apparent lack of enthusiasm on the part of Household Science, who were to practice with them have caused them a bit of trouble. They are threatening to team up with their own colleges if it can be arranged but so far—not much to tell. Physio and Occupational Therapy, combined, report remarkably good turn-outs at practices, 7-8 in O.C.E., and boast Wilma Perry, last year's captain of the University of Manitoba team among their number. We hope to have news of better turn-outs this week—until then, we hope!

Sr. School and St. Mike's Figure in Double-Header

Game May Indicate which Team will Eventually Win the Mulock Cup; Jr. Meds and Dents Also Play

WILL MEET ON BACK CAMPUS

By Stan Westcott

Fresh from a close 4-0 win over their traditional arch-enemies Sr. Meds, the highly rated Sr. School pigskin chasers are clamping at the bit waiting to tear into St. Mike's, interfaculty football champs tomorrow afternoon on the back campus in a game that should go a long way toward indicating the faculty in which the famed Mulock Cup will rest for the coming year.

On the other end of a double bill two less publicized but equally enthusiastic outfits, Jr. Meds and Dents, will be at each other's throats at Varsity Stadium. Both games start at 4.30.

On paper St. Mike's aren't the irresistible conquerors of last year. Several of their outstanding stars are missing including Horgan, Jack Quigley of hockey fame, and Red Cahill, better known for his basketball proclivities. Jack Ronayne, who has proven his worth on many occasions, won't be able to play tomorrow and will not likely get back in the game for another week or so.

Yet the Irish still have many of their tried and proven veterans aided and abetted by some promising younger fry. Those fleet outsiders, Roberts and Costello, who rank with the best in the league, are back in harness. And the team still has that indomitable fighting spirit, so typical of St. Mike's, which carried them to their glorious victory over Trinity last year.

Jack "Special Delivery" Plaxton, Sr. School's triple threat back from last year's Big Blue team, is expected to carry most of the mail for the Tolke-Oikers. He kicked all four points against the Medicos last Thursday. Stew Munroe, Jim Hurst, and Jim Hawkins, former intermediates, will be in there tomorrow backing up Plaxton on the half line. Hurst is a very reliable booter.

Coach Annis Stukus will have many other familiar and valuable footballers dressed for the game. Reuben, who showed flashes of brilliance last year, is on the roster. Don Finlayson, a well-known figure in basketball and track, and a hard driving backfielder, looked very good in practices. Fugler, an experienced barker, will be calling the signals.

In fact, from this distance, Sr. S.P.S. looks like the team to beat for Sir William Mulock's elusive trophy. They combine good coaching with an evenly balanced, fighting team.

Jim Murray's Jr. Meds squad have not had an overdose of practice, but in the few sessions they have had the boys displayed a large quantity of enthusiasm which augurs well for their future.

Watters and Ken Brown are the first string outsiders. Whaley has turned in some fine performances on the line.

The starting quarterback will probably be Arnp.

Dents have Houghton back as their kicker. Coleman, Corcoran, Hambley and McKee are other outstanding players still on the line-up. Milne, Webster and Tripp shape up as promising men.

ATTENTION GRADUATING YEAR

By judiciously using the biography cards submitted by your TORONTONENSIS representative, you share in making TORONTONENSIS what it should be—a distinctive book and a complete record of University life.

Before filling out your card, please consider the following suggestions:

- (1) In the finished product, your book, a picture without an accompanying biography spoils the page on which it appears, the section it belongs to, and in a sense the make-up of the whole book.
- (2) Not all of us are Jacks-of-all-trades, Presidents, members of this and that, etc., but most of us have certain appreciations of some phase of our University life, some plans for the future . . . Things such as these are worth-while in a biography, particularly when we refer back to them at some future date.
- (3) Please appreciate the importance of neatness. To ensure the avoidance of mistakes in your biography, type yours if at all possible, otherwise use neat hand printing (not block letters).

Submit a biography and make your TORONTONENSIS bear personal significance.

Please note that these cards should be returned to the S. A. C. through your representative not later than NOVEMBER 13th.

All women, unless specially exempt on medical grounds, will be divided into nine groups for physical training. These units will undergo fundamental training in drill and gymnastics. Subdivisions in the main groups will allow concentration upon various selected physical activities.

Besides physical training, the program includes courses in First Aid and Home Nursing which will be given to groups of 30, and will require two hours a week.

Dr. Roscoe introduced the speaker. In her opening remarks, she stressed the solemnity of the occasion and the great sacrifice of time and effort required of all women at McGill.

Put two Americans together and they will form a society for or against something or other. The latest "cause" which is spreading like wildfire across the camp of those United States is fostered by the "I Wanna be a Captain Too" Clubs. The clubs are for those who have a beef about the fact that young Elliott Roosevelt was recently "drafted" as a captain no less. Of course they have a slogan, and it's, "If $316 a month is good enough for Elliott, it's good enough for me!" THAT'S MIGHTY WHITE OF YOU, BOYS.

That rosy glow in the sky over New England these days emanates from the aristocratic noses in the Harvard Yard. The Yard has become a tippler's paradise since the local joy-juice dispensaries have been paying a price war, and the number "killed" so far is incalculable. One firm is offering "Free Delivery, Free Ice, and Free Parking." WHAT, NO BROMO?

The Fordham Ram shamefacedly tells of the boner recently pulled by its band. The U. of West Virginia came up for a football game, and the band obligingly thumped out "Dixie", which was a nice touch, except that West Virginia fought with the Union.

Not a ripple disturbed the placid surface of the beautiful lake as the moon cast a silver glow on the scene. The canoe seemed to be suspended in mid air it was so motionless. A few lazy clouds, billowed in snowy whiteness, hung in the rich purple of the night's sky.

She lay languidly in the bottom of my canoe, smoking a cigarette. Then in a thin nasal voice the maiden said, "Ain't it swell?"

Calmly I knocked the ashes out of my pipe and drowned her.

—The Sheaf.

Speaking of dire deeds, we picked this up from a southern journal. A college student was found murdered, and the story was related thus: "The victim was shot eight times by a .32 calibre weapon. Death was caused by a slug which entered the chest, pierced the heart and lodged in the back. There were eight slugs in all. Three entered the face, two the chest, two the abdomen, one the right thigh. A deep gash in the head indicated the youth had been slugged. Sheriff Albert W. Skinner said, 'IT WAS DEFINITELY FOUL PLAY AND A SLAYING.'"

Somewhere on this campus there is a freskie who is keenly disappointed in the subjects she has chosen. The bewildered kid registered in Psychology, but her dismay is mounting daily. "I thought we would learn some psychology," she bleats, "but all the prof talks about is ENVIRONMENT."

On the other hand, Betty Toddie, of the University of Pittsburgh, says life for her is simply peachy. Betty is the drum majorette of the Pitt band and is wild about her new job. "It's marvellous!" she raves, "here I am walking along, and I look over my shoulder and see 120 men, ALL FOLLOWING ME!"

kept them on their toes, but he laughingly declined to qualify his statement.

Their work extends all the way from preventing mischievous freshmen from swiping light bulbs to detecting fires and tracing thefts, but naturally their biggest job is patrolling the grounds and buildings of the university to prevent damage from outsiders rather than from undergrads. To do this, the four divide their work into three shifts.

Then, of course, there are the jobs of looking after parking, and restraining over-zealous spectators at football and hockey matches. All of which adds up to the fact that a policeman's life really isn't just a humdrum existence wrapped up in a dark blue uniform.

are thinking of Canada's war effort."

At present fourth and fifth year students are taking courses which require thirty three to thirty six hours of lectures and labs per week. Lectures start at 8:30 and generally run through till 4:30 or 5:30 with only the noon hour off. C.O.T.C. and Basic Military Training is additional and runs from 6 hours for the Basic to 8 hours for C.O.T.C.

The present C.O.T.C. time-table is so arranged that most of the lectures are given during the noon hour. Subsequently for four days of the week there is no break from morning to night. Some lectures are given at night.

The engineers claiming that the C.O.T.C. time-table as it stands interferes with their academic work to the extent that they can do neither their work nor their C.O.T.C. with any degree of satisfaction consequently decided to seek revision of the time-tables to suit the requirements of the individual years and to fit in with the free hours which might be available.

If there are no free hours during the day, it is suggested that the Military Affairs Committee dispense with training insofar as these engineers are concerned or give credits for C.O.T.C. work. Last year credits (3 units) were given to all officers who qualified, but so far this year credits have not been granted.

Well, Hello . . .
Greetings, students! Like a breath of fresh salt air (mmyum . . . smell the dead fish!) from the college by the sea (that's Dalhousie) comes your little sunshine salesman to make you forget that there's a war on, that exams are coming sooner or later, and that your favourite prof is giving you a quiz next Tuesday . . .

Stuff . . .
The coeds are supposed to be helping the war effort this year . . . at McGill and Mt. Allison, so we are told, they are to study auto mechanics . . . and that auto be good (mmyum . . . smell the dead pun!) . . . elsewhere the males are grousing at the coeds' inactivity . . . not that they feel the girls could do anything useful, anyway . . . the reason they're sore is because they have to work at the war, and the girls get off . . . the Indians had the right idea . . . let the squaws dig the trenches . . .

. . . and Nansence . . .
And speaking of coeds, one of their number has achieved distinction . . . for the first time in its history, the McGill Daily has a female managing editor . . . the managing editor, you know, sees to the supplying of copy paper . . . it will probably come in pastel shades this year . . . and the typewriters will all have green and red ribbons . . . don't let her put out the Daily on baby blue newsprint, boys! Sports . . .

Sports item of the week, coming breathlessly soon after the winding up of the polo championships at Manitoba U, is the news that Law was victorious in the interfaculty tiddley-winks tournament at U.B.C. Which proves what we've said all along . . . practise makes perfect . . . the lawyers are at it all the time . . . what do you do when you're down to your last two poker chips? . . . that's right, play tiddley-winks.

Hickory Dock . . .
Yes, just before hickory dock in that immortal poem come the words Tic Toc . . . which incidentally is one of Montreal's super night-clubs . . . it has probably doubled its business since McGill opened its doors again . . . and rightly, too. They have a good comedian there . . .

He can ad lib almost as fast as a cat trying to break a date.

Typical College Awakening . . .
7:45: You open one eye, throw a shoe at the alarm clock which has just gone off, turn over, resolve to get right up . . . and go to sleep again.

7:48: Your second alarm clock, which you set for this time, goes off. You throw your other shoe at it.

7:52: Your room-mate, who has been awakened by your alarm clocks, tells you it is time to get up, and pours a glass of water on you.

8:45: Your room-mate put the window down when he got up, so the room is now too stuffy to sleep in. You get up, miss breakfast, and are ten minutes late for your nine o'clock.

Advice to Freshies . . .
Every college paper, as usual, carries what you fresh aren't living up to the freshman rules. Come now, kids! Play up! It makes the sophs so very happy if you do. Oh yes . . . and if you freshies would only carry placards with your telephone numbers on them, it would simplify things a great deal . . . a great deal.

WHO is Yehudi? . . .
Yehudi is the guy who spends all his time trying to find a word to rhyme with spitzigum . . . in other words . . . yours truly . . .

Canadian Ballet Begins Performances at Arena

VISITORS' DAY

On Sunday next, 27th October, Hart House will be open for inspection by the general public between the hours of 2 and 4 p.m. It is requested that no one enter the House after 4 p.m. This arrangement has been made by the Board of Stewards and the Committees of Hart House. Members of the various committees will be present to welcome those who wish to see the House.

Once a year in October, Hart House—which is usually only open to guests introduced by members—invites the general public to visit the building. Mr. J. L. Richardson, the university carillonneur, will give a special program between 4 and 5 p.m. on the carillon in the Soldiers' Tower.

Innovation in Canadian Dancing Introduced by Boris Volkoff in An Attempt to Replace Russian Ballet Here

TORONTO PHILHARMONIC

By Marg. Parks

The first Canadian Ballet is to give its initial performance at Varsity arena tomorrow night with the Toronto Philharmonic orchestra under the baton of Sir Ernest MacMillan and Ettore Mazzoleni, one of Canada's leading dance conductors.

An innovation in Canadian dancing, the ballet was recently formed by Boris Volkoff from the finest dancers of his group along with half a dozen professionals who have danced in Europe and the United States. Mr. Ken Johnstone, publicity director, told The Varsity yesterday.

Expressing Mr. Volkoff's opinion, Mr. Johnstone stated that the formation of the Canadian replica of the Russian and American ballets would save brilliant students from being lost to dancing, as well as offering Toronto audiences their only opportunity of seeing ballet this winter, due to the absence of the Russian ballet.

Mr. Volkoff, the originator of this group, after dancing with the Imperial Russian Ballet in Moscow in his early career, moved eastward and spent some time in Siberia, Shanghai, and finally studied the dance in Hollywood and Chicago with Adolph Bolm's productions.

In 1930, he arrived in Toronto, replacing Leonidoff as director of the Uptown Ballet. He remained in Toronto and formed a school devoted to the development of dancers of professional calibre. His wife, Janet Baldwin, a dancer in her own right, takes one of the leading parts in tomorrow night's performance, and Volkoff himself will dance as the animal trainer in the circus fantasy "The Big Top".

Included in the group are Patsy Drylie, and Laurie Dacuk, both trained by Volkoff, as well as Wendy Canetta, an English girl who worked with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in London. These three take the leading roles in the Sylphides number, the only classical one in the program.

Ruth Carse of Edmonton, John Marsh, a former ballroom dancer, Janet Baldwin and Barbara Goldstein of Hollywood, are among the professionals in the concert, as well as Elizabeth Johnstone, who formerly danced with Rhinehart known as the European Ziegfeld. (Continued on Page 4)

C.O.T.C. RECEIVES FIRST CONSIGNMENT OF AMERICAN RIFLES

Three Hundred Rifles of Obsolete Type Have Already Arrived for Use by Auxiliary Battalion

FIVE HUNDRED MORE

Three hundred rifles for the use of the Auxiliary Battalion of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps arrived at Hart House yesterday, it was learned by The Varsity. The rifles are of obsolete American types dating from 1917.

Winchesters, Eddystones and Remingtons were included in the consignment, which is to be augmented by 500 additional rifles of similar types, it was stated by Sgt. Tunstead, who was storing the rifles in the basement of Hart House.

Bayonets, sheaths and slings were shipped with the rifles, which were issued by the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps on Spadina Avenue, Sgt. Tunstead told The Varsity.

The Auxiliary Battalion already has 100 uniforms, the sergeant continued. The C.O.T.C. Band is already fully equipped with battle dress including caps and greatcoats. It is expected that uniforms for the entire battalion will be available next week.

Lieut. Westhead, quartermaster of the Auxiliary Battalion, is in charge of the stores in Hart House.

WOMEN'S SERVICE

To facilitate organization of the W.S.T.D., the Red Cross has agreed to consider all applications at once. Acceptance of any student still lacking a medical examination will be provisional. All forms must be completed immediately and filed in the Athletic Office or with the Medical Adviser.

Davis Cup Star's Victory Gives Emmanuel Edge

Engineers Run Close Second in Race for Tournament Honours; Result Depends on Doubles' Match

DDUBLES TODAY

By Dave Macintosh

Bruce Hall, the Blonde Bomber from Emmanuel, Davis Cup, intercollegiate and interfaculty star, smashed out a three-set victory over Mel Jones of Trinity yesterday afternoon on the St. Hilda's courts to retain his intramural tennis crown. The score was 6-3, 6-1, 6-4.

Hall's win gives the Theologs a slight edge over the Engineers for total tournament honours, and if Hall and Whallon, seeded No. 1 team, win the doubles, Emmanuel will have nabbed the first interfaculty championship in her history. Bruce and Johnny mean to make no mistake, but Mullett and McCallum, who took Shorter and Gray into camp yesterday in the best doubles match of the tourney (7-5, 4-6, 6-1), are accounted an even or better chance in the tandem finals this afternoon.

Mel Jones, the most improved interfaculty tennis in the tournament, was no pushover for the Davis Cupper, and gave Hall a thrilling run for his money. Twelve of the twenty-six games went to deuce, and Mel, even when down two sets, exercised wonderful control. But he did not have the variety of shots that Hall has command over, nor could he equal the beautiful net game of the Emmanuelite. Both Hall and Jones were placing their shots well, and the Trinity man used his line-drive, back-hand, and overhead shots with telling effect, while Bruce held the edge in the serving department and once again exercised perfect control over his beautiful drop-shot, which he used to keep Ian McCallum on the run in Monday's semi-final.

Jones took the first game after it went to deuce. Hall nabbed the next, only to have Mel take the lead again after a deuce game. Bruce settled down and took the next three straight, two of them with straight points. Jones took the next after it went to deuce four times. Hall made it 5-3 on straight points, two aces and two beautiful dropshots. The best Jones could do in the last game was to send it to deuce.

Mel took but one game in the second set, but four of them went to deuce. (Continued from Page 3)

FINE ART MEETING HEARS MR. COMFORT

Prominent Canadian Painter Gave Illustrated Talk to Newly Formed Club in Wymilwood

OPEN DISCUSSION

An illustrated talk by Charles Comfort, A.R.C.A., prominent Canadian painter, and member of the Fine Art staff of the University of Toronto, was the feature of a meeting of the Fine Art Club, held yesterday evening in Wymilwood.

With snapshots for illustrations, Mr. Comfort spoke informally of a trip made to Italy in the summer of 1939. The pictures he showed were exteriors of churches and palaces, the gothic (Continued on Page 4)

Scarlet and Gold Swings it to Evis

Wymilwood will be the scene of gaiety next Saturday night when the first Scarlet and Gold dance of this term will be held. About 80 couples will dance in the conservatory and adjoining rooms.

Fred Evis' orchestra has been engaged to provide music and a public address system will be installed for the occasion. This is the first time that such a system has been used and it is hoped that the music will be heard to the most secluded corner of the floor.

These dances take place about three times a year and although members of other faculties are admitted their appearance is unusual, it was learned.

"We never have trouble with people who crash," it was stated, "our door-man played intermediate rugby."

MORGAN DISCUSSES FASCIST DOCTRINE

Professor Spoke Last Night to the Philosophy Club on "Fascism—A Study in Frustration"

STATE SOCIALISM NEXT?

"Fascism is not planned by, but rather is forced on the government by a long grave crisis which has no relief," said Professor L. T. Morgan of the Department of Political Science and Economy, speaking last night to the Philosophy Club. His subject was "Fascism—A Study in Frustration."

Fascism with its mystic cult of race superiority leads the people to accept and defend its claims on their freedom, the speaker declared. Professor Morgan showed how the movement had developed from petty capitalism to a military state capitalism, losing in its career the first aims at reform and common security.

With fascist governments now having to maintain their positions by force, Professor Morgan sees state capitalism finally dependent on mass support. From this he believes the next step may be to state socialism, a step cherished by Russian hopes.

Theologs Battle To Scoreless Tie

Emmanuel and Wycliffe battled to a scoreless draw in their initial soccer engagement of the season, staged yesterday afternoon on the back campus.

Closest call of the day came in the first half when Dave Smith of Wycliffe had an open goal in front of him but lost control of the ball in the excitement of the moment and missed his shot. Otherwise, the game was a mild affair, except for an unfortunate accident. In the second canto Bob Lacey of Emmanuel collided with Howard Hazell of the rival team and had to be carried from the field with a broken ankle.

Wycliffe: Parke-Taylor, Kerr, Fry, Bradbury, Smith, McDonald, Abbott, Nickle, Hazell, Sutherland, Coleman, Thomson, Doolan.

Emmanuel: Hamilton, Hall, Stapleton, Tucker, Jull, Daynard, Owen, Ball, Lacey, Prostie, Horde, Dobson.

Apparition Run to Earth... Is Space-Loving Ballerina

For a short time last night is appeared as if Madame La Zonga had appeared in the flesh to instruct the night staff at the Varsity Press in the intricacies of La Zonga.

Spotlighted in the cold glare of the light from the Press, a svelte dark figure whirled and undulated in complete harmony with the rhythmic cluck of chattering castanets. The only audience was an "Ah"-ing group of enchanted Varsity reporters, admiringly gazing out of an upper window.

She had been seen before, this talented nocturnal visitant, but not until last night was the veil of mystery drawn aside. She is Carmena Granados, who studies at the Bertram School of Dancing, and finds the pavement behind the Press the only place in which she can practice. "It's nice and roomy here," quoth Carman, "and there has never been anyone watching me until now."

The stage is the goal of this earnest young lady, who in the daytime designs fashion drawings and posters in her studio on Willocks Street. After five years of studying art at Central Tech Senorita Granados attended the College of Art.

She likes her present practice "floor" because it is roomy enough for her most sweeping gyrations and the castanets bother no one.

She fears the coming cold weather will drive her to seek practice space indoors, however.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICS WILL CONDUCT SEMINAR

The department of physics of the university will conduct a seminar on Thursday, Oct. 24 at 4.15 p.m. in Room 43 of McLennan Laboratory, it was announced yesterday.

Professor H. Grayson Smith will lead the discussion on "Practical Standards of Length and the Use of Gauges in Mass Production." Methods Used for the Accurate Measurement of Gauges will be discussed by Professor J. O. Wilhelm.

University College Co-ed Octet Organizes Red Cross Benefit

Going on the principle that if you are aiming at all you must aim high, an octet of Varsity co-eds and recent graduates is sponsoring a mammoth "Red, White and Blue Dance" to be held Saturday, November 9, at the Royal York Hotel. All proceeds from the event will be donated to the Canadian Red Cross, it was learned.

Giving free rein to their ambition, and taking their fortunes in their hands on a gambling chance, the girls went ahead and reserved the ballroom at the hotel and engaged one of Toronto's top-notch musical aggregations, Bob Shuttleworth's orchestra. "We thought we would not confine our Red Cross work to knitting socks," explained Joan Tamblin, II U.C., "so independent of any other charitable organization we are putting on this dance for the Red Cross on the night of the Argo-Montreal game here in Toronto."

"We expect at least 800 people," said Joan, who is also in charge of the chorus of the U.C. Folies, now in rehearsal. She added that a special mystery "Black-out Dance" would be a feature of the evening.

The girls have been working hard on their project, according to reports of their activities, and they announce that indications for a heavy ticket sale are favourable. The next issue of "Gossip" will have photographs of the eight sponsors gracing the front cover, it was learned yesterday.

Other members of the committee are Elaine Brown, Gertrude Brown, Fran McLaughlin, Barb Ellis, Mary Wilder, Phyllis Thompson and Betty Chambers.

Underneath The Bombs

Members of The Varsity staff were indeed honoured last Saturday morning when Sir Shenton Thomas, Governor of the Straits Settlement and High Commissioner of the Malay States, visited our office. Accompanied by his charming wife, Sir Shenton chatted with members of the staff for ten minutes and fired a battery of questions which revealed a keen interest in university affairs and a good knowledge of newspaper publication. During the conversation, Sir Shenton raised an interesting topic to newspaper men when he told of the trials and tribulations connected with publishing a newspaper in London today. He speaks on good authority for his brother is a London publisher.

Fleet Street is still getting its papers out daily and on time, but there has been a general reorganization and re-emphasis. The major problem has been one of space, for newsprint in England is greatly limited in quantity due in the main to the spread of the war to Scandinavia. In peace-time Britain used three and one half million tons of paper a year, and in war more is needed. The inevitable result has been a paper shortage. Newspapers have shrunk to half their original size in many cases, and the London Times, probably the greatest paper in the world, now publishes a ten-page issue only.

Editors have been forced to exercise real discrimination in deciding what to print and what to omit. War news, common to all papers, must be printed, but some individuality must also be retained, so most papers have continued their special features. Long-winded columnists have had to restrain themselves, however. Advertising has been rationed to a great extent, and home news has been kept to a minimum.

The London Times carries on many of its old features, especially its long editorials and its numerous letters-to-the-editor. The front page is given over to classified advertising, and some of the items provide an interesting and humorous commentary on English life today. One ad read: "Your office bombed? Immediately available furnished suite offices in large modern building; deep shelters, roof spotters and complete A.R.P. arrangements." There is usually a whole column of boarding school ads, emphasizing the safety and excellent shelter provisions of the schools, now evacuated to the country. One hotel advertises a "most marvelous air raid shelter."

And so English journalism, just like other English institutions, is carrying on with readjustments to new conditions. There appears to be a bright spot in this curtailment of publication size, for observers feel that the result will be a general clean-up and reorganization of newspaper publishing, leading to the elimination of non-essentials and to a more wholesome, vital journalism.

The Unsung Heroes

A speaker at a banquet last week paid tribute to The Varsity staff members by calling them "the unsung heroes" of the campus publication field. In reality, that tribute should go to that hardy group of unsung workers who labour long and arduously through the year to produce the student yearbook, "Torontoensis."

The amount of work which goes into the production of the yearbook is tremendous, and can only be appreciated by those who have actually had some share in the task. The greater part of the burden falls upon the editor-in-chief, but he has a small staff to help him with the various departments. The active co-operation of the members of the graduating year and the executives of campus clubs and fraternities is a vital necessity in making the editorial task lighter and in facilitating the publication of a good yearbook. For this reason students graduating this year are urged to fill out their biography cards and get them back to their faculty representatives at the earliest possible moment. Individual co-operation is necessary. The same applies to organizations who plan to have pictures in "Torontoensis." Don't leave your arrangements until next March. Book your space soon, and get your pictures taken as early as possible next term.

The editorship this year is in the capable hands of Mr. Albert Mallon. He has a big task ahead of him, and your co-operation will do much to make it less arduous.

Hart House Concerts

Serious deliberation has had to be given this year to the continuance or cancellation of various activities. We are very happy to hear that the Hart House Sunday Evening Concerts are to be carried on this year as usual, with the opening concert to be presented next Sunday in Great Hall.

The Sunday Evening Concerts have long been a popular tradition at Varsity, and at each concert the Great Hall has been crowded with student music lovers. The concerts also provide an opportunity for those who are not well-acquainted with fine music to hear and learn to appreciate some of the very best. For the Music Committee has always presented the top-ranking artists in Toronto, and they have again arranged for an excellent series of concerts.

The Hart House String Quartet, known and admired on this continent and in Europe, will be guest artists at the opening concert on Sunday. We know how much Toronto students appreciate the concerts, evidence of which is shown by the way tickets are taken up so rapidly, and there is no need to urge support. Support is assured; and the Music Committee deserves real credit for carrying on the concerts.

Off The Accelerator!

Whether or not they are aware of the fact, there still exists a speed limit on the roadways around the front campus and students driving cars are in no way privileged to ignore that limit. It may be the circular layout of the road, or it may be the "Joe College" inclination to show off, or it may be a number of other things, but in the past few days numerous cases of cars driving around the front campus at excessive speeds have been observed.

The campus is a place for pedestrians, not for automobiles. Automobile drivers are privileged to bring their cars onto the campus grounds, and before some unsuspecting pedestrian is killed, they should be made to realize that there is a speed limit. We feel that speeding cars around the campus constitute a real menace, and the speed limit should be strictly enforced and punishment made several. After all walking should be pleasure, not a dodge-the-speeder game.

Artur Rubinstein

An evening completely devoted to Chopin, even including encores, should not by ordinary canons be interesting to anyone but a pianist. Artur Rubinstein proceeded to completely disprove that the way he did just about everything else. There is always the chance that another pianist might approach the perfection we were privileged to hear, but certainly no one could surpass it. Rubinstein has an unbelievably perfect technique, and this coupled with his excellent showmanship made the program unforgettable. It was only in his last program number, the Poloise in A Flat, that anything approaching a real fortissimo was heard. The rest of the evening Rubinstein proceeded to make his dynamic contrast by whispering pianissimos. I never heard a piano played so softly and the pianist still retain a complete control of his expression.

Rubinstein's technique is, as I mentioned above, flawless. It leaves the listener gasping at the purity of his runs and perfection of his rubatos and his ritardandos. The Fantasia Impromptu is a bothersome thing to all budding pianists—everyone seems to think he must play it. Rubinstein simply flew through it and yet every individual note of every

Slaughter In the Side Pocket

WHIMSICAL FIEND SLAYS SEVEN WITH SALMON SANDWICH

(This shrieking headline catches the eyes of Fotheringham and Marlborough-Beach one morning as they are seated in the St. George St. diggings. Reading further, they are horrified to learn that six S.P.S. men and a fourth year Aerial Navigation student were found dead under mysterious circumstances in the Hart House Pool Room. Their bodies have been stuffed into various side pockets of the pool tables, and no clue to the slaying was immediately available except a few torn scraps of salmon sandwich and an unpaid bill for Table No. 4. Suspecting foul play, they resolve to investigate. Fighting their way through the dense salmon-sandwich fumes, they make their way to Table No. 4. Now read on.)

"What we need," said Marlborough-Beach reflectively, "is a motive. Who would possibly want to kill six S.P.S. men?"

"We're getting nowhere there," I replied. "That might be anybody. Let's tackle it this way. Who would possibly want to kill a fifth-year Aerial Navigation student?"

"Sabotage!" we both exclaimed with one voice.

"Good Gad!" gasped Marlborough-Beach. "Who would possibly want to sabotage a sixth year Aerial Navigation student?"

Suddenly a wickedly-flung seven-ball whistled past my ear. Flashed to it was a note. We both wheeled about swiftly, but whoever had flung the murderous missile was invisible in the heavy haze which overhung the room.

Slowly I stooped and picked up the note.

It read: "if you value your life do not investigate further Intoo this Case."

I looked at Marlborough-Beach. Marlborough-Beach looked at me. "Pass Arts!" we both cried.

(Good Gad! Can even a Pass Arts student be so low? And will Fotheringham and Marlborough-Beach bring the dastard to justice? Read this column to learn the outcome.)

Minos and Omar.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

The Varsity of Friday, October 18th, contains a lengthy editorial advocating the holding of Hart House Debates during the current academic year. It seems to me that the editorial calls for some sort of reply: and since it is a long editorial, it will probably get a somewhat long reply.

For the sake of clarifying the issue I'll put personal beliefs in the background for the time being and write only of specific reasons for not holding debates this year.

That debating is an important campus activity I don't for a moment doubt. But debating still goes on around the campus, in the college societies: only Hart House debates have been cancelled, no others. And for those who have a mania for expressing themselves verbally opportunity still exists, as it does also for those who wish to learn by practice how to speak before an audience.

The particular value of HHD lay in their formality, in the publicity they aroused, and in the glory of having prominent "guest" speakers. During present times it is doubtful whether speakers of any prominence could be persuaded to attend: publicity—local publicity anyway—would probably be consistently adverse: all that would remain would be the formality.

The downtown newspapers have a kind of inherent hatred for university license, and they would publicize little but the adverse aspects of debates in one six times, one three. Bruce took three straight before Jones made a bid. The sixth game saw Bruce cover plenty of court from court to court no less than six times, before Hall finally took it with an ace and a hard-driven deep-court placement. The final game went at game-30.

BRUCE HALL VICTOR IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Jones reverted to the style he used in his match with shorter, a forcing game that had Bruce covering plenty of court. Jones started the fire-works in the third set by rattling off the first game in straight points, all deep smashes to the corners. Hall won the second, and Mel replied by taking the third, again the straight points. His rally was cut short, however, when Hall tied it at two games apiece, after Mel had taken the first two points only to have Hall spring two perfect aces on him. Hall took the lead on the next game, but Mel, not to be outdone, out-stepped Bruce in the sixth game to make it three-all. Bruce took the seventh and eighth, and Mel made his final gallant bid by nabbing the ninth after the game went to deuce. Hall picked off the last game. His final shot was a placement too hot to handle. Point, game, set match, championship!

Hall and Whallon take on Prideaux and Penoyer in the first doubles match this afternoon. The winner meets Marois and Jacobs, and the winner of that contest meets the team from the lower bracket, Jack Mullett and Ian McCallum, for the doubles championship.

DENTS GAIN VICTORY OVER MEDS IN RUGBY

Bill Hambly kicked a first-period placement to give Dents a 3-0 victory over Junior Meds in the Bloor Bowl yesterday afternoon in their first engagement of the current rugby season. The game lacked almost everything except fumbles and plays that went haywire, but the plunging halves of the Meds, Whately in particular, impressed as did Hambly and Hawton of the Molarmen.

Junior Meds: Bean, King, Charney, Arthurs, Jardine, Watters, Jackson, Arnp, Brown, Whately, Sterroff, Ludwig, Seigel.

TRINITY INTRODUCES SIX-MAN FOOTBALL

Six-man football was tried out at Varsity Stadium yesterday in the Trinity Old Boys vs Trinity College tilt which preceded the annual Old Boys' dance.

Under the rules as played yesterday it was necessary to make 25 yards in four tries to gain a first down. Play was kept open by a P. rule which restricted the player to whom the ball was snapped from carrying it over the line of scrimmage.

The game ended with both sides deadlocked in a 10-all tie.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Owen Prichard

LET'S OPEN UP THE GAME!

The reception given to the new rules in intercollegiate football has been for the most part favourable. Nearly everyone, player and spectator alike, greeted the changes with optimism. However, the question now is, "What are you going to do with these new rules now that you have them?"

When news of the four down rule and the less-restricted forward pass came out, the majority began to exult, "Oh, boy, now we'll have lots of first downs, and good old Somsuch Faculty will go down the field like a steam-roller!"

Well, that wasn't quite the idea behind the new rules. The two modifications of the old rules are related to one another, and the changes were made with the same end in view, that of making intercollegiate football a better game. The teams were given four downs not primarily so they could plunge ten yards but so that they would feel at liberty to try some open passing plays without the fear of losing possession through failure to complete within the three downs. Likewise, the lessened restriction on the position of the passer is made so that a greater variety of plays can be executed.

The old method used to be to send the team tank to crash his way through the opposing front wall for about four yards, at which the speedier secondary would bring him to a stop. Then a "variation" would come in the form of an extension to right or left. Now an extension is far from the easiest play to execute. Factors which make it difficult are: the ball changes hands a lot during the play, courting the fumbles which are prevalent enough in intercollegiate play; there must be faultless blocking; usually the ball-carriers don't get it out to the last man until he is too near the sidelines to be able to skirt the opposing end.

As Warren Stevens pointed out to us yesterday, any number of plays can now be executed either from the quarterback position or in a direct snap to the halves. For instance, a quarterback is crouched down behind the snap and the play takes the formation of an ordinary off-centre plunge. The faking plunger cuts through in the usual way, causing the secondary to converge on him. There is the quarter's chance to straighten up, pivot, and toss a short flat pass to either side or to an end who has cut into the vacated secondary.

Or what is to hinder a passer from taking a direct snap and heaving a quick one, or why not have a passing play emerge from a fake end-run formation? The quarter could take the ball and run toward the right or left end, with the halves stringing out in extension formation. This would draw the major weight of the opposing line in that direction. Then, under the new rule, the quarter could dig in his heels and toss a pass to the opposite side where an end could be waiting for it.

Now, these plays aren't hipper-dippers for brilliancy; they aren't presented as such. They are merely examples of common-sense strategy with a view to making full use of the opportunities provided by the new rules. In short, the important fact is that we now have an unparalleled chance to exploit the surprise element in football tactics. This year gives the intramural leagues full scope to play a heads-up brand of football instead of the over-emphasized plunging game for which the intercollegiate loop is fitted neither by condition nor by blocking ability.

FOR THE 18-TO-20 GROUP

This is a reminder to the 18-to-20 group that they are all required by the university to register for the classes in elementary military training. This applies ALSO to those of this group who have their P.T. worked off already. It is essential that everyone here concerned check up at once and get into his correct category.

Correspondence

times such as these; already they have had one attack of indignation over "disloyalty" in the university. Whether or not what they say is true never matters. People believe what they want to believe, and Toronto newspapers supply them with material: denials after the event mean nothing.

To curtail subject matter would render HHD harmless, but also valueless. To silence individual speakers once they had started speaking would probably be impossible. To exclude the press would also be impossible — for something would get into print somehow. To hold HHD in defiance of public opinion would bring down provincial wrath on the university.

To challenge the Board of Governors to cancel debates themselves, instead of recommending that the students do so, would perhaps — it's a subtle point — make it difficult to start debates again when the war ends and times change. To trust to the sanity of the undergraduate would be taking a major risk: for it requires only a very little courage to say exciting things when there is a fair assurance that those who suffer will be the people who run things (the faculty, the Acting Warden and the President) rather than the individual. To run HHD when C.O.T.C. takes so much of everyone's time would be braving the possibility of empty houses; and HHD were often simply enough attended when only those who actually liked the C.O.T.C. worked for it.

This is a conglomeration of arguments with little or no order to them. But think them over, Mr. Editor, and then write another editorial. Perhaps even in the face of these difficulties you can see a way of escape. The Debates Committee couldn't.

It seems to me that this plea for free speech is an age-old cry voiced as meaninglessly as ever. The muzzling of democracy is a travesty, yes, but what isn't, nowadays? And what, when you say free speech does not permit ravings "along subversive, disloyal lines," do you mean by free speech? To you apparently free speech does not include "disloyal" remarks. But to some, and the downtown papers first among them, free speech does not include Hart House Debates. Free speech, like everything else in a democracy, is a relative affair, and in times of war undergoes a most necessary though most undesirable shift to the right.

But unless you can wave a wand and overcome everybody's objections all round, all we can do is to regret it all, accept it all, and remember that there are still avenues open for utterance.

Free speech is not dead, Mr. Editor. Be grateful for what is left you and stop scratching for what you can't have. And use, to say what you want to say, the avenues that are left — before they close.

And having said all this I'll confess that I think free speech (a relative term, remember) though not dead is dying, and that I should not be overly surprised if having died, sometime during the next decade, it never came back to life. As liberty may not come back to life, as faith in human nature may not come back to life, as the dead, our friends, some of them gone already, will not come back to life, and as we shall not.

But what I feel personally affects the issue little. What I think doesn't affect it much either. But with these scraps of ideas before you, try again. I'll wait for the editorial. G.S.

MONROE ALSO STARS

By Stan Westcott

Unleashing a penetrating, diversified second-half attack that utilized almost every play in the football book, St. S.P.S. came out from behind a 5-0 deficit to a 12-5 win over last year's Mulock Cup holders, the fighting Irish of St. Mike's, on the back campus yesterday afternoon.

It took a pungent half time pep talk by coach Annis Stukus to start the Schoolmen going. But once they began to move the blue and gold boys proved as irresistible as an avalanche. Zinging passes, slashing cracks at the line, and speedy end runs followed each other rapidly with spectacular success.

St. Mike's missed their first opportunity to score early in the second quarter after Roberts had intercepted an enemy lateral pass to place the ball on School's 14 yard line. Bill Flaherty attempted an inside kick which was caught by Barry of S.P.S. 10 yards behind his goal line and run out 25 yards to safety.

That was the best chance the Bay St. lads had all afternoon, except for their lone touchdown thrust which followed shortly. Bill Flaherty hoisted a lofty 45 yard punt to Barry on the School goal line. The spinning ball skidded through Barry's fingers as he started to run, and Bill Guerinot fell on it behind the line for five points. Jacob missed the convert.

Shortly after the last half opened S.P.S. evened this up with a concerted drive. A Plaxton to Hawkin extension play went 25 yards to St. Mike's 35 yard stripe. Hurst took a 20 yard pass from Jack Plaxton.

Then Jim Hawkin tore the remaining 12 yards around the right end for the tying touchdown. Plaxton, who, at one stage of the contest was hailed by the onlookers as "The Boy Wonder", booted the convert to place his team in front.

The kick-off following this play resulted in an unfortunate casualty, one that may prove almost fatal to the Irish pennant hopes. As Bill Flaherty, St. Mike's classy kicker, rushed down the field after the play, he was blocked by two Schoolmen, his under pinning buckled under him and he fell to the ground with a fractured right leg.

S.P.S. capitalized on an opposition pass which Fugler, their fine little quarterback, intercepted, to set up the play for a seventh point. Plaxton spiraled the ball from 7 yards out high over the back fence into Hoskin Ave.

With only moments left of the game, Munroe intercepted a St. Mike's pass on the 50 yard line, and galloped 18 yards before he was stopped. Plaxton whacked the line for 10. Jim Hurst went for 8 the same way. Then Stew Munroe, who was the game's plunging star, raced 15 yards through the centre to within four feet of the enemy goal line. From that point Munroe drilled across the chalk strip on the second down to complete the scoring.

Plaxton, Hawkin, Munroe, Hurst, Barry, and Fugler all rate stars for their great offensive efforts on behalf of the Little Red Schoolhouse, while Reubin, DePaul, and DeMarco were strong defensively.

Until he was injured, Flaherty led the attack of St. Mike's with his fine kicking and running. The Guerinot brothers, Bill and Walt, together with Coughlin, Ronayne, and Fyle played heads-up football for last year's champs.

Sr. S.P.S.: Reubin, Mees, Hodgson, Coughlin, Baker, DePaul, Reynolds, Plaxton, Fugler, Hawkin, Finlayson, Hurst, DeMarco, Percival, Munroe, Barry, Flett, and Rogers.

St. Mike's: B. Guerinot, Roberts, Fyle, Wilpers, Hughes, Ronayne, Maloney, Schantz, W. Guerinot, Dunne, Coughlin, Flaherty, Murphy, Darte, Egan, Turney, O'Reilly, Agro, Coates.

In spite of rain and long week-end hazards, the intercollegiate tennis tournament is really going to start on the peppy St. Mike's courts, 9 a.m. sharp. These unfortunates called for nine o'clock have been notified and are asked to please be prompt! The others please study the draw at the courts before 10 o'clock.

Last night we moseyed 'round and, so far as we could gather, the teams are all set to go. Vic boasts Ida Pitt and Betty Bell of last year's team, and add to these Viola Noden, Flo Allan, Christina Brownlee and Virginia Rappelle, a freshe to note. Trinity are counting on Mary Skeels, Connie Harrison and Adine Seagram, familiar names to the game, and Eleanor McLaughlin, Marg Woods, a freshe, and Joan Griffith, who lost out to Marg in their college tournament, but challenged in successfully, defeating Helen Wright.

St. Mike's are sure of Annabelle Macklin, Frances McBride, Charlotte Hughes, Betty Gerby and Kay Archon-deau, and were waiting for results to decide on their sixth member.

U.C. could only name Barb Greenleaf and Betty Kettles of last year, and Eva Verner, when attacked last night. Meds are pinning their all on Mary Hollington, Lillian Karmalska, Laurie Patten, Jean Meiers, Lily Sugarman and a certain "Miss" Ladoeur — any suggestions? Physical Ed send to the fray Ruth Carleton, former Vic star, Pat Austin and two others — they're keeping it for a surprise!

All these matches are going to be superbly refereed by an excellent, hand-picked staff of "really-sunpin" gals — so if you don't come to watch the teams, do come and watch the referees!

We hear touch rugby is the latest among co-ed hat-tricks. Last night saw the U.C. juniors, coached by Helen Gurney, romping around on the Vic field in a rip-roaring game of pigskin. —Hayman please note.

Any co-eds wishing to take their bronze life-saving test, please see Miss Edwards at the Lillian Massey pool any day between 3 and 5.30 p.m. This opportunity is open to absolutely anyone — co-ed — who is interested.

UNIVERSITY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

On Monday night in the Women's Union Theatre, Don Ryerson of 375 helped some 15 undergrads spend a very enjoyable evening pouring their souls into their idea of Haydn's Second Symphony. Most of those who turned up were not new to the University Symphony Orchestra but a couple of enthusiastic freshmen ventured to add to the din and more are hoped for at next Monday's meeting. The only requirements are the possession of a musical instrument plus the ability to read music more or less effectively. The orchestra is primarily for the personal enjoyment of amateur musicians around the campus but it does however make one or two personal appearances during the year.

There is plenty of musical talent around the university, and all it needs for expression is an organization such as this U.S.O. All those who are shy about displaying their instrumental talent as individuals can and should draw their reticence in this big orchestra, thus taking an active part in recreating some of the world's masterpieces of music.

It is for the pure love of the thing that Don Ryerson gives up his valuable time to come and guide the U.S.O. through the fascinating intricacies of symphonic music; so the more that turn out next Monday the more worth while it will be for everyone, and the better the effect will be when the orchestra gets around to putting on a public performance.—V.L.

NOVELTY TO FEATURE
CAMPUS BROCHURES

The inclusion of the feminine element in The Trinity University Review is to be the new feature of the magazine, according to its editor Paul Christie. The amalgamation of The Review with St. Hilda's Chronicle brought about this change and as a medium for literary expression the issues will not be interfered with by the war, the editor said.

Wycliffe's bi-annual Cap and Gown Magazine is to come out in December. It was announced by the editor, V. D. Wignmore. Commenting on the magazine, he said that it was strictly theological and derives its tone from that. University College's contribution, the Undergraduate, is to appear once in an extensive and entirely different issue stated Ken McNaught.

Speaking as editor of The Acta Victoriana, Lloyd Haines says, The editorial board breaks a vast and monumental silence to announce that the Acta is to be new inside and out. The policy is to embody culture without pedantry, art without artiness, distinction without eccentricity. Student expression is to be realized not through social chatter but by means of creative and critical endeavour.

Wide-Eyed in Gotham

By Reuben Frank
(A Canadian University Press Feature)

(Editor's note: political opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily those of this paper.)

By and large, the Democrats do not like Roosevelt; by and larger, the Republicans have a profound contempt for Willkie. The parties are dissolving and realigning in one mad, confused hopeless scramble. It is just a matter of days before Vice-President Garner, Democrat, will come out for Wendell L. Willkie, ex-Democrat. The American Labor Party will carry important New York State for the President. And the most vociferous of all groups are the Democrats-for-Willkie.

It boils down to this. Willkie is out to beat Roosevelt, and Roosevelt is out to beat Hitler. Mr. W. feels he is being neglected in favour of Mr. H. and becomes more and more hysterical. The President ignores these fulminations, but delivers a Columbus Day speech that shakes a bigger stick at the boys of the Axis than his Cousin Teddy ever held in his hand.

But when the first guns were fired, the man who led off for Roosevelt was none other than 'Onest' Arold Hickes, the Republican from Chicago. And Republican Mayor LaGuardia has also sounded off for that man in the White House, dragging with him Progressive Senator Bob LaFollette (fighting son of Fighting Bob) and a host of Republican ex-governors. Almost simultaneously, Republican Borough President Harvey of Queens announced that if Roosevelt will be elected, he will move to Canada. Even being a Republican is no sign that you are for Roosevelt.

Do you remember the nominating conventions? Beneath that overwhelming quantity of sheer wind two facts stood out. The President was not re-nominated by the party machines but by the people who elected the delegates. And don't let anyone tell you different. Despite the bungling engineering of Harry Hopkins, the President was nominated as spontaneously as anyone will ever be under indirect democracy. Willkie, on the other hand, was unknown to the ordinary folk who elected the delegates. He was known to the readers of the financial page, to the readers of Fortune (Time for a dollar) and to Herald-Tribune columnists Dorothy Thompson and Walter Lippman. More than any others, these two brought about his nomination—and, both have recently declared for the President.

There is a strained optimism that Republicans will put on for the public view, but speak to them in private and they say "We should have nominated Taft." Mumbling, pedantic, unattractive Senator Taft as against Glamour Boy Willkie! But they realize that Willkie was a double-or-nothing throw, and they are going to get nothing. Every time Willkie opens his mouth, he puts his feet, his hands and three opposition writers in it. Taft would have been no better, and would never have carried the country. But there would have been a Republican Party left after Taft's defeat.

Have a look at the facts. Willkie is the rawest of political tyros. When Dewey announced his intention of contesting the Republican nomination, the wisecracks said, "Aha! Tommy has thrown his diaper into the ring." It was a good crack, but it fits Willkie more than it did Dewey. Why the man has never been an alderman or president of his college glee club or anything but president of Commonwealth and Southern, and that is not an executive, but an advisory position. Don't let the press releases fool you: he is being ridden by all the hacks of the Republican Party, by Joe Martin, and Hiram Johnston, and Arthur Vandenberg, Herman Jocke. And in the accepted political tradition, they have allowed everything to run wild in his name.

In years to come, this election will be known as the Battle of the Buttons. There are Willkie buttons and Roosevelt buttons (reaching six inches in diameter), there are "No Third Term" buttons and "I Want to Be a Captain, Too" buttons, besides a host of others which deal with members of Roosevelt's family in a manner reminiscent of the nickel scandal-sheets. There are even buttons announcing the reopening of Leon and Eddie's.

Well, you say, now that you know so much, who is going to win the election, Mr. Smartypants? The answer to that one is easy: Roosevelt is going to carry forty-three states. I know I am out on a limb, and Dr. George C. Gallup is saying it off right at this moment, but you wait and see. I figured it, see? I sat and thought about it, and spoke to the janitor and the grocery-clerk and a couple of other people. (This means I conducted a "survey.")

Charles Van Devander of the pro-FDR New York Post gives Wendell eleven states; the Gallup poll gave him eight a few weeks ago and have added a couple every day; the Dunn poll (they picked Landon) gave Mr. Willkie the election, the country and Baffin Land thrown in for good measure. To the people in the know it looks like Roosevelt, but by a cat's whisker. Well, I prodium to one and all that the President will be re-elected by my uncle's beard.

You must remember one thing about "polls": they may provide a good sample of public opinion at any given time, but they do not provide the atmosphere of the election booth. You can say one thing to the neat college girl who knocks at your door — and mean it sincerely — but casting your vote that way is an entirely different matter. If all the people who didn't like Willkie voted for Roosevelt, the latter would be re-elected by forty-eight states. The farmers don't like the utilities magnate who once fought for cheap power, the little businessman is suspicious of Wall Street, the worker, employed or unemployed, feels that Willkie may talk a lot but you can't trust him on his labour record... and so it goes down the line. A new arrival in politics, Willkie must stand or fall by his reputation in business. And it is my opinion that he is going to fall so fast he'll scare the wits out of the Japs in China.

Willkie will carry Maine and Vermont, although I am not too sure about Maine. He will carry the Pennsylvania Dutch and the Pew machine in Philadelphia. He will carry North Dakota and Nebraska, because the farmers have been doing well without much help from the alphabetical agencies in Washington. But his own state of Indiana is a cinch for the other guy, as is running-mate Charlie McNary's Oregon. Dr. Gallup says that Kansas will go his way, but I doubt it; they would not even vote for Landon, their own governor, and as for South Carolina, there's a drought out there and Willkie fought the TVA.

In short, it is going to be a landslide. Three states less than '36, but an overwhelming vote in confidence of the administration. Those who disagree with his domestic policy will vote for his foreign policy and those who disagree with his foreign policy will vote for his domestic policy. Dorothy Thompson is a good example of the first class, Bob LaFollette of the last. Neither of them would vote for Willkie because they are not sure what his policy is. So, move over, Canada, Borough President Harvey of Queens is coming!

baroque and renaissance styles of architecture being represented. In commenting on one of the pictures, Mr. Comfort pointed out that although the exterior was comparatively recent, parts of the interior dated back as far as pagan times. He limited his talk to buildings of Naples, Rome, Assisi, Florence, and Venice.

In conclusion there was open discussion between audience and speaker. Sydney Key, president of the club, announced that Professor E. J. G. Prof. Afford remarked in accepting the presidency, that he hoped club members would profit by contact with artists through this organization.

ANTIQUE BOOKS SHOW GROWTH OF PRINTING

Students visiting the main library of the university will have noticed a collection of venerable fifteenth-century volumes in a show case. They are exhibited, Mr. W. S. Wallace, the head librarian, explained yesterday, to help illustrate the development in the art of printing, which originated four hundred years ago.

This summer the books, worth about fifteen hundred dollars, were displayed at the Canadian National Exhibition. They form part of a collection received by the university in 1901 on the death of Dr. Henry Scadding, who was a prominent Canadian author and church organizer.

The oldest book in Canada is in the display. Printed in Strasbourg in 1468, the margins of its pages are decorated with scarlet and gold figures—an example of glorified doodling. The gradual appearance of a title page and stages in the disappearance of elaborate hand-drawn capitals are two interesting things illustrated by these books.

Mr. Wallace revealed that the closed chain book deals with mathematics while other books deal with such subjects as religion, history and astronomy. The show cases are labelled "incunabula" which merely stands for "cradle books" or books produced in the infancy of the art of printing, it was learned.

field, in Berlin. Elizabeth Johnstone opens the ballet program with the pantomime Flirtation Waltz, "described as a 'girl trying to get a man, not succeeding but on the other hand not giving up'."

Cliff Toner, of the Georgian Room and known as "the dancing chef," John Marsha and four Ukrainian dancers, are among the twelve men in the ballet group.

Mr. Johnstone emphasized the importance of Volkoff's "brilliant pianist Margaret Clemens who through her sense of feeling for the dance does not leave the dancers out on a limb the way a mechanical pianist might."

"As most of the ballet practice is done at night several of the dancers work in day time or attend school. One or two are not more than sixteen. Eventually, Mr. Volkoff hopes," said Mr. Johnstone, "that the students will be able to devote all their time to their art."

McCallum Lectures Today On MacLeish

Philosophy Professor to Continue Popular Series on Recent American Authors This Afternoon

AT 5 P.M.

"What image of mankind is MacLeish trying to form?" is the main question to be answered by Professor H. R. MacCallum of the Department of Philosophy in his lecture today on Archibald MacLeish. This lecture is the second of the series on recent American authors held in Room 8 of University College at 5 p.m. on Thursdays.

"MacLeish began writing poetry when an undergraduate at Yale," said Prof. MacCallum yesterday in an interview, "and I intend to trace his development as a poet up to the present time. Realizing that his poetry needed less individual content, he advanced very rapidly to more powerful writing. The depression introduced a social note into his subject matter, and he has been

Varsity Newsmen To Take Lessons

The first of a series of news lectures to be given to the members of The Varsity news staff by their News Editor will be presented tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. in Room 19 of University College.

"The lectures are being given in the hope that both the staff members and the readers will benefit," said News Editor Dent Hodgson.

"While the only way to learn how to be a newspaperman is by experience, many men and women on the staff need a little instruction in the fundamentals they will know what is expected of them," he went on.

The first of the lectures will necessarily be concerned with the basic elements of newspaper work. After the first few, aspiring journalists will have a slight respite, but in the interim will be expected to put into practice what they have learned. After gaining some further experience, there will be a few more lectures for them to attend in order that the series will be complete.

HART HOUSE COMMITTEES

All members of committees who are assisting on Visitors' Day, Sunday, 27th October, are asked to meet in the east common room today at 1:30 p.m.

Varsity Stickers Obtainable Only from U.S. and Tuck Shop

The pennant-shaped, blue and white gummed stickers that you may have seen on luggage or windshields around the campus are not obtainable in Canada and all come from the United States, it was learned yesterday.

Most of the stickers emanate from the Tuck Shop, which obtains a supply every year from Billy Blum, II St. Michael's. The stickers are made by Billy's father, who began making them in the United States at the suggestion of Billy's brother Freddy, who will be remembered among senior students as an outstanding cheer-leader of the university until he graduated from St. Michael's two years ago.

"We have tried to get stickers for every faculty," said a Tuck Shop attendant, "but nobody in the city will make them for us."

At present, all the Tuck Shop can offer is a choice of a U. of T. or a

Over 150 Women Register For War Service Training

Miss Parkes of S.A.C. Reveals that Training will Include Instruction in Military Law as well as Parades

SAMPLE UNIFORMS HERE

More than 150 women have left their names and taken blank forms to fill out for the Women's Service Training, Miss A. E. M. Parkes, associate secretary of the Students' Administrative Council, said yesterday. Many more girls took forms and did not leave their names, she said.

It is impossible to estimate the exact number of applicants who will be accepted, Miss Parkes said. The Red Cross has now agreed to consider provisionally even those applicants who have not obtained their medical certificates.

The greatest number of applications have been received from University College, Victoria and Trinity but the Ontario College of Education, Household Science, and Occupational and Physiotherapy are also represented.

Sample uniforms which arrived yesterday were described as one-piece models in gray all-wool cloth with forage caps to match. Accessories will include a royal blue tie, trimming on the cap, and a Red Cross insignia.

Miss Parkes revealed that training of women on the campus would be less strenuous than that of the C.O.T.C. and the Auxiliary Battalion. The course of training will include instruction in military law by military authorities.

The first drill is expected to be held on Oct. 29. Lectures will begin the following week.

The course will run six or seven weeks in the fall term and 10 weeks in the spring term, Miss Parkes said.

TRINITY AND KNOX TIE IN SECONO SOCCER TILT

For the second time in two games Trinity and Knox played to a deadlock in an intercollegiate soccer match yesterday afternoon on the Trinity field. This time it was a double whitewash, whereas in their game last Friday each team picked up one point.

Both outfits played uninspired games, and good scoring chances were almost negligible.

Knox: Thomson, Stewart, MacSwain, R. Currie, MacKay, Graham, Selt, F. Barr, N. Barr, J. Jack, Archibald, McKenzie, Anderson, Schesson, and Near.

Trinity: Riley, Baillie, Graver, Wagland, Clarkson, Jackson, Blaker, Phillips, Halder, R. Delaney, Stimson, L. Delaney, Mendel, and Ker.

ART CLASS

Members of Hart House are invited to attend the art classes, under the direction of Mr. Caven Atkins, the second of which will take place tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the art gallery.

RABBI EISENDRATH ADDRESSES S.C.M.

Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath told students at a Student Christian Movement meeting yesterday that Hitler could be compared to the Sargon of early Hebrew history "as an unconscious tool in working out the salvation of the world and as a spur to a more spiritual outlook."

Speaking in the series "Basic Convictions" on the subject "God the Judge," Mr. Eisendrath said that Judaism had based itself primarily on the premise that God is first and foremost the judge, secondly, the father.

Mr. Eisendrath said the history of Israel had shown this by the frequent conquests Palestine had undergone as a result of its "worldliness and materialism."

Mr. Eisendrath warned that the jibe "Where now is the God?" would not suffice to win the victory, but that "earnestly believing in the things we are fighting for would aid us towards final victory."

"Labour—the vast majority of the people—will not be looked down upon by sneering hauteur and shallow aristocracies after the war and it will at last receive its rightful share in the political, social and economic life of the world," he concluded.

Four Courses Offered In Women's War Service

All-Med Banquet To Be Held Week From Today

Medical Students Launch New Feature in Life of Faculty with First All-Medical Banquet

HALOENBY GUEST SPEAKER

Medical students will launch a new feature in the life of their faculty with the first All-Medical Annual Banquet in the Great Hall of Hart House, on Thursday, October 31.

Brigadier Eric Haldenby, one-time member of the university C.O.T.C. and at present in charge of the defence of Canada's eastern coast, who took the C.O.T.C. and Auxiliary Battalion salutes on Saturday, has been secured as guest speaker. Not only is the Brigadier noted for his military achievements during this and the last war, but he has won himself a reputation for being one of Canada's most entertaining speakers.

The Medical Society announced yesterday that this new function is to replace the soph-frosh of former years and is meant to give the lower years a better insight into the workings of their faculty.

Student talent which formerly found outlet in Daffydil Night has been diverted towards the entertainment for the evening; in addition, a sing-song is being prepared, of which the highlight will be the singing of the new Medical song by the entire faculty for the first

COMEDY PRESENTED BY VIC DRAMATISTS

"The Harum," a farcical comedy in one act was presented by the Victoria College Dramatic Society in Hart House Theatre yesterday afternoon.

The play featured the efforts of a love-sick sea-captain to disentangle himself from the clutches of two unfortunate widows. Joe Dales played the part of the captain, while Virginia Beebe and Mary Ellen Fenwick were cast as the prospective brides. Peter Dickinson played "Uncle Alf," who concocted the stratagem that defeated the widows, and Jeanne Booth, Beth Springer and Marion Lyons, who are cast as temporary "wives".

The play was the second of a series of one-act plays which are being put on by the dramatic societies of U.C., Victoria and Trinity colleges under the sponsorship of the University Drama Committee.

An added feature of the plays this season is a criticism of each performance by a guest expert, which is delivered immediately after the play to members of the cast and members of the executive of the various dramatic societies.

PROF. SMITH TO LECTURE ON USES OF THE GAUGE

Two addresses of considerable importance to manufacturers who have to use various gauges in their production will be given this afternoon at 4:30 p.m. in Room 43 in the McLennan Laboratory (Physics Building).

Professor H. Grayson Smith will speak on "Practical Standards of Length and the Use of Gauges in Mass Production," and Professor J. O. Wilhelm will follow with an address on "Methods Used for the Accurate Measurement of Gauges."

This meeting is open to the public and anyone interested in these subjects will be welcome.

Professor Smith and Professor Wilhelm have recently spent two months in the Gauge Laboratory of the National Research Council, Ottawa.

Students Pull For Roosevelt; Only One Sports Willkie Button

"All out for Roosevelt," seems to be the general feeling of students interviewed yesterday on their attitude towards the forthcoming United States presidential elections.

To the question, "Who will win?" the Forum Club's president, Jim Carson, replied, "Roosevelt, of course, even though I come from a Republican part of the country." Carson feels that Roosevelt undoubtedly will engage his country in war.

Mary Bruck, U.C. fourth year associate president, believes Roosevelt will be the next American president, and thinks it the best thing for the country. "All the Varsity girls I have discussed the subject with," she said, "think the same as I."

Margaret Magrath, Glen Mawr exchange student in University College, also thinks Roosevelt will come out on top. "Because," she says, "he has Cordeau Hull in his government, and Hull

Georges Assie, Representative of De Gaulle Committee, of Canada, Speaks Before French Club

"WORO HONOUR MISUSEO"

The Munich treaty of 1938 was mainly responsible for the rise of the Nazi regime to its present power, Georges Assie, lecturer in French at University College and representative of the recently-formed De Gaulle Committee in Canada, told the French Club last night.

"It was at Munich in 1938 that the French and English democracies abandoned Czechoslovakia to its fate. We had failed honour. Immediately the monstrous forces of Nazism were unleashed over Europe."

"The word honour," he said, "which sounds so noble and so bold in French, has been thoroughly misused, thoroughly discredited, thoroughly vilified, thoroughly bismirched in the course of the last few years. Practically forgotten also."

"What, in fact, are the words and expressions which continually appear in the newspapers, 'Sabotage,' 'espionage,' 'fifth column,' 'treason-breaking,' 'violation of conventions,' and above all that ugly word, 'treason' which endangers the life and the honour of millions of

VIC MUSIC CLUB TO ENACT SAN TOY

Rehearsals for San Toy, this year's production in the Vic Music Club, are progressing to the satisfaction of director T. J. Crawford, F.R.C.O.

The whole cast will contain about twenty-eight men and forty girls. Since the leading parts have not yet been assigned, practice has been mainly with the choruses.

President of the club, Bill Graff, said the dates of the production would be January 15, 16, 17, 18. Supporting him on the executive are vice-president: Nora Patterson, secretary: Eleanor Clark, treasurer: Doug Stewart, business manager: John Pounder, and publicity manager: Paul Deacon.

It is reported that there are a number of high quality singers in Vic this year, and that San Toy, claimed to be interesting, humorous and rhythmical, is an opera to do them justice.

Practice is held every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Alumni Hall of Victoria College, and so far, attendance has given evidence of the old enthusiasm.

HINDU LECTURER OPENS SERIES OCT. 27

Dr. Dhami, noted Hindu lecturer and philosopher, opens the lecture series, sponsored by the Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Association, on Sunday, Oct. 27th, 8:30 p.m. Dr. Dhami will speak on the topic, "Man's Place in Society."

The lectures are one feature of an extensive educational program which the Y.M.H.A. conducts for its members and the Toronto Jewish Community. Other lectures to follow are: Nov. 10, Dr. Dhami, "Moulding Public Opinion"; Nov. 24, Dr. Dhami, "An Oriental Looks at the West"; Dec. 8th, Willson Woodside, "What's Behind the Headlines"; Dec. 22nd, "Jewry in the World Today." All lectures are held in the Auditorium of the Jewish Centre, 9 Brunswick Ave.

DENTS TIE FORESTRY IN RUGBY DUEL, 6-6

After dropping Jr. Meds by a 3-0 count Tuesday afternoon, Dents' football squad found Forestry too big a dose to swallow immediately afterward, succeeding only in tying the bushmen at the Stadium 6-6 yesterday.

To play two football games on successive days is a tough assignment in any league, and the Dents deserve credit for picking up a win and a tie in this manner. They now head their group with a total of three points.

Forestry catapulted into the lead with a fast first period touchdown which was converted. Monaghan was the man responsible for plunging the ball across the opposing goal line.

From them on Dents applied slow but is a man necessary to the state in the present crisis." She does not see how it would be possible for Hull to stay in with Willkie in power.

Gretta Riddell, women's intercollegiate debating club president, says Roosevelt will win, even though he has almost wrecked the country economically. Should Wendell Willkie, a good and a sincere man, get in, there will be no change either in the war policy or in the New Deal, Miss Riddell feels, but his election would be a big boost for capital.

A U.C. freshee's "profound" outburst was, "I don't know who will win but I hope Roosevelt does."

"I'd bet on Roosevelt," C. W. Shearer, S.P.S. IV, laughed.

Harold Brown, Vic II, is the only man heard to utter a word in favour of Willkie, while John Whalen, Emmanuel, silently wears a Willkie button.

Portraits of Young Men As Artists

Havelock Ellis wrote that no young man is normal if he does not experience an intellectual revolution before he is 19 or 20, we forget which. Intellectual revolutions come in one form mainly, but with results varying with the background of the individual. Usually they are more fun than a picnic.

The form of the revolution, or upset, is well known, with one well-established set of ideas being superseded by another set, or none at all. It comes, as most revolutions do, as a result of education, and first year students can expect the turmoil soon, provided they are here to be educated.

Philosophy, for instance, may give you a few new ideas about religion. Your opinion of the creation, the world, and the organization of worship may be changed in the light of your discoveries. You needn't become any less religious, but you may become more rationally pious.

The study of economics gives you a slight account of man in relation to the world's resources, and maybe a new opinion of your Uncle Luther, the meat-packing king. History records man's relations with man, and the impressionable student may find his course with an A and the impression that man is a beast. The sciences may impress him with the magnitude of the universe, the amount of knowledge he hasn't got, the scope of man's intellect, and a deep sense of futility.

On the whole, the revolution means the questioning and critical discussion of institutions previously accepted as infallible. It may lead a student to continue scholastic work, in pure appetite for knowledge, and he may end up as an amusing professor, who plugs his own book in classes and fascinates the young students with his gentle cynicism.

Other signs of the revolution include bitterness, skepticism, desertion of the life ascetic for the life epicurean, desertion of the life epicurean for the life ascetic, refusal to wear business clothes, bad manners and an unwillingness to take out fraternity girls.

Some persons are severely shocked by education. James Joyce's mind so opened up in college, he produced a great novel, "The Portrait of an Artist as a Young Man", in which he recorded, among other things, his reaction to Jesuitism. For others, education means an expansion of the intellectual horizon, in which case, the road to achievement is made considerably easier. In general, however, most persons find that the intellectual revolution makes their minds alive and open which leads them to an enjoyable existence as leading businessmen and progressive parents.

The King's English

War is no longer a game for the man with a strong back and a weak mind. Once upon a time, all you needed was a thick wrist and an heirloom lance, but it's the I.Q. that counts now and you need at least a senior matriculation to even understand orders given by the N.C.O.'s of the new school.

Hang around a parade ground for a while and if you hear the command "Order HIPES" you'll understand why the soldiers of this war must be the very fructifications of clean living and high thinking. Out of a series of garblings they can extract enough of the intelligible to perform a movement with snap and precision.

"Order HIPES", of course means "Order arms" and is in the same category as "Slope HEEPS", "Present SNARKS" and "Fix BAINTS". In the foot-drill division there is "Atten HOW", "Stand at WAH" and "Stand ZEE". The principle behind this garbling is valid. The soldier can tell from the first several syllables what he is expected to do, the last syllable serving merely as a spark for the action. The last, or action syllable, could be anything, provided it were loud enough, and officers are allowed considerable vocal latitude with spectacular results. In this war, "HIPES" has almost entirely replaced the "TUH" which enjoyed considerable popularity with younger men during the last war.

Army and air force non-coms have highly distinguished themselves in this artistic perversion, largely as a result of courses many of them took in which they also learned to be markers and number from the right. There is such a thing as carrying it too far, however, and there is one squad at least that was stymied by the rococo treatment an Ottawa corporal gave to the "Stand at ease" order. How did they know what he meant when he said "Stummacheese"?

Ballet's Debut

The fact that the Canadian Ballet being staged at Varsity Arena tonight is the first Canadian Ballet ever to be attempted should be sufficient to ensure it the hearty support of all the city's music and ballet lovers. Add to this the fact that it is being presented in aid of the Red Cross and the result should be a capacity audience.

The music and ballet entertainment is being presented by Boris Volkoff's dancers in co-operation with members of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, directed by Sir Ernest MacMillan and Ettore Mazzoleni. The dancers, many of whom have come from all parts of Canada and the United States especially for tonight's performance, are mostly Volkoff pupils. A few are professional dancers.

The performance tonight represents the realization of one of Boris Volkoff's long-standing ambitions—a professional Canadian Ballet. This Canadian replica of the Russian and American ballets should receive particularly enthusiastic support from the public at this time when none of the ballets usually brought here are able to appear. If the Canadian ballet is to be the success that it shows every sign of being, every student interested in such work should turn up at Varsity Arena to support it tonight. Remember you will be doing more than just promoting the cause of Canadian ballet, you will also be contributing to the Red Cross.

AR MUSIC Drama

Drama Committee

The Harum, second in the University Drama Committee's series of one-act plays, was presented by the Victoria College Dramatic Society yesterday afternoon in Hart House Theatre. The players sailed happily through a plot which lacked the slightest degree of probability in an almost convincing manner. We didn't like the play, but we enjoyed the acting.

Centre of the stage was held most of the time by Joe Dales as Captain Ned Throughberry. He got the best out of nearly all the pungent lines of Percy and Denham, although occasionally his voice trailed off just too soon.

Very amusing, but tending to overplay, was Peter Dickinson as Alf Portal, the trusty friend who schemes to extricate Throughberry from the toils of not one but two widows to whom he has proposed. A little more restraint on Dickinson's part is all he needs to be an outstanding actor.

Mary Ellen Fenwick and Virginia Beebe, particularly the latter, were good as the designing women, and Jeanne Booth played efficiently enough the uninteresting role of Baulah Burrage, one of the friends who rally around Throughberry in his struggle to escape.

The ingenu Daisy Burrage was well done by Beth Springer, and Marion Lyons did all she could with a walk-on part.

We repeat, the play was poor. We expected better things of Percy and Denham. But the production was good, running more smoothly than these Wednesday afternoon operas usually do, and providing mild amusement for the tired student after the rigours of the lecture-room. MICHAEL O'MARA

Cub Reporter: Wide Eyed from Chatham.

Pub Reporter: Pie Eyed from Gotham. (Does not appear as he is out investigating local sousing conditions.)

The Scene: The editorial office(s) of a great campus newspaper. Upstage are two typewriters. At one, an earnest sports writer types industriously with two fingers. The other is mooned over by a languid Exchange Editor who seeks idly to make the carriage sputter like a tommygun. The A. M. & D. Editor lies sprawled on a table thumbing hungrily through a Cadillac Catalogue. Unable longer to torture his fancy he rises and borrows the price of a coke from the Cub and then stands hurling a ball of copy paper, which he retrieves on the rebound, against the side of the Chief's glass private office.

Time: High that somebody brought some news in.

Chief: Stop chunkin' that ball against this here old office.

News Ed: (hopelessly) What's new?

Exchange Editor: A reporter on the Fordham Ram saw a mouse, he claims.

OVER THE NET OVER

It was a great tournament. That just about sums it up. It would be hard to say when a nifty lot of tennis has assembled on a campus court to vie for interfaculty honours, or when play has been more keenly contested. We are only sorry for those who did not take the trouble to make the brief journey to the St. Hilda's surfaces to view the proceedings. Few realized that for the first time the entire tournament was being held on the campus, and that the brand of play would be about as good as anyone could hope to find on any university grounds.

The doubles match yesterday was a treat. It had everything. There was Bruce Hall, with his great all-round play coupled with Oavis Cup experience. Ian McCallum with his smashing overhead drives. Jack Mullett, playing a beautiful net game, and Johnny Whallon, the lad with the least experience, but working the hardest with his neat deep-court volleys. All a swell bunch of fellows who seemed as if they were engaged in a friendly stroking party rather than in a championship match. It was difficult for an underscoring eye to note the tension in the play, as it mounted with each passing game. It must have been terrific in that battle royal which was the second set. Ian and Jack took a game, and Johnny and Bruce replied by doing the same. Ian and Jack took another, but the two Emmannuels would not break—until eight games later.

We cannot be convinced that Bruce played as well as he can, or anywhere near it. There were times in the third set, in which Hall and Whallon ran rough-shod over their opponents, that he showed bursts of speed and volleying power that all but swept Ian and Jack from their feet. Bruce showed us then what he can do, but it was not his day.

By this we do not mean to take any of the credit from Jack and Ian. They played heads-up ball all the way and well deserved their win. The edge they held in experience (for they have played together for at least a year) was probably the deciding factor. Each knew his position on the court. Each played it as best he could, which was excellent. After being up two sets and then seeing their lead snatched away, it was just as much of a comeback for them to win that last deciding set as it was for Bruce and Johnny to get back into the running with those third and fourth set victories.

It was a great game to win, a tough one to lose.

WE NOMINATE

Now that all the rugby teams have made their debuts, it is high time for us to pick the Mulock Cup winner. We always approach this subject with knees a-trembling. There will be loud hosannas and Just-what-I-said on the one side (much in the minority), and there will be curses and We'll-show-'ems on the other. Take it all with a grain of salt, friends, and we never go through dark alleys after seven o'clock.

We can discount Group II promptly. Here are assembled the mighty cohorts of Dents, Junior Meds and Forestry. From what little we have seen of them, they will continue to reside in the slough of fumbles and plays gone awry. Group I, where we find the grid warriors of Junior School, Vic, Trinity and U.C., is an entirely different proposition. School trounced Vic in their first game 6-1, but that is no indication, for the field resembled a bog on that particular day. U.C. we pick for third spot right off the bat, simply because they are not as good as Vic and School and are better than Trinity. Trinity has four or five good men in the persons of MacMillan, Boxer, Henderson, and Crasliey, but they need a good deal of polishing yet. U.C. has a hefty backfield that can throw a ball around, and though they didn't impress in their first appearance against Trinity, we believe they will improve a lot, might even make it difficult for School and Vic.

That leaves us with School and Vic. We unhesitatingly pick School. They have fight, they are fast, they've got weight, but first and foremost they've got Donnie Grosskurth. Vic may, surprise. In fact, we wouldn't be surprised if they did surprise. But the backfield does not play the heads-up style of School, while the line last week was letting a few too many plunges go to the secondary. Incidentally, Vic has a snap that may contend with Beefy MacMillan for all-star team (we may pick one). Hary Rutledge is the name.

In Group III lodge St. Mike's, Senior School and Senior Meds, and from this bunch we pick our Mulock Cup winner. Meds have nothing much except Jim Murray, who is a veritable one-man wave of destruction. The Fighting Irish have a good deal, but suffered a serious loss when Bill Flaherty broke his leg in Tuesday's get-together. Yes, sir, that boils down to Senior School, the team to beat in this man's league. There is hardly a smarter quarterback in the league, except for the possible exception of Grosskurth, than Fugler, and he gets admirable support from "Special Delivery" Plaxton and plunger Stew Munroe, not to mention a well-balanced line.

There are four real contenders—Senior and Junior School, St. Mike's and Vic. Our money's on the older Engineers. If any team thinks that we've done them dirt, they can easily prove their point by winning the Mulock Cup.

very sure pressure. Before the half ended Hawton booted a single to break the ice for his faculty.

As the final session faded, Bill Hambly, who had kicked the only three points the day before, flipped a pass to playing coach Freddie Parrott. Par-

BROWN BROTHERS WIN RELAY TITLE

O.C.E. continued their winning strides down the cinder paths, carried along on the broad shoulders and fleet legs of the Brown twins, by winning the interfaculty relay meet yesterday afternoon.

The teachers swept four of the five events, and came second in the fifth. There was only one Brown in that race. Victoria's tracksters took second money with a total of 14 points, nine back of the winners. Meds, Wycliffe and U.C. finished in that order behind the leaders with 4, 3, and 1 points respectively.

O.C.E. started out on the right foot without benefit of the famous Meaford brothers, by taking the two mile relay in 9-12-2. The winning team was composed of Belchamber, Wendorf, Eccles, and Moncur. A fast finish by Barnett of Wycliffe gave his faculty a close second. Meds were the only other squad entered in this event.

In the 440 relay Harold Brown sped past Hinkling of Vic from ten yards back to win going away. Wally Brown had given O.C.E. a slight edge at the start, but Stinson and Miller more than made this up for the Scarlet and Gold, thus forcing Harold to really open up. Meds finished third in this race. The time was 36-9.

With the assistance of Hall and Wendorf, the Browns came home in front in the half mile relay. Vic placed, and Meds ran third ahead of U.C. This race was run in the creditable time of 1-41-3.

The mile event was the only one which O.C.E. missed taking, and this went to Victoria. Rutherford, Stone, Miller, and Stinson turned in the winning effort in 3-52-3, with Rutherford running a very fast final 440 to hold his lead over Harold Brown. U.C. edged Meds for third position.

O.C.E. came back to win the Medley, the final race on the card. Hall and Moncur with the Browns formed the victorious aggregation. Victoria and Meds finished second and third.

people whose only qualification for that exalted spot is their ability to get in and grab the seats first, it is little short of phenomenal.

The artists in the first concert of the Musical Manifesto Series were Margaret Parsons, pianist, and the two-piano team of Gordon Hallett and Clifford Poole. All three are young Canadian artists with a considerable local reputation, and their program, together with the attractive conditions of the benefit performance, brought a capacity house to the auditorium.

The program was particularly happy in choice and arrangement, consisting of a classical group by the piano duo, a group of moderns by Miss Parsons, a romantic group by the soloist, and finally a modern group by Hallett and Poole, which was climaxed by the Rhapsody in Blue.

Works by Bach generally benefit by two-piano treatment. The medium seems to give the music some of the richness and power of the organ, combined with the tonal clarity of a single piano. Particularly striking was the Andante, arranged by Siloti, which brought remarkable purity of tone from the performers.

After the dynamics of the two-piano group, the quiet simplicity of Miss Parsons' two Oebussy numbers came as a fitting contrast. Both were flawlessly executed. Arabesque and The Girl With the Flaxen Hair seemed to be exactly the right pieces for their place in the program. They were followed by...

Intercollegiate Pair Combine to Defeat Bruce Hall and Whallon 6-2, 10-8, 0-6, 2-6, 6-4

EMMANUEL WINS TITLE

Bruce Hall smashed a hard, deep-court shot that just failed to nick the base-line, and firing ceased on the interfaculty tennis front as Ian McCallum and Jack Mullett were crowned intramural doubles champions yesterday afternoon on the St. Hilda's courts. That shot and not any previous one was the volley that beat the Emmanuel team of Hall and Johnny Whallon after one of the greatest and most thrilling net battles ever staged at this university. The score was 6-2, 10-8, 0-6, 2-6, 6-4.

Unofficial figures indicate that Emmanuel won the Victoria Tennis Trophy, awarded to the faculty with the highest number of points in the tournament, for Hall and Whallon collected fifty points for their effort in reaching the finals, while Ian McCallum garnered but fifty for S.P.S., the runner-up. However, these results are not final, as ruling on the defaults has not yet been determined.

Hall and Whallon reached the final by virtue of two early-afternoon wins, the first over Penoyer and Pridaues of S.P.S., and the next over Marois and Jacobs of St. Mike's. The scores were 6-3, 6-1, and 6-3, 6-3 respectively.

The Emmanuel team could not seem to settle down in the first set, and though three of the eight games went to deuce, the Engineer and Dentist were not pressed while taking it 6-2.

Set No. 2 saw Mullett and McCallum take a three-love lead before Johnny or Bruce made a bid. After the fourth game went to deuce the Theologs drove back two beautiful returns to take the game. By this time Hall was driving hard, pressing the play at every opportunity. The pair took the next game and made it three-all, Hall dishing out four straight points in the sixth game. The next two went to deuce, first Jack and Ian, then Bruce and Johnny. From then to the seventeenth game Hall and Whallon showed perfect control under pressure to come back no less than four times to tie the count in games. Both couples were offered good chances to slam out the winning stroke. At ad-in for Jack and Ian, both the boys dubbed perfect set-ups for the killing out. The seventeenth game went to deuce and stayed there eight times. Bruce missed a lob and the game went to Mullett and McCallum. The final game went to deuce five times. Mullett nipped a placement for ad-out and Whallon served up doubles, finally ending the set at 10-8.

Johnny and Bruce came back like a house-afire following that. Whallon's net game, which was in pretty bad shape at the start of the match, improved with each game, while Mullett's, which had been nearly perfect in the opening two sets, began to taper off. Mullett and McCallum made but a single bid in the third set, that in the third game, which went to deuce four times. The fourth instalment went at game-fifteen, the fifth in straight points.

Football Double-header Today As S.P.S. Tackles U.C.; Vic vs Trinity

Gridders of group one in the interfaculty loop will display their wares today. S.P.S. and U.C. who have both won their contests to date, tangle on the back west campus and Trinity and Victoria College, who have both lost their games so far, battle it out at the Varsity blue bowl.

School defeated Vic last Thursday on a rain-soaked campus 6-1 and garnered their edge on a fumble by the Scarlet and Gold. Grosskurth is the big gun for the Engineers and will bear very close watching by the Red and White footballers.

The Royal College squad wangled a close victory out of the Trinity crew in the last few minutes of play by advancing the pigskin from their twenty-the sixth at game-30.

In the fourth set, Mullett and McCallum had seemed to nip the Hall-Whallon rally in the bud when they grabbed off the initial game in straight points. But Johnny and Bruce came back three times in a row. The former intercollegiate doubles squad captured the fifth game, but the Davis Cupper and his partner were not to be denied, snared the last three set-tos, two of them in straight points.

After Hall and Whallon had overhauled a two-set lead, it seemed that nothing could stop them. But Mullett and McCallum rallied strongly and did just that. They grabbed the first two games in a flash, but Johnny and Bruce pulled their (by now) reviving act to capture the third and fourth instalments, the last on two beautiful aces by Whallon after the game went to deuce. Mullett and McCallum took the fifth game, but once more Hall and Whallon returned in a straight-pointed game, the ninth game, which made it 6-4 for M. & M., went to deuce three times. Mullett polished it off with a smashing side-court volley. In the final game the winners nabbed the first and second points, the Theologs the third. McCallum returned a perfectly-placed back-court shot, and Hall smashed over the base-line. Point, game, set, match, championship!

Bruce Hall, who won the singles title on Tuesday from Mel Jones, did not play the same game that he did against the Trinity man. He still was just as steady, but slammed some important returns into the net. Johnny Whallon worked harder than any man on the court, but is not equipped with the blistering service that Hall and McCallum possess.

Mullett's net game was excellent, although it flagged in the third and fourth sets. McCallum played his usual heavy and steady game, employing his wicked overhead to good advantage. He missed several set-ups, a thing he is not in the habit of doing.

By Marg. Gould

This is just a suggestion of a column—no basketball matches, no tennis tournament, so we're just not going to play!

The remaining places on the tennis teams mentioned last night, have been filled. U.C. have added Shirley Geldert, Margaret Magrath and Helen Heller, to make up their set. Marg is a visitor to us this year from Bryn Mawr College, Philadelphia, and we think it's just pretty great to have her doing so well right off the bat. St. Mike's sixth member is Anita McGrath, and Physical Ed. has decided on Peggy Wallace and Mary Arnold to complete their four-man team.

The tournament is definitely set to start off today, so just pretend what we said yesterday was meant for today—cause it is!

Basketball practices are still being practiced so we'll just wait and see how things are tomorrow.

let's go places

Cecil B. DeMille scores again with a picture in which only a galing gun takes a bath, there is merely one major fire, and just one pitched battle — a dozer. "North West Mounted Police," starting at the Uptown today, differs from previous efforts about the Red Coats in that only one huskie comes into prominence and there is no aurora borealis. It all takes place in the summer, of course.

Seriously, it's a swell picture. The cast is excellent: the girls will just love Gary Cooper as the Texas Ranger who wrecked the Riel Rebellion; and if the boys don't fall for Paulette Goddard (cute little savage) they just aren't human. Robert Preston is the duty conscious sergeant in the R.N.W.M.P. who loves a nursing sister, Madeleine Carroll. The poor fellow has a rather hard time, what with having Cooper around!

How DeMille manages to entwine a twosome and a triangle in the Riel Rebellion and not strain credulity to the breaking point, is nothing short of marvellous. He does it with properties which are undoubtedly authentic (especially the medal around Miss Carroll's lovely neck, borrowed from Toronto), and a cast which, with due apologies to certain members, seemed merely to have to act naturally to fill their parts. The whole of Canada should benefit from an increased tourist trade after this spectacle. The Canadian scene in technicolour really looks quite luscious. Americans will probably love it.

R.C.A.F.

The Royal Canadian Air Force requires wireless and electrical mechanics. For information apply R.C.A.F. recruiting centre, 297 Bay St.

Men with experience of modern radio are invited to volunteer for service with the R.C.A.F. in Canada and Overseas. These volunteers are required for the maintenance of various types of radio equipment used by the R.C.A.F., the development of which is expanding with great rapidity. This work provides the best opportunity for service for men with an up-to-date knowledge of radio equipment.

The knowledge of the Morse Code is not necessary. Volunteers should have a good practical knowledge of modern superheterodyne receivers and of servicing and fault-finding. They should preferably have some experience of short-wave receivers and should have mastered at least the elementary basic principles of radio transmission and reception. Men who have had knowledge in the servicing of the better types of radio receivers for some time are particularly suitable, as are radio amateurs who have operated their own radio transmitting sets.

A large number of those selected—possibly up to 1000 or so—may be sent overseas almost at once where they will receive special training in the work they have to do.

It is emphasized that this work is of great importance and interest.

OFFICERS

A limited number of vacancies for officers in the same branch is also announced. Candidates should preferably have a degree in physics and must have a first-class knowledge of modern radio both on the theoretical and the practical side. Radio amateurs with long experience are particularly eligible. In any event it is desirable that candidates should have had experience of short wave transmitting and receiving.

Professional experience in radio is not essential but candidates must have an absolutely sound theoretical knowledge.

ART, MUSIC & DRAMA

lowed by The Donkeys, a novelty by Grook, and Dohnanyi's thrilling Rhapsody in C Major.

Miss Parsons' second group began with a composition by Schumann entitled Soaring which was unfamiliar to this writer. Its atmospheric quality was well conveyed by the artist. Her two Chopin numbers seemed unusually good to a listener unprejudiced by hearing Rubenstein the previous evening. The Valse Brillante in A flat was particularly well executed, its rhythmic quality being unmarred by over-sentimentalization.

The final two-piano group presented another study in contrasts. Opening with a lilting Jamaican Rumba by Benjamin, it continued with an étude by Babine, a strange, melancholy work which was followed in turn by a bravura piece entitled Rolling Fire. Finally came the Rhapsody in Blue, played with real artistry as well as brilliance.

Several encores were given in response to the enthusiastic applause of a well-satisfied audience.

EDGAR SIMON

Shirley Temple's latest screen appearance provides fair Grade B entertainment. Its story, if it can be called such, has to do with a five-and-six-a-day team (played by Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood).

YOUNG PEOPLE (wood) who leave the board for the farm, are received rather frostily by the rural folks (exaggerated Puritans) only to have everything end up hunky-dory when Wendy's (Shirley) father rescues the son of the man who has made life a veritable hermit's existence for him. The show contains a couple of neat dance routines. The shots of Shirley from earlier pictures are cute. Nice for the kiddies, but scarcely for erudite university students.

Public Deb. No. 1 is the other feature, also a slick Grade B offering. It has to do with a soap heiress turning Communist and back again, contains some hard attempts at bright quips between Bellamy, Joyce and Murphy, and sums up to "Hurrah for the U.S.A."

A NAMELESS VOICE keeps phoning The Varsity news room and asking "Is Mr. Maloney there?" ... To whom it may concern, there is no Mr. Maloney on The Varsity's editorial staff, and furthermore, THIS SORT OF THING MUST STOP.

CHERCHEZ LA FEMME DEPT.

A perfectly good friendship was nearly broken up over a woman the other day. ... Seems two gents rolled into class and sat down. ... A goddess in saddle shoes panted in just as the lecture began, and sat down beside them. ... Then her pen ran dry, and she asked the nearer male if he could have some ink. ... "Why, sure," said he with utmost gallantry. ... And proceeded to assist her to a copious shot of the fluid from the bottle belonging to the other man in the class. ... He, poor dupe, was taking notes at the time, missed the whole incident, and awoke to find the fiend escorting the girl to her next lecture on the strength of his ink. ... IT SEEMED GROSSLY UNFAIR TO HIM.

AT CHICO STATE COLLEGE in sunny California, they have a new system for coaching football teams. ... Coach Ray Bohler reports that he always carries a portable radio set with him as the Chico Wildcats run through their plays. The idea is that the Wildcats are swing-conscious, and the tempo at which they play can be controlled by the type of jive exuding from Bohler's radio. ... If those Wildcats want to retain their old team-apart spirit, however, we suggest that Bohler never tunes the dial to "Let Me Call You Sweetheart", or anything decadent like that.

TWO OF THE GIRLS at Whitney Hall are sound sleepers. ... So sound, indeed, that they never hear the first rising bell. Until last week, that is, when it finally penetrated their slumbers. ... Up they leapt, and to the conclusion that it was the fire alarm. Pawning only to find a towel apiece about their night attire, and not even bothering with lipstick, they pored down stairs and into St. George Street. ... Wasn't that a silly thing to do?

ADDENDUM to our It Could Only Happen At Baylor Dept. ... The Rev. and Mrs. Clifford Potts, both of whom attend classes at Baylor, have a 17-months-old infant. ... Complications arise as to how Potts Junior is to be cared for as the parents rush to and from lectures. So they have it figured this way: they attend alternate classes, with Mr. Potts starting out at 8 o'clock. He rushes home at 8:55 a.m., and meets Mrs. Potts on the street carrying the child. He seizes it relay-runner style, and carries it back home, while she just has time to make her class. ... Then they reverse the play at 10 o'clock, at 11 o'clock, and so on all day. Well, that's matrimony for you.

"Erastianism, Erastianism," says the prof a bit testily. "Are you not familiar with that term?" ... "Yes, sir," comes back the student, "but I never use it myself."

ANOTHER PROF, one of those deep boys in the Department of Philosophy, propounds the following thought one for the class yesterday. ... "Is it necessary that we assume the existence of a universe upon which to base our concept of cosmology? In short, is the universe necessary?" ... To which chirps back the babe in the front seat, "No, sir, but it helps a lot!"

Cody To Lead Ceremony Of Burning War Stamps At All-University Dance

Five Orchestras to Provide Hart House Dancers with Sweet and Swing from Nine to Two

TUCK SHOP OPEN

Adding patriotism to pleasure 1000 couples will swing to the music of five bands at the All-University Fall Dance tonight. The ticket issue, limited to a thousand, was sold out in less than a day and a half of sale.

No person will be admitted without a ticket and tickets will not be sold at the door. Disappointed ticket holders are disposing of their useless admissions at a premium.

This year the All-Varsity will feature a War Savings Stamp Burning Ceremony at which H. J. Cody, president of the university will officiate at 11.15 p.m. in the Great Hall. No ticket will be honoured without a War Savings Stamp affixed to it. The stubs on which the stamps are affixed will be torn off at the door and later in the evening they will be burned in the Great Hall.

halt!

by h. d. h.

This week saw the various units of the "Aux. Bat." getting a little more venturesome. Platoons began weaving in and out amongst each other with comparatively few casualties, some of them even going so far as to break up into mock companies for company drill and forming long, single "columns of route." This made life on the front campus more exciting, but also a good deal more confusing. What the Battalion seemed to need most was a nice, comprehensive course on "How to recognize which of three or four officers bawling commands in the immediate vicinity is addressing YOU."

One of these columns of route things, Platoon 21, to be exact, was filing along in mid-campus Monday when Warren Stevens, its able but somewhat soft-spoken instructor who was marching behind the column, commanded an about turn and wheeled about. About half the column heard the command and followed the officer. The remainder plodded faithfully on to the other side.

Girl Athletes Not All In Course Says Co-ed

The suggestion that girls in the Physical Education course win all the athletic championships was emphatically denied in an interview yesterday by Beryl Pollock, "Physical Ed." co-ed who admitted "they win a few, but a lot of these are just luck."

Girls go into this course to teach Physical and Health Education in high schools afterwards but not because they are excellent in sports. Many of the graduates after teaching a few years go abroad or to the United States to study. There are 17 students enrolled in first year, six of whom are men. Men and women students take only a few lectures together, however.

Although the immediate purpose of the course is to provide qualifications for teaching, it also gives a knowledge of how to keep in good health and develop the habit of playing games and of entering into other forms of physical activity.

Columnist's Item Becoming Trite

"Betty Toddie, of the University of Pittsburgh, says life for her is simply peachy. Betty is drum majorette of the Pitt band, and is wild about her new job. 'It's marvellous!' she raves. 'There I am walking along, and I look over my shoulder and see 120 men all following me!'"

There is no particular point in reprinting the above item from "Feminine Sports Reel" on page 23 of today's Globe and Mail, especially since the same item appeared word for word on Tuesday last, in Guest Artist Owen Prichard's "Hither and Yon," and we simply had to fill up space.

"I don't mind Miss Rosenfeld using my stuff," said the sports editor in an interview last night, "but I do wish she'd rewrite it."

Family Basis For Marriage Says Speaker

Four Possible Approaches to Marriage, Asserts Rev. J. D. Parks in Hart House Afternoon Lecture

MAN UNIFIED PERSONALITY

"Marriage is an art," it was stated by Rev. J. D. Parks during his lecture on "Preparation for Christian Marriage" in the Hart House music room yesterday.

"This art must be learned, and consequently must be studied constantly," the speaker continued.

Mr. Parks described the various approaches to the marriage problem. He named four of these, the scientific, legal, personal and religious aspects and discussed the scope of each.

"The modern Christian attitude," the speaker continued, "regards man as a unity rather than a dual personality of which the spirit represents the good qualities and the flesh, the evil."

Consequently, he pointed out, the modern church can discuss marriage problems freely, without the shame or fear which such a subject would have aroused in earlier times.

Mr. Parks stressed the importance of outside interests to the happily married couple, and stated that a main factor in man's development from the primitive state was his interest in his child.

It is when a couple are solely concerned with each other, he continued, that they become tired of each other and consider their marriage a failure.

Poet's Future Promising Says M'Callum

Lecturer Quotes "The Hamlet", and "Einstein", to Illustrate His Theories on MacLeish in U.C. Lecture

WEST HALL CROWDED

"MacLeish's image of mankind is a fresh but traditional one," asserted Prof. H. R. MacCallum of the Philosophy Department in his lecture yesterday on Archibald MacLeish. This was the second in the popular series on "Recent American Writers" in University College. In anticipation of the same crowd which overflowed from Room 8 at last Thursday's lecture, the West Hall was used to seat a capacity audience.

Prof. MacCallum traced MacLeish's development as a poet to ascertain the direction which his thought was taking. Quoting profusely from "The Hamlet of A. MacLeish" and "Einstein," he showed the poet's "growing ethical awareness" and his departure from introverted poetry.

MacLeish has recently come into prominence, the lecturer pointed out, by his article "The irresponsible" in "The Nation" of last May, which interpreted the true crisis of the time as a cultural one. The real enemy of the Nazis was "the rule of law, spiritual authority, and intellectual truth," and it was the duty of "all writers and artists to defend civilization with the weapons of words."

"Anything MacLeish produces," concluded Prof. MacCallum, "will have quite unusual importance. He is worth watching."

AUSTRIAN ARCHDUKE TO RETURN

En route to Montreal where he will deliver a lecture, Archduke Felix of the Hapsburgs, who last year spoke to university men at S.C.M. Wednesday noon-hour talks, will arrive in Toronto this week-end, it was learned last night.

The Archduke is a brother of Archduke Otto, heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary. Archduke Otto also came to Toronto last year, visited Hart House and delivered a short talk in the Debates Room, in which he stated that he considered a Danubian Federation of nations a prerequisite for the establishment of peace in Europe.

The Hapsburg Archdukes, who had been resident in Belgium with their mother, the former Empress Zita, were forced to flee the low countries during the debate last spring, and are now resident on this continent.

Archduke Felix' only address will be delivered at Newman Club Sunday morning. Following the speech he will hold an informal meeting with many of the Austrians who have recently come to Toronto, including those in academic circles.

Flowers From Private Parties Grace Graduate Dining Room

Great Hall frequenters who may have felt twinges of jealousy at noting the colourful splashes of floral filigree on the tables in the Graduates' Dining Room, Hart House, as they passed by, may rest assured that the favouritism is not so lavish as it seems. The posies are just second-hand ones, it was learned yesterday.

Blasting the fond masculine theory that feminine admirers of Hart House habitues place the flowers there, Assistant Comptroller Cowan explained: "If the flowers which organizations supply for their private banquets in Hart House last all night, they are placed on the tables in the grads' dining room and in the Great Hall."

"Unfortunately," he added, "Hart House has not yet reached the happy stage where it can by itself provide flowers for the tables."

But the origin of the flowers is not completely unromantic; many of the flowers are fresh from wedding ceremonies celebrated in the little chapel in Hart House.

SCORELESS TIE FEATURES MEDS-DENTS SOCCER GAME MULLETT, BAIRD STAR

Meds and Dents battled to another of those scoreless draws which have characterized so many of the soccer contests to date.

Jack Mullett put in one of his usual stellar performances and the former intercollegiate star came close to the net on many occasions, but just failed to ring the bell.

Doug Baird was a potent driving force for the doctors and travelled miles in efforts to dent the cage but all to no avail.

Meds: Robinson, Boyd, Davey, Wilford, Ford, Hutchison, Seymour, Townsend, and Baird.

Dents: Feasby, Cleed, Johns, Macfarlane, Schwabman, Moore, Grainger, Mason, Jardine, Mullett, Chapman and Elliott.

CONSCRIPTION TALK STOPPED AT M'GILL

Alleged Police Interference Reason Given for Cancellation of Lecture. Houde's Secretary Speaker

VOTE ADJOURNS MEETING

Montreal, Oct. 24 (CUP)—A scheduled meeting of the Political Economy Club of McGill University at which the topic of discussion was to have been "Is conscription of wealth and manpower desirable?" was adjourned shortly after opening last night due to alleged police interference.

The speakers were to have been Lucien Croteau, secretary to the interned Mayor of Montreal, Camille Houde, and a student; neither of them made an appearance at the meeting.

At an executive meeting held before the general convocation met a statement was prepared declaring the meeting adjourned since the speakers would be compelled to address the gathering under conditions alien to the traditions of the club. A motion from the floor to the effect that this was unconstitutional was carried after discussion by a vote of 28-19.

Victoria S.C.M. Plans Popular

"Response to the study group program in the Vic S.C.M. has been very enthusiastic," said Jim McNeilly, president of the Student Christian Movement in Victoria. "We have availed ourselves of excellent leadership from the members of the faculty of our own university," he said. "In planning the groups (Continued on Page 3)

Secretary of Inter-Parliamentary Association to Speak in Debates Room at 1.30 p.m. Today

WIDELY TRAVELLED

Sir Howard d'Egville, secretary of the Inter-parliamentary Association of the Empire, will speak on "The War and its implications for Canada and the Empire" at 1.30 p.m. in the debates room in Hart House today, it was announced.

Sir Howard, who bears the title of Knight Commander of the British Empire, has travelled widely in his capacity as secretary of the association. He has made a special study of imperial and foreign affairs.

The Inter-parliamentary Association of the Empire is made up of members of all the legislatures in the Empire. Sir Howard has in the past few weeks made visits to several provincial legislatures of the Dominion and has recently returned from Washington.

Sir Howard received an honorary degree of LL.D. from the University of Toronto during a visit here in 1937.

President H. J. Cody said in an interview yesterday that the Association which Sir Howard represents acts as a clearing house for information regarding the legislatures of the Empire. "It acts as a force for better understanding between parts of the Empire," Dr. Cody said.

Poetry Needed With Religion Says Wallace

Both poetry and religion are based on the same fact, Dr. M. W. Wallace, principal of University College, said yesterday when questioned on his talk, "Poetry and Religion", to be given at 5 p.m. in the Women's Union today. "This world we live in is a queer mixture of good and bad; even if we get all the good by itself it does not satisfy us very completely. It is because we do not get satisfaction here that both poetry and religion arise," Principal Wallace said.

Dr. Wallace's talk is the first in the "Meet the Profs" series arranged by the Student Christian Movement of University College.

Hart House Opens Doors To Public On Sunday

Visitors' Day, Inaugurated in 1934 by Warden Bickersteth, Draws Increasing Numbers Yearly

TD TOUR HOUSE

Although Hart House will be open to the general public this Sunday, "for all succeeding Visitors' Days, guests will have to be introduced by members," said Mr. H. J. Sissons, secretary of the House, yesterday. A general tour of the House will be conducted this Sunday by 50 committeemen, he added.

Visitors' Day was inaugurated in 1934 by Mr. Bickersteth, who felt that the public should be given an opportunity of seeing Hart House. The attendance that year was 835, whereas last year showed an attendance of 3,000. Authorities believe that this spectacular

Classes Not So Important Is Lecturer's Opinion

Lectures Just for Students Who Won't Read, Nash Avers at "Why Go to Lectures" Series

ADVISES FEWER NOTES

"The usefulness and importance of lectures is frequently overestimated," Dr. Philo Nash, anthropology lecturer, told a group of students at Wynnwood yesterday in the orientation series on "Why Go to Lectures?"

"Lectures are for students who either don't want to, or won't read," he declared, but proceeded to point out a few general rules which should be followed by students who wish to enjoy and profit from their professors' classroom discourses.

"Listen more and write less," Dr. Nash advised, since it is more important for the student to grasp the essence of the professor's ideas than to have

DIRECTORY NOTICE

extensive notes.

His second rule was to study less and read more, so that students will have read books other than the prescribed texts.

"Don't take your professors too seriously," he concluded.

Oil for the Lamps of War

Before war broke out, any evaluation of comparative strength of the various powers always included oil resources, and this item was placed close to the top in order of importance. The coming of war proved correct all assumptions that this was to be a mechanized war in which offensive power as well as domestic supporting power would be determined by the possession of fuel. Since war began, a main object of both sides has been to cut off the other's oil supply, either by blockade, by negotiation, or by destruction.

Without enormous supplies of oil no combatant nation can long carry on, either on land, at sea, or in the air. It has been estimated that 250 tons of fuel are needed to give one pilot a thousand hours' training, while a bomber carrying two tons of bombs and raiding for six hours uses up nearly five tons of highest-grade aviation gasoline. Likewise mechanized land units require huge quantities of fuel, and the world-wide transport system that brings the means of existence to embattled Britain depends on fuel.

In the battle to obtain oil Britain has been forced in holding sea power, which means that she can blockade the enemy and at the same time ensure safe transport of oil to her own shores. At present it is estimated Britain controls most of the world's tanker tonnage. All non-European oil sources are pretty well closed to Germany now, and although she supplements her native resources by synthetic production, she is unable to produce more than five million tons a year and that sum is being cut down rapidly if we can take reports of R.A.F. activities at face value, or even at fifty percent face value. Roumania is a big producer, and in the past she has provided Germany with large quantities of oil. Now the Nazis are probably still getting large amounts, but her total available resources can hardly approach the twelve million tons a year held to be the minimum need for total war. From France they get little, and it is unlikely that Germany is receiving much from Russia, now that the two are slowly moving towards a meeting in the Balkans. The Axis powers would undoubtedly like to get control of the highly productive Iran and Iraq oil fields, for the most part under British and American ownership. Here sea control of the Mediterranean is a vital factor in Britain's favour.

Accurate predictions are always difficult to make, especially from a comfortable seat thousands of miles away and with only fairly accurate figures to go on. But it seems safe to assume, granted the continuance of British sea control and blockade and of destructive R.A.F. raids over Germany and German-controlled territory, that the Nazi machine will soon feel a greater and more serious pinch in its oil resources than it has experienced up to date. It may prove to be an early decisive factor.

Battle of the Soil

Recognizing the vital importance of the farm vote in America, both major political parties now engaged in election combat in the United States have catenated to that vote by nominating champions of agriculture as running mates for the presidential candidates. Choosing the nominee for the Vice-Presidential post has always been a delicate problem, for it provides the opportunity to bring different sections and even conflicting elements of the nation into harmonious support of the party program. If the presidential nominee is an Easterner, invariably his campaign mate comes from the West or the South; if the former has industrial connections, the latter is chosen if possible from the ranks of agriculture.

Two men who have spent most of their lives working for agriculture have been nominated for Vice-President, Henry A. Wallace running alongside Roosevelt, while Charles L. McNary is expected to bring the farm and Western vote to Willkie. Wallace, former Secretary of Agriculture, has long been a serious student of agricultural problems, and from him emanated most of the ideas which underlay the New Deal's farm program. Much of that program has been seriously criticized. It has been felt that useless spending was indulged in, and that a terrific waste of crops resulted under the Administration's policy of acreage control. This is, in part true, but the A.A.A. achieved many positive results for farmers and for the nation itself through extensive soil conservation projects and scientific agricultural instruction.

The Democrats claim to have doubled the farm income, lowered farm mortgage rates, saved thirty million acres by soil conservation, and benefited many farm families by rehabilitation loans. This may or may not be true. If it has been done, it has been entirely through government spending to buy up surplus crops, to pay farmers for plowing crops under, and to make loans to destitute farmers. Such spending can hardly help the nation, apart from its contribution to soil conservation. That alone is a concrete achievement. The other results of spending have served merely to increase the income of one group at the expense of all other groups. Thus reason the Republicans who severely attack the Administration's farm spending program. "The American farmer is at least entitled to the American market, and no Treasury benefits can compensate him for its loss," stated McNary in his acceptance speech. He advocated a two-price system, setting a protected price for grain consumed locally and then selling the surplus abroad for what may be obtained. Concentration on securing markets was emphasized by the Republican nominee, who pointed out that American wheat exports have dwindled considerably in the past few years.

Whatever the outcome in November, it appears that the American farmer will have a champion wielding the gavel as President of the Senate, the position which is held by the Vice-President. It remains to be seen whose theories and programs of action will benefit the farmer most.

Watch the Interference!

Tomorrow afternoon the university military training units will hold their usual drill. That recalls to our mind an annoying condition that was all too prevalent in downtown Toronto on last Saturday's three-mile route march. A large number of civilians, men and women on foot and boys on bicycles, persisted in breaking through the ranks between companies in complete disregard of common politeness and respect for a military parade, to say nothing of the fact that the Militia Act makes very definite provisions for dealing with persons who cross a parade ground or cut through a parade unlawfully. Nor did the Toronto police help matters a great deal, for at Adelaide and Spadina a member of the force deliberately let cars go between the last two companies.

We feel that the public does not do this sort of thing intentionally but only due to carelessness and even ignorance of the fact that it must not cut through the ranks of a parade. If the public was better informed we are certain such actions would come to a stop. They would co-operate if they knew the correct procedure.

Yves Tinayre

Posterity no doubt will regard Yves Tinayre as one of the outstanding musical scholars of our age. The audience at Eaton Auditorium last night was privileged to hear one of the most truly artistic concerts in Toronto's musical history. The program, with a rather unimportant exception, was absolutely superb. To get the exception over with: the modern works by Ravel and Debussy seemed out of place and even decadent beside the power of the ancient masterpieces which made up the rest of the program.

Two unaccompanied selections, one of which was the final encore, were certainly among the highlights of the evening. The audience had learned enough between the first number and the last that its response was really enthusiastic. It was a bold thing to attempt (and a greater thing to succeed) in catching an audience's attention with such "difficult" music. The motet O bone Jesu by Hammerschmidt was a revelation of early Lutheran liturgical music. Bach's genius stood out in its proper light against all others

Slaughter In the Side Pocket

"If you value your life do not investigate this intinto this Case."

This note, backed with the full force of a wickedly-flung seven ball, startles Fotheringham and Marlborough-Beach from their quiet examination of the facts concerning the brutal murder of six Schoolmen and an Aerial Navigation student of uncertain age. The wording of the note immediately makes it clear to our pair of super-sleuths that a Pass Arts student is the heinous culprit. Now read on.)

"The murder was done with a salmon sandwich," said Marlborough-Beach reflectively.

CORRECTION

Students' Handbook, Page 66. The telephone number of Kappa Alpha Theta is incorrectly listed. The correct number is Mi. 8315. Please make this change in your Handbook.

"Good Gad," I cried, "to the Tuck-shop, quick. Only the lowest type of bounder would stoop to buying a salmon sandwich."

For four days and four nights we stood watch over the counter. Ham, egg and minced sandwiches flowed across the counter in a never-failing stream, accompanied by arsenals of coke bottles, and buxom stubby oranges.

Late on the fifth day, just after I had taken over from Marlborough-Beach for the dog watch, I heard a furtive whisper:

"A salmon and a dark, bub."

As the figure slouched away with his booty, I followed him stealthily, after rousing Marlborough-Beach from his fitful slumber with a well-aimed cherry pie-let.

Before I could overtake my quarry, he had disappeared in the murky depths of the billiard room. Without bothering to trace him, I beckoned Marlborough-Beach to follow me and groped my way toward the grim bulk of Table No. 4.

A group of S.P.S. men were gathered around the table, studying ballistics. (Good Gad, can another hellish murder be brewing? Will Fotheringham and Marlborough-Beach succeed in forestalling the callous crime and in bringing the murderer to justice? Read this column to learn the answer to these questions.)

Minos and Omar.

In Bis di bei mir and Mozart's ideal of melodious church music was represented by an Aria from his C major Mass—Agnus Dei. These two and some of the modern works were probably all that most of the audience had ever heard before.

Mr. Tinayre, to mention one more thing he does well, has a fine speaking voice. His reading of the translations of the Latin songs added not a little to the splendid effect of the whole evening. The pianissimo he achieved, while scarcely audible, had a marvelous purity of tone; his enunciation was flawless. But it will be because of the "unknown" music which he sang that I shall never forget this evening.

Documentary Film

The Toronto branch of the National Film Society opened its current series of showings Wednesday night at the Art Gallery with a program of documentaries. The scarcity of continental films in Canada has caused the society partly to rely on American films, of which The City was an example. It was produced by Civic Films with Ralph Stiener and Willard Van Dyke as directors and a commentary by Lewis Mumford.

This picture is a much discussed documentary on town planning sponsored by the American Institute of Town Planners and financed by a grant from the Carnegie Corporation. The original outline of the film was furnished (Continued from Page 3)

Red-and-White Footballers Fail to Click, Bow to Engineers

Don Grosskurth Collects All Points for S.P.S., While U.C. Fumbles Way to Defeat in Afternoon Fixture

AXON STARS FOR COLLEGE

Junior S.P.S. came out on top of a one-sided score on the back campus yesterday, as they whitewashed the University College footballers by 8-0.

A placement which didn't quite pay off, and went for a rouge, and another single from the toe of Don Grosskurth sent the Engineers into an early lead, which was made secure by a spectacular converted touch in the second half.

True to promise, the Red and White hearted some razzle-dazzle plays which at times caught the Schoolmen flatfooted, but they were unable to make their passes click when the chips were down. Grosskurth was the money player for School, scoring all their points, and rallying the Engineers whenever he was on the field.

Though he scored no points, Hal Axon of U.C., with his brilliant snaggling of forwards, was the day's chief ground-gainer.

School's first scoring opportunity came in the first quarter, when a U.C. plunger dropped the ball as he was tackled, giving S.P.S. possession on the Artsmen's 25-yard line. Working the ball in, Grosskurth attempted a placement which went wide, and gained a single point for the Engineers. Another U.C. bobbler gave School the ball on the Red and White's 30, whence they advanced to the 24. A possible major score was averted here when Tommy Jarvis messed up Grosskurth's attempted forward. On the last down Grosskurth's toe sent the oval winging for another single tally.

In the third quarter an S.P.S. end run ended on U.C.'s 10-yard stripe. A plunge through centre brought the Engineers three yards closer. After the Red and White had blocked a School attempt at a field goal, a referee's ruling returned the ball to S.P.S.

The Engineers lined up in placement formation again, then tossed a quick pass down the right side to Don Grosskurth, who reached up through a swarm of U.C. players behind the goal-line to make it good for a major score. Grosskurth converted his own touch with an encores of the previous play.

The Red and White then launched an aerial attack which almost upset the Engineers. Axon was all over the field after McKinley's passes, and completed the classiest play of the game as he

A SCHOOL OF SKILLS

Comparatively little mention has been made in these columns of the activities of other universities in an athletic vein. Thumbing through our exchange editor's files we can across an item which we thought might be of some interest to you as it was to us.

The Department of Physical Education in McGill University has introduced an elaborate School of Skills this year. The first of these schools is well under way, namely the Rugby School, and has been closely followed by a second school under the direction of a fellow by the name of Em Orlick who has begun a series of classes in which students will be trained as Squad Leaders.

Arrangements have already been made for a squash demonstration in preparation for the opening of the squash school. Notices, too, have been posted with regard to wrestling, fencing, boxing and weight-lifting and as soon as sufficient interest is evidenced to warrant it, a school will be started in each of these sports as well.

The School of Skills is open to any student in the university, and the teaching of Game Skills is regarded as most prominent. According to the men of McGill, there are many students who have never played certain games because they have never had the opportunity of learning and it is the foremost endeavour of the School of Skills to remedy this situation by providing expert instruction in any popular sport or recreation.

The School of Skills looks to the future as well. They hope to teach students how to play games with a definite carry-over value. Games that a student can play and enjoy not only during his academic career but after he takes his place in the business or professional world, will be stressed.

Finally, the School of Skills hopes to make a definite contribution to the student health standards by providing every student in the university with some form of recreational or athletic activity in which he can participate with some degree of skill.

We wholeheartedly agree with the McGill assumption that this innovation will be an overwhelming success with a goodly amount of student co-operation. What do you think, Steve?

AND IF YOU'RE STILL AROUND

The notice is up for the men who come to Phil's place about the Billiards tournament. And there will be prizes too. Although the prize for first place is a wrist watch and for second place a combination cigarette case and lighter, the choice of prizes is optional.

The list closes at twelve noon, Saturday, November 2nd, and there's no cutty fee, so grab yourself a cue and start practising. It's open season for the poolhounds. . . . And then there is another kind of shooting you can do. But this time it is in connection with the University of Toronto Rifle Association. According to the poster outside the range you can become an expert and there will be excellent coaching. The Mitchell Cup and the DeLury Shield are the rewards for interfaculty competition and you can win the Utton Cup for yourself. . . . Boxing interest has reached a real high, according to sock instructor Mel Giionna and some promising young talent has been uncovered already. Bill Ramore at 155 pounds, Frank Patterson, former intercollegiate champ, at 147 pounds, and Ralph Stanley at 135 pounds are those of last year's punch fraternity who have returned to faithful practice. . . . The novice harrier goes off tomorrow morning at ten thirty and all entries should be in today at the Athletic Office. It will be a three mile run which will probably start at the Engineering building and go around the university grounds. . . . This not being my regular day for the S.O.S. there will be no lesson today but we'll be conditioning you—next week.

VIC VOLLEYBALL—

Practice for senior team at 1 p.m. today.

VIC LACROSSE—

Important practice between 2 and 3 p.m. today.

ST. MIKE'S LACROSSE—

Meeting of lacrosse players in common room of Fisher House, this afternoon, 3:30 p.m. Everybody turn out.

There have been no clear statements from critics as to whether the film makes a strong emotional appeal or whether it gives a matter of fact exposition of things as they are and things as they might be. In view of the lack of opinion on this point it is fair to assume that the film mixes both states and hence causes the confusion among the critics.

Three short documentaries added to the National Film Society's program give enough variety to relieve it from being a purely architectural study. These were Kensal House, Statue Parade and a study of the photographer Steichen entitled Master of the Camera.

The hand of Paul Rotha showed itself in Statue which reviewed in pure drama the familiar landmarks of London. As a documentary this picture is an object lesson of essential principles in social photography. H. CAMPBELL we have tried to provide for all the needs of students in their preparation to take their part in modern society."

The "Social Problems" group under Mrs. Goudge has been the most attractive according to the attendance. Last Monday afternoon over thirty-five Vic men and women began a study of relative standards of living among Canadian youth, the effect on society of military mobilization and university settlement work.

Marg Eagleson, the associate president, explained that previously the student groups had been the chief source of interest in Vic S.C.M. This year the policy is to hold an open night each month of "Fun, Forum, and Food". The first of such nights will be in the second week of November.

Prominent foreign students who are studying here and who have been active in the Student Christian Movement in their native countries are to be guests in charge of the Victoria College chapel services during the week of November the eleventh.

U.C. RUGBY—

Practice Saturday, Oct. 26 at 10 o'clock. Everybody out.

The interfaculty tennis tournament finally got underway this morning, in the wee small hours, i.e. 9 a.m. Out of the 34 entries, thirty received byes into the second round. This sounds peculiar, but since the ruling is that no player may meet another from her own college until the fourth round, it is easy to see the difficulties that there are involved in making the draw for the tournament.

Those who were successful in the first round are Virginia Rapzell (6-1, 6-0) and Connie Harrison (6-3, 4-6, 6-2). In the second round the results so far show: for Vic, Virginia Rapzell, Flo Allan, Christina Brownlee, Ida Tipp, and Viola Noden; for Trinity, Joan Griffith, Mary Woods, Eleanor McLaughlin; for Physical Ed, Mary Arnold, Pat Austin, Ruth Carleton; for U.C., Barbara Greenleaf, Marg Magrath; for Meds, Lillian Karmalska. St. Mike's last chance lies with Betty Kirby, who is drawn against Vic's Betty Bell, last year's champion, one of the only two second round matches left to be played.

U. of T. Contingent, C.O.T.C.

Orders

by Major W. S. Wilson, E. D.

Acting Officer Commanding
Part I.
23rd October, 1940.

(19) Battalion Parade.

The Auxiliary Battalion will parade on Saturday, 26th October, 1940, on the front campus. Companies will fall in on the company parade grounds at 1345 hours and will form up in battalion in mass at 1400 hours.

(20) Band.

The Band will parade with the Auxiliary Battalion on Saturday, 26th October, 1940, at 1400 hours.

(21) Officers' and N.C.O.'s Refresher

Class.

A refresher class for officers, N.C.
O's and instructors of the Auxiliary Battalion will be held daily until the end of the week at 1700 hours. All officers, N.C.O.'s and instructors will attend when not on duty with their companies at the hour noted. Fall in at the front entrance to University College.

(22) Students Not Admitted to C.O.
T.C.

Students who had applied for admittance to the C.O.T.C. and who were not accepted must register at once in the orderly room of the Auxiliary Battalion.

(23) Lecture for Auxiliary Battalion

Officers.

A special lecture for all officers and attached officers will be held on Monday, 28th October, at 2045 hours, Room 41, Physics Building. All concerned will attend.

of the campus, while a few worried individuals in the middle vacillated, running first with one group and then the other. It was not until each column had reached an opposite side of the field that the irregularity was noted and the squad held a reunion.

The wandering spirit of the platoons was somewhat checked, however, when rifles were introduced among the student soldiers. Like inquiring children with new toys, they spent the inter-missions fidgeting about with the mechanism, peering at things through the sights, and generally getting acquainted. Hefting the ponderous pieces, though, the boys were not so sure that the new visitor was such a pleasant acquaintance. "If you hold your rifle properly," one officer told his squad,
"the fellow behind you won't have to duck."

"Wait till you get bayonets," another leered sinisterly.

"How much do these things weigh?"
asked a recruit of his sergeant.

"Oh, about three pounds. Wait till you get the bayonets," was the reply.
He didn't believe it either. After the drill we tried it with a post cue. Ever so much more fun.

However heavy, the rifle seems to be here to stay for awhile. Unhappy students can perhaps console themselves with the thought that they will likely develop a grip of steel and a nobler soul.

University to Confer Doctor of Laws Degree On Governor-General

His Excellency to Receive Honorary Degree at Special Convocation to be Held November 15th

FIRST OFFICIAL VISIT

The Earl of Athlone, Governor-General of Canada, will have an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws conferred upon him at a special Convocation to be held Friday afternoon, November 15, in Convocation Hall. His Excellency will be accompanied by Princess Alice.

Details of the Convocation ceremony have not been completed, but the hope was expressed by Dr. Cody that a special honour guard of the University Contingent of the C.O.T.C. might be formed for the occasion. It was intimated that the Governor-General might review the C.O.T.C. and the Auxiliary Battalion on the front campus, but plans are as yet indefinite.

This will be their first official visit to the University of Toronto campus since His Excellency came to Canada last spring to take over the Governor-Generalship of the Dominion, left vacant by the death last Friday of Lord Tweedsmuir.

The Earl of Athlone received an honorary LL.D. degree from McGill University three weeks ago. At present he and Princess Alice are visiting the United States.

College Magazine To Be Featured By Photography

U.C. Undergraduate Follows
Trend Toward Pictorial Reporting; Single Issue Planned for This Year, Editor States

PHOTOGRAPHERS BUSY

The Undergraduate, official magazine of University College, will definitely follow the trend toward pictorial reporting of college events in its single issue this year, according to statements from Editor-in-Chief Ken McNaught.

McNaught stated that both social and athletic activities of U.C. will be pictorially covered. "Already several photographers are busy taking shots at rugby games and at the few social gatherings held so far," he said. The Literary Directorate has seen fit to grant considerably more money for use in this department, he said, and the fact that there will be only one issue rather than two has made more money available for a photography section.

Contributions are already flowing in, and indications point to increased interest in the publication this year, the editor asserted. Photos of general college interest and notices regarding editorial office hours will be posted on the Lit bulletin board.

A Bonfire For Victory

President Cody lights a bonfire containing $250.00 worth of War Savings Stamps in a special ceremony during the All-Varsity Dance at Hart House. One thousand couples attended the dance, tickets for which had been sold out since the second day of sale. Five orchestras were in attendance. The stamps had been sold with the tickets and were collected at the door.

DEAN GALLIE HONOURED BY AMERICAN SURGEONS

Dean of Medical Faculty Elected President of American College of Surgeons at Recent Chicago Meeting

Dr. W. Edward Gallie, surgeon-in-chief of the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children and Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, has been elected president of the American College of Surgeons at a recent meeting in Chicago, it was learned Saturday.

The presidency of the American College of Surgeons, composed of representatives from both Canada and the United States, is the first conferred upon a Canadian. The A.C.S. is the largest organization of surgeons on the continent.

Dr. Gallie is well known for his work in improving the training of surgeons and the efficiency of local hospitals. Born in Barrie, Ont., and educated at the University of Toronto, he was made a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1918 and was the first Canadian to address that organization. During the last war he served with the R.C.A.M.C. and organized the Davisville Military Hospital at Buxton.

Visitors Wax Enthusiastic Over Wonders of Hart House

"Absolutely marvellous!" was the comment prevalent among 1,300 visitors who toured Hart House yesterday afternoon.

The annual Visitors' Day crowd generally rated the swimming pool as interest number one. Favourite adult exclamation of "What a beautiful tank!" mingled with the younger generation's wishful sighs, "Gee, I wish they'd let me go in there."

Running a close second in the line of attractions was the display of Their Majesties' signatures, given on the occasion of their visit to Hart House in May of 1939.

Shepherded through the tortuous tunnels leading to the rifle ranges by committee-men's cries of "Keep to the right, please!", the guests termed the ranges "smart", and expressed great pleasure with the theatre, their next point of call.

The surprise of the tour seemed to come when the visitors, having viewed the art gallery with appreciation, discovered the local barber shop and shoe shine parlour.

The music room was conveniently scheduled in the tour as an oasis for the weary, many of whom sank down on the blue leather lounges with deep sighs of gratitude. From there the sight-

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

War Savings Stamps Burn In $250.00 Bonfire At All-Varsity Dance

President Cody Sets Off Blaze Consuming 1,000 Stamps in Five-Minute Ceremony in Great Hall

FIVE ORCHESTRAS

In a five-minute ceremony dramatic in its simplicity, President H. J. Cody Friday night fired $250 worth of war savings stamps during a brief intermission in the dancing in the Great Hall of Hart House, to make the annual All-University Fall Dance a definite contribution to the Dominion Government.

Referring to the occasion as an historic one which showed "the eagerness of each of the 2,000 students present to assist in the cause," the president, using a kerosene-soaked copy of The Varsity as a torch, touched off the blaze.

A small group of students crowded around the fireplace to look on while the flames crept around the special wire container in which the stamps had been placed and in a few minutes the stamp-bearing counterfoils of the 1,000 tickets which students had bought up less than 48 hours after they went on sale were completely destroyed.

Trimming of dance expenses was not noticed by the students themselves, however, who expressed hearty and universal approval of the entertainment offered. Five orchestras supplied the music, and refreshments were served in Tuck Shop and Music Room.

SYMPHONY TICKETS

A limited number of tickets to the concert of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra tomorrow night will be available to undergraduate members of Hart House at the Warden's office today.

Canada Important Factor In War, Speaker States

Sir Howard d'Egville, Secretary of Inter-Parliamentary Association, Calls Canada-U.S. Alliance "Great Event"

HART HOUSE SPEECH

"The defensive combination of Canada and the United States is one of the great events of the war and the key to greater co-operation in the future," declared Sir Howard d'Egville, secretary of the Inter-Parliamentary Association of the Empire, to a group of undergraduates in Hart House during the Friday noon-hour.

"Canada will be one of the factors of decisive importance in victory in the future. But it must be recognized that this war won't be won without tremendous sacrifices because we can't win without going into Germany, and we can't go into Germany without tremendous losses," said Sir Howard.

The noted parliamentary authority saw the same unity in this country as in Britain, and expressed the belief that the Monroe Doctrine of the United States depends on British sea power. He paid tribute to the armed forces of the Empire, and concluded with a quotation of Churchill's: "When victory will come and so it will, it will be not only for ourselves but for all, for our day and the long and better days to come."

The speaker, who received the degree of Doctor of Laws from this university in 1937, was introduced by President Cody.

Follies Chorus Earns Praise Of Director

Jack Lemen Considers Future of Professional Dancing to Lie in Motion Pictures and Television

EXPERIENCED IN BALLET

Jack Lemen, star of several Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer shorts, and dancing director of this year's U.C. Follies, told The Varsity yesterday that he considered the future of professional dancing lay in motion pictures and in television.

JACK LEMEN

Mr. Lemen, already well known in movies, hopes to become a picture director.

He praised highly the girls of the Follies chorus. "Some are as good as many girls with whom dancing is a career," he said. "They work hard, and we are able to use routines approaching (Continued on Page 4)"

Archduke Felix Claims Democracies Will Win

Austrian Prince in Newman Club Speech States Belief that Revolution will Break
Out in Occupied Countries

SABOTAGE IN AUSTRIA

The democracies will win the war despite the fall of France, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Norway, said Archduke Felix von Habsburg, at the Newman Club yesterday morning.

The Archduke, introduced by Father McHenry, Rector of the club, said that on his last visit here he had foretold an allied victory and still believed in a victory for the democracies.

Since Austria was the first country to be subjugated it was the first nation in which an underground resistance began to be formed, he declared. Recently a large arms plant in that country was seriously damaged by sabotage; this event, he said, never reached the newspapers due to German censorship.

He expressed a belief that revolutions would break out in the conquered nations and stressed the fact that they had been conquered one by one.

The Archduke said that the tank, as a weapon, is efficacious against a fixed line but loses much of its value when employed against separated, strong positions.

British air strength, he said, would be such that by the time the nations were ready to revolt it could be of material assistance to them.

He asserted that France and the Netherlands fell because they did not have a properly organized resistance and that France was unprepared for the war spiritually. Britain, he said, had the spiritual requirements for such a war as this, was completely united under one man and not divided among allegiance to many parties as France

NEW QUEEN'S CHANCELLOR

Hon. Charles A. Dunning, former Dominion Minister of Finance, who was installed Saturday as chancellor of Queen's University. Mr. Dunning also received an honorary doctorate of laws, after which he conferred a similar degree on J. B. Tyrrell, Toronto geologist. Hon. Albert Matthews, who was also to have received a degree, was prevented by illness from attending the ceremony.

HART HOUSE ART GALLERY

Dean Gallie Honoured

A signal honour has come to the university with the announcement of the election of Dr. W. Edward Gallie, Dean of Medicine, to the presidency of the American College of Surgeons. Rarely has a Canadian received such a tribute from this body, the largest organization of surgeons on the continent. The election to the presidency is the highest tribute that can be paid any surgeon in North America, American or Canadian, and The Varsity, along with the entire staff and student body of the university, is proud to offer its congratulations to Dean Gallie.

Will Tradition Win?

The American voter next week faces one of the gravest problems ever put before him. American history can show few elections which were held during periods so critical for the nation's welfare. Domestic problems are numerous, and the Administration record of the last seven years provides supporters and opposition alike a multitude of fighting points. The world abroad holds many threats against the security of the American nation.

Such issues as these would be more than enough to complicate an ordinary election. But in this year 1940 (Year of Roosevelt 8) another issue, crusted with tradition and constitutionality, has taken pre-eminence over all others and has left the American citizen squirming. America next Tuesday must decide whether or not she will break a tradition as old as the Republic and re-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term as President.

It would be presumptuous for us to tell the American voters what to do; it would even be beyond us to give a sound opinion for we cannot know the spirit and the forces of tradition that dwell within those citizens. The charges are, of course, that President Roosevelt is becoming a dictator, and that a third term would be, if not actual dictatorship, at least "the prelude to Nazism." He is accused of trying to weaken and undermine Congress, the Supreme Court and the free press, the three institutions which anti-third-termers are now calling "These three vital checks on the ruling head of a country." It is pointed out that in seven years Roosevelt has been able to appoint five of the eight members of the Supreme Court, thus giving him control over the majority of the highest tribunal in the land. But above all, of course, his opponents and even some of his former supporters, fear that he will get a permanent lease on the White House.

The third-term tradition originated with the precedent set by Washington, whether on principle or from personal inclination it is unknown. Jefferson gave that precedent emphasis. It was taken up by his successors, and the Senate passed an anti-third term resolution in 1824, while Andrew Jackson, who could have had a third term, recommended a single four or six year term. The issue has arisen since the Civil War with Grant, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and Coolidge, but never reached the nomination stage.

Certainly history tells against a third term. Certainly an expanding bureaucracy under the New Deal has led to increased dependence on a paternalistic billions-spending government. Certainly there was a definite court-packing attempt. But it seems a trifle difficult to believe that if President Roosevelt is re-elected, the people will be unable to dislodge him. We do not believe the fiction that the President was drafted against his will to accept the nomination. The whole thing was a piece of political manipulation, not too well carried off. But the people can safeguard themselves against dictatorship by exercising discrimination at the polls, for if thinking voters wish to retain a man who submits himself for re-election, dictatorship is not implicit in that decision. They elected him, and if they do not want him after his term has been served, they can elect another in his place, for he is not holding office by force of arms. To us it seems that the whole issue should resolve itself down to the extent of the national emergency in relation to the world today. If it is so serious that the voters prefer to keep the present incumbent in office to tide over the crisis, let them do so. If they think the other candidate for office could handle the situation adequately, then let them exercise their right of choice. However, they should weigh carefully the gravity of the situation, and be absolutely certain before they declare themselves unable to change horses. For it is a serious thing when the idea develops that a man is indispensable, and especially serious is it when that man also gets the idea.

Save the School Song

Probably no force is so versatile in its power or so universal in its command as music. The intricate patterns of a symphony, the smooth, romantic swing of a waltz, the thumping beat of modern jive, the clamor of circus music, or the earnest endeavors of the neighbour's boy learning to play the saxophone—each produces a definite emotion more effectively than it could be evoked by any other means. "Music hath power to charm," to stimulate, to disgust.

Music is also one of the more subtle and effective methods of torture. For the past two Saturdays, recruits have been forced to stand at attention while the familiar and once-loved notes of "The Blue and White" were blared repeatedly without variation. Two weeks ago one student counted the university song 28 times, steadily beating school spirit out of the hearts of its listeners; last week the performance was repeated. It is doubtful whether any melody can stand such a test, however able the musicians, and those which make up the C.O.T.C. band are not irreproachable. As a test of discipline, however, it proved splendid, and every officer demonstrated his training and courage by standing unflinchingly and without wincing.

It must be realized, in all fairness, that the players in the band are probably among the worst sufferers. Faced not only with the tiresome exigencies of a route march, they must carry instruments and play them as they go. No one is closer to the sound they may produce than themselves, and they must be confronted not only with the music, but also with the responsibility for producing it. In defence of the Battalion, the school song, and themselves, authorities might ease the situation by seeing to it that the C.O.T.C. band acquires and makes use of a larger repertoire.

The First All-Medical

The executive of the Medical Society are to be highly commended for their ambitious project of inaugurating the first All-Medical Banquet to be held this Thursday in Hart House.

The banquet is replacing the old soph-frosh banquet, and it appears to be a big step in the direction of developing an "all-faculty" rather than a "year" spirit. It is a step which all faculties and colleges would be well advised to consider, for although year spirit, and year gatherings to engender that spirit, are fine things, a wider college or faculty spirit is much more desirable. A function such as this, in which members of every year will mingle, can do immeasurable good to individuals and to the faculty as a whole.

Meds have been fortunate in securing Brigadier Eric Haldenby to speak at the banquet, and considerable time has been spent in the preparation of an entertainment program. Members of the Medical Faculty are assured a splendid evening, and they should support this new departure with unanimous enthusiasm.

Sunday Evening Concert

A concert by the Hart House String Quartet is contemplated by the reviewer with mixed feelings. While there is no doubt concerning the real pleasure he receives while actually listening to the concert, he finds himself sadly at a loss for words when he sits down to write.

Last night's program did not even leave room for

The Kiddies' Korner

The Kiddies' Korner this will be,
Just heaps of fun for you and me.
Just heaps and heaps and heaps of fun
For me and you and everyone.

There once was a rabbit named Gus Whose boy-friends had taught him to cuss.
The cat's that he swore
Would have started a war,
But they're really too filthy for us.

An amiable goldfish called Jim
Was always heard singing a hymn;
His dignified wails
Quite panicked the frails
But the poor little dog couldn't swim.

CORRECTION

Under threat of a libel suit, the Cat withdraws a remark made in Friday's issue which casts aspersions on the accuracy of the Students' Handbook. In future, all mention of inaccuracies in this publication will be made in other columns of this newspaper.

A wart hog, inclined to be rude,
Insulted a fox and was sued;
When the D.A. inquired
How the whole thing transpired,
He replied, "I just felt in the mood."

There once were some bees in a hive
Who were brim-full of pep, zip and drive;
From morning to night
They shooed plenty of fight
But deplorable absence of jive.

A zebra called Joe by his friends
Had stripes that curved in at the ends;
When asked how it came
That they all were the same,
He said, "Ah jest stretch and they bends."

The usual criticism regarding choice of numbers performed. All three of the works scheduled were unfamiliar and interesting, and the encore's familiarity only added to its appeal.

The opening number, a suite by H. Waldo Warner, "in the olden style" was a perfect model of the 18th century, from opening prelude to closing gigue. It was played with all the precision and sprightliness required.

The following number, a scherzo by Beethoven, presented that composer at his most genial. Even a listener unfamiliar with the technique of string quartet music was instantly struck by the typical Beethoven revealed in the handling of themes and particularly in the development sections. A paradox in the piece was the first theme which, but for change of rhythm and mood, was identical with the main theme of the Appassionata sonata.

Smetana's Quartet Aus Meinem Leben, reviewed previously in this column, was a welcome novelty. This work is an expansive one, easily winning the listener with its intimate style and its variety of emotions. The mingling of joy with melancholy, of melody with discord, added to the peculiarly striking flavour of Bohemian national music, add appeal to this unconventional work.

Tchaikovsky's Andante Cantabile, perfectly rendered, completed the program, which augurs well for a fruitful Sunday Evening Concert season.

Volkoff Ballet

Comedy bits, pantomime, intricate posing and difficult acrobatic stunts composed a prominent part of the performance last night of Boris Volkoff's Canadian Ballet, in aid of the Red Cross, supported by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Sir Ernest MacMillan and Ettore Mazzoleni.

More definitely "the dance" was a group of numbers performed to the accompaniment of Chopin waltzes, nocturnes and preludes. The technical perfection of Patricia Drylie indicated a

Schoolmen Again Triumph As Lorimer Leads Field In Novice Harrier Event

School Freshman Followed by Bennett of St. Mike's and Lewis of Victoria in 3½ Mile Jaunt

70 U.C. STARTERS

Gord Lorimer of S.P.S. came home in front of a field of 127 at Saturday morning's Novice Harrier to send another championship down to the Little Red Schoolhouse.

The results being computed on the placing of the first four men of each faculty, the Engineers were allotted 33 points in the meet, with U.C. second at 57 and Victoria third with 79.

Lorimer's time for the jaunt around 3 1-2 miles of Varsity campus was 23 minutes 59.3 seconds. The promising freshman from School now adds this meet to a string of victories started in his days at U.T.S.

Following Lorimer across the line in Saturday's race was Frank Bennett of St. Mike's. In the show position came George Lewis, a frosh at Vic, chased by Wright of Meds, who finished fourth.

Track coach Hec Phillips was well pleased with the showing of the large field of runners, and hopes to see some of them entered in the Senior Harrier which will be run over the High Park course next Saturday morning.

University College had the largest group entered from any one faculty, with a total of 70 starters.

Pugilism Proves Panic Panacea

By Sam Kehler

Have you ever been embarrassed? Has your closest rival got a wicked left jab? Or were you ever in a jam? Well, boy, here I am to tell you how to make all your troubles vanish into thin air. And how to become glamour boy of your set.

You don't take any special pills, injections or any kind of gas. You don't even consult your nearest grocer. What you do is grab the nearest pair of fast-moving running shoes you can beg, borrow or steal, snaffle a heart-full of ambition, drag along your liquidid adipose room mate and there you are. Right smack in the middle of Mel's emporium. Down the slaughterhouse groove.

If you see a number of wild-eyed young men, who look comparatively intelligent and correspondingly athletic, don't get scared or panicky, just act nonchalant. That is the secret of every great man's success. That's it boy, act nonchalant.

Or better still amble over to the man with the dreamy eyes and leather face protector and ask him, nonchalant like, to give you a few pointers in the gentle art which he is trying to expound to fresh eager young worthies around and about the sock exchange. Which, we assure you in our most smooth-flowing Oxford English, he will.

"THE DAY THE BOOKIES WEP!"

That chap you saw riding around in the swell car, smoking a two-fifty cigar, is the one who put his shirt on Argos to beat Ottawa last Saturday. We, like thousands of others, thought the only possible outcome was an easy victory for the Rough Riders. We were all wrong, and for once glad to be wrong.

The Scullers played inspired football and deserve unstinted praise for a great victory. Yes, we know that Ottawa fumbled its laterals and didn't have Golab and so on. But think of that Argonaut line, after being pounded to pieces by the burly Rough Rider plungers just a week ago, returning to outfight them along the line of scrimmage so consistently that the first-down gallops of Sprague and Co. were the exception rather than the rule.

The fact that Red Storey and Captain Art West were on the bench only heightens the achievement. It may be that the team would not have had so much fight if the two flashy halves had been in the game. Their absence made it all the more necessary for the line to dig in and hold every yard gained, and for the hard-worked half-backs, Coulter, Selkirk and Morris to add the extra bit of speed and shiftness needed to advance the ball.

Did you notice the number of Collegians and ex-Collegians who figured in the classic tussle? There was George Meen on the Argo line; and Cluck MacLean, of Queen's and Varsity, who at one stage in the game pounced on an Ottawa fumble to give Argonauts possession on the enemy's six yard line. There was Doug Annan, formerly of Queen's, who put up the sort of fight one always associates with the teams that were drilled under Ted Reeve. It must have done the old Moaner's heart good to see his former charges still full of the old yet. And what Varsity student wouldn't give anything to be rooting again for a team with Bobby Coulter doing his sensational running through a maze of tacklers! Another Sculler star who is now at Varsity is Elwyn Morris, who must be finding it quite a jump from the Toronto Secondary School League to the Big Four. Morris turned in a grand performance on Saturday, and was uotshone in his running attempts only by the inimitable Coulter.

What we liked about the whole thing was that it was anybody's game throughout. However, the tide seemed to turn in Argos' favour when Hi Living intercepted an Ottawa forward on the Rough Riders' 46 yard strike. After Stokus had lifted a poor punt to the other side of the field, and Ottawa had tried to hoof it out of danger, Coulter and Morris combined for a miraculous runback which took the ball from the Argonaut 52 to set it down on the Ottawa five yard strike. Then, with four minutes of play remaining, came a time which for sheer football drama has seldom been surpassed. Annan plunged for a couple of yards, and Selkirk moved the ball to in front of the goal-posts. Then Annis Stokus had the fate of the game on the end of his toe as he sent a placement between the uprights to send Argonauts into the lead.

There have been greater football games and greater teams, but few games so exciting and few teams so glorious in victory as were Toronto Argonauts in Saturday's game.

THE SWIMMING SERIES

An opportunity for the average swimmer to have a lot of fun, as well as make some points for his faculty, is provided by the round robin swimming series which commences in Hart House pool on Wednesday. At 5:00 St. Mike's take on Trinity, and at 5:30 Knox and Wycliffe battle for swimming honours in their group. Please note that this series is not just for the aquatic stars, but for anyone who can swim with reasonable speed a couple of lengths of the tank. There are four groups of faculties, and they are arranged so as to give as good a balance as possible.

The following events are carded for each meet: 150 yds. medley, 50 yds. back stroke, 50 yds. breast stroke, 50 yds. free style, and a 200 yd. four-man sprint relay.

Swimming Club Secretary Bob Telfer plans to have the series completed by the end of the Michaelmas term, after which the water-polo schedule will get under way. Incidentally, this series should prove valuable as a tune-up for those intending to participate in water-polo in the Easter term.

SET-UP AND SPIKERS PREPARE FOR SEASON

By Fred Hall

Once again that familiar cry of "Kill it" is resounding across the upper gym—volleyball is here again.

Pre-season dope on the volleyball situation seems to favour Dents A to win the Victoria Staff Cup. Last year the Molarnes were finalists and that was as far as they got as U.C. Seniors spiked themselves to victory.

Lanky Bruce Mackenzie, set-up man Jack Mullett, and high jumper Oliver Brett will be the mainstays of this year's team. The latter two form one of the best set-up and spiker combinations to be seen in the interfaculty league. These veterans, strengthened by Ed Schneider, Ralph Smyth and Cleo, should compose a formidable team.

Last year's champs, U.C. Seniors, have suffered badly from graduation as captain-coach Ed Peart, and spikers Munroe Murray and tall Vern Charlesworth have all gone. However, there remain Charlie Dubin, Somy Gold and Bill Cowan from last year's squad. The addition of several promising juniors should be able to uphold U.C.'s last year's laurels in the play-offs.

Coach Charlie Dubin is enthusiastic over the chances of his U.C. Juniors. He said, "There are more out this year for the junior squad than there has been in the history of U.C." Some of these juniors are Spikers Dan Stokalo, Jim Bitove, Earl Brown, Norm Green, Mort Berg and "Mac" MacKinley.

Also to be seriously taken into consideration are Meds A and Trinity A. The Doctors will again have Al Lane, Murray Cash and Levitt, while the Anglicans will have flashy Francis Tseng and Cowan. Emmanuel has entered two teams and their A team is a decided threat for they have tennis stars Bruce Hall, Doug Green, Kitchen and Whallop out, and these will be strengthened by some of Vic's last year grads. Victoria also reports encouraging turn-outs, while School has yet to get enough men out to make up its four teams.

With twenty-five teams entered including four from School, three from U.C. and Meds and two from six other faculties, the volleyball court is going to take a terrific pounding before the finalists are declared.

Saturday was a red-letter day for upsets—for two corking good reasons! Argos defeated Ottawa, and still we shriek, and Marg. Woods, St. Hilda's freshe, dethroned last year's tennis champ, Betty Bell of Vic, in an honest-to-goodness "thrill-dripped" match—expression uprooted from your Toronto Daily Star, thank you! The similarity between these two events occurs mainly in the fact that the Star describes the rugby game as thrill-dripped twice in one column!—and that we certainly think such a picturesque expression can be applied equally well to that match which kept us out in the cold for a good long stay on Saturday afternoon. The scores for the three sets were 6-8, 6-3 and 7-5 for Marg., and with all the admiration we hold for her really magnificent placement and sizzling shots, we offer a good hearty handshake all 'round for the splendid fight put up by Betty. It was a tough match to lose, either way, and a beauty to win—and, as far as we're concerned, no simple tennis court will ever, ever find either of those two and us on it at the same time!—never, for the slightest, most insignificant reason?—no never!

Today finds us into the quarter finals with the exception of two third-round matches yet to be played; Ida Tipp Vic, vs Pat Austin, Phys. Ed., and Peggy Wallace, Phys. Ed. vs Viola Noden, Vic. Those now set for the quarter-final matches today are Ruth Carleton, Vic, vs Marg. Magrath, U.C., and Marg. Woods, St. Hilda's, vs Flo Allan, Vic. Virginia Rappell, Vic freshe, gets a bye into the semi-finals as Joan Griffith has been forced to default due to a broken finger, received in a tussle with a basketball.

We are told that Saturday's match between Marg. Magrath and Christina Brownlee, Vic, was loudly enjoyed by the Air Force en route to the rugby game. Apparently this rowdy crew almost caused the match to be postponed due to the "rattling" effect it produced, but the two gamely stuck it out—no defeat for the R.C.A.F.!

high degree of both talent and training. Here the orchestral work was not merely background for gestures but forms part of the continuity of rhythm movement. The piano work done by Margaret Clemens was the perfection of dance accompaniment.

The wild and furious gyrations performed to Moussorgsky's Gopak contained feats of quite amazing proportions, exuberantly and expertly the dancers leaped about the stage. Representative of the folk rhythms of another part of the world, was the Irish Sketch of Janet Baldwin and John Marsha. In a costume which defied all the laws of the symmetry of the human form Elizabeth Johnstone's Flirtation Waltz was a bit of mimicry, a morsel of action very deftly done.

Although heard far too often the Romeo and Juliet Overture, as performed under the baton of Ettore Mazzoleni was undimmed and revealed the fact that Toronto has yet another conductor of talent. One of the most interesting moments of the evening was provided by a fine bit of solo work on the flute which appeared as the orchestra wound its way through the slow grace of the Gluck-Mottl Ballet Suite No. 1.

Adequately grotesque in pantaloons and armed with an umbrella, Wendy Canetta was at one and the same time dancer and comedian in "The Big Top". Boris Volkoff with customary spontaneity smoothed things out between the acts of this circus pantomime.

in intricacy those used by professionals." "Such productions as the Follies," he went on, "are valuable in a college because they not only afford opportunities for those interested in dancing as a career to gain valuable experience, but they also bring out hidden talent."

In 1936 Mr. Lemen went to the Berlin Olympics with a Canadian dance team. Mary Wilder, who is in the coming Follies, was with him in the Berlin group. Mr. Lemen is widely known in Europe and on this continent for his dance presentations. These run the gamut from soft show comic numbers to serious ballet work.

Mr. Lemen has appeared with Boris Volkoff at the Promenade Symphony concerts, and two years ago he played the leading dance part in the Toronto Opera Company's production of "Tannhauser". At the present time he is divided between professional engagements, teaching and dance directing. Several of his proteges have become well known, among them Toronto's Nancy Ann Featherstone and Joan Livings, one of the Hollywood Kiddies.

Due to insistent popular demand Mr. Lemen will probably present some of his floor show numbers as a feature of this year's Follies. Plans are not yet complete, but it will be at the dance after the stage show that the audience will have the opportunity of seeing the dance director in some of his own numbers.

JOURNALISTIC BATTLE OF THE CENTURY is waging at the moment between two of our better contemporaries, The Harvard Crimson and the Cornell Daily Sun. . . . The whole thing began October 14, when Athletic Director Ogden Miller of Yale announced that the sons of Old Eli were abandoning "big-time football" because they no longer were in a position to, nor wished to, compete against certain of the Ivy League teams, notably the University of Pennsylvania, which he accused of sponsoring professional football. On October 15, Athletic Director Bill Bingham of Harvard endorsed Miller's remarks, said that once Harvard was free of schedule commitments, which extend to the end of next season, only schools which have "educational and athletic standards similar to our own," whose teams play "a brand of football free from any subsidization" would be carded. A by-line article on the Crimson's front page said, "In any new regime, two former members of the Ivy League will not be tolerated. The outlaws will be Cornell and Pennsylvania." An editorial the next day continued in a similar vein. Enraged, the Cornell Daily Sun went into action, shot a 389-word telegram to the Crimson, and lampooned Miller and Bingham, Champus Cat style, on the editorial page, as well as printing the telegram and quotations from Bingham's statement and the Crimson editorial on Page 1. Meanwhile the sports editor of the Yale Daily News said that Miller of Yale did not want "to eliminate Penn and Cornell from the Ivy League," and the Daily Pennsylvanian held aloofly silent. The Crimson printed the Sun's telegram in full, and after the Sun had fired another editorial, the feud calmed down over last week-end. But, on Wednesday, a series of articles by the Crimson's sports editor and the by-line writer who delivered the original polemic made its appearance. The series deals with football subsidization in Eastern colleges. Thursday's article was headed "Career

Two pictures are billed at Loew's this week: Wyoming and Doctor Kildare Goes Home. In the first, Wallace Beery plays Wallace Beery, LOEW'S and in the other, Lionel DUEL Barrymore is decidedly BILL Barrymore; Lew Ayres is merely adequate in the title role. As for Wyoming, Beery drew a few laughs as he nonchalantly shot a score or so of people; as for Dr. Kildare . . . well . . . we went home too. —W.A.

MOTION UPHELD IN TRINITY DEBATE

The motion "Resolved that the conduct of the average person is no longer ordered by Christian principles," was upheld by a close vote at the regular meeting of the Trinity College Literary Institute held Friday night.

Those speaking for the government were A. G. Gibson, Paul Christie, J. C. Phillips, Tom Hull and Mr. Edison, all claiming that in the life of the average individual, spiritual values were generally disregarded. Dean W. L. Smith and A. Shepard spoke for the Opposition.

Nelson of Victoria Is First Cody Scholar

H. I. Nelson, IV Victoria student in Modern History, is winner of the First Maurice Cody Scholarship, it was announced Saturday by the Maurice Cody Research Fellowships and Scholarships Committee. The award is of the value of $300. The second Maurice Cody Scholarship, of the value of $200, was not awarded.

These scholarships were established by friends of the late Henry Maurice Cody, the committee stated, and are awarded upon the results of a competitive examination in subjects dealing with Canadian history and economics.

S.P.S. SOLONS TO DEBATE IMMEDIATE DECLARATION OF WAR BY UNITED STATES

The S.P.S. Debates Club will meet on Tuesday, October 29, from one to two o'clock in Room C-22 of the Mining Building, debating on the subject "Resolved that the United States should declare war on Germany now."

Speakers will be Bernard Elkin, IV, winner of the Segsworth Trophy Debate and the public speaking contest in previous years, to support the negative, while the affirmative will be upheld by Park Reilly, III, winner of the public speaking contest in 1939.

Following the speeches by the debaters, impromptu talks will be given from the floor.

Romance came to the Auxiliary Battalion Saturday. She was standing on a corner, one of a group of onlookers, while he, an Engineer, was just one of the 1,500 marchers. "Will you come to the Soph-Frosh with me?" he ventured. "When is the Soph-Frosh?" she countered in some confusion. "Friday," it was explained. Eyes veered right, and men of three platoons followed the little drama, wondering how it would end. Could she sent him to ignominious depths by refusing? She could not, and replied in a blushing affirmative to crown the efforts of the young recruit with success before the sergeant-major set in. Enterprising, practical fellows, these Engineers. . . .

Even the hallowed soil of the campus is feeling the effects of military discipline. Over at the corner of Devonshire and Hoskin lie the partially completed earthworks thrown up over the weekend by the Ordnance Mechanical Engineers, who did it with their little pick and shovels, while cheers from the nearby Arena cheered them — and the Argos — on to victory.

Satisfaction Expressed Over Sale Of Stamps

Secretary-Treasurer E. A. MacDonald's Offer to the Department of Finance Initiated the Arrangement

CERTIFICATE INCLUDED

During the four weeks they have been on sale $275 worth of War Savings Stamps have been sold from the Students' Administrative Council office, it was learned yesterday. This sum includes the $250 worth sold in connection with the All-University Fall Dance. It was hoped at the S.A.C. office that the students and staff of the university will avail themselves of the opportunity to do their part by supporting this effort enthusiastically. Satisfaction was expressed that this spirit has been shown by the sale of stamps to date. The arrangement was made when Mr. E. A. MacDonald, the secretary-treasurer of the S.A.C., offered the services of the S.A.C. office to the Department of Finance at Ottawa for the sale of War Savings Stamps. The authority was granted and the gratitude of the government was expressed. The stamps are sold at twenty-five cents apiece. Along with the stamps a certificate is given on which the stamps are to be affixed. It is then to be forwarded to Ottawa in return for another certificate. In seven and one half years this certificate will be worth five dollars which is a rate of approximately three per cent per annum.

GRAYDON EMPHASIZES NEED TO SEE PROBLEMS

Gordon Graydon, member of parliament for the county of Peel, told students last night that "until as graduates we realize the problems of the people on the bottom rung of the ladder—men and women who need our assistance—only then will our diplomas and degrees amount to a snap of the fingers." Mr. Graydon spoke at a dinner meeting of the Victoria College Alumni in Burwash Hall. Mr. Graydon said that he had never seen parliament rise to greater heights than on the evening of Sept. 9, 1939, when all but three of the 243 members rose and voted for participation in the war against Germany. "We must be the advance guard in leading Canada and the Empire to greater heights," Mr. Graydon said.

VIC DRAMATIC SOCIETY PRESENTS MILNE PLAY

"The Man in the Bowler Hat" by A. A. Milne, was presented by the Victoria College Dramatic Society under the direction of Mary Carter yesterday. Harold Goode and Lorna Ross took the parts of the "prosaic" couple. Others who took part in the play were: Tom Peak, George Forster, Frank Thiers, and Murray Jose. An innovation in the plans of the society this year includes the invitation of criticism from the audience.

New Hostels Appear in Ontario As Hostel Movement Grows

"In Tennessee the hillbillies look just like little Abner and the girl hillbillies chew tobacco like we chew gum," was the report of one hosteler relating her experiences to Joy Martyn of Vic College, Tate House and several hostels trips. Long an integral part of American life, hosteling is also one of the favourite new pastimes in Ontario, and in the northern parts in particular hostels are speedily springing up. Bicyclers, hikers and skiers most often use these hostels, which demand a pass for entrance. As the headquarters have been changed from the S.A.C. office to the Union Station passes are now pro-

Vic Turnabout To Be Held

Tea Dance to be Held on Saturday, November 2 with the Music of Peeewe Norton and His Band

Long before anyone ever heard of Sadie Hawkins, the co-eds of Victoria had set aside one dance during the fall to which they took their men friends. This year the date of the women's fall tea dance comes on Saturday, November 2; the time, 5.30 to 8.30 p.m.; the place, Wymilwood. Sounding the notes for this turnabout occasion will be Peeewe Norton and his band. During the last two seasons, Peeewe's swinger-outers have been accepted by numerous fraternities and collegiates as the right men to provide music for their dances. This year the time has been set back one hour to permit men of the C.O. T.C. and the Auxiliary Battalion to get to the party. As has been the custom in other years corsages ranging from roses to a carrot-mushroom-onion combination will grace the many chests in the crowd.

STUDENTS UNEARTH SECRET WORK ROOM

Hidden in the depths of Hart House is yet another room unknown even to habitues of long standing—the multi-graphing room. From these secret precincts issue those many application forms, concert tickets, menus, invitations, circular letters, letter heads, and place cards that perform an inconspicuous but very useful function in facilitating the flow of events in Hart House. Mr. Perry, known to patrons of the Great Hall as the man who rings the bell on the cash register and dispenses meal tickets, presides during the remainder of the day in the multi-graphing room. Interviewed, he displayed a reticence in keeping with the secrecy of his haunts, but could not altogether conceal the works, piled high with stationery, or covered with his handiwork. Many of the more formal programs are printed outside, as are the election blotters, it was learned. But most of the "work" stationery is printed right in Hart House. However, the most surprising fact about the multi-graphing room is its location. The "downstairs" west corridor which runs past the barber shop and the locker rooms, continues under the end stairs, winds around to the left and into the multi-graphing room whose entrance is thus completely hidden.

RED CROSS COURSES SHOW REGISTRATION TOTAL TWENTY-FIVE

Motor Mechanics Most Popular with Fifteen Applicants; Many Come to Office for Information on Courses

COURSES VERY GENERAL

Twenty-five women have registered in the Red Cross courses to date, Mrs. Robertson, head of the Red Cross Work Room, revealed yesterday. Most of the women came to headquarters only to make enquiries about the various courses, Mrs. Robertson said. Fifteen have registered in the course in Motor Mechanics, eight in the St. John Ambulance First Aid Course, two in the St. John Ambulance Home Nursing, and none in the Elementary Course of Instruction for Red Cross Sewing, she said. Mrs. Robertson said that all the courses were very general. The St. John Ambulance First Aid Course gives general information on what to do in an emergency accident; how to use a bandage, a splint, a tourniquet, etc. The St. John Ambulance Home Nursing tells how to make a bed, give baths, what diets to use, how to look after babies, and information about emergency in the home. The Motor Mechanics Course teaches about the different parts of an engine and what they are for, etc., and the Elementary Course of Instruction for Red Cross Sewing gives information on how to handle a sewing machine and how to put garments together, Mrs. Robertson said.

Past Value Of Cabinet Compared To Present

Imperial War Cabinet not so important Now as During the Great War, Says Sir Howard D'Egville

DOCTOR OF LAWS

By Campbell McLennan

Formation of an Imperial War Cabinet to deal with defence of the British Empire is not so pressing a question today as it was during the Great War, in the belief of Sir Howard D'Egville, K.B.E., C.B.E., secretary of the Empire Parliamentary Association. Sir Howard was interviewed by The Varsity in Hart House when he returned to pay a visit to the University of Toronto, which made him an honorary Doctor of Laws three years ago. A graduate of Cambridge, and barrister by profession, he has travelled widely overseas, and made a special study of imperial defence, foreign affairs and other Empire questions. "Though the Imperial War Cabinet was found of value in the last war, it must be remembered that there have been considerable changes since the last war which have facilitated communications between governments," declared Sir Howard, who was himself a member of the War Cabinet Secretariat in 1917. "For example, the United Kingdom has now a High Commissioner in Ottawa, who is a representative of the British Government, and similarly Canada has one in Britain," he stated, pointing out that this was a change from the set-up in existence prior to the Imperial Conferences of a dozen years ago. "When questions arise for ad hoc treatment connected with the war effort, it is always possible for cabinet ministers from the Dominions to proceed to England for special discussions," he

CREATIVE LEISURE TO BE LECTURE TOPIC

Women's Secretary of S.C.M. to Open Noon-Hour Series with Address on "The Importance of the Amateur"

"The creative use of leisure time seems a very appropriate subject—since most college students think they haven't any," said Miss Jean Hunter, M.A., women's secretary of the S.C.M., regarding a new series of lectures entitled "Creative Leisure" to be held in the Women's Union on Wednesdays at 1.30 p.m. Miss Hunter, a graduate of McGill University, will open this noon-hour series sponsored by the women's S.C.M. ## Pending Affair Big U.C. Event

Initial Joint Meeting of Lit. Society and W.U.A. to be Held Tomorrow Night in the U.C. Common Room

A joint meeting of the Literary and Athletic Society and the Women's Undergraduate Association, official student bodies of the men and women of University College, will be held in the U.C. common room tomorrow night, Charles Dubin, literary director of the Lit. told The Varsity yesterday. "We are holding three joint meetings this year," Dubin said, "although in former years only two have been held. These meetings will be the big informal U.C. parties this year. Tomorrow night each of the four years will present a short skit, and there will be dancing and refreshments. The meeting is open to all U.C. students, and there is no admission charge." Howard Cable's orchestra will play students come to the meeting. "It's the best chance the students of U.C. will have to get together informally," he concluded. "It's fun and it's free."

TRINITY DRAMA CLUB PRESENTS IRISH PLAY

With its setting on an Irish quayside, "The Rising of the Moon" will be presented by the Trinity College Dramatic Society as the third in the series of Wednesday afternoon one-act plays sponsored by the University Drama Committee. The problem of the play, as presented by C. Scovill, publicity director of the society, is the conflict which faces the local sergeant when he comes upon the popular outlaw for whom the police are searching and for whom there is a rich reward.

ANNUAL HADASSAH BAZAAR IS SLATED FOR THURSDAY

A special luncheon for University of Toronto students will be served from twelve until two o'clock on October 31 at Varsity Arena, when Toronto Hadassah holds its annual day-long bazaar. There will be no charge for admission for students coming into the Arena during this period. The bazaar, whose proceeds will aid Hadassah's war budget, will also feature a fashion show, cooking school and dance in the evening. Hundreds of Varsity men and women attended last year and the committee is again looking forward to welcoming them to this gala event, they said.

Classical Music Gains Favour As Student Taste Trend Changes

Students of the university are no longer tuning their radios exclusively to their favourite dance bands, nor do their record collections contain nothing but a mass of swing, a survey conducted Saturday revealed. There seems to be a marked trend toward the enjoyment of classical compositions, though swing is still in demand for dancing. Several students expressed the belief that classical music is an acquired taste. "Classical music is like a foreign language," said Raymond Markham, II Arts, "you must understand it to appreciate it." "You have to be brought up to a taste for classical music," said a Vic member. That people are more conscious of the value of the classics and more ready to like them than they used to be, was the opinion of many

Former Professor of Law at the University of Toronto to be Presented by Students with Desk Set

AUTHOR OF SEVERAL BOOKS

N. A. M. MacKenzie, president of the University of New Brunswick and former professor of law at the University of Toronto, will be paid tribute, in absentia, by former students tonight. President MacKenzie will be presented with a desk set. President MacKenzie was raised in Nova Scotia and studied at Dalhousie, Harvard and Cambridge. He was called to the bar of Nova Scotia in 1926 and joined the staff at Toronto as associate professor in law in 1927. In 1933 he became professor and served in this capacity until his recent appointment at New Brunswick. The gift is being presented unofficially by the law course. Representatives of this group said that the gift is an expression of the esteem in which President MacKenzie is held by his students. A brilliant student, President MacKenzie (Continued on Page 4)

It was at an artillery lecture that the lecturer was explaining the pay received by various ranks: private $1.30; lance-corporal $1.50, and so on, right up to lieutenant-colonel $10 and colonel $10.50. "Any questions?" he asked when it was all over. "Yes," one of the students chirped, "could you tell us what's the allowance for wives?"

Prospective soldiers who still can't tell a pilot officer from a rear admiral might drop around to the Orderly Room. There is a complete form chart posted on the bulletin board which provides the lowdown.

The Dental Company, first N.P.A.M. Dental Corps in Canada, got away from the old right turn, left turn stuff the other day and over in peaceful Queen's Park they took their first battle drill. This consisted in whipping forward in double time and dropping on the stomach at signals given by an officer with a whistle. Most stirring part of the battle drill was experienced by the officers, who had to double-time back and forth around the ends of their squad as it reversed direction.

In the C.O.T.C. there is an "awkward squad", made up of men in their final year who haven't taken any drill before. The other day headquarters forbade. (Continued on Page 3)

MEDICAL CERTIFICATES

Attention is again drawn to the fact that certain students who have received certificates of medical exemption from military training have failed to report to the Auxiliary Battalion orderly room. For their own protection such students should register immediately in Auxiliary Battalion Orderly Room, Hart House.

Revolution

Memory doesn't serve us very far, but it seems that during ten years ago, when we weren't yet a 'teen, a marked and notable change has taken place in the morals, manners and attitudes of people. It is definite enough that this editorial is not a chronicle of the growth of the writer's mind, which some may think, but of a general trend which possibly indicates the character of the future.

Following the last war there was the period whose greatest monument is its name, "The Jazz Age". We are well acquainted with it on account of the notoriety it still boasts, posthumously. Its reputation may or may not be undeserved, but there are some things which cannot be denied: under-the-counter books, preoccupation with sex, bath-tub gin, and a studied frustration of law in the form of the 18th Amendment. Whatever a reformer would think of it all, good or bad, the mad twenties certainly gave increased scope to people's activities, either in widened horizons, or holes in the ground, and many young people have become nostalgic for them, even if they didn't know them.

In 1930, chastened by the depression, and tucked out by their celebration of the armistice, the world entered another phase which was marked by serious thinking, a new rating of the intellect, conscientious objection, and the pursuit of the sweet arts of peace. There was peace. If there was no serenity, it was because of the work done to maintain it.

The student was a power in those days in the early thirties. He formed anti-war, anti-hysteria, anti-all violence and a dozen other societies all dedicated to making the world a better place to live in. The world began to allow him to have ambitions, hopes and dreams which actually might be realized. However, his moral standard might be described, it mirrored his new hold on life. He rationalized the frenzy of his older brother, took what was good from his wild experiments and incorporated it into his plan of a better world.

If this condition had continued, a better society might have resulted, increasingly socialistic, increasingly aware of men's responsibilities to each other, increasingly good. It did continue but for only 3 or 4 short years until it was interrupted by European affairs. For the last six or seven years there existed a tension which throbbed and sang in men's hearts and lives, ever-intensified until its collapse in the declaration of war and a waiting world's sad relief last fall.

As the tension, consequence of a long and tantalizing series of crises, increased so did the feeling of futility. It wasn't much at first, but the decline of pacifism and tributary creeds became speedy. Plans were useless when immediate action was wanted. What was the use of fighting against the inevitable? For several years the war was at least feared, if not considered inevitable. The occasion for stocktaking, the course of events inspired young people to take the cash and let the credit go. Grab what you can. Eat, drink and be merry. Tomorrow's another day and probably a worse one.

The good intentions that had been so important last fall in a scramble to live. There was an intensity to live in the mad twenties too, but it was bumptious and animal. The last few years have seen a desperation and intensity that couldn't be called health. But in a river you swim. On a road you walk. You travel according to the route.

The world has been on a bender now for a good many years. Ten years after the last war, and for the last few. It will stay on one during this war, and for several years after it to celebrate. Committees will settle the boundaries when it is over, but it is a question whether the ideals which were so encouraging for a while will flourish again with their ancient vigor for a long time. It will take strong minds to bring order to chaotic spirits and avoid the unpleasant depravity which has coloured life slightly.

To Be Deplored

The boys in the university residence are at it again and on Saturday had a minor clash with men of the R.C.A.F. which did them little credit. It arose when several parties of officers and airmen returned from the rugby game to their cars which they had parked in the drive in the residence quad. They found the air had been let from the tires, an ancient and vexing prank practised by less mature students.

The airmen were angry. Unlike university students, they are subject to rigid discipline and their time off is unalterably short and precious. An hour, half an hour, even a few minutes means at lot to them. To have their fun limited was irritating. Words were banded, water bombs, fruit of residence genius, were dropped, a regrettable student attitude revealed and the wartime advice of President Cody flouted.

One claimed that since the students had paid their tuition fees, they had a perfect right to restrict traffic. He suggested that of course the airmen would not know what it meant to pay tuition, and classed them as undesirable interlopers. In the particular group he addressed, there were at least two B.A.'s, one M.A., and a B.Sc. When told this, the student made a clumsy withdrawal.

The student demonstrated an objectionable attitude, which we hope does not extend farther than his own snobbishness. His presence in the hallowed halls of South House does not entitle him to think a moron hides in every uniform. The air force, if it does not demand a working knowledge of the law of diminishing returns, at least requires more decency than the student could muster. Again, the whole affair shows a negligence of conduct, inexcusable in the eyes of the public and in the light of President Cody's recent messages. Frivolity in thought and action, he said then, could not be tolerated by people busy trying to win a war. The legal aspect is unimportant. If the students feel that no one should park in that particular area, they should request a policeman be posted there to keep it clear.

End Of The Show

The curtain went down for the last time Sunday night on New York's greatest show and biggest tourist attraction, the New York World Fair. The Fair, dedicated to peace and freedom, opened in the spring of 1939, shortly before peace became a thing of the past in Europe. Before it closed, eleven of the countries represented at it had lost their freedom. The dedication was an unfortunate one.

The Fair ended as it befitted such a monster show to end—with a crowd of more than half a million people—practically all of them bent upon taking part of the big show home as a souvenir.

Academy Exhibition

This year's R.C.A. show now being held at the Art Gallery of Toronto fulfils one's expectations of the Academy—it follows the tradition established by the Group of Seven of a free, rugged, and at times impressionistic style of painting, coupled with the required Academic standard of good craftsmanship. These two qualities plus the individual talent of each painter combine to make a most satisfying exhibition. It is fitting that there should be little here to offend the conservative, for it is rarely from (Continued on Page 4)

GREEK ART TREASURE HERE FOR SAFETY

Priceless Relics of the Glory that was Greece Adorn Various Spots on Campus

DEATH AND METAXAS

Toronto: An unusual surprise awaited the students of the University of Toronto as they hurried to their nine o'clock classes this morning. There, on the back campus in all its glory, stood the famous Parthenon, bathed in the morning sunlight. Sauntering professors and instructors casually pointed out the wonders of the frieze to passing students and conducted them through the Minos maze behind Trinity College. Yes, the famous Greek edifices had been brought from their country on self-propelled barges as a precaution against air-raids, and stored here by the public spirited publisher of the Mop and Pail.

Confusion reigned in Whitney Hall last night when two Centaurs were caught stealing overcoats. "Regrettable," said Filbert Hardwood, head of the Classics department, "but you know Centaurs." The girls nodded somewhat shamefacedly.

Summing himself on the Stoa of the Mu Mu Mu house Professor Fulton H. Underdon buttonholed passers-by and questioned them concerning virtue. Miss Gerfusen complained to the Senate . . . "Regrettable," they admitted, "but you know Underdon" . . .

The Loosoon Group was placed outside the Park Plaza beverage room as a warning to students. . . .

Matters reached a serious head when Professor Underdon was asked to drink a cup of Hart House coffee. When urged to escape he delivered the following words:

UNDERSON: What is escape?
JOHN KIERAN: Escape is the name of a recent best-selling novel by Ethel Vance.

UNDERSON: Then let me put it another way, what is the virtue of escape?

KIERAN: It is divided into three parts.
UNDERSON: Would you call that just?

KIERAN: Just what?
UNDERSON: Just Just.

KIERAN: I see, no.
UNDERSON: Would you call temperance virtue, knowledge justice.

KIERAN: No.
UNDERSON: Then escape is neither just, nor temperate nor virtuous nor a best-selling novel by Ethel Vance.

FADMAN: How many lumps Underdon?

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

I would like very much to contest the attitude taken by the editor of The Varsity on the "Case for the Arts".

Pass Arts is a great deal more than the editor will let on, in that it alone serves as the student's chief foundation before going to Osgoode Hall or O.C.E. But those are not all, or by no means, many of Pass Arts attributes. I too am sorry that some of the editor's friends have found the front door to poverty but I do not think that everyone gets the same results from Pass Arts. Just think of the number of people who want some higher education to a university, but can not afford to spend four years doing it. Well then it is Pass Arts, or nothing! Also think of the many students who are able to get through Pass Arts, but could not manipulate an honour course. Just because they are not as smart as some, it is no reason why they should take into mind the fact that they should have very limited capabilities, and although they are in some cases able to get through an honour course, they are not and never will be able to get a very important job. Nothing more than a clerk's job, or the like of that. Well, what good does an honour course do them? For many people university is just the pass word to being able to earn a living, and once they have gained that pass word then they can go out and start earning their own living. Well most of those people have fair intellects, but nothing out of the ordinary, and an honour course is to them like a mountain is to an ant. You stated that a friend of yours had a hard job to get a position, even after she had scraped hard to get through Pass Arts—well do you think that that girl could possibly get through an honour course if she had to slave to get through a pass course?

You also said that students who have graduated in Pass Arts are not able to specialize after they are finished—well do you think that that is reasonable. Of course they can't—they should have specialized while they were at the university in the course which most nearly covered the specialty which they coveted. You can't specialize in philosophy after you have finished Commerce and Finance any more than you can specialize in business after you have finished Pass Arts. Also think of the many people who, through lack of interest and initiative, would never go to university if they were confronted with an honour course. Pass Arts gives many girls, in particular, an education who would otherwise just stay at home and waste time. Again Pass Arts provides a berth for the student who, upon entering university does not know exactly what he wants to take—it allows him to stay in that course until he can decide exactly what he does want to specialize in the next year.

And finally I would like to say that just because you are in an honour course you are not assured of a job any more than is anyone else. Of course if you have specialized in one course you would have a better opportunity in that branch, once out of university—but on the whole for a business life, provided you are endowed with the necessary virtues, anyone has an equal chance.

There are plenty of people with higher educations than most of us who never get in any honour course, who find that they can't get a job—so then it should be obvious that we must have something other than special knowledge—something there is a fair personality and a good general foundation.

R. Macaulay.

Series of Meets To Be Initiated

St. Mike's and Trinity, Knox and Wycliffe Splashes Vic at Five in Hart House Pool in Series Opener

VARIETY OF STROKES

By Doug Green

A regular schedule of swimming meets between the faculties, never before attempted in this university, begins tomorrow in Hart House pool at 5 o'clock with St. Mike's meeting Trinity. At 5:30 Knox takes on Wycliffe. This innovation has been hailed with enthusiasm by all lovers of this sport, and it seems that swimming has at last come into its own. All the faculties are participating with those in the "A" category entering two teams and the smaller colleges one. They are placed in groups according to strength as in other sports which will add to the interest.

The Intramural Sports Committee on Oct. 17th drew up the rules and regulations for these interfaculty swimming meets which will prevail throughout the coming season.

The events decided upon are as follows and will be run off in the same order.

1. 150 yard medley relay.
  2. 50 yard back stroke.
  3. 50 yard breast stroke.
  4. 50 yard free style.
  5. 200 yard four man sprint relay.
- Regulations:
1. There shall be a double round robin schedule.
  2. A team shall consist of not more than eight individuals.
  3. Each college or faculty may enter as many teams as it so desires.
  4. An individual competitor may enter not more than two individual events and a relay; or both relays and one individual event.
  5. Each team is required to enter two contestants in each individual event and one team in each relay.
  6. There will be two meets operated on each day of the schedule and each meet will be allotted thirty minutes.

The 150 yard medley relay consists of three men, each swimming 50 yards of the recognized strokes, e.g. back, breast and free style. The back stroker starts with the gun, and as he completes the fifty yards and touches the end, the breast stroker takes up the torch. Then the sprint, anchor man, as the breast-stroker touches, dives in for his 50 yards.

For a breast stroke turn it is compulsory that the swimmer touch the end simultaneously with "both" hands, else he will be disqualified. For the back stroke turn a swimmer must touch then and while actually on his back and then turn. A free style turn is much simpler as anything will do so long as the end is definitely touched. It is not expected that the rules with respect to turns will be rigidly enforced for the first few meets but later on they will be. For example, breast-stroke swimmers are disqualified for breaking the water with their feet in the breast stroke, for swimming into an opponent's lane, for false turns, for more than two false starts, and for starting in the relays before their man has touched the end.

got to publish anything about where their lecture was to be, and they assembled in a little knot on the campus only to find out that nobody knew, and that there was no officer to tell them. Bit awkward. Resourcefully, they drew straws and chose a leader, formed up and marched off to the mining building, where they finally disbanded, wondering vaguely where their lecturer was and how he was taking it all. . . .

Regimental Sergeant-Major Andrews, addressing the Battalion parade of the C.O.T.C. last week, was faced with a marker for the machine gun company but no machine gun company. "All you machine-gunners fall in to the left of this marker!" he commanded, somewhat annoyed. A single man dropped over beside the marker. . . .

WYCLIFFE TAKES BEATING AS KNOX WINS 5-0 LEAD

Knox trimmed Wycliffe 5-0, in a one-sided soccer match yesterday. Forbes Thomson was the star for Knox and scored all their five counters. Parke-Taylor was outstanding in the losing Wycliffe cause.

Knox: MacSweeney, Graham, Currie, Self, Near, Thomson, McKenzie, Barr, McKay, Schizler, Jack, Evans, and Stewart.

Wycliffe: Coleman, Sutherland, Hazell, Abbott, Nickle, McDonald, Fry, Smith, Bradbury, Kerr, Parke-Taylor, Dowlan and Thompson.

By Marg. Foulds

Yesterday in the cold gray dawn, U.C.'s last hope in the person of Marg. Magrath, our American visitor, went down to defeat before the steady shots of Ruth Carleton, Physical Ed's real threat. Thus, Ruth made the semi-finals and seemed to be well on the road, but (weren't for long!) After lunch, Ruth was called to meet Virginia Rappell, that diminutive little fresher from Vic—and that was that! This success places Virginia in the finals to be played this afternoon on the St. Hilda's courts at 3:00—don't let it rain, will you? Marg. Wood, that amazing young fresher from England—now St. Hilda's pride and joy—met and defeated Flo Allan of Vic and will meet Ida Topp of Vic today at 10 o'clock to decide who is to meet Virginia this afternoon.

We would like to mention that Vic has done exceedingly well, having four of its members reach the quarter finals and all six survive the second round; that the freshies are certainly showing us old folks just what the score it 'round about; and that Physical Ed, considering they only have eleven members from which to select a team of four produced a game bunch of players. That's all—ill three this afternoon. Come and see for yourself.

Basketballers please observe the women's basketball schedule given elsewhere in the paper and don't think you know what's in because it appeared before, 'cause you're wrong! This one is different—yes it is. We find that we aren't the only ones that make mistakes!

SCHOOL SECURES WIN WITH SCORE 8-0

Easy Victory is Threatened by Senior School's Rugby Team Over its Group Rivals; Meds Losers This Time

Senior School's rugby team is threatening to win in a walk over its group rivals. Yesterday afternoon at the Stadium the Engineers rallied to an 8-0 victory, their third straight win of the season. The victims this time were Senior Meds.

On two occasions in the first half, the toe of Jack Plaxton earned the Engineers a rouge by means of his punting.

In the third stanza, the Medicos were fighting to pull out a win, but fumbled on their own ten yard line. Chuck Reuben pounced on the loose leather and galloped over the line to put the Schoolmen in the clear, Plaxton converted, the count 8-0.

Murray and Spence played outstanding ball for the Men in White, and Clinkett turned in a good performance in the hooting department.

Herbie Barrett and Ron Fugler were towers of strength for the winners.

Sr. S.P.S.: Hurst, Munro, Plaxton, Hawken, Fugler, Barrett, Hodgson, Baker, DePaul, Reuben, Mees, Percival, Finlayson, DeMarco, Coughlin.

Sr. Meds: Murray, Cody, Ross, Wells, Turner, Dixon, Dyer, Mighton, Irwin, Quigley, O'Brien, McNeil, Campbell, Mottrian, Spence, Arturs, Virtue.

ST. MIKE'S WINNERS IN VOLLEYBALL GAME

Lack of Organization Among Vic Players Cost Them the Game; St. Mike's Secured Early Lead and Held It

The interfaculty volleyball season opened yesterday afternoon with St. Mike's A team outclassing the Junior Vic team, winning two straight games 15-3, 15-6.

The boys of the Double Blue were better organized and had good spikers and set-up men. Vic lost chiefly through lack of organization.

In the first game of the best two-out-of-three, St. Mike's grabbed an early lead and held it throughout the game. The second game started more evenly but Vic could not reply to the perfect spiking of St. Mike's.

Butler, Brady and La Varnway were the best of St. Mike's, although all were good. Gripton showed most skill for the losers, with some good serves.

St. Mike's: Dougherty, Luddy, La Varnway, Butler, Kompf, Gray, Brady, Waldron, Granfranceschi, O'Connor, Roberts.

Jr. Vic: M. Johnston, R. Johnston, Nixon, Brokenshire, Gripton, McClelland, Landell, Gay.

VIC ATHLETIC UNION—

Meeting of the executive today at 1.15, Alumni Hall.

VIC VOLLEYBALL—

Speaking OF SPORT

By Sam Kehler

TAKE TIME

Take time. These two dynamic little words should be on the front cover of every student's handbook. Pamphlets should be distributed to everybody on the campus and there should be nothing written inside—just those two dynamic little words, "Take time". At every hour there should be a crier appear at the top of Hart House tower to proclaim those two dynamic little words, "Take time".

"Take time," asks the inquisitive student, "for what?" "Take time," is the immediate reply, for physical fitness, relaxation and athletic education. Instead of bemoaning the fact that we have time-tables that are heavy and military training that is not light, we should realize to the fullest extent that all this is as necessary as getting up in the morning and facing our problems with a neutral, steady eye.

And the only way to face our problems is to engage in all the normal, healthy activities which are a student's privilege—especially a student at the University of Toronto because we have marvellous facilities, facilities that are just begging to be used and instructors who probably have no equals throughout the length and breadth of Canada and a goodly part of the United States.

Sadly enough, with the arrival of compulsory military training, either in the Auxiliary Battalion or the C.O.T.C., too many of us have taken an unfortunate and foolish attitude. Instead of accepting the drill as merely another feature of our daily life, we have decided that we are making an overwhelming sacrifice and that consequently we have to give up any pursuit of athletic happiness.

Too many of us have surveyed the situation in this light and too many of us have suffered as a result. The very fact that the training, if it is to be training of any value to the student, requires a keen mind, an ability to perform tasks along certain definite lines and patterns and an athletic manner of marching is all the more reason why anybody taking the training should be physically fit. What is more, to an outstanding degree, it is the student with the erect posture and athletic gait who gets the appointments to officer status. It is not the rakish or faddish fellow who gets ahead. And even a child could understand that he who is physically fit is better equipped to withstand the rigours of military training than another.

Who, after two or more hours of drill, has not felt the need of relaxation? Or who, in this nerve shattering world of ours has never felt the need to "get away from things"? One hour properly spent in the athletic wing of Hart House is the remedy to any ills of this kind. It is the answer to a tired university student's prayer.

The place of athletic education is one which raises a dominant recognition. Every man should, upon graduation from university, be capable of playing well one individual sport. Every man at university should have at least one line of athletic endeavour in which he is particularly proficient. Any one sport like fencing, boxing, wrestling, jiu jitsu, squash, where you and your room or class mate can go off and enjoy yourselves, by playing yourselves, for as long as you please. For it does not take the eye of a far-seeing prophet of the brain of a genius to realize that after graduation to the outside world you are alone and out on your own, and no longer have the free and ready access to equipment and instruction that you had during your school career. Or if you do have something equivalent to it, the cost for fun is high and the convenience little.

Now is the time to learn a sport which has a carry-over value for the time when Hart House is no longer home but a wonderful institution you once knew.

Competitive sport is just as desirable for here one learns to get along with other people and to make friends which in any circumstances other than these he would most certainly be unable to make. Those of you who have ever come down to play basketball or any game which requires a fair number of men, with fellows who were strangers to you before you got on the floor will readily understand what I mean.

Be fair to yourself. Set aside certain days in your handbook for athletics. Don't let circumstances crimp your natural and just desires. "Take time."

LESSON FOUR

This, contrary to opinion around Kentucky and other parts, is not a lesson of which you should be particularly scared. In fact we assure you that this is going to be a very helpful lesson to those of you who are still playing the game "How to get back into condition". The whole three of you.

We sincerely hope that you really enjoyed lesson three and are fit and fresh to take in lesson four. Today we go to the tank, stand on the edge for about ten minutes wondering why we are shivering. You're shivering, boy, because you made the freshman error of taking a warm shower before entering the poolroom. But you finally take the plunge and do the crawl for about ten yards, the breast stroke for another ten yards and then float on your back for another six hours.

Naturally, you miss all your lectures and important appointments. That, boy, is the stuff and the life.

Now go home to your anxious parent and explain your lateness by saying in accents clear and loud, "Very, very sorry materal old kid but it couldn't be helped. Like 'Stupidman', I was away on a mighty task."

with an address on "The Importance of the Amateur."

"The fast tempo of modern life has increased the choice in activity to a bewildering degree, but it has also enlarged the number of activities we can participate in as amateurs. This seems to be a healthy development," said Miss Hunter.

"The committee planning this series has invited speakers who are themselves doing interesting things; for example, Nanny Meek, who runs a shop in the Village, and Mrs. Frank Chamberlain, an actress.

ART, MUSIC & DRAMA

the Academies that the new movements in art come. The fact that we have a tradition in painting shows that we have progressed at least a few steps along the road to a national culture. While there is little in the current showing that appears outstanding and nothing that will cause violent argument, the level of painting is exceptionally high.

Grace Lake by Fred S. Haines, is one of the best of the landscapes. Painted from Mr. Haines' favourite vantage point—the top of a hill, it shows a great sweep of the austere northland in which man can have no place unless he approach it with humility, but once he has done this he can share its grandeur. The painting is a study in purple and green in which each colour balances and complements the other. A foreground of sunlit rocks and a background of massive hills obscured by purple haze, a stretch of water between, and dominating the whole and giving it unity two sombre pine trees, are reminiscent of Thompson.

Stanley Royle has contributed two fascinating canvases of Nova Scotian landscape. For technical brilliance his Evening Stillness, Prospect, N.S. cannot be beaten in this show. He uses a modified Impressionistic technique with a startlingly clear and sparkling result. In his Impressionistic painting of light he has steered clear of the pitfalls of Impressionism. Evening Stillness is well designed and has a reassuring solidity.

Keep an eye open too for L. A. C. Pantons' Woodland Hilltop. Mr. Pantons uses his subject-matter as a base on which to build up his own individual conception of a scene and, dubious as this may sound, the pictorial result of Mr. Pantons' emotional reactions is interesting and even beautiful.

We simply must mention John M. Alfens' portrait of an elderly woman, titled The Reader. This is not recommended as an outstanding work of art for it most certainly is not, but as a suggested cure for the sort of feeling you get when you read the war news or have to work on three essays at once. If you don't believe it, go down to the Art Gallery the next time you feel low in your mind and take a good long look at The Reader. We guarantee the results.

The biggest disappointment of this exhibition was the much publicized Ontario Summer, 1940 by Charles Comfort. After studying the picture we came to the conclusion that it is popular because it has every branch of Canada's fighting forces in it except the navy. The composition is top-sided, being too heavy on the right, and the monochromatic colour scheme of green is too monotonous.

About half of the show definitely comes under the heading "not to be missed" and judging by the crowds we elbowed through a good part of Toronto is making use of its chance to see the show before it closes on November 11th.

C. O. T. C.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO
CONTINGENT C.O.T.C.

STANDING ORDERS

by
Lt.-Col. H. H. Madill, V.D., Commanding

28th October, 1940.

These Standing Orders are published to facilitate the conduct of Regimental business, and the making of returns to District Headquarters.

(Note) These Orders do NOT apply to the U. of T. C.O.T.C. Training Centre, except para. 8—DRESS.

1. REGIMENTAL ORDERS

Copies of all Regimental Orders will be sent by mail to Company Commanders and Company Seconds-in-Command. It will be their responsibility to ensure that members of their Companies are familiar with the contents of such orders.

Contingent Orders are published in The Varsity and are posted at C.O. T.C. Headquarters, 119 St. George Street and in the Training Centre Orderly Room, Hart House.

There is a pigeon-hole for each

2. COMPANY BUSINESS

Company in the Orderly Room. These are for Roll Books, etc., and company intra-communication.

3. ATTENDANCE—PARADES

Platoon Roll Books as issued will be used to record attendance at parades. Names are to be entered in Block letters. The date of each parade must be put at the head of each column.

These books are to be returned to the Orderly Room at the times notified to each Company so that attendance may be entered in the Company Roll Books.

Company Roll Books will be prepared by the Orderly Room Staff and may not be taken from the Orderly Room at any time. Entries therein will be made only by the clerk in charge of records.

Company Commanders may examine these books at any time during office hours.

Semi-monthly parade states will be prepared by Companies on a form obtainable from the Orderly Room. These should be returned to the Orderly Room by 1700 hours on the 16th and the 1st of each month.

4. ATTENDANCE—LECTURES

Companies will not be responsible for recording attendance at lectures pertaining to First Paper (common to all Arms).

Lectures pertaining to Second Paper (special to arm) are considered as parades. Attendance at these lectures will be entered in Platoon Roll Books.

5. ABSENCE—PARADES AND LECTURES

All Warrant Officers, N.C.O.s and Cadets wishing to explain absence from drill will make such explanation to the Adjutant in writing on a form obtainable at the Orderly Room, 119 St. George Street.

Medical reasons must be supported by a medical certificate.

No consideration for absence will be given unless this order is carried out.

6. BATTALION RECORDS

The senior Orderly Room Clerk on duty has authority to refuse access to any records other than those referred to in para. (3) above.

For information contained in other records application should be made to the Adjutant.

7. POSTINGS

Postings of all ranks to Companies will be made by Contingent Headquarters. No changes may be made except through the proper channels. (see para. 10).

8. DRESS

All ranks when on duty will wear uniform if possible. Uniform may be worn throughout the day on parade days. Uniform will NOT be worn on any occasion which is not a military duty or parade, without the permission of the C.O.

Field service cap may be worn by officers only when NOT on duty, except when wearing battle dress.

W.O.s, N.C.O.s and Cadets will wear the clothing issued by the Contingent. No alterations whatever may be made to such clothing without authority.

FORMER PROFESSOR TO BE PAID TRIBUTE

Kenzie was a Carnegie fellow in International Law in 1923-4. His work carried him abroad many times both to Europe and Asia where in 1931 he was a delegate to Shanghai at a conference of Pacific Relations. In 1923 he went to Banff in the same capacity. He was president of the Toronto branch of the League of Nations Society and was a Canadian representative at Geneva.

Author of several books on international law, President MacKenzie served on many other committees dealing with international relations, and was director of research in the Canadian Institute for International Affairs. In 1939 he was president of the Canadian Club.

President MacKenzie's studies were interrupted by the last war in which he rose to the rank of lieutenant in the 78th Pictou Highlanders. He received several decorations for bravery.

let's go places

This week the combined efforts of Time, Life and the March of Time are being shown under the title "The Ramparts We Watch." While the film is undoubtedly worth a visit to Shea's, it is not entirely the smash piece that such a group of producers might have been expected to put forth. As a documentary film it is an interesting review of events of the first Great War, but somewhat spoiled by the propaganda; as a propaganda item it relies a little too much on American patriotism. The main point of the picture, to parallel the present United States' position with the 1914-18 one, is carried a little too far afield perhaps. The present European setup may have been paralleled some place in history, but we can't think where.

Other side of the double bill, starring Louis Hayward and Maureen O'Hara, with Lucille Ball and Ralph Bellamy, was "Dance Girl, Dance" and it was sound entertainment. Better-than-usual acting from all four, Miss O'Hara being particularly fine, and a plot bordering on the semi-reasonable.—H.D.H.

W.O.s, N.C.O.s and Cadets will NOT remove the white band from the forage cap.

W.O.s, N.C.O.s and Cadets when wearing battle dress will button the blouse to the neck, and will not wear ties.

Clothing and Equipment issued by the Contingent to all ranks is on charge to them. It must be maintained in good condition and must be returned to stores when required.

9. DUPLICATING

Through the generous assistance of the Students' Administrative Council, stencils may be cut when it is desired to reproduce material for distribution to members of the Contingent.

Copies of the material from these stencils will be run off by the Orderly Room staff.

Requests for such work must be made to the Chief Instructor or the Adjutant. No requests should be made direct to the S.A.C. or the Orderly Room.

Adequate notice should be given so that there will be a minimum interference with the routine work of the staffs concerned.

10. INTER-COMMUNICATION

In order to facilitate inter-communication between Contingent Headquarters and Companies, the Memorandum form provided must be used. These forms are available at the Orderly Room.

All notices which are sent to Contingent Headquarters to be announced at lectures or to be published in The Varsity are to be made on the above form, and must be authorized by Contingent Headquarters.

R.C.I. Series To Be Opened By MacLachlan

Royal Canadian Institute Lecture This Saturday will be First of 22. Wills MacLachlan to Speak on Electrical Utility

ADMISSION FREE

The first lecture of the ninety-second session of the Royal Canadian Institute will take place this Saturday, November 2nd.

The first lecture in the series of twenty will be given by the president of the R.C.I., Wills MacLachlan, B.A.Sc., on "The Electric Utility in Canada."

Among the speakers at following lectures are Walter Clark, Ph.D., of Eastman Kodak Co., Rochester, N.Y.; J. Penine, M.S., Ph.D., of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, who will speak on "The Voder," a mechanical voice demonstrated at the New York World's Fair; Prof. T. F. McIlwraith of Toronto, and Prof. D. Johnson of Columbia University.

"Students are especially welcome at these lectures," said D. B. Murray, secretary of the Royal Canadian Institute, "and admission is free. The lectures are on scientific subjects, but are not too technical for the average individual to understand."

Most of the lectures will be illustrated by slides, motion pictures or experiments. The lectures will be held at Convocation Hall and will start at 8.15 p.m.

ROBERTSON REVEALS TRUE NATURE OF LAW

Chief Justice of Ontario Gives Advice to Future Lawyers at Meeting of University Law Club

The Honorable R. S. Robertson, Chief Justice of Ontario, last night addressed the opening meeting of the University of Toronto Law Club. Before introducing the Chief Justice, honorary president of the club, a brief history of its founding was given by Doctor W. P. M. Kennedy, head of the Department of Law.

Meal Prices Rise In Great Hall As War Boosts Food Costs

By Edward Dorrity

Students who have eaten at the Great Hall this year have no doubt noticed the change in the 25 cent meal. According to Miss Ransom, business manager of the dining room, the reason for this change is the war.

The war has caused the prices of meat and produce to rise about 25 per cent. There is also a tax on canned goods imported from the United States. New equipment has also been acquired, it was learned.

However, there has not been any decrease in the number of diners; rather, because of the military training, there has been an increase in the number at the evening meal.

Miss Ransom also stated that there is the usual one o'clock rush which causes the waitresses to fly about in an attempt to serve everyone, and that it would be much easier and the student would get better service if he were able to come at 12 o'clock when the Hall is not in the least crowded.

But underneath all this hustle and bustle of vitamins is a veritable "Lab-

Noon-Hour Speaker At Hart House Today

The Most Reverend Dean Riley of St. James' Cathedral is continuing the S.C.M.'s weekly noon-hour series in Hart House today with a discussion of "God the Father". The Dean is a graduate of McGill, and of the Montreal Theological College, and he spent some 20 odd years in various parishes throughout Ontario before coming to St. James' in Toronto. In 1933 Trinity conferred a D.D. on him.

This is the third in the series of talks on "Basic Convictions" that the S.C.M. is providing this term for much of the university. Previous speakers were Dr. W. C. Lockhart, former secretary of the S.C.M., who introduced the series, and Rabbi M. N. Eisen-drath, who spoke on "God, the Judge."

Cartwright Returns Here As Occasional Lecturer

Former Head of Department of Military Studies Recalls Service with Engineers in India

INDIAN CORONATION

By Rex Wilson

Head of the Department of Military Studies from 1926 to 1937, Brigadier-General Cartwright, C.M.G., Legion of Honour, who has returned to the department to assist as an occasional lecturer, was interviewed by The Varsity yesterday.

"I graduated from Royal Military College in '35 and was granted a commission in the Royal Engineers," the general recalled. After serving with the Engineers in England at Chatham station he went to Aden, where he helped construct the fortifications there.

Afterward followed a period of service in India, first at Karachi, at the mouth of the Indus, and later at Rawalpindi. "What was going on in India then?" asked The Varsity, thinking of the Khyber Pass, and Bengal Lancers. "Oh, it was just peace-time service," General Cartwright replied, "mostly construction work. I did go with the Isazai Expedition," he admitted, "but it wasn't much. Some tribes gave some trouble and we just had to show them that they shouldn't."

"I had bad luck when the South African War broke out," General Cartwright reminisced sadly. "I was in the War Office in London, and there I stayed until after hostilities were over." Halifax owes its fortifications in part to General Cartwright, who was stationed there between 1903 and 1906. In 1906 he took some of the last Imperial troops to be stationed there back to England.

1907 found the general back in India in Rawalpindi and Meerut. He was privileged to see the Indian coronation of King George V and Queen Mary at Delhi in 1911.

FILMS FEATURED AT ELECTRICAL CLUB

Electrical Engineering Students Give Short Talks to Classmates During Meeting in Hart House

The second meeting of the Electrical Club of the University of Toronto was held last night in the Music Room of Hart House. During the course of the evening some fifty members from the various years of the Electrical Engineering course listened to short talks given by their classmates and watched three moving picture films.

The various speakers included second and third year men. Al Rosenthal, third year School, spoke on Tube Testing; Barney Cox, also of the third year, gave a short speech on Rural Power Distribution and Development; and from the same year was Al MacPherson who told about Lightning Arrestors; Bill Shearer, also School III, went to some lengths to explain Theatre Lighting.

Three films of an educational nature were shown: these included one on Illuminants, another on The Synchronous Selector Supervisory System, and a third on The Potter's Wheel.

PROF. L. J. ROGERS SPEAKS ON CRIME AND CHEMISTRY

The University Chemical Club held their opening meeting at the Chemical Building last night. The guest speaker, Prof. L. J. Rogers, gave an address on Crime and Chemistry.

The club is anticipating a bus trip early in November.

Last House Master Plans To Retire

Dr. Hugh A. Hoskin, for Fourteen Years House Master of South House, Honoured at Banquet Prior to Resignation

ON DENTISTRY STAFF

Last of the University Men's Residence house masters, Doctor Hugh A. Hoskin, who has held that position in South House for the last fourteen years, plans to retire, it was recently learned.

Dr. Hoskin is an associate professor of dentistry, and in his years about the university he has made many friends not only among the students of his own faculty, but also a great number in other faculties through his very close association with the University Men's Residence.

Present members of the house and graduates of almost a decade and a half remember fondly the now-famous tea parties their house master provided. Once a year as though a tradition Dr. Hoskin had the whole house—one floor at a time—up to his room for "the feed of their lives." "The best eats anywhere," avows many an old South House man as he remembers those feeds. They began at midnight Saturday and lasted on into the small hours of the morning—five o'clock, and often later.

RINK TO BE DECORATED BY SASKATCHEWAN CO-EDS

Saskatoon, Sask., Oct. 26 (CUP)—The co-eds of Saskatchewan University plan on decorating the building where the men take their six hours' military training each week. This building is Rutherford Rink, erected through student effort.

The purpose of the undertaking is to bring a warmer atmosphere into the rink besides preparing it for the big parade planned for November 11. Although physically absent the co-eds hope to be with the men mentally at least, in this phase of preparedness.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

Med Students To Assemble At First Annual Banquet For All Years Of Faculty

FRIAY RECITAL

Viggo Kihl, pianist, will give the first Friday Recital of the year in Hart House at 5 p.m. in the Music Room on 1st November next. The program will be as follows:
Sonata in B Minor Opus 8 - Chopin
Toccata - Schumann

Brigadier Eric Haldenby, Former Member of C.O.T.C., will Address Gathering. Entertainment by Students

SING-SONG TO BE HELD

Medical students of all years will gather for their first annual banquet in the Great Hall of Hart House tonight.

The guest speaker at the banquet will be Brigadier Eric Haldenby, former member of the university C.O.T.C. and at present directing Canada's eastern coastal defence. Brigadier Haldenby was also in command of Canadian troops taking part in the final stages of the Battle of France, whom he evacuated safely when the country collapsed.

Brigadier Haldenby has the reputation of being one of this country's outstanding speakers.

The all-medical banquet replaces the soph-frosh of former years. Entertainment will be provided by students who have gained a reputation in the Daifdill nights of former years. A sing-song will be an added feature of the program.

The banquet is intended to foster an "all-faculty spirit" among Meds students and to give some of the lower years a better understanding of the workings of their faculty.

Drama Committee To Produce Gregory Play

The third play in the Wednesday afternoon series, "The Rising of the Moon" by Lady Gregory, will be presented in Hart House Theatre this afternoon by the Trinity College Dramatic Society.

With its setting on an Irish quayside, the play features the conflict which faces an Irish sergeant when he meets the popular outlaw who wins his sympathy, and whom it is his duty to arrest.

The series is sponsored by the University Drama Committee, the plays being put on alternately by the dramatic clubs of University, Victoria and Trinity Colleges.

History Club To Feature U.S.A. Election Flashes

Acta Victoriana Goes To Press

An attractive form and a literary standard are the aims of Acta Victoriana which has already gone to press according to its editor, Lloyd Haines. Prose, fiction and non-fiction; poetry; sports; criticism in music, art, drama and literature are supplemented by the wit of Tom Paton and the review of contemporary events in and about college in a column known tentatively as Extensore. This column was formerly the Monocle, and before that the Janus," he said.

"The keynote of this issue is experiment. The young in heart will approve. The young in mind—well they don't matter," he concluded.

Brown, Riddell and Skey to Speak on Russian Foreign Policy at Round Table Discussion

AT CARTWRIGHT HALL

A Round Table discussion on Russian foreign policy will feature the meeting of the Modern History Club next Tuesday. Dr. B. P. Skey, Dr. G. W. Brown, and Dr. R. G. Riddell will be the speakers.

Since the meeting is to be held on the evening of American election day, the club executive have decided to seize the opportunity of bringing Modern History students history in the making by giving election flashes at intervals during the meeting.

Dr. Brown and Mr. Riddell are both well known as members of the history staff. Dr. Skey is an expert in agricultural economy and is now working (Continued on Page 4)

Follies Girls Tap And Kick High Under Direction Of Jack Lemen

Clickety clack, tap, tap, clickety-clack, tap, tap.

"One. Two. Three and Four. Kick! Kick higher girls!" And sixteen shapely legs obligingly kick higher at the command of director Jack Lemen as sixteen young ladies earnestly endeavour to polish the rough edges of their dancing routines before the opening of the U.C. Follies on November 15.

These young ladies are reputed to be the best looking girls at U.C. "and undoubtedly they are," says Jack Lemen. "I picked them myself, and chose them for their height, appearance and ability," he explained. While Tommy Jarvis, one of the two directors of the whole show, declares "we never had more girls to work with in any previous show." Boris Swerling, III Political Science, judging from past years, states "U.C. Follies girls are the best looking girls of any show on the campus—including Daifdill Night."

Although the girls admit that being in the Follies is strenuous work, they are unanimous in their enthusiasm for the Follies. "We get a lot of fun and meet new and interesting people," they declare. As one fresbie confided, "I have never danced before but I enjoy it no end, even if I was so tired the first week of rehearsals that the only thing that I had enough energy to do when I got home was to crawl into bed."

Lists for those wishing tickets for the show which will go on November 15, will be posted this Friday. Lists for undergraduates of University College will be posted in the junior common room of U.C. Lists for graduates of University College and those outside University College will be posted in the rotunda of University College.

In The Light Of Fact

Unfortunately for all concerned an editorial was written the night before last without an impartial examination of all the facts but rather from a narrow exclusive bias. Hasty judgments are rarely sound judgments, especially when there are many facts to be considered. We feel with sincere regret that a hasty judgment on our part has led to a real misrepresentation of a student group.

Excerpts from several letters are printed in the Correspondence column today, giving the viewpoint of both residence and neutral observers. Other correspondence was a little too vitriolic to print without reflecting on the manners of the writers. Every student should read these letters, with the sincere hope of the editor that this may help to correct the damaging impression already made.

As the letters point out, there were three large "No Parking" signs on the university residence driveway on Devonshire Place. The airforce men and the other citizens in question chose to ignore those signs, and later, with much profanity, threatened to come back and "wreck the joint." Both the ignoring and the threats betray a rather surprising lack of discipline. It appears that those who parked their cars in a restricted parking area, causing inconvenience to those whose privilege it is to use that area, provoked the skirmish between students, airforce and citizens.

Letting air out of tires has been a tradition in the past, and usually it is taken in good spirit. That spirit was evidently lacking last Saturday, with the result that several cars were driven across the grass lawn and the air was let out of some cars which belonged on the driveway.

We do feel that the students of the university residence have been much maligned and we are sorry. After all, they are not showing as much frivolity as many army and airforce men on their periods of leave in Toronto, and they certainly show a better spirit than some of the ordinary citizens who were mixed up in the parking squabble. At least those others were able to spend a beautiful afternoon watching a football game while the students drifted for three hours.

While deflating tires may have been an amusing tradition in the past, it might be wise in view of the present circumstances if this practice were eliminated. It would also be wise for the city police on traffic duty to prevent any outside car from parking in the driveway if the driver has been unable to read the signs.

They Also Serve . . .

It seems fitting that a word should be said in praise of those members of the Canadian forces who are doing their part in the great Imperial struggle far from the scenes of battle. To the officers and men who have gone overseas with the naval, military and air services and are daily risking their lives to preserve the institutions and prestige of the Empire all honour is due and we are confident that the people of Canada extend this honour.

But there are others, whose effort is not sustained by the anticipation of "a chance at Hitler" or the exhilaration of battle, and their part is just as important, if less obvious. These are the instructors, officers and other ranks, who staff the camps and training centres of both the forces on active service and the recently inaugurated compulsory training camps. Before a seaman, a soldier or a pilot can be sent overseas he must be trained; England has no time to do that. Most of the men engaged in training this raw material of fighting personnel long for a chance to go overseas but the authorities have appointed them a task here and they perform it without complaint.

A large number of the instructors of both the C.O.T.C. and the Auxiliary Battalion on this campus are officers of N.P.A.M. units in Toronto and the surrounding cities and must give several nights a week to the parades of their own units. Others are business and professional men well out of the age-group that is likely to be called up. Still others from the student body are qualified as officers and could spend a minimum of time at military matters. And yet, all these men give generously of their time and energies in the training of university students. Without their help the arrangement whereby undergraduates may take their compulsory training without interrupting their academic year would be unworkable, and would have to be abandoned for lack of instructors.

These men have no chance of earning glory, for theirs is the most routine of jobs; orders and decorations will not come their way nor will they likely see glorious action. Yet without them and their counterparts in the Dominions and Colonies throughout the world the war could not be carried on. They serve to the limit of their capacity, and their service, although not as conspicuous as that of the fighting forces, must be inscribed on the rolls of honour as equally important. Without them the fighting forces could not long survive.

The Music Goes On

On Monday an editorial appeared in this column, expressing the thought that a steady repetition of "The Blue and White" by the band on Saturday afternoons is a little hard on the school song. Today a letter giving the viewpoint of the band appears in the next column. However, it misconstrues most of our remarks and reads sharp criticism into them rather than the plain statement of fact.

There was expressed here no criticism of the band. Its members have done a very fine job, this year as in all past years, and as stated previously, their task on a long route march is no mean one. They are giving generously of their time to produce a creditable band. Nor was there any criticism of the Alma Mater song as such. It is a song dear to the hearts of all Varsity students, past and present, but any cherished song may become distasteful through dull repetition. It is unfortunate that the band feels it has been criticized and that "The Blue and White" has had slurs cast upon it. Such was not the intention.

Our only thought is that repetition ad infinitum of the school song might well be avoided. Perhaps strict military procedure will prevent this, but as we understand it, it rests with the Commanding Officer of the unit to state what number shall be played on such occasions, and he can change it if he so desires. We do not want "The Blue and White" eliminated; rather do we wish to preserve its beauty, and this can easily be done by mixing in a few other numbers instead of playing it through twenty-eight times.

Obituary

Dietitian of the Women's Union since 1919, and of Whitney Hall since 1933, Miss Jessie Barber passed away last week after a lengthy illness.

Miss Barber had a long connection with University College, for she graduated from that college in 1908 and then served for twenty years as dietitian for U.C. women. She graduated from Toronto in modern languages, and studied Household Science at the Technical School in Toronto and at Macdonald College, Guelph.

We know her long years of service have been appreciated to the full by those who came in contact with her in the course of her work.

Toronto Symphony Orchestra

If Sir Ernest MacMillan manages to keep the Toronto Symphony up to the standard it displayed last night, this season will be among the finest Toronto has yet had. Whether it was the inspiration of the presence of William Primrose, violinist, as guest artist, or some particularly favourable conjunction of the planets, the strings were better than I have ever

CHAMPUS CAT

Did you ever go to a lecture? Then you know what they're like. The prof drones on, half the students are dead, the other half are only asleep and the other half is feverishly taking notes. Well, Russian, Eye-Wash and Omar blundered into one the other day by mistake. We didn't want to waste our time altogether, so we decided to write a Cat.

Our first effort ran like this:
ADVICE TO THE LOVE LORN
by Richard Dix

and a letter from Omar followed. It wasn't funny. We tried again, this time a sea-story:

THREE BEERS BEFORE THE MAST

But you can't mention anything stronger than double malted in the cat, so that was no good. Then our next attempt was:

GULLIBLE'S TRAVELS

"Mary, the Fairy, was the sweetest little fairy you ever did see." This seemed a trifle banal too.

Then it occurred to us: "How about taking some lecture notes?" But we fell into a deep sleep. As yet, medical science has failed to raise us from our coma.

So, that's why there's no Cat today.

Correspondence

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

In regard to your editorial "To be Deplored", which appeared in The Varsity Oct. 29, I would like to clear up a little misunderstanding connected with this episode. The practice of letting air out of tires has become a tradition with the U. of T. residences mainly because a woman's undergraduate society has in past years established a parking lot across the street, to aid in the raising of funds for what will be a woman's Hart House. The general public has parked their cars in our driveway when there was still parking space available across the street. Hence in general they are too cheap to pay a 25c fee for parking, but instead, break the law. Another reason giving rise to this tradition is that while we don't require all the space of our driveway continually, when we do wish to park our cars we want to have them a little nearer than the City Hall. It is especially over the week-ends that we require the whole driveway.

It is unfortunate that the R.C.A.P. was a victim, but as disciplined men they should have obeyed the "no parking" signs in our drive. Two of these signs were put up as temporary orders by the Toronto police department. The third sign, erected by the university, said "Staff Cars Only" which should be fairly definite to anyone. We can understand people overlooking signs, but to still claim to be unjustly treated after the signs were pointed out, warrants no sympathy.

One officer of the R.A.F. had the childishness to ask why he was not informed of the "no parking". University men have neither the time nor the desire to explain to every man, woman and child that when a sign reads "No Parking" it means just that. If any man of the R.C.A.P. or anybody else decides to disobey laws, he should at least bear the consequences like a man.

As regard to the "water bombs" so tritely described as "fruit of resistance genius", this was merely in retaliation to certain Air Force men letting the air out of the tires of cars belonging to students in the residences. Water hurts no one but certainly dampens the ardour.

Outsiders are hardly capable of judging residence actions because they know nothing of the set-up. Hence I sincerely hope before any more strongly worded editorials appear on this subject, the editor does a little research work.

I remain, yours respectfully,
A South House Man.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

The editorial smirch that appeared on Tuesday in your paper reflects little on your accuracy in information, more than on anything else. The inferences that were drawn were unkind, unjust and thoroughly unworthy of an organ which should deal impartially with happenings on the campus.

J. D. Gillies.

The Editor, The Varsity.

Dear Sir:

May I say that it was with profound regret that I read the editorial pertaining to "The Blue and White", our Alma Mater song in Monday, Oct. 28's edition of The Varsity. It seems to have been written with a lack of knowledge regarding the song and lack of respect for those who play it.

"The Blue and White" has been the Alma Mater song of this university since 1912 when it was brought forth by Bush and Silcox, of this university. Not only has it been our Alma Mater song, but it has also been the regimental air on any occasion on that band appeared in military uniform. As in former years on our downtown evening parades it was "The Blue and White" that was played as the contingent left and returned to the university. Similarly, as in all other military organizations, when on an occasion such as the Saturday when Brigadier Eric Haldenby took the salute, it was our honour and duty to play "The Blue and White" till the march past had been completed. Even though this was the correct military procedure, I am certain that the entire student body would be honoured to stand at attention while their Alma Mater song was being played.

The members of the band feel that the Editorial Board of The Varsity has done the school an injustice, and hope

FRENCH CLUB OPENED BY GRETA RIDDELL

"Vous avez l'occasion, ici, de parler français et de trouver un peu d'atmosphère de la France," Greta Riddell, president of the Vic French Club, said in welcoming those in attendance at its opening meeting of the club last night. She urged all those interested in improving their French to come to the monthly meetings of the club.

The various members of the executive, John Flinn, vice-president, Vera Argument, secretary, John Kenmore, treasurer, Art Fox, fourth year representative, Phyllis Hulse, third year representative, and Jimmy Weld, second year representative, were introduced by Miss Riddell. The first year members elected Isobel Eastman as their representative.

Variety was lent to the evening by the singing of French songs, under the direction of Vera Argument, and a comedy, "L'Anglais tel qu'on le Parle", presented by some of the more experienced members of the club. The skit came to a very satisfactory end after the French hotel's interpreter, whose knowledge of English was very limited, and the visitor from London who could not speak French, finally came to an understanding.

The meeting closed with a social hour, during which the predominant language was French, which, nevertheless, was frequently interspersed with English expressions.

that, in the future, they will take a broader viewpoint of the situation. As in peace-time when "The Blue and White" announced our strength on the football field, so in war time will it announce our strength on the parade ground. Yours sincerely,

Lionel R. Dent,

President of the Band.

Lacrosse Season Opens Today

Emmanuel, Meds Clash In Interfaculty Game On Hart House Gym Floor

Another branch of interfaculty sport will inaugurate its schedule today when the lacrosse league opener is played at four this afternoon in the big gym at Hart House. The teams meeting in the initial contest are Emmanuel College and Medicine.

Emmanuel entered the league last year, and made a surprisingly powerful bid for the title. The Theologians are stronger than ever, having had a year of experience. Big Tom Jackson, the boy from Fergus who was the bulwark of last year's squad, is back again. Bill Fennell is also back with the Theologians, and so is Bruce Hall, the tennis champ. McKennitt is being counted on to bolster the Emmanuel defence.

Big things are expected from the School teams this year. Junior School have Callum in the line-up, a valuable asset. Senior S.P.S. will be formidable contenders if they can get Lennie Woods to don an Engineer sweater and take his place between the upstarts. Woods has just finished a summer of hard lacrosse with the Orillia Terriers.

St. Mike's, the defending champions, are badly crippled through graduations among last year's team. With the Irish veterans who have returned to the lacrosse wars are Cassidy, Hector, Gengron and Fitzpatrick. The big worry at present facing the Double Blue is the job of finding a good goalie and a strong defence line.

The lacrosse-wise on the interfaculty front are banking on Dentistry to lift the crown from the Irish brow. Every man of last year's team is back, and the Tooth-tuggers look to be the class of the league. Their roster boasts such stars as Smockum, Shand and Sproule, and the opposing nets are due to take an awful beating when Smockum and his crew of snipers start tossing that little pellet goal-wards.

The University College squad is also to be reckoned with this season, since the Red and White have been strengthened with the addition of Cliff Ballagh and Al Alcombrack.

GENERAL RETURNS AS LECTURER

The Eighth Army Corps he saw action at Beaumont-Hamel and the opening of the Battle of the Somme. He was also active in the mining of Ypres and the Messines ridges.

In November of 1917 General Cartwright's old nemesis retired him from action again. This time he was called to Newark Royal Engineers Training Centre, but in April of 1917 he was back in France for some of the heaviest fighting of the war as Chief Engineer of the Ninth Army Corps. In this capacity he was at Lys, and thereafter in the Chemin des Dames area where his corps was sent to recuperate. However, they were soon back in the lines and in May 1918 they met the full force of the German drive towards Chateau Thierry.

"In August, '18, we were up again reformed for the final advance, and we were in on the breaking of the Hindenburg Line. No, I wasn't with the Army of Occupation," General Cartwright said, "but I returned to England as Chief Engineer of the Aldershot Command."

During the war General Cartwright was mentioned five times in despatches and received the honours mentioned above.

DENTAL STUDENTS TO HOLD STUDY GROUP

In the past four years Dental students interested in the S.C.M. have belonged to the Medical group. This year there is sufficient interest to warrant a study group of their own. John Coleman will be in charge of the group, which will study the life of Jesus.

The first regular meeting will be held at 5 o'clock this afternoon in the S.C.M. library, Hart House. All those interested are asked to attend.

Tennis was to be over, and we were to be halting a new champion for the 1940-41 season—that's what we thought! Yesterday morning Marg. Woods, rather favoured to come out a finalist, on her previous performances, went to defeat in straight set 6-4, 6-4, in her semi-final match with the more experienced Ida Tipp, a somebody for some time in Vic tennis circles. This left Vic in complete command of the finals—Virginia Rappell vs Ida Tipp, and at 3 p.m. the bleachers had been put up, of course—that is, extra ones, for the extra large crowd we expected—and numerous hands and half-time entertainers had been engaged for the exciting event. But no! It had to rain—it always does. Well, everything is cancelled now, and we'll just have to content ourselves with a quiet little game, played before just the family circle, at 10 o'clock this morning—or will you make it? It's bound to be a pip of a game.

***
Tonight, fresh from cheering their respective rugby teams on to victory or, the following basketball sextets will be looking forward to seeing the males simply thronging O.C.E. gym, raising the roof with enthusiasm, and generally showing their gratitude for what we have enjoyed doing for them—yes, we have!—Vic Jrs. vs St. Hilda's Srs. at 6 p.m.; Physios vs U.C. Srs. at 7 p.m.; and Vic Freshies vs U.C. Jrs. at 8 p.m. A triple-header for all concerned and free! Come on, let's have those cheers!

ART, MUSIC & DRAMA

before heard them. The only really weak spot was in the final number, an arrangement by Mazzoleni of the Bach Passacaglia and Fugue in C Minor, where the woodwind section managed to muffle a few notes. This was easily forgotten in the beauty of the bassoon passages in the same number. A good many famous conductors must envy Toronto in having Mr. Burghauer.

The only reason that Harold in Italy is not heard more often is that Mr. Primrose, or his equivalent is not available everywhere at once. It is, with the exception of a bombastic last movement, Berlioz at his best—the master of orchestral tone colour and the wizard who can conjure up almost anything in a few notes. Especially effective is his use of the harp and pianissimo strings as a background for the solo viola in the movement, March of the Pilgrims. The orchestra, Sir Ernest, and Mr. Primrose were at ease in Berlioz and they succeeded in giving him a remarkably pleasant interpretation.

A work unknown to the majority of the audience, although Mr. Mazzoleni had had the perspicacity to play it last year at a concert of the Conservatory Senior Orchestra, was Godfrey Ridout's Ballade for Viola and String Orchestra. I enjoyed this work more on hearing it for the second time. Mr. Ridout has not yet, I think, shown us the full measure of his talents—his future will be eagerly watched by all Canadian musicians.

Schubert's Third Symphony, the only other major work on the program, received an excellent performance. This music grows on one; the last three movements are especially tuneful. In this as in all other numbers throughout the evening the string section showed off a greater ability to vary its tone from steel to satin than I ever before witnessed. Toronto's strings have come to the stage where they can really be compared with those of the best orchestras of this continent. That is not to say that they are as good; but they at least bear comparison.

EMMANUEL A TRIM JUNIOR S.P.S. IN VOLLEYBALL DEBUT

Theologians and Vic Teams Defeat Engineers and Meds in Hard Fought Battles. Best Effort for Losers by Johnny Lucas

FLOREN SHINES FOR MEDS

Four volleyball sextets made their debuts yesterday afternoon on the upper gym floor, as Emmanuel A trimmed Junior S.P.S. 15-10, 15-11, and Senior Vic downed Senior Meds 12-15, 15-8, 15-9.

Both games were unexciting for the most part. In the first set to the Theologians grabbed an early lead which the Engineers could not overhaul. Johnny Lucas turned in the best effort for the losers, while Hamilton accomplished some good spiking, with Doug Green and "Kitch" Kitchen setting them up for him.

Vic ran into a stubborn crew when they took on the Meds and had to come from behind to ehalk up their first win of the season. The first game was best, as Meds overhauled a big lead to win at 15-12. Their game tapered off, however, in the last two instalments, as Vic raced through them 15-8 and 15-9.

The Doctors have a good spiker in Sandy Floren, but alone he could not match the combined efforts of the old Vic standbys, Frank Hoffman and Don Ferguson.

Schoolmen Trounce U.C. As Soccer Game Ends 5-0

Artsmen No Match for S.P.S. in Yesterday's Game. Seymour, McPheeters and Cooper Score for School Squad

PLAY IN U.C. TERRITORY

A strong School soccer squad, which last Friday held the champion Scarlet and Gold twelve to a one-all draw, booted out a 5-0 verdict over an out-classed U.C. team yesterday afternoon on the back campus.

The Artsmen could not match the combination play of the Engineers, and failed to make more than a couple of stabs at the School goal. Play ranged almost entirely between mid-field and the Red and White net, and it was only the stellar performance of Stakalo that kept the count from reaching high-tide.

Hal Seymour, one of the classiest soccerites on any team this season, took two shots home in the first chukker, and followed with the first tally in the second half. McPheeters and Cooper accounted for the other two. Al Frost turned in a better-than-average effort for School, and Johnny Wilson also hoofed about in neat fashion. Larry Smith worked hard for the losers.

S.P.S.: Frost, B. Seymour, Dandereau, Cronyn, H. Seymour, Smart, Cooper, Martin, McPheeters, Wilson. U.C.: Stakalo, Macaulay, Bates, Hardy, Gray, Hall, Macintosh, MacDonald, Smith, Skinner, Nichol, Waisgrass, Kracluk, Kalant.

In an effort to wipe out illegal rushing, the Inter-Fraternity Council, headed by Walt Moody, clamped down on Phi Delta Theta fraternity, accused and convicted of illegally rushing two rushees during the week-end.

According to other fraternity representatives, the Phi Deltas did unlawfully and avoidably contact the two rushees on a trip to Victoria on a day not allotted the fraternity for rushing.

aspirants. He said, "Law is not an exact science; it is the facts of a case which govern decisions." The Chief Justice continued, saying that while public opinion influences the courts to some extent, the law does not suffer from "winds of the moment".

Chief Justice Robertson outlined several habits which every law student should form, namely, observation of the customs of groups, accuracy in all legal pursuits, a power to listen to and elicit all the relevant facts of a case.

His Lordship stressed the value of the university law course, remarking that it gives a student a better understanding of legal fundamentals than can otherwise be attained.

Before the meeting adjourned a desk set was presented to President N. A. M. MacKenzie, of the University of New Brunswick, former professor of International Law at Toronto, Professor F. C. Auld accepted the gift on behalf of Mr. MacKenzie.

ALL TEAMS TO TAKE PART IN SWIMMING MEETS HELD IN HART HOUSE POOL

For the first time in the history of this university a regular schedule of interfaculty swimming meets will be held. This innovation commences today at 5 o'clock in the Hart House pool, where St. Mike's meet Trinity. Half an hour later Knox will tangle with Wycliffe.

The meet consists of five events, a 150 yard medley relay, a 50 yard back stroke, a 50 yard breast stroke, a 50 yard free style, and a 200 yard four man sprint relay.

Every faculty is represented in this novel project, and A category faculties have submitted two entries. Each team consists of not more than 8 members.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Stan Westcott

THEY CAN DO IT

Western is the latest university to hop aboard the bandwagon in protest against the dictated regulations banning intercollegiate sport. The great Mustangs (now playing as a C.O.T.C. unit) opened their exhibition season against R.M.C. last Saturday with an overwhelming 65-0 win. Does that remind you of anything? They play host to the Titans from the University of Detroit next week-end, and among other games on their schedule is one with Camp Borden on a date as yet unnamed.

By this act Western joins the vast majority of Canadian universities in actively objecting to the rule that emerged from Ontario last July. Since then intermittent spasms of dissent varying from mild "Oh, how could you's" to anathematic diatribes of bitter reproach have emerged in the daily press. So far McGill and our own university have played the role of the white-haired boy and kept their skirts clean in this respect. But both of these large institutions are fortunate in having an extensive intramural system of athletics which take the place, to some extent at least, of intercollegiate participation. Queen's have a junior team in the same league, by the way, as R.M.C. of last week's Western-R.M.C. debacle. But the Gaels have dispensed with their senior and intermediate squads.

However, in the far east and the west the situation is radically different. We quote from an article appearing in the Argosy Weekly of Mt. Allison, N.B., of Oct. 12. "All the maritime universities with the possible exception of Mt. Allison and U.N.B. are playing exhibition rugby games." Since that time both Mt. Allison and the University of New Brunswick have been training teams, which just about makes it unanimous down east.

In the west, although accurate statistics including every college are not available, it is apparent that many schools are fielding teams for exhibition games, headed by the University of Manitoba's Bisons, and the Huskies from the University of Saskatchewan, both of whom have been playing regularly.

From a quick running glance over the above data, it would appear that the regulation prohibiting intercollegiate sport was not received with gleeful jubilation by the powers-that-be in each and every institute of learning across the Dominion. The Board of Governors of the University of Saskatchewan officially granted its athletic board permission to play games with American teams in whatever sports can be arranged. Of course everyone would agree that the war effort of our nation must be served first and in every possible way. But we fail to see how playing with American teams assists that effort if participating in Canadian intercollegiate competition hinders it.

The Argosy Weekly of Oct. 5 states: "It is rather apparent that the decision to abandon all types of intercollegiate sport was made without regard to its effect on student morale in general. The English government, realizing the value of athletics, has organized a special division to promote sports amongst the soldiers overseas. The English people are 'muddling through' with football, cricket and horse racing; occasionally taking time out for an air raid. It seems therefore rather absurd that intercollegiate sports be entirely curtailed in this country far from the theatre of war. The physical fitness of Canadian students is as necessary as that of our soldiers. From any logical point of view, athletic training would seem to be a very valuable partner for military training."

And from the voice of Saskatchewan U. The Sheaf, the following excerpt is taken from the lead editorial of the opening issue. "We understand that the movement was instigated by Eastern universities where the lack of intercollegiate games would not be noticed as much as in Western Canada. Anxious to do everything possible to aid the war effort, the heads of most Western universities more or less agreed that outside sport should go. If such action would help us win the war we would not object. As it is, we fail to see the reasonableness of the decision. Army officials have written to The Sheaf telling us that even watching our games improves the morale of the troops. Old Country football continues in spite of Hitler. And yet inter-varsity sport is cancelled, with no reasonable excuse given. To cap it all, apparently there is to be no women's intercollegiate sport. Why in the world should they be forbidden inter-varsity rivalry? Don't ask us brother, we're in the same quandary."

This windy treatise is just an attempt to give you (if you are still present) a picture of the sportive scene from coast to coast, and an inkling of the reaction to the intercollegiate dictum. Incidentally our intramural gridgers are showing a fine brand of football well worthy of your support on stray P.M.'s.

at the Ontario Research Foundation. A native of Russia, he attended a university in Europe but took his Ph.D. at Toronto.

Following the dissertation by the experts, members of the club will join in with questions and further discussion.

The medium of a Round Table discussion was decided upon by the club executive as a more informative and informal method of treating what they considered a mysterious and controversial subject. All undergraduates or graduates of the Modern History course and students in Social and Philosophical Studies are invited to attend. The meeting is to take place in Cartwright Hall, Tuesday, Nov. 5 at 8 p.m. There will be refreshments and dancing.

The Canadian Campus

by Esmond Goldman

Staff Writer, McGill Daily

A Canadian University Press Feature

On Canadian campuses from Dalhousie, "the college by the sea", to the University of British Columbia (which would seem to have a perfect right to call itself "the college by the ocean"), men students are busily engaged in getting used to a college routine new to the majority of them. The joint universities-government compulsory military training scheme for students has made learning to be a soldier an integral part of this year's college curriculum. By now, with preparative arrangements practically completed and such things as time-table adjustments taken care of, it is no longer being regarded as an interesting novelty but rather as an important necessary course — a prerequisite, if you will, to responsible citizenship here in Canada at the present time.

****
McGill Co-eds Must Train . . .
McGill is the only university which has formulated a compulsory war-training plan for co-eds as well as for male students. The co-eds must devote four hours per week to their war-program — two hours for physical training and two hours for first aid and home nursing.

****
Several other universities, including Toronto, Mount Allison, Manitoba and Saskatchewan are offering courses connected with the war effort. These run the gamut, to say the least, going as they do from auto mechanics to occupational therapy, from physical training to cookery.

"Moot" Court Meets . . .

Dalhousie's Supreme Moot Court, verbal playground of the law students, is still going strong. It was recently officially opened for the current session.

First case on the calendar this year was the old libel affair, "Yousouffoff vs. Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer Pictures, Ltd.", a legal battle which was disposed of last year by the very same chambers, or so the files tell us. The Princess Yousouffoff sued the picture company for making a film suggesting she was mixed up with that Mad Monk, Rasputin.

The sophistry of the opposing lawyers was brilliant, reports the Dalhousie Gazette. One of these gentlemen displayed a profound knowledge of the "Doctrine of Sexual Satisfaction", but question, "Did she fall or was she pushed?"

G. and S. in Production . . .

Alberta and McMaster Universities are going in for Gilbert and Sullivan in a big way. The Philharmonic Society of the University of Alberta is working on a performance of the universal favourite, "The Mikado"; while McMaster's Operatic Society is preparing the "Gondoliers" and will turn over its proceeds from the performance to the university's war fund.

Cops on the Campus . . .

The University of Toronto has four special campus policemen covering the grounds. These gentlemen declare that although they (the cops) are kept busy by the students they are a law-abiding bunch. "They have always treated us respectfully," says the chief.

The cops are responsible for everything from preventing the appropriation of light bulbs by wicked freshmen to detecting fires.

All of which prompts us, since we were just mentioning Gilbert and Sullivan, to remark, "A policeman's life is not a happy one".

Hardest Subject . . .

The most difficult subject studied in college has been found to be organic chemistry, according to the Bureau of Educational Surveys, says the Argosy.
Other subjects, in order of difficulty:
statistics, physics, general psychology, inorganic chemistry, principles of economics, political science, general biology, history of the middle ages, history of Europe, American government and English Literature.

The line-up for English courses forms on the right. No crowding, please.

graduate Association would be held in the U.C. junior common room.
The meeting will be held in the Women's Union at 8 o'clock tonight.

U.C. FOLLIES

The following will be required to turn out in the U.C. men's junior com-

Few Ghosts Or Spirits To Prowl About Campus On All Saints' Eve

Ghosts may lurk, witches may ride, black cats may prowl, and goblins may getcha around the campus on Hallowe'en, but it's all going to be silent . . .
very.

According to Mary Bruck, president of the W.U.A., U.C. plans nary a frolic and she hasn't heard of any unofficial hair-raisers either. The same news comes from every society on the campus.
Victoria 4T4 is staging a class party on Friday night, but only orange and black streamers will distinguish it from any other. "You can't have three hundred people bobbing for apples," mourned
Bill Blackmore, president of 4T4.

Pat Brown, Household Science III, complained that her first Hallow'een in Toronto is going to seem dull after Guelph. "There is nothing to do but ring door-bells, but then that's fun whether it's Hallow'een or not," she concluded.

Although there is no concrete evidence, whispers around Annesley Hall indicate that some plans are under way.
Some hint at a ghost party, others of rites to be performed in the catacombs below Annesley very late Thursday night. One senior (who wishes to remain anonymous) volunteered this much information: "An eighth century secret for raising the devil (don't put in any quotation marks, I mean it literally!) has been discovered. We are going to try it out, complete with potions and incantations."

MISSIONARY TO CHINA WILL ADDRESS V.C.F.

Recently returned on furlough from the war area in China, Miss Fynney, of the China Inland Mission, will address the V.C.F. Missionary group this afternoon at 5.00 in the School of Missions, 97 St. George St.

Miss Fynney, who has spent seven years in Shansi province, claims that the war, instead of hindering the Christian gospel, has helped to disseminate it. Chinese students, driven into West China to continue their studies, have shown great interest in the once despised Christian faith. Bible societies are unable to meet the demand for copies of the Scriptures.

With regard to mission work, Miss Fynney said: "Everywhere in the land today, the situation is characterized by the word 'opportunity'." In her own mission alone almost ten thousand were baptized in a single year. She added a paraphrase of Genesis 50:20: "As for China, the devil thought evil against her, but God meant it unto good, to bring it to pass, as it is in this day, to save much people alive."

Mission Problems To Be Raised At Vic Assembly

To Bring to the Students Some of the Problems Faced by the Church, and to Consider the Help Needed

TO LAST ALL OAY

The third annual Missionary Conference of Victoria University will be held in Emmanuel College on Saturday, November 2. The conference, which will be an all-day affair, and to which all students interested in the forward movement of the Christian church are invited, will bring to the fore the theme "What Christianity is Doing at Home and Abroad".

The conference has been called to bring to the attention of students some of the problems currently faced on United Church fields, including war conditions and shortage of staff at points where the need is considered great. "Preface to action" groups, meeting in the afternoon, will consider what can be done by Christian college students to help meet that need. Leaders will include prominent missionaries from various home and foreign fields.

Sessions commencing at 9.30 and lasting until late afternoon will include talks by seven speakers. A dedication service at 7 p.m. will conclude the day's activities.

Stocking Tags At Annesley To Aid Refugees

The lapel ornament worn by the fashionable co-ed at dinner at Annesley Hall last night, took the form of a little blue or red paper stocking. This tag, when each girl deposited her contribution in the sock provided for the purpose, was the initial attempt by the Vic girls in residence to raise funds for their projected refugee work.

They plan to supply with clothing a number of refugee children in Toronto, who are not being taken care of by any other society. There are to be work rooms established, where the sewing and knitting will be under supervision. Joy Martin, president of the Annesley Student Government Association, announced that the sale of tags had netted a neat sum, and the work rooms would be open in a few days.

Varsity Students Get Reduced Rates

Admitted to Performance of Toronto Symphony Orchestra at Less than Regular Rate for Tickets

Since 1923, students interested in classical music have been able to secure tickets at a reduced rate for the concerts presented by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

It was in January of that year that the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, in co-operation with the Hart House Music Committee, first made available 75 one dollar tickets for the Tuesday evening concert at the subscription price of 80 cents for the benefit of University of Toronto students. The experiment proved to be a great success and the demand for tickets could scarcely be met.

Later, the block of seats was cut down to 50, on the ground floor, and the price was reduced to 50 cents per ticket. A great many students take advantage of this reduction and thus enable the Music Committee to continue the service.

Madeline Carroll Tells Group of Students of Experiences in France During the Downfall of that Country

WAS THERE HERSELF

Montreal, Que., Oct. 30 (CUP)—Madeline Carroll, noted British film star, described to a group of McGill students her experiences in France this summer, during the downfall of that country. It was the first time she had addressed a student audience in Canada.

Miss Carroll was en route to Paris, she related, when she learned that the city had fallen. With the assistance of an American ambulance driver, she reached her family at Evreux.

"On the road between Biarritz and Evreux," said Miss Carroll, "I was struck by the symbolism of the sight of dynamite being drawn by oxen—peaceful animals transporting destruction."

The "periodic weakness" of the French is over, Miss Carroll gave as her opinion, quoting letters she had received from France as saying "It was all our own fault."

U.B.C. CO-EDS MASS FOR RED CROSS WORK

Women's Undergrad Society Draws Up Tentative Program; Plans to Provide Sox, Sweaters and Smiles

PLAN TO WORK ALL WEEK

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 28 (CUP)—University of British Columbia co-eds attended en masse today an organization meeting of the Women's Undergraduate Society, to draw up a tentative program for Red Cross and women's work on the campus. Headed by Dr. Joyce Hallamore and a committee consisting of Dorothy Hird, W.U.S. president, Nancy Carr, and Gertrude Moore, the girls intend to provide Sox, sweaters, and smiles for soldiers and refugees.

For the present, two rooms in the Brock Hall, student Union Building constructed last year, will be available two hours daily. It is expected, however, that once the program is fully organized, that the rooms will be available all day six days a week.

KATHIE NICHOLL GIVES CONCLUDING TALK ON "PERSONAL EVANGELISM"

Speaking on Personal Evangelism, Kathie Nicholl, Toronto secretary of the Varsity Christian Fellowship, declared last evening that "only if we ourselves are sold on what Jesus has done, will we be able to spread the Gospel. . . . A Christian is a normal person and we find one that is abnormal he is off at a tangent somewhere."

This group plans next week to begin a study of primitive religions. A pseudo-Buddha and pseudo-Confucius will expound the beliefs of those they represent. The meeting will then be thrown open and the relative merits of Christianity will be discussed.

The talk last night was the fourth and concluding one in the series "Personal Evangelism."

The Very Reverend Dean Riley Delivers Third in the Series of Wednesday Lectures on "Basic Conviction"

SPONSORED BY S.C.M.

Concluding that the meaning of God's title of "The Father" is that the abstract statement of God is love, the Very Rev. Dean Riley gave the third in the series of weekly noon-hour lectures on the general topic, "Basic Convictions". The series is sponsored by the Students' Christian Movement.

The speaker, who is Dean of St. James' Cathedral, traced the origin of the paternalistic conception of God from its beginnings in the Old Testament books of the law and the prophets to its statement in the New Testament. He pointed out that in Deuteronomy the figurative idea of God's fatherhood is expressed, while Isaiah goes a step farther in speaking of Him as the Father of Israel.

"In such parables as that of the Prodigal Son," the Dean continued, "Jesus shows us a God of universal love."

Turning to the practical consequences of this belief, the speaker named three of these. Man is drawn into closer communion with God in the capacity of a son in the fullest sense of the word, and is encouraged toward public worship with other children of God. Secondly, an attitude of trustfulness is inspired in God's children. Finally, man's relation to man is determined by the concept of God as a God of love.

"This concept," Dean Riley concluded, "is the inspiration of Christian charity directed towards all men, not merely for humanity's sake, but for the love of God."

All Officers may draw Battle Dress at 119 St. George St., during the following periods: Friday, Nov. 1st, 0900 to 1300 hours, 1400 to 1800 hours. Saturday, Nov. 2nd, 0900 to 1300 hours.

University College Player's Guild Plans Three Plays Of Wide Variety

November 29 is the date set for the evening show to be staged by the U.C. Players' Guild, the executive announced yesterday. The performance will take place in the theatre of the Women's Union, it was added, and will consist of three plays, directed by Tom Tisdale, Elliot Segal, and Johnny Meyer.

First in the evening will be "Plant in the Sun" by Ben Bengal, whose theme is a sit-down strike among the girls in the packing room of a candy factory. "Bury the Dead," by Irwin Shaw, will be second in the program; it is a series of conversations between dead soldiers and their nearest women relatives who come to persuade them to be buried.

George Bernard Shaw's "The Fatal Garogene" will be the concluding performance. This was described by a member of the executive as "an extraordinary farce, and a tax on the ingenuity of the workers in charge of special effects"; among other things, they must produce a bolt of lightning and an angelic choir.

Med Undergrads To Banquet In Great Hall

Medical Students Launch New Feature in the Life of Their Faculty with First All-Medical Banquet

HALOENBY TO SPEAK

A new feature in the life of the Faculty of Medicine will be launched tonight in the form of the first All-Medical Banquet in the Great Hall of Hart House.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Brigadier Haldenby, one-time member of the University of Toronto contingent of the C.O.T.C. and now in charge of the Atlantic sea-board defences. The Brigadier has made a name for himself not only in the field of military endeavor but also as an after-dinner speaker.

Purpose of the new function is to replace the soporific of former years, and it is meant that it should give the younger years a better insight into the workings of their faculty.

Entertainment will be provided by the undergraduates of the faculty in the traditional Daffydil manner; as additional features a two-piano team and a sing-song will be introduced. One of the highlights of the evening will be the singing of the new Medical song by the entire faculty for the first time.

Tickets have been on sale for the past two weeks, and due to the work of the Medettes and the public address system used in the halls between lectures, the anticipated attendance is in the neighbourhood of the 500 mark.

It is expected that during the evening a presentation of awards won last year by various grads and undergrads will be made.

As special guests of the Faculty of Medicine will be the officers of the local C.O.T.C. unit.

W.S.T.O. NOTICE

Owing to the loss of some copy, important orders in connection with the Women's Service Training Detachment were necessarily omitted in this issue. All those women who are in any way connected with the Women's Service Training Detachment and any who are desirous of joining the Detachment are urged to see Miss Parkes in Room 82, University College, as early as possible this morning in order to find out the orders.

DIRECTORY NOTICE

Every university student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct Toronto address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of the University Registrar, Simcoe Hall, or of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

Approximately 350 students attended a miniature U.C. Follies last night in the Women's Union for the first of three joint meetings of the W.U.A. and the Literary and Athletic Society of University College.

The highlight of the evening was an hour and a half show, composed of four plays, put on by the students of each year.

The fourth year students put on an outstanding skit, a take-off on the Women's Auxiliary Battalion of the Red Cross. They were put through drill, using needle-work in place of a rifle.

Howard Cable and his five-piece swing band supplied music for dancing which followed the refreshments.

STUDENT OPINION FAVOURS ROOSEVELT

The Bugaboo of Third Term Slated to Break, According to Students of the University of Washington

TWO HUNDREO QUESTIONED

Seattle, Washington, Oct. 28.—Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for re-election as president of the United States, seems to be slated to break Yankee tradition and the bugaboo of the third term, the Survey of Student Opinion, working on the Dr. Gallup principle, indicated today on the U. of W. campus.

Of the 200 students questioned, 50 per cent would vote for F.D.R. and his firebrand child, and only 37 per cent for Wendell Willkie; while 57 per cent thought that the presidency should not be limited to two terms, 35 per cent thought that Uncle Sam should stick to tradition and let one man be president for only two terms.

ART CLASS TO MEET

The third art class, under the direction of Mr. Caven Atkins, will take place at 7.30 p.m. tonight in the art gallery at Hart House. New members will be welcomed.

CASTING FOR "SAN TOY" STILL INCOMPLETE; ANNOUNCEMENT NEXT WEEK

Casting for the Vic Music Club production "San Toy" is still incomplete. No final announcement will be made until next week, it was learned last night. It is understood, however, that the stars of last year's production will again have leading parts. Among them will be Peggy Evey, Vera Argumant, Nancy Robson, Elmer Phillips, Jack Watson and Glen Eagle. The chorus also is not completely chosen.

"San Toy" is a Chinese musical comedy written in two acts by Sidney Jones. The presentation will take place in January and regular rehearsals have already begun. As usual the production is under the direction of Mr. T. J. Crawford, F.R.C.O., organist at Eaton

Newly Organized Women's Service Training Detachment to Hold First Outdoor Drill Today

UNIFORMS EXPECTED SOON

History will be made this afternoon when well over 150 women students will gather at 5.15 p.m. on Trinity back campus for military drill under the newly-organized Women's Service Training Detachment. This will be the first outdoor drill of the year. An organization drill was held Tuesday in the arena.

About 170 women have signed up for service already, and many more are expected before enrollment ends Saturday, said Miss A. E. M. Parkes, secretary-treasurer of the Women's Athletic Directorate and associate secretary of the S.A.C. University College leads the list with 76, while Trinity with 36, Vic with 23 and Occupational Therapy with 22 follow in that order. O.C.E. and Household Science each have 3 enrolled in the Detachment, S.P.S., Social Science and Physio-

Varsity Symphony Works Hard To Make Harmony

"My time, not yours!" roared Conductor Ryerson to the twenty perspiring players of the University of Toronto Symphony in the Women's Union yesterday. After two hours of baton-waving Don Ryerson finally accomplished the feat of producing a harmonious rendering of Haydn's Second Symphony.

Other compositions to be rehearsed on Monday evenings are: Rameau's Le Tambourin, Beethoven's Egmont Overture, and Bach's Suite in D for Flute and Strings. These will be played at the annual concert to be given at the end of February in Convocation Hall. Ryerson also hopes to conduct the orchestra in a program at the Ontario Agricultural College some time in February.

UNDERGRADS ADVISED ON BEST USE OF TIME

Miss Jean Hunter, Addressing Women in Noon-Hour Series, Suggests that Leisure Time be Planned

"The key to planning our leisure time should not be what time we have available, but how we use it," said Miss Jean Hunter, women's secretary for the S.C.M., addressing the women's noon-hour series in the Women's Union yesterday. Speaking on "The Importance of Amateurs," Miss Hunter defined an amateur as one who cultivates things to do as pastimes, and leisure time not as time "in which we stand and stare," but as that time in which we can do whatever we choose.

Although most college students have a 24-hour day, Miss Hunter suggested that by budgeting one's time and by eliminating "pleasure that doesn't really give us any pleasure at all," time can be found for necessary relaxation.

Other lectures in the "Creative Leisure" noon-hour series will include talks by Nancy Meek ("Arts and Crafts"), Mrs. F. Chamberlain ("Theatre Projects"), and Gertrude Rutherford ("Creative Leisure").

Well, Gallup Says . . .

Among the minor issues to be decided next Tuesday when American voters go to the polls is the fate of one Dr. George Gallup, the man who has been telling the public what it thinks for many years now. As head of the American Institute of Public Opinion, he questions representative groups of Americans on everything from the war to the movies, from elections to fashions, and then makes his predictions public. So far he has never been seriously wrong, a fact that has garnered for him no little prestige and respect.

The final test is yet to come, however. Gallup Poll results in respect to the coming elections have been quoted high, wide and handsome in every paper in the country in the past few months. Individuals have been quoting Gallup as if he were an oracle. Never has he been so widely spotlighted, with the result that if he is wrong this time his defeat will echo all over the country; his predictions in the future will carry comparatively little weight. He could have been wrong a score of other times and escaped reputation free. This time he must be right—or his fate will probably be similar to that of the Literary Digest Poll after the 1936 elections. In 1932 the Digest Poll gained widespread esteem when it predicted Roosevelt's election to within 1.4 per cent. In 1936 it doomed itself by predicting an easy Landon victory, and being nearly twenty per cent out on its estimate of the Roosevelt vote.

The Digest error was explained by Gallup, during his Toronto visit last month, as an error in the number of each type questioned. It sampled opinions of 11,000,000 automobile owners and telephone subscribers, thus disregarding the lower income classes and people on relief, most of whom were Roosevelt supporters. If the Digest had selected 265 persons from different strata of society, said Gallup, its margin of error would have been reduced by one-half and thus it would have predicted a Roosevelt election.

With the defeat of the Digest Poll, the Gallup Poll, originated the year before, began to gain prominence. Newspapers had to quote someone. It turned out to be Gallup. Compared to the Digest Poll his had done remarkably well in the 1936 elections. He had predicted 53.8 per cent of the popular vote for Roosevelt; actually he won 60.7 per cent. Not good, but better than the prominent Digest.

Since the last elections, however, the methods of sampling public opinion have been changed and doubtless much improved. The number of citizens interviewed need not be very large, so long as they are a group exactly representative of the country as a whole. Every state and county, every age group and every income group must be correctly sampled according to size. Pollsters claim to have it all down to a science.

For some time now Gallup Poll results have been published at regular intervals showing exactly how the American public is going to vote next week and showing day by day shifts in public opinion. His latest report, released two days ago, gives Willie a 1½ per cent gain and 47 per cent of the popular vote as against 53 per cent for Roosevelt. You can check for yourself next week.

Among other American opinions disclosed by Gallup in Toronto last month in addition to Roosevelt's election, were the fact that the United States will not go to war if it is necessary to send an expeditionary force to Europe, but aid to England will steadily increase. Americans believe British reports of battles and losses, and disregard the German. The majority of Americans believe that Britain will win the war. These latter are last month's opinions, however. Several new factors have entered into the international situation since then and America probably has a new set of war opinions as a result.

Lucky Number Draw

Nine thousand capsules were drawn out of a glass bowl in Washington the other day and by this simple procedure thousands of American men were drafted for a year's military training.

The serious business was not nearly as serious as it might have been, however. Draftees persisted in regarding it humorously. "It's the first lottery I ever won in my life," was a joke worn thin throughout the country by men whose number had been drawn.

Strangely enough, the first number to be drawn in New York City was held by a Chinaman, Chan Chong Yuen, a native American and a laundry worker like his father before him. He was one of about 8000 Chinese to register from New York's Chinatown. When interviewed by reporters his only comment was "Yeah, I'll go."

George Tsatoronis, a 31 year old alien who arrived in the States five years ago from Greece, was also called up. Through an interpreter he told reporters: "That's good. I would like to serve to show my appreciation to this country. I would like to be a cook. I am a good cook."

Radio announcer Steve McCormick of station WOR discovered in the middle of a broadcast that he was to be called up. Announcing the numbers drawn, he came across his own. A 31 year old Negro whose number was drawn said, "I've been playing the numbers for years and never got my number out."

According to the New York Times, "The reaction of these 'firsts' was as varied as their names. Some men were pleased and proud, some said they had to make the best of it, some grumbled outright. And some mothers were proud, some resentful."

Among the names called in New York City, says the Times, was a Farruggia, a Chan, a Re and a Weisblum. Also a Stroller, a Leibell, a Tierno, an Etazzone, a Wolf, a Lichtenstein, an Oren, a Heyman, an O'Reilly, a McDonald, a Viale, a Gonzales, a Spickenruther and a Gerkowski.

In Hollywood, movie producers have been bewailing and bemoaning the fact that some of their shining lights may be drafted out from under their noses. They debated seeking exemption for their stars on the grounds that they do the country a greater service where they are. At this point movie censor Will Hays put his foot down and put an end to any such attempt. The public would object to any such exemption, he insisted, and the result would be injurious to the movie industry. So far the only two Hollywood stars whose numbers were reported drawn are James Stewart and comedian Sterling Holloway.

Other prominent names drawn included John Kennedy, son of the American Ambassador to Great Britain; Newton D. Baker III, son of the late Newton D. Baker, war secretary who drew the first number in the 1917 drawing; J. Frederick Byers, scion of a well known steel family; Joe Vosmik, Brooklyn outfielder, and many others.

And so the United States of America, one of the few great nations still at peace in the world today, has swung into action with a wide-scale democratic peace-time conscription scheme. Uncle Sam should have a pretty good army after thousands of his nephews spend a full year in military training camps. Yes, Uncle Sam has geared for action, and in a typically democratic way.

ARTS MUSIC Drama

Drama Committee

The Rising of the Moon, a one-act play by Lady Gregory, was presented yesterday afternoon in Hart House Theatre by the Trinity College Dramatic Society. Working under the handicaps of having to produce Irish accents with Canadian voices, and of playing to an audience that seemed to miss most of the significance of the play, the Trinity troupe gave a very creditable performance.

David Ker as the outlaw, acted confidently and convincingly for the most part, although he, in company with the rest of the cast, failed to attain authentic diction.

A. H. Crosbie played the sergeant torn between loyalty to his country and cupidity combined with love of security excellently. His portraying of the transition in attitude toward the fugitive, as his feel-

CONFESSIONS OF AN ARTS STUDENT

I am a lowly Pass Arts student. People stop and point the finger of scorn at me. My life is a veritable hell.

I too read the editorial which appeared in The Varsity last week that cast many slurs on the students of the Pass Course, and I too rise in protest. The article seems to suggest that Pass students are low-grade morons. This is not true. We have some high-grade morons. The editorial as a whole leaves a very bad impression. So does a Pass Arts student.

But this is the result of many things, and it is only fair that our side of the argument is represented. The truth of the matter is that we undergo worse tortures than the Inquisition ever devised. Let me tell you my story.

I entered school with my heart singing and my ears ringing from a blow I had just received after having my tie clipped. Within the next twenty-four hours, I had bought a subscription to The Varsity for five dollars. In my second year, I bought another subscription to the undergraduate paper for two dollars. In my third year, I discovered that they were given away free. It still isn't worth it.

An editorial at the beginning of the year, suggested that I engage in extra-curricular activities as much as possible. Soon after I joined The Varsity sport staff thereby ensuring failure in my English exams three years in a row.

The Pass Arts student is made the victim of ruthless pranks by men of other faculties. The Pool Room invites him in all its wickedness to shoot a stick with sharks who immediately strip him of his shirt and throw him into the Tuck Shop, where he slowly but surely freezes to death.

His life is a very harrowing one. After he buys a book at the Press, he has to rush to class before the next edition comes out. Also the co-eds prove to be a constant distraction. In a psychology lecture 1A, there is very little to be learned about psychology . . . anatomy, perhaps . . . but psychology, never. Therefore, the student immediately fails in psychology. But does the Faculty of Medicine allow the student to try the anatomy exam . . . no, they will not . . . you see the unfortunate position of the Pass Arts student.

As the year wears on, the Pass Course becomes unbearable. I know, because all this happened to me. As a last resort, I joined the C.O.T.C. to forget, but now I forget what I joined to forget.

But don't get me wrong. Don't get the idea that Pass Arts isn't a good course. The mere fact that I spent seven years in it proves that it must have something. Beowolf.

ings of patriotism are played upon, was strong.

The two policemen were played efficiently by Ed Downey and Max Clarkson.

Best bit in the play was the tableau contrived by Ker and Crosbie as they sat back-to-back on a barrel, puffing their pipes, while the patriot subtly broke down the sergeant's original intention of carrying out his "duty".

In criticizing any production of "The Rising of the Moon", it is inevitable that a comparison should be made with productions of the same piece by the Abbey Players. Naturally, the undergraduates suffer in such a comparison. But it is not a fair one. By undergraduate standards, the production was excellent.

Meds Defeat Forestry --- Track Team Selected

Junior Meds Break Jinx; First Win In Three Years By Topping Woodsman

SPORT SPLASHES

By Doug Green

The swimming season was inaugurated last night in Hart House pool with two rough and ready meets between St. Mike's and Trinity, and Wycliffe and Knox. St. Mike's, by virtue of a win in the final relay, defeated Trinity 19-14, and the Presbyterians swamped Wycliffe 26-7.

No sensational times were recorded, but Flaherty of St. Mike's saved the day when he did 29.5 in the 50 free to beat out Whitehead of Trinity, who finished second. With the score 16-14 in favour of St. Mike's and only one event to go, Trinity still had a chance to finish on top as the final relay counted three points for first and none for second. The St. Mike's four of Bennett, Crane, Dunn and Remmer came through nobly, however, and won handily.

In the second meet Wycliffe was definitely outclassed as the score 26-7 indicates, but they did seem to have a lot of fun and their four men in the final relay did manage to finish. There was one bright spot for Wycliffe in the meet, however, when their captain, McDonald, speeding up the tempo of his arm stroke and kick by a Herculean effort, forged ahead of Crawford of Knox and won by inches.

The turnout at these first meets was amazing and the cries of encouragement from supporters of St. Mike's, Knox, and Wycliffe indicates the popularity of swimming in the university. More men from Knox and Wycliffe showed up to see if their comrades could swim the 50 yards, than used to come out to encourage the intercollegiate stars of former days, in their minor meets (almost).

Mr. Stevens certainly is to be congratulated on suggesting the introduction of intramural competition, in swimming meets of this nature, and the first two meets seem to indicate that swimming has come into its own in the University of Toronto.

Even Play All the Way Until Touchdown Scored in Last Few Seconds Remaining to be Played

FIELD VERY MUDDY

Junior Meds pulled a Frank Merriwell stunt at the Stadium yesterday afternoon in winning their first rugby game in three years, beating Forestry 6-1. The victory lodges Meds in second position in their group. Dents stand first with a win and a tie, while Forestry holds the cellar with one lone point to their credit.

With the count at 1-1, and the last play of the game in process, Gardine crashed through the Forestry forward wall to block the kick on the Treemen's 35 yard stripe. Beattie gave the ball a nudge go forward with his toe, and then Doug Campbell arrived on the scene, gathered in the loose ball and cantered away for a major. The attempted convert failed.

Play on a muddy field was even-Stephen all the way, with very few fumbles. Meds held a slight edge in the first quarter when Ken Brown blocked a Forestry kick and then hoofed a single. That was the only score when half-time rolled around.

The Green commanded the better part of the play in the third chukker, and Bert Day punted to the deadline to knot the count at one apiece.

The two teams battled on even terms till the last few seconds when Meds got the break and took advantage of it. Jim Collings and Ken Brown showed up well on the Doctors' side of the ledger, while Day and Puttock impressed in the Forestry backfield, and Eccles and Gray on the front line.

Junior Meds: Collings, Brown, Arnpur, Kuphereta, Steroff, Byron, King, Crompton, Gardine, Arthurs, Campbell, Beattie, Elia, Seigel, Ludwig, Curry, Bean.

Forestry: Puttock, Lake, McBride, Monaghan, Eccles, Jull, Beatty, Price, Hall, Gray, Tuckah, Rosenberg, Day, Kissick, Whately.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Dave MacIntosh

OVER THE HILLS...

And far away will galvanize the competitors in the interfaculty harrier as advance patrols for the C.O.T.C. infantry, which takes over High Park Saturday afternoon as a mock battlefield. The race, which is due to get under way at already should be the best in years, thinks Hee Phillips, genial track mentor. So the best we can do now is to second the motion.

The grind will cover five miles plus one hundred feet (to be as specific as possible), but only one mile of this will include really tough topographical manoeuvring. That is to say, but a single mile is actual cross-country, the re-paths, and what have you. The High Park jaunt is a tough course, and may break the best of them.

There are a flock of good plodders slated to take part. Leading the parade of veterans are Tom Barnett, Geoff Goodwin, Bob Delaney, Don Finlayson and Foulis. Any one of these mentioned may stagger home in front. It is not for us proverbial neat star performers. But we will stick the who has run many a good race in his time, and Goodwin, in his last year over that they will place first and second, but these two lads should provide a rare treat in Varsity cross-country annals.

Then there is a better-than-average crop of freshmen. And not exactly a green crop either. Gord Lorimer, who beat Frank Bennett and George Lewis to the tape by a hair in last week's novice meet, was U.T.S. cross-country title with him for U.T.S. track honours. Wright of Meds, who placed fourth last novice track championship with his three-firsts showing in the quarter, half and mile loops.

But taken all in all, the freshmen are conceded only an outside chance, and that a wide one, of placing near the top. This will be a race for the more mature runners, one of headwork and tactics. But we still won't offer predictions.

The individual championship, though a nice object to hang up on the bedroom wall, is not the big thing in harrier. The thing to go all out for is the team runner sees his figures on a four-man team basis. It works somewhat like this. A or drops out, while a faculty whose runners are of a poorer calibre, still finish enough if the fourth man fails to finish. The way awards are handed out now, hand-clap as he finishes. For this reason, Hee has been trying to obtain a new award system whereby all men on the team are equally hallelujahed. It would give greater impetus to the individual runner and increase interest in team championships.

S.P.S., Wycliffe and O.C.E. hold command over the team championship field. The Engineers boast a top-notch squad, including Lorimer, Goodwin, Peckover, Finlayson and Foulis. O.C.E., though boasting no potential individual, vamps, has a well-balanced bunch in Eccles, who ran for O.A.C. last year, Moncur and Wendorf, who were on McMaster's first squad last season, and Belchamber. Even the Brown Twins are entered. Wycliffe has Tom Barnett, Jeff Taylor, McDonald and Thomson. It will be these three teams going hot and heavy for interfaculty honours.

ODDMENTS AND ENDS

The idea of selecting a Varsity track squad, even though it will not compete, was a sound one. It is something the members will cherish, that team foto, perhaps even more than winning an intercollegiate championship. . . . The selection of Ged Clawson was not surprising after his great performance in the 880 during interfaculty track proceedings. . . . nor of any of the others, for that matter. . . . Concerning the harrier on Saturday, Hee Phillips said that he noticed that some fresh believe themselves ineligible for the race, and wished to dispel the thought, for it is open to all and sundry in the university. . . . A dozen or more members of the newly-selected Varsity track squads are requested to act as markers on Saturday. . . . The number of spectators at the first swimming meet yesterday afternoon was gratifying, and it would seem that these daily duckings are going to be popular with the fans. . . . The hat-trick Junior Meds pulled in winning that rugby tangle from Forestry is one for the books. . . . Last-play touchdowns are about as numerous as coughs in a earload. . . .

No Intercollegiate Track; Seniors, Intermediates Chosen For Teams Anyway

By Marg. Foulds

Foiled again by Brother Weather! Ida Tipp and Virginia Rappell are still "almost champs", and the rain still pours. Today we are making no promises—no sir, not us! We know when we're beat and we don't argue with rain! We think the all-important tennis final will be played off today—and at 10 o'clock too—but we're just thinking!

Last night the basketball season opened, with rather unusual results. Firstly, Vic Srs. were unable to sport a team at the last moment, and therefore—no game at six. Secondly, at seven U.C. Srs., whose predecessors by name were 1939 interfaculty champions, were simply shot off the floor by Physios by the amazing score of 58-10. U.C. had simply nothing to offer—in fact only six players were to be found when game time came—and Physios were a bit of all right! And thirdly, the first minutes of play sounded the gong for a plucky Vic freshe team when U.C. Srs. mounted up a 39-3 count against them. Marg. Ham and Betty Allen were top scorers, sinking 16 and 13 respectively. This last year's sensational freshe squad really is on the up and up. Watch them!

Tonight, at 6, St. Hilda's Srs. meet Vic Srs., and at 8, St. Mike's meet Household Science. These games will be played in O.C.E. and may be a little more even than last night's, wow!

Will the U.C. Srs. please note that their practice will be at O.C.E. at seven instead of six—please?

Vic And U.C. Gridders Aim For Second Place In Race For Mulock Cup

Both Teams Have Lost to Junior School; Game is Crucial and Promises to be Very Close

BOTH TEAMS PRIMED

Vic's Taylor-coached gridders go against the Red and White charges of George Oliphant this afternoon at 4.30 over in the Stadium to decide the occupant of second place in Group No. I. Both squads have fallen before Don Grosskurth and his big train from Junior School. Each have won a game, from Trinity, now occupying the cellar with no wins recorded. So it will be a crucial game, that may determine who shall enter the Mulock Cup play-downs, for two teams from the first group go into the semi-final.

Vic has unearthed a new player in the person of Johnny Whallon, Bruce Hall's doubles partner in the interfaculty tennis tournament, who can pass and carry the ball with the greatest of ease, and hails from Princeton. They have a good hoover and passer in Red Heimbuch, a great broken-field runner in Hal Fleming, a lad who can carry the nail in Hugh Bailey, and one of the best snaps in the league in Harvey Rutledge.

But U.C. has a goodly share of the league's better players. Sunny Nelson can throw a perfect pass, Axon can catch them, Alcombrack can plunge, while Cutler and Jarvis form the best outside combination in the league. Diminutive Cuddy Faber is a smart quarter.

It sizes up as one of the best games to be staged during the regular sked, and what's more, it's croodul.

Members of Eight Faculties Are on the Intermediate Team; Ten Faculties Represented on Senior Team

INCLUDE FIVE ENGINEERS

Although there has not been and will not be any intercollegiate track this year, Varsity senior and intermediate track teams have been selected for the year 1940-41.

Ten faculties are represented on the senior team, the largest delegations coming from O.C.E., S.P.S., and Vic, who placed in that order in the interfaculty meet held over a week ago. The Engineers have five members, the Teachers and the Scarlet and Gold four each. Other colleges represented are Trinity, Dents, U.C., Wycliffe, Meds, Forestry and Aerial Navigation.

On the intermediate team are members of eight faculties, with S.P.S. and Wycliffe leading the parade with four each. Meds, O.C.E., and Vic placed three apiece.

Following are the members of the seniors squad (in alphabetical order): Hugh Bailey, Tom Barnett, Ollie Brett, Hal Brown, Wally Brown, Bob Cass, Ged Clawson, Bob Delaney, Don Finlayson, Lloyd Delaney, Geoff Goodwin, Bob Hamilton, Frank Lewarne, Ernie Leaning, Bob Miller, Bob Paul, Lionel Peckover, Gerry Proderick, Al Purdy, Mike Tuckah, Verd Wendorf.

FREE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

New York.—Hunter College is really a very strange institution: only co-eds allowed. (This is one of those subtle ones, so if you don't get it right away, just pass along.) Like all other schools of the College of the City of New York entrance to Hunter is purely on a scholarship basis. A lot of meaningless hot air has been blown forth about the standards, but it is not our place here to examine them critically. Suffice it to say that although you do not have to be too clever to get in, you cannot enter if you are utterly stupid.

Hunter built a building: the beautiful white stone structure, all of sixteen storeys in height, overlooks the planned abandon of the verdure of Central Park on Park Avenue, between East Sixty-Seventh and East Sixty-Eighth. It stands there as testimony of the victory of the common man over the new aristocracy. For the residents of Park Avenue had protested the proposed structure of a free school on that snobbish thoroughfare — to no avail. They lost, and the common folk won, and the new Hunter College was built on Park Avenue, overlooking Central Park.

This is the story of Mr. J. (We shall call him J. and preserve his anonymity, even though his name begins with a P.) Mr. J. was an instructor of English at Hunter College. In his student days he had done research on Shelley, and had written a huge two-volume work about the poetry and stuff of old Percy Bysshe, purportedly one of the most incompetent works on the subject, although I wouldn't know. And so he taught the little girls of the free school all about Shelley, and about Keats and Byron, too, and probably about Cummings and Beowulf as well.

But the flesh, even the flesh of English instructors, is notoriously weak, and Hunter College has a total registration of some thousands, all female. What followed would be just another of those sordid occurrences which mar even the best of academic institutions, were it not that Mr. J. was married. Mrs. J. was properly reared at goings-on, and for a mere pittance sold the details of her husband's waywardness to one of the morning tabloids. This institution of the "new journalism" printed the story over a double-page spread with a huge picture of the hapless Mr. J. in one corner, an equally huge picture of the totally innocent Mrs. Shelley in another, the whole capped, in huge black type, by the question, "Is he Ariel?"

The answer is obviously, No, but the powers that be at Hunter College politely informed Mr. J. that in view of circumstances that have arisen and so forth. For several years after the English department would hire only women, and even today applicants must answer the question, "Are you happily married?" Whether the happily married or the happily unmarried are preferable is not quite clear, but the unhappily married are definitely personae non gratae.

And what of Mr. J.? Well, the members of the faculty at Hunter College are instructed to refuse him entrance into the class-rooms. He haunts the halls occasionally, or did in the old building, seedy, unkempt, rarely sober. It is impossible to chisel fifty cents from his former colleagues whether it's a bed he wants or just something to drink. A little human interest story I thought I would pass along.

The story of Elaine Barrie is a little less unsavory. Miss Barrie (the then Elaine Jacobs) was one of the little girls whose marks were high enough to get her a Hunter College Baccalaureate at the city's expense. According to eye-witness reports she was rather pretty, fairly capable and had a lot of nerve. The subsequent inside story (common property in this country for two years or more) authenticated by a girl who knows a girl who used to work in the Hunter library with none other than the lady in question, bears out this description.

Miss Barrie (for the sake of simplicity) used to work on the college newspaper. If I am not mistaken, she was some sort of minor editor. The great profile blew into New York from Hollywood and she went to interview him. The great profile was apparently more interested in college journalism than most greats, or was it Miss Barrie's personal influence? Anyway, she found favour in his eyes, and he hinted as much. In little more time than it takes to tell, she had changed her name and introduced her mother. The subsequent transcontinental chase shall go down in history beside Mene-la-us' pursuit of Paris, Napoleon's pursuit of the Austrians, and the fifth at Santa Anita. She was an overwhelming suitor and he a rather tired man, and so they were married. (Why she changed her name from Jacobs to Barrie is a bit of a mystery, but people here say she likes Barrie more.)

Don't go yet: there is more to the story. Hunter girls indulge in an annual "sing" where each class uses a popular tune and its own words as the basis for a humorous skit, and the classes compete. Rather sophomoric, perhaps, but the type of diversion favoured by young ladies in schools for young ladies. And not long ago, the winning song was all about our little Elaine and the great profile.

By the merest coincidence, it so happened that Elaine Barrie and spouse were appearing in the New Amsterdam theatre in a hardly immortal production known as My Dear Children. Spouse was very good at ad libbing, which made the critics applaud his ability but doubt his sobriety; the missus wasn't much good at all. Against this setting, the little maids from school marched to the stage door of the New Amsterdam theatre and just as the show closed for the night, burst forth in song . . . and you know the song.

The after-theatre crowd liked it, and rumour insists that there were fewer to hear Dwight Fiske than usual that night. But Miss Barrie came through the stage entrance and found the performance hardly to her taste. "Anybody," she said that all might hear, "anybody can see they are only Hunter girls!"

"Only" Hunter girls, Miss Barrie? . . .

And now it is time to go on with the little story which opened on such a happy note earlier in this column. You will remember we left the new Hunter College on Park Avenue between East Sixty-Seventh and East Sixty-Eighth. The people had won a signal victory and the Avenue parvenus were gritting their store teeth in high dudgeon, or wherever it is one grits one's store teeth. The spirit of democracy stroked her long white beard in contentment.

Well, a couple of weeks ago, the new Hunter College was opened, dedicated and launched on its career. You may have read about it in the newspapers. Dr. George N. Shuster, president of the college, and one of the leading Catholic laymen in this country, made a long, fine speech about education, and woman's role in a democratic country, and the threat to our liberties, and the duties of the women students therein assembled. It was a very fine speech: even the newspapers took time out to say so.

But Dr. Shuster said something that was not so fine. Now that the people who live by the sweat of their brows had defeated the other kind, wouldn't it be just jim-dandy for some conciliatory move. Therefore, "in the interests of better relations with the residents of Park Avenue," the girls would desist from using the front entrance, and would come to school through the entrances on East Sixty-Seventh and East Sixty-Eighth. So the girls won, which is very funny. Or perhaps it isn't so funny, because several thousand girls, college students by any standard, have to use the side entrance to their own school so that the people who live on Park Avenue be not offended.

Nice town.

Thrilling Movie Finish Ties Vic-U.C. Rugby Game 9-9

Last Minute Pass Attack Gives University College Tying Touchdown After Opponents Had Been Ahead Throughout

90-YARD RUN FEATURE

University College pulled a "just like in the movies" stunt by tying Victoria College 9-9 in a thrilling inter-faculty grid epic at the Stadium yesterday afternoon, in the second last play of the contest. Highlight of the battle, which still found the two teams deadlocked in second place, was the great catch by Cuddy Faber just behind the U.C. line of a lofty Vic boot and his sensational ninety-yard gallop seconds before the half-time whistle blew.

First Quarter

"Fumbling Phil" of the inter-faculty rugby loop to date, U.C. began to live up to their reputation early when McKinley dropped the lemon behind the line on a fine Vic boot. Travin pounced on the oval for five points with Fleming converting to make the score 6-0 for Vic. The Royal College gang then began to tighten up, but could not compete with the Vic line backs along the front wall.

Second Quarter

The Red and White worked the ball into position for a placement which Alcombrack took successfully to make the score 6-3. Johnny Whallon of Vic went for a dandy twenty yard run when he faked a forward and brushed down the right side of the field through a maze of U.C. players. Faber committed his only misplay of the game by tossing a

GRADUATE RECORDS

Any information about a University of Toronto graduate, from the date of his engagement to his present address, can be obtained simply by calling up Miss Thompson, head of the filing department at Simcoe Hall.

When a student first registers in the university, his name, address, and all such information about him is put on a card in the alphabetical files. His home address is entered in the geographical files. When the student graduates, all the data is transferred to a new card and there is a folder reserved for him. In the folders, all newspaper clippings, which make any mention of the person, are kept.

Records are only complete since 1890, as the building in which the previous ones were kept was demolished by fire in that year.

Perusal through the files has unearthed many historical facts. For instance, the first woman to graduate in medicine in the university was Miss Augusta Stowe, who received her degree from Victoria College, in 1883.

Special tab is kept on the some one thousand graduates who are now on active service. Just recently, a newspaper clipping with regard to a member of the class of 274, whose post-graduate history had been a blank in the files, disclosed that he is now lieutenant-colonel of a South Saskatchewan regiment.

Victoria Holds Conference Today, Mission Problems

Speakers Gather from All Parts of World to Air War-Time Difficulties and Discuss World Church

ALL STUDENTS INVITED

Further details were announced today for the third annual Missionary Conference of Victoria University, which will meet in Emmanuel College tomorrow commencing at 9.30 a.m. The effect of the war on missions, and the future of the world church will be set forth by Dr. Jesse H. Armp, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Church, among other speakers. "We are trying to recapture the spirit that motivated the great Christian missionary activity of the early twentieth century," said Bert Mather, president of the Young People's Forward Movement, which is sponsoring the conference. At the same time, he said, the group aims to think in terms of present day needs, which have changed with the times.

"Christian witness is essential to the spread of Christianity here and throughout the world," declared Mather, further elaborating on the purpose of the conference. "Our appeal is to all Christians—not only to those who plan to serve in foreign fields themselves."

Morning sessions will commence at 9.30 a.m. with a worship service conducted by Professor F. W. Langford, followed by graphic accounts of the Gospel at work by five speakers from abroad. These will include George Jacob, Massey scholar from India, R. G. Davidson of West China, P. J. Price and Miss Constance Chappell of Japan, and Dr. H. J. Armp.

The afternoon sessions, commencing at 2 p.m., will include addresses by Rev. C. F. Grant of India and Rev. George Alick of the Forward Movement. (Continued on Page 2)

Survey On Girls' Knee Socks Reveals General Dissatisfaction

They don't like them. They are child-like, sloppy and uncomplimentary. So say most of the men on the campus regarding the knee socks worn by co-eds this year. In this they echo the opinion of men in other universities such as U.B.C. where similar surveys have been conducted. Only a few brave males like the socks.

"They should be given to soccer teams to be worn only on the field," said Hertz Rosenberg, I Meds. Bill Seigel, also in Meds, thought they were for initiation when he first saw them. "They look like Little Red Riding Hoods running around the campus," he said.

Owen Millar and Don Robertson were agreed in thinking that they did absolutely nothing for a girl's legs and termed them "a blot upon an otherwise perfect sculpture."

Gerry Hefferman, II S.P.S., insisted that before long the co-eds will be running around in pig tails. Frank Kellan, II S.P.S., agreed that women are heading too much toward childishness in dress.

"In this day and age women's dresses are too short to wear such socks," said George Beanes, II Forestry. A. Bois-senault, also II Forestry, says that he is "neutral".

"Frankly, I don't like them and I don't think the other fellows do either. And the girls do manage to get some

COMPULSORY MILITARY TRAINING

Following the announcement by the Dominion Government of its intention to require certain groups of men to report for military training, the Canadian universities made an agreement with the Government whereby students were granted the privilege of taking this training at the universities, thus obviating the necessity of interrupting their academic studies in order to report during the session at outside Militia Training Centres.

In accordance with this agreement, on September 12th, 1940, the Governors of the University of Toronto passed the following resolution:

That all physically fit male undergraduates who are 18 years of age and over at the time of registration in the University be required to take military training.

Subsequently, it was decided that students who were 25 years of age or over on July 1st, 1940, would not be required to take compulsory military training.

With a view to making their resolution effective and thus carrying out the agreement with the Government, the Governors, on October 24th, 1940, established a Court of Discipline composed of three members of the University staff, and conferred upon this Court the following powers:

1. To consider and deal with such charges of violation of the regulation of the Board of Governors respecting compulsory military training, or of infringement of discipline, as may be referred to it by the officers commanding the Canadian Officers' Training Corps and the Auxiliary Battalions.

2. To require to appear at times and places to be determined by the Court, all students so charged together with any witnesses named by the said officers commanding or by the students so charged.

3. To investigate the said charges, and to arrive at and publish a verdict regarding each and every such charge.

4. To pronounce a sentence in each case where the student is found guilty of the charge or charges made against him.

The Governors also gave the Court power to impose fines and to recommend to the President the suspension or expulsion from the University of any student found guilty.

This action of the Governors is brought to the attention of the undergraduate body with the sincere hope that the Court of Discipline may never be called upon to exercise its powers.

H. J. Body

President.

Decay-Resisting Tooth Powder Developed By Dental Professor

MASTHEAD MEETING

There will be a meeting of the masthead of The Varsity at one o'clock today in the women's office, University College. Attendance of every member is important.

Dr. H. K. Box, Research Professor, Discovers Formula for "Enzodent," which Liquefies Decay-Producing Starch

First official announcement to the dental profession of "Enzodent," a new, decay-resisting tooth powder developed at the University of Toronto by Dr. Harold K. Box, professor of Dental Research in the Faculty of Dentistry, was made recently by Dr. Box at the Great Lakes Association of Orthodontists held in Toronto Oct. 28-29.

Author of more than 50 per cent of the literature published by the Canadian Dental Research Foundation, Dr. Box divides his time between research work, lectures, public speaking, and a private practice.

TRINITY MEN'S RESIDENCE INVADED BY STUDENTS IN OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY

Trinity men's residence has been invaded by a group of green-smocked girls. Since the first of the fall term, men, even on their way to lunch, have stopped at Harbord and St. George to wonder at this unaccounted sight.

The former Dead's quarters have become the new home of the growing course in Occupational Therapy. The course started out in two rooms of its quarters and a new location had to be found. Dean Kingston of Trinity was then appointed Bishop of Algoma and so his suite was left vacant. There was only one logical result. So, now there are girls in Trinity House. However, that corner of the building is well separated from the remainder.

Medical Students Jam Hart House For First Banquet

Great Hall is Scene of First Annual Medical Banquet — Awards for Scholarship and Athletics Presented

MANY IMPORTANT GUESTS

More than 400 medical students jammed the candle-lighted Great Hall at the first annual medical banquet last night.

Guests at the head table included Brigadier Eric Haldenby, President H. J. Cody, Dean W. E. Gallie, head of the medical faculty, Col. H. H. Madill, Major M. B. Watson, Lt.-Col. Hagerman and W. E. Orved, president of the Medical Society.

Chairman of the program, G. A. Gould, introduced the highlights of the evening, which included singing of a new medical school song and a skit by members of the upper years.

Awards for academic achievement for the year ending May, 1940, included: the faculty gold medal and head of the graduating year to Dr. Al Lane; the Ellen Miede scholarship for one year's post graduate research work to J. G. Watt; head of the fourth year to N. W. Johnston; head of the third year to J. P. Marossis; head of the second year to A. S. Tauber; head of the first year to W. T. W. Clark. Awards were presented by Dean Gallie.

Athletic awards were topped by the presentation of the Medical athletic cane to Jim Emmett for "the greatest contribution to Medical athletics in his six undergraduate years."

Other awards in this group included those to S. C. Robinson, inter-faculty swimming champion; M. Clark, inter-faculty diving champion; R. Delaney, inter-faculty track champion, and the inter-faculty badminton champions led by Hugh Ford.

Follies Posters Brighten Halls, Proclaim Beauty

Students of University College yesterday were confronted with the information written in bold letters on a sign in the rotunda of the college proclaiming that there are "15 BEAUTIFUL GIRLS 15" appearing in the Follies this year.

Directors of the show said yesterday that the "15" include only the dancing chorus and that many more "of the most beautiful women in the college will appear in the show".

Lists for those wishing tickets will be posted today. Undergraduates of the college will sign lists in the junior common room and graduates of the college and those in other faculties will sign lists in the rotunda of U.C. it was learned.

Included in the annual revue which was written by students of University College and is to be produced with entirely amateur talent are six songs "with themes ranging from love and romance to love and romance", a glee club of twenty male voices, and a girl's singing trio of "three shades of blonde," better than the Andrews sisters.

The revue, to be presented November 15, will be put on three times during the evening to enable the large crowd attending the combined show and dance to obtain seats. Members of the committee said that those wishing seats for the revue were expected to sign the lists as early as possible to obtain them.

Trinity College Back Campus is Scene of First Drill — Photographers and Spectators on Hand

TRAINING ALL WINTER

The Women's Service Training Detachment had its first taste of outdoor military drill on the Trinity back campus yesterday afternoon. Despite the muddy field, the presence of several photographers and spectators of the opposite sex, the girls were most intent on their drill.

Sgt. West and Corp. Purser, D.C.M., who are supervising the training of the "raw recruits", are members of the Veterans' Guards of Canada, and have helped in the training of the women of the C.A.T.S. and the W.C.S.F. units.

Corp. Purser said that the platoon and company drill which the girls are practising, is of an elementary nature, but that they will probably take all winter to get it down pat.

The girls, at present, are divided into five platoons varying in size. The platoon leaders, who are members of the Athletic Directorate, are Joan Griffith, Ruth Danard, Catherine Bryans, Bobbie McDonald, Winnifred Banter and Rosemary Annesley.

Just before "the troops" were dismissed Miss A. E. M. Parkes announced that the next drill will be held Tuesday at 5.15, on the Trinity back campus.

WYMWILWOOD RECITAL

Margaret Miller Brown, pianist, is giving the first Wywilwood musical of the season at 9 p.m. on Sunday, 3rd November. Miss Brown, a member of the Faculty of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, is well-known throughout the city for her frequent recitals and to the students of the university through the Sunday Evening Concerts in the Great Hall. Students of all colleges will be welcome. Miss Brown will play the following program:

Gavotte ..... Gluck-Brahms
Two Chorale Preludes: ..... Bach
"I Call on Thee, O Lord"
"Rejoice, Beloved Christians"
Improvisations in A flat ..... Chopin
Etude in C sharp minor
Mazurka in D
Fantasy in F minor
Two Preludes, in G and F
Valse in D flat
Valse, from Faust ..... Gounod-Liszt

C.O.T.C. Rifles Not Condemned

"The rifles we are using here for military training have never been condemned." C.O.T.C. Headquarters informed The Varsity today. Conjecture as to the meaning of the red bands painted around the muzzle end of the stock of each one had given rise to the rumour that they were condemned.

The rifles, American Enfields, are brand new, and have never been used. They were made for the United States army during the last war, but hostilities ended before they could be issued. The red band is there as a reminder that the bore is .003 inches smaller than that of the standard British rifle, and therefore special ammunition is required.

When asked about uniforms, Headquarters replied that the C.O.T.C. would be outfitted with battle dress as soon as possible. The Auxiliary Battalion may get battle dress, but it was stated there is no official word on that subject yet.

"Caesar" on the March

This week two of the world's greatest and most ancient seats of civilization and culture, whence in olden times the triremes and legions went forth to battle, are ranked opposite each other in a new modern war, the purpose of which is supposedly the preservation of civilization. The mechanized legions of an "un-Caesarish" Mussolini have launched an attack by land and air; the Italian navy is presumably lurking somewhere in the area waiting until the British navy runs aground on a sandbank before venturing forth to the fray. The significance of this new spread of the war is vital for the future.

It is difficult at this early date to ascertain what is actually happening. The Italians, moving through Albania, claim to have penetrated forty miles past the northern border of Greece. The Greeks, enthusiastically giving vent to pent up grievances, are massing to the colours and troops have been moved to vital points. Italy claims that Britain has already given Greece much aid through air attacks and mine-laying. At first London denied this, evidently with the purpose of covering up movements of British forces, but it has been revealed that air and sea assistance is being given Greece, and British troops are said to have landed. In Albania a revolt against the Italians has been reported. A further development is the estimate that the Nazis have put at least seventy divisions, or about 1,250,000 men, into the Balkans.

After a long brewing period, war in the Balkans has flared up and it appears to be the beginning of a new and perhaps decisive phase of the war. The Axis, failing in its promise to take Britain by August, has long been anxious to spread the war to the Near East, scattering the war along a wide front and thereby diverting Britain's forces in a new "Norway". This time Britain appears to have prepared for possible Balkan action, and her naval control of the Mediterranean gives her a favourable position. Greece, of course, needs British aid, for without it her defensive and offensive forces are hopelessly inadequate. Indications are that there has existed for some time a British-Greek understanding, giving Greece moral support for her stand against Italy. At any rate, British aid has materialized.

Apart from the present conflict, however, the vital consideration for the future is the probable action of Russia and Turkey. The latter has shown herself to be "all for Greece" but she has made no move to aid her neighbour. But should the Nazis drive through to the Straits undoubtedly Turkey, Bulgaria and possibly Yugoslavia would step into the conflict. But in reality the question mark is Russia, and upon her action the major future developments in the Balkans depend, as well as the future of the whole war. Usually Russia sits calmly by, as in the case of Poland and Roumania, and waits for a chunk of the spoils. The question now is what will Russia get if she waits? Control of the Dardanelles would be her ultimate ambition, but the minute she moves in this direction, she runs the serious risk of precipitating Turkey into war on the side of Britain. The spread of the war into the Balkans may well result in a definite split between Berlin and Moscow for Axis control of Greece would constitute a serious threat to Russia's ambitions on the Straits. If Russia actually did get control of the vital waterway by taking it from Turkey, the threat would become even more open for the Nazis would hardly be willing to allow such Russian domination. However, any guesses rates as much attention as another.

Another aspect of the new developments is the question raised in all minds: "Will the Italians bomb Athens?" Will Mussolini, after claiming protection for Rome, observe that same decency and forbid his bombers to unload over historic Athens? He said yesterday that he would respect Athens. If by any chance he doesn't, it seems only right that his capital, even if it is full of crumbling history, should be given a severe taste of air bombardment. Perhaps Signor Mussolini would not be so brave in that event. After all, London has been bombed, and London bears as much history and tradition for the British-speaking peoples as does ancient Rome. Sometimes in the midst of a war such as this, one wonders how important tradition and historical monuments are after all.

World War II has now spread to the Balkans, a region which is still a tinder-box of racial and national prejudices. This new development holds a great deal for the future course of history, and it may be the event which will bring the rest of the European powers into the conflict. How they will participate and how their participation will affect the war only time can tell.

Still Going Strong

One of the marvels of this war is the admirable way in which production has been maintained in the British Isles despite incessant bombardment from the air. Reports from the home land, even if they are not taken at their face value, indicate that the disruption of industry has not been nearly as widespread as believed, and that factory production is carrying on, although often under altered conditions.

The London Chamber of Commerce reported several weeks ago that out of its membership of 9000 firms, fewer than twenty have had to move, while the actual bomb damage has not affected many complete industries. Hitting a target does not destroy it, and on the morning after a raid many a factory that has been struck is still carrying on with the possible exception of one or two departments. Industry had made plans to carry on production under stress and strain, and those plans have evidently worked out satisfactorily.

Labour and industry have carried on the battle on the economic front with amazing strength, and final victory will rest in large measure upon their efforts. The British Minister of Labour summed up the situation neatly when he said recently: "We called upon you to work long hours to increase production, to submit to regulations, and in a variety of ways to contribute to the tremendous war effort, and when the full story can be told it will represent a complete vindication of democracy, and be a demonstration that a free people can do better and achieve more formidable results than any Nazi driven race. As the results of these months of effort our confidence has increased, and the cocksureness of our enemies has given place to doubts."

Dickson - Hatfield

Muriel Dickson and Lansing Hatfield appeared in joint recital last night at Eaton Auditorium. Mr. Hatfield is very handsome and possesses a good voice; Miss Dickson is pleasant enough to look at. The program was for the most, and incidentally the better part inconsequential. When the artists attempted to be serious, they failed; when they sang selections from light opera and sugary songs they were at least at ease. I was looking forward to the first number, a duet from Don Giovanni by Mozart: it was inispid. An aria from Verdi's Simon Boccanegra sung by Mr. Hatfield, and another from Massenet's Herodiade by Miss Dickson were equally colourless, although the latter's French was clear enough for easy translation.

Miss Dickson has a pleasing voice. She has one drawback, however, which when listening to her it is impossible to ignore. On the slightest provocation in a difficult number (and often without the slightest in a very easy) her intonation wavers on any note which is held for some time. If she could only get over this unfortunate habit she would be an infinitely greater singer. As it was, she managed to redeem herself completely from mediocrity by singing a group of Gilbert and Sullivan numbers with all the grace and airiness which belongs to them.

Mr. Hatfield came around with his share of the standard baritone repertoire. His voice seemed much better as the evening went on, and this, coupled with an engaging personality, made the selections he sang very agreeable. He will always make a great hit with any audience.

Why Miss Dickson thought it necessary to include

ATTENTION! VARSITY STAFF MALES

Saturday is Sadie Hawkins' Day. Last night was Hallowe'en. Using this as an excuse a horde of unattached females invaded the press early this morning with the all too evident purpose of making a reconnaissance. Each female marked down her choice, carefully noting such details as height, weight, colour of hair, eyes, etc., and any scars resulting from previous engagements. They thought we didn't know what it was all about, but all editors were immediately called into a caucus, with the result that certain arrangements have been made.

This evening at 7 p.m. a bus will leave the side entrance of Hart House. The driver, proceeding under sealed orders, will run for an unknown destination. It is hoped that at this place, which is known to be somewhere in Ontario and very strongly fortified, we shall be safe.

A definite order will be observed on entering the bus and again at the sanctuary. Those who have Masthead positions, being more vulnerable, will be received first. Each applicant, besides showing his press card, to prove he is a male, will be required to quote any joke from the latest issue of Esquire!

If there should be no issue of The Varsity on Monday this plan will have failed.

The ghosts of Kanga and Roo.

four pseudo-Scottish songs, including encores, on her share of the program is a puzzle, and it is almost incredible that she should think it advisable to attempt to "render" them in what she evidently thinks passes for speech north of the Tweed. Too many of the selections during the evening seemed to be all too well summed up in the words of Mr. Dickson's song, Long Ago in Alcala, by Messenger.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON RECITALS

Tomorrow afternoon, those students who do not have military duties will be privileged to hear a recital by the dean of Toronto pianists, Viggo Kihl. At the beginning of the year, the Music Committee debated long and seriously whether these recitals should be continued in the face of the growing demands of the C.O.T.C. and Auxiliary Battalion on the time of all undergraduates. Everyone realized how precious and how much to be hoarded every spare moment was, but it was also felt that the student body should be at least informally consulted as to the continuance of this activity. Judging by the enthusiasm of the past, there are many things which the students would sooner see done away with.

It was felt then that a few recitals might be arranged and through the response shown to them the wishes of the student body might be ascertained. It is hardly likely that such concerts could be received with anything but enthusiasm and with the timetable for military drill spaced as it is throughout the week there will surely be enough supporters with free Fridays to keep alive this very worthwhile aspect of Hart House Music.—N.M.

ALL SAINTS' FESTIVAL

Observing the feast of All Saints' two festival services will be sung at St. Thomas' on Sunday. The Rector, Rev. C. J. S. Stuart, will give the sermon at 11 o'clock, at which two compositions by Dr. Willan will be heard, "O how glorious" and "O King all glorious", and the Eucharist service will be sung to a setting by Alan Richardson. At 7 p.m. the Rev. C. Sauerbrey will give the sermon and the service will be sung to a setting by Sir Chas. Stanford. Henry Ley's setting of "Lo, round the throne" and Maurice Besly's "O Salutaris Hostia" will be heard. There will be a procession at both services when Vaughan Williams' "Sine Homine" will be sung.

forward into a Vic man's mitts. Axon and Alcombrack were doing grand tackling. Alcombrack played a whale of a game and was in on every tackle in his position on the secondary.

Hal Fleming kicked a placement for the Scarlet and Gold to put Vic into a six-point lead. Hugh Bailey was working hard and well for Vic and Red Heinbuch was booting the ball with a vengeance all afternoon. It was at this point that Faber pulled off his beautiful 90-yard run.

Third Quarter

Johnny Whallon intercepted a U.C. forward pass and ran for a touchdown which didn't count because the whistle blew before the play was over. On the next play Whallon intercepted another U.C. forward. Hal Fleming galloped for another twenty yard run on a fast extension around the left end. The Red and White began to pick up the loose ends of their play and Nelson to McKinley forwards began to click.

U.C. were fighting harder than ever and moved the sticks on more than one occasion. Faber wiggled through the heavier Vic line for a good gain on a quarterback plunge.

Fourth Quarter

Realizing that time was running short, U.C. began their famous forward passes. Alcombrack was doing some nice booting. The Royal College crew blocked well on the line and were becoming stronger every minute.

Sunny Nelson unleashed three passes in a row with McKinley on the receiving end every time and soon U.C. was sitting pretty on the Vic four yard line.

The Scarlet and Gold displayed anything but brilliant foresight as they seemed to stand around and just watch the Red and White pass go by. Another Nelson to McKinley forward in the last few seconds was good for a U.C. touchdown and Alcombrack converted to tie the count at 9-9.

U.C. pulled almost certain defeat out of the fire and played grand football

SPORT SPLASHES

By Doug Green

Aerial Navigation, led by Frank Sloan, who was responsible for 13 of his team's 24 points, swamped Dents, who only collected 9 points. The meet took place last night in Hart House pool, and the enthusiasm displayed definitely assures swimming a share of the spotlight of this university. Clark won the only first place for Dents when he eked out a close win in the 50 yd. free style over Sloan. Brunton was responsible for the other 4 points for the Dentsmen, when he placed 2nd and 3rd in the 50 yd. back and breast strokes.

In the second meet on the schedule, Jr. School splashes showed their heels to Jr. Meds to the tune of 23-10.

Northwood for School was sensational when he left John Mendlesohn behind in the back stroke of both the medley and the 50 yard race. Mendlesohn was one of the star performers of the intercollegiate squad of last year, so by simple mathematics Northwood is very good. Northwood also won the 50 yard free style, defeating his team mate Graham, who finished second.

There was one bright spot in the Meds' defeats, when Stew Robinson and McCarthy finished one-two in the breast stroke, accounting for eight of their ten points. Robinson amazed everyone in his breast stroke exhibition both in this event and in the medley, for he was always considered a distance man. He swam the 440 yds. free style on last year's intercollegiate squad.

Last night's meets were a little slow in getting started. Managers are requested to have their teams at the pool on time.

In the final half, Vic played powerful football most of the game but weakened visibly toward the end of the tilt. The affair was the best of the current inter-faculty grid schedule.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Owen Prichard

DON'T SELL U.C. SHORT

We feel very sorry this morning for about one thousand University College students. These unfortunate were not among those present yesterday when their team came from behind to obliterate Vic's 9-3 lead with a last-second touchdown and convert. The final score, of course, was 9-9; but that looks very dull when there was staged some of the most colourful action ever seen in an interfaculty game. There was the seemingly irresistible advance of Vic's line, after McKinley had fumbled behind the U.C. line to give Vic their first touch. Then there was Heinbuch's lofty punts back to Vic's own ten-yard line. Get the picture: Cuddy is standing on his own goal-line and catches the oval like an outfielder snagging a fly-ball. He starts sitting through the Vic tacklers vainly trying to smear him. As he shakes off the first few, he spots an open field to the left, and cuts diagonally across the gridiron. Then dodging back to centre he sprints for the goal-ten-yard stripe. Before the Royal College squad can get another play in, half-time is called, and they are "robbed" of a real touchdown chance.

But the real hipper-dipper came a half-hour later, as the second half drew to a close. McKinley was playing superlative football which made up for his early bobble. Mac's big chance came when the ball was in the shadow of the U.C. lined up in placement formation, and then while some of the Victoria squad line to McKinley, for a touch. The last play of the game (except the following kick-off) featured the steady teamwork of "Al" Alcombrack, who turned in his usual stellar performance, contributing four points to U.C.'s score with a placement.

Cuddy Faber played his best game of the season yesterday, and certainly lived up to his nickname "Dynamic." It is problematic to wonder what would have been the count if Wilkie Davey had been with the Red and White yesterday. "If" has little significance in sport. Wilkie was on the sidelines, having given 600 c.c. of blood in a transfusion the previous day.

The group standing now remains as before, with U.C. and Vic deadlocked in second place. The Red and White showed themselves today to be potential threats to go far this season. They have a real chance, and they deserve the interest and support of the students in Varsity's largest Arts College. The Athletic Society of University College has an exceptionally hard-working executive, from the Athletic Director Greg Clawson to First Year Rep. Alan Grant. The rotunda has been used in a grand way to keep the students posted on athletic activities in the college. We humbly suggest that it is high time the eds and co-eds of U.C. respond with their attendance and enthusiasm to the contribution being made by their teams and executive to the athletic life of the university.

WYCLIFFE TAKES TO THE HILLS

Last night during dinner at Wycliffe, we happened to announce the present T. A. Reed Trophy standings. Of course, the Anglicans were tickled silly to find themselves so close behind S.P.S. Then the presiding professor suggested that if Wycliffe won tomorrow's harrier meet, they would be in the lead. Almost immediately a spokesman from the sophomore table said that five men from that table were willing to enter the meet. A few seconds later the senior table claimed seven volunteers and two markers. Close upon that came a junior table delegate with some more runners; and within ten minutes of the first mention of "harrier" the Hoskin Avenue crew had twenty-one entries signed up. To crown it came the assurance that Saturday's lectures would be cancelled, a Wycliffe tradition on Interfaculty Harrier Day.

You might ask, "What makes a college get together like that?" The answer is "Spirit" and "Unity", nurtured in Wycliffe by the harrier tradition handed on through Gilbert, Kibbiewhite, Huehner, and Loutit. The same spirit and unity was seen last year in Emmanuel, and is always prominent in S.P.S. and St. Mike's. Let's make it a feature of every faculty and college!

VIC LACROSSE TEAM DEFEATS PHARMACY

A four-goal lead in the first quarter started the Victoria lacrosse outfit off to a 6-4 victory over Pharmacy A team in the big gym at Hart House yesterday.

Both teams were playing their first game of the present lacrosse season, and both were anxious to start on the right side of the score-sheet. Pharmacy rallied in three goals in a last-quarter rally, but were unable to overcome the Scarlet and Gold in the home stretch.

Pharmacy A: Harfness, Boyes, Jardine, Lee, Jeffers, Jones, Hall, Quirk, Thompson.

Victoria: Cornish, Munro, Farmer, Patrick, Casserley, Fenton, Young.

Overcoming a 2-1 lead in the first quarter, O.C.E. outlasted Sr. S.P.S. 8-5 in an interfaculty lacrosse fixture in the big gym yesterday.

After scoring a brace of counters in the first frame, the Engineers were unable to do better than a goal a period in the remaining cantos. On the other hand, the Teachers were improving as the time went on, tallying 1 in the first period, 2 and 2 in the second and third, and three in the final frame to bring the count to eight goals to Senior School's five.

STARS MISSING

Playing without their star Don Gross-kurh, Jr. School gave ample evidence that they are a fine all-round team by whitewashing last year's Mulock Cup finalists, Trinity, 5-0 on the back campus yesterday afternoon. This win gave the flying Engineers a tighter grip on the leadership reins of their group.

School now have three football scalps dangling from their slide-rules, as they dropped U.C. and Vic previous to today's contest. The boys join their big brothers in the Little Red Schoolhouse as the only two teams with a clean slate in intramural rugby. Neither Sr. nor Jr. S.P.S. have been defeated or tied this season.

The venerable Red and Black of Trinity haven't been able to win a game since they bowed so honourably to the fighting Irish of St. Mike's at Varsity Stadium last November in their keen fight for the interfaculty championship. They are now trailing their league with three straight losses, having succumbed to the pressure of Vic, U.C., and now S.P.S.

Minus the services of Grosskurh and Hamlin, the Engineers were forced to flash their best form in order to dunk the dogged Trinity outfit. A third quarter touchdown by McIntyre was the margin of victory. The try was unconverted.

Aside from this one scoring thrust, the play was close, although S.P.S. appeared to have a slight but definite edge, particularly during the final half. The Blue and Gold passed up a fine chance to break into the scoring column in the opening half, when they had the ball in front of the posts about 20 yards out. On the last down, instead of trying for a field goal, they attempted to make yards from a fake placement position. The play failed, and the opportunity was lost.

For the victors Henry played a stand-out game, while the whole front wall deserves an orchid apiece. McMillan and Boxer played their usual reliable and sometimes brilliant style on behalf of the vanquished.

Jr. S.P.S.: Quintenton, Prentice, Roland, Clarke, Hambley, McKechnie, Kelly, White, McIntyre, Henry, Graham, Rettie, Biggs, Spence, Gow, O'Donnell, Brennan, Iglesias, Simpson, and Penoyer.

Trinity: Boxer, Harris, McCormick, Crashley, Jarvis, McMillan, Gaby, Pyper, Whittingham, Baxter, Edmonds, Partridge, Klein, Livingstone, Andrews, Fraser, Sheriff, Reid, Turner, Frewer.

Interfaculty Harrier Race At High Park Tomorrow

Prominent Track Stars and Rookies Mingle on Entry List
Exceeding Half a Hundred.
Starts at 10 o'clock

TRANSPORTATION PROVIDED

Over half a hundred entries are expected for the interfaculty harrier, to be run tomorrow morning at High Park, starting at 10 o'clock.

With one of the choicest arrays of cross-country plodders ever assembled at Varsity, it promises to be the best race of its kind in years, said Track Coach Hee Phillips yesterday. The list to date contains the names of such reliable performers as Tom Barnett of Wycliffe, Geoff Goodwin of S.P.S., Bob Delaney of Meds, Don Finlayson and Foulis of School, as well as a promising crop of new freshmen, including

By Marg Foulis

They've played, they've played — they really have! No rain, no nothing, but a corking good game of tennis and another page is turned in the co-ed sports calendar of 1940-41. Virginia Rapnell, diminutive freshette from Vic, came through with some really hair-raising cross-court drives that even the experienced Ida Tipp could not sneeze — try as she would. This small new big brother has the most amazing strength for such a mite. We are reminded that last year's champion, Betty Bell, is also of no size at all, and a power-house too.

Ida fought hard throughout, but just couldn't seem to come up to Virginia's calibre of play. Congratulations to you, Virginia, for a really outstanding performance, and we hope you will continue to meet success in your future tournament engagements.

Last night, Vic at last displayed a team that could produce a win in basketball circles, and they won all right! We are told that 40-2 was the final score, but the baskets went in so fast, the adding machine simply folded its arms and refused to add. Therefore we are not quite positive if that much is enough, but 40-2 seems O.K. to us, how about you?

Two man-coached teams were thrown against each other at 8 p.m. last night when St. Mike's and Household Science met and played ball. St. Mike's came out on top, 31-20, and it seems to us Household Science must have a pretty good group, comparing numbers in respective faculties. St. Mike's are an all right bunch.

Well, we're sleepy, so just be there tonight at six for P.T. and Meds, eh?

S.P.S. BEST TWO OF THREE OVER KNOX IN VOLLEYBALL

Five Engineers put on a sparkling performance of volleyball in the upper gym yesterday as S.P.S. IV came from behind to take the Knox C team into camp by 1-15, 15-12, 15-13.

After the Presbyterians had had it all their own way in the first tilt, the Schoolmen rallied to edge out the Purple and White 15-12. In the deciding game both teams settled down to serious effort, but the hard-pressing Engineers were able to eke out a 15-13 score to take the game and match.

the first four to place in the novice harrier last week, Gord Lorimer of School, Frank Bennett of St. Mike's, George Lewis of Vic and Wright of Meds, who finished in that order.

The squads from School, O.C.E. and Wycliffe are conceded the best chance to cop interfaculty team honours. The Engineers have a top-notch crew of Goodwin, Lorimer, Finlayson, Pekkover and Foulis. O.C.E. has a well-balanced foursome including Moncur, Wendorf, Eccles and Belchamber, while Wycliffe's chances are enhanced by the presence of Tom Barnett. It will be these three vying for the interfaculty award.

It was announced from the Athletic Office yesterday morning that there will be transportation provided to High Park for the markers. The bus leaves Hart House at 9 a.m.

VIEWED WITH ALARM DEPT.

... We went to lectures one day this week, and perceived with horror that students are becoming alarmingly decadent. ... Within the space of three hours we personally saw: (1) A gorgeous brunette nearly dying of partially-suppressed laughter as she turned the pages of a book of cartoons, while the lecturer wandered on; (2) A student casually munching an apple, and disposing of the core in his desk; (3) Two unprincipled rakes shooting craps. ... We don't want to nag all the time, but we do think that THIS SORT OF THING MUST STOP.

REMEMBER THE ONE we told

last Thursday about the babe who informed the professor that in forming a concept of cosmology, the universe "helps a lot"? Well, seems the somewhat unconscious child read the item the day following the incident, and laughed right out loud. "That's very funny," cackled she, then, frowning a trifle, she added, "BUT IT SOUNDS AWFULLY FAMILIAR, SOMEHOW."

A SHOCKING SCANDAL is revealed by the S.A. Student, Official Bulletin of the National Union of South African Students. ... "Do you know," it enquires, shaking with indignation, "that at U.C.T. members of the S.R.C. who favour A.N.S. persuaded the S.R.C. to discontinue the paying over of N.U. S.A.S. affiliation fees?" ... We had no idea.

LAST SUMMER, a student at the University of Minnesota befriended two Turkish students that wanted help learning English. One day at the beach, the three were sunning themselves solemnly when a bather got cramps and started to sink. "Help! Help!" he shouted, not unreasonably. Life guards went into action. People shouted fatuous advice. A fire engine bearing pulmonary equipment was summoned. Pandemonium, when the bather was brought to shore, and the excitement had eased off a bit, the Minnesotan noticed that the Turks were still thumbing through their pocket dictionary to see what "help" meant.

PICTURE. ... A female turns up at a lecture late, see? Noting that the door of the class-room is closed, she is standing in the outer darkness, debating whether she should enter and face the professor's disapproval, when she noted that his voice was booming through the panel quite audibly. So she finds a spare chair in the hall, pulls it up close, places her pile of books on the floor, and settles down assiduously to take notes. This system is working famously, and she is scribbling away with the utmost abandon, when an ominous pause in the flood of oratory warns her that the lecture is coming to an abrupt close. She barely has time to scramble up, drag the chair away, and assume the nonchalant attitude of a chance passer-by. Out strides the pedagogue, trips over her pile of books, and lands flat on his face. ... FADE-OUT.

a revolutionary principle in oral health, and was first produced in dental laboratories here more than a year ago.

Its advantage over ordinary tooth powders consists in the incorporation of a new substance which liquefies the decay-producing starch which settles in tooth crevices. This substance is an enzyme called "salivary amylase."

While human saliva contains an enzyme that liquefies starches, Dr. Box stated in an interview, the activity of this enzyme varies greatly in different mouths, and is retarded by either excessive acidity or alkalinity.

For this reason, he continued, it seemed reasonable that individuals whose supply of this enzyme was limited would accumulate a film of carbohydrate debris on their tooth surfaces which could not readily be cleaned by simply brushing the teeth.

Such debris consists mainly of a sticky, resistant substance which Dr. Box called amylopectin and starchlike, and the presence of such materials provides favourable conditions for acid-forming bacteria to settle and colonize, causing decay of the enamel.

Reports received by clinicians in the Faculty of Dentistry indicate that the new tooth powder also appears to retard the formation of cavities, liquefies ropy saliva and keeps bar dentures bright and clean. Its composition is such that it works effectively in an acid or alkaline mouth.

Dr. Box has been connected with research in dentistry since 1914. Since then he has written a number of bulletins, books and articles on dentistry. His latest publication, "Twelve Periodical Studies," a course of lectures in book form, will be published by the University Press within the next few weeks.

THREE ENGINEERS STAGE JAM SESSION DURING SOPH-FROSH

First and Second Year Toike Oikers Hold Annual Fall Get-Together in Royal York Hotel

DEAN MITCHELL PRESENT

First and second year Toike Oikers and their partners filled the Banquet Hall of the Royal York Hotel on Friday night in the annual fall Soph-Frosh Dance.

This was the get-together night of the two years, and signified the full absorption of this year's freshmen into the life of School. The first social item in a young Schoolman's life is, of course, Initiation. Then comes the Reception, and thirdly the Soph-Frosh Dance, to which members of other years are invited as well.

Music for dancing was supplied by the Modernaires, with Mary Bates as the featured vocalist.

Dean Mitchell and members of the Faculty of S.P.S., with their wives, attended the dance and formed the reception line.

The intermission was enlivened by an impromptu jam session staged by three Engineers who combined on the piano, string bass and drums with a mixture of jive and boogie-woogie which was enthusiastically received by the listeners around the band-stand.

Junior U.C.: Dewar, McKinley, Stokals, Vess, Brown, Berg, Rotenberg.

Med Student At Varsity Tells Of Experiences In Evacuation Of Dunkirk

Bob Moore of Regina, Grad of Edinburgh, Volunteered for Service, Told to Join Trawler at Once

NO EXPERIENCE

Member of the vast rescue crew that effected what military observers have termed the greatest military operation in history is Bob Moore of Regina, graduate of the University of Edinburgh and second year Medical student here, the Varsity learned Friday.

"I was in London at the time the evacuation was organized," he stated in an interview in the Anatomy Laboratory of the Medical Building. "When I heard them asking for civilian volunteers on the radio, I sent a telegram to the authorities and almost immediately received a reply directing me to a port where I was to join a ship."

"There I was put aboard a little diesel-powered trawler with three fellows I had never seen before. Only one was an experienced seaman, a member of the boat's crew. I believe the others were totally inexperienced. I know I was."

Working constantly, the four-man crew made six trips in three days, and brought back about 250 before it had to stop from sheer exhaustion, Moore related.

"Then another crew took the boat over, but it didn't come back from the next trip," he said quietly.

The regular seaman of the crew supervised the trawler, but on the crossings we had our own jobs to do and we soon got onto them," Moore said. "One would steer, another run the engine and a third would take soundings while the seaman kept moving us, checking us up and doing what navigation there was to be done."

Vic Drama Next Month

Dramatic Society to Present Toronto Premiere of "Family Portrait" Early in December

MARY CARTER PLAYS LEAO

The Toronto premiere of "Family Portrait," to be presented by the Vic Dramatic Society in early December, is rapidly becoming a subject of controversy and deep speculation. "Family Portrait" had a long and sensational run on Broadway in 1939 and is under the capable direction of Mr. W. S. Milne. The role made famous by Judith Anderson in the experienced hands of Mary Carter. Many favourites of last year's Vic production, "Our Town," also have prominent parts, among them Betty Blain, Dorothy Ferguson, Tom Paton and Jean Booth. Other parts are being handled by Betty McRae, John Mantley, Rod Johnston, Yvonne Finlay and Bob Miller.

halt!

by h. d. h.

Highlight of Saturday's drill—rain. Cold, wet rain! 1,500 soggy officers and men; shivering, unhappy, standing in pools of mud on the front campus. Splendid discipline. Besides, the sun did come out eventually; and did you ever stop to think what a Battalion would look like under umbrellas?

After the last harrier man had crossed the line out at High Park Saturday, another body of University men went out—F and G companies and the Grads of the C.O.T.C. The two companies engaged the grads in battle drill, worming about on their stomachs, hiding behind trees and all sorts of fun. The idea was that if you saw the enemy within 10 yards and bellowed "East!" before he could say "West!" you had him. All went well until some of the prospective officers came to a brook. Then they forgot about being a unit and used their own judgments: some went through with shoes and all, others tiptoed across, pants rolled up and shoes and socks in hand.

WILLS MACLACHLAN, PRESIDENT OF R.C.I. SPEAKS ON POWER

Speaking at Royal Canadian Institute, Newly Appointed President, Comments on Early Inventors

THANKED BY COOY

Speaking at the Royal Canadian Institute meeting on Saturday night, Wills MacLachlan, R.A.S.C., newly appointed president of the Institute, described how the scientific truths enunciated by research workers have been taken by inventors and utilized in the development of the electric power of today.

Mr. MacLachlan also showed how the early power plants such as those established by men like Thomas Edison, John William Lee, and Thomas O'Hare were later tied together by power lines to form extended systems. "In any outstanding contribution to the laws of nature the work of many men is present," said Mr. MacLachlan, in reference to the early workers, Faraday, Joule and Maxwell, whose careers he touched on lightly. Speaking of the practical workers in America he stated that in his opinion John William Lee did more to develop modern electric utility in the United States than did (Continued on Page 3)

S.C.M. Hears Prof. McCurdy

Existence of God must be seen through personal experience, stated Professor McCurdy at the S.C.M. meeting Friday afternoon.

Religion, the devotion to a supreme being, carries with it three cautioning threats: Dualism, repressing criticism and humanism by its mysticism; Reaction where the principles of social action are based on ancestral tradition; Dogmatism, demanding rigid loyalty, and intolerance of ideas, he said.

A religion must be historical, challenging, and supernatural, wherein God is loved by first loving our fellow man as brothers.

The religion of tomorrow will be progressive, not reactionary and will relate man directly to man as kindred spirits, said Professor McCurdy.

Forestry, U.C. And Jr. School Win Week-End Lacrosse Contests

S.P.S. Thirds were no match for U.C.'s lacrosse squad and succumbed by a 11-2 score in a game played on the big gym floor Friday afternoon. The Red and White had two big innings, as they bulged the twine four times in the first and six times in the fourth quarter. Cliff Ballagh was chief get-ter, with four to his credit.

U.C.: Ballagh, Campbell, Hignell, McNulty, Sheppard, Alcomback, Ledingham, Gibson, MacDiarmid, McCulloch.

S.P.S. III: Biggs, Kelly, Brennan, Wilmott, Morice, Morris, Nixon, Moiser, Le wis, Forbes.

Grant Puttock of Forestry whipped home five goals in a lacrosse tilt in the lower gym Saturday morning to hand his team a 6-4 win over Wycliffe. The Treemen grabbed the lead early in the first quarter and never relinquished it. Puttock counted twice in the initial stanza, both squads rattled in one piece in the second, the Green-shirts outscored again in the third 2-1, but the Theologs came back with a rush in the final canto, outscored their opponents 2-1 and threatened to tie the score.

Forestry: Eccles, Gray, Puttock, Bentley, Jull, Larson.

Wycliffe: Murray, J. Fry, Coleman, W. Fry, Cardy, Coburn, Robinson.

Junior School fired home three goals in the last quarter of a boxla game played on the big gym floor Friday afternoon to down St. Mike's 7-5.

St. Mike's: Gendran, Hector, Fitzpatrick, Morrison, Buckley, O'Sullivan, Lavery, Gregson, Mackenzie.

Junior S.P.S.: Lawarne, Winn, Crosby, Prentice, Currie, Rankin, Gorman, Kent, Capper, Kellam.

English Girl To Play Lead

Maureen Murphy, Talented Actress Now at St. Mike's Will Take Leading Role in "The Marriage of St. Francis"

STARTS NOVEMBER 11

Maureen Murphy, an English girl at Loretto College, will play the lead in the St. Michael's College Dramatic Society production of "The Marriage of St. Francis," by Henri Ghéon, to be produced for three nights, beginning November 11th, it was announced by officials of the Society.

Tom McDermott will play opposite Maureen in the role of St. Francis. Beatrice Doble is cast in the role of "The Angel."

The play, which is under the direction of Rev. Joseph O'Donnell, C.S.B., deals with the life of St. Francis from his youth to his death. It is the first major play that St. Michael's has done at Hart House in two years.

Features of the play will be the incidental music supplied by the St. Michael's Salon Orchestra under Cesar Borre and a choir of voices which sing at the burial of St. Francis in the final scene.

Chosen from many to play the feminine lead, that of Lady Poverty, Maureen Murphy is by birth a Newfoundland, by long residence, a Britisher. From the time when, at the age of nine, she started in "Pandora's Box," up to the present, she has had the lead in every play produced at the schools she has attended.

Engineers Place First, Second, and Third in Interfaculty Race; Tom Barnett Ties with Bob Delaney for Fourth Place

O.C.E. SECONO

by Dave MacInnes

Geoff Goodwin plodded home in front of a sixty-four man field to win the annual interfaculty harrier race held in High Park Saturday morning. Goodwin led his team-mates from School of Science to their fifth intramural championship.

"Goodwin was in superb condition," said Varsity track coach Hoc Phillips after the race. The winner completed the five-mile grind over the tough High Park course in 29 min., 30.8 sec. As he breasted the tape Goodwin was a good 200 yards in front of the closest competitor, Lionel Peckover, also of School. Another Engineer, freshman Gord Lorimer, placed third.

In a dead heat for fourth position came Bob Delaney of Meds and Tom Barnett of Wycliffe. Don Finlayson of School came sixth, and that completed the four man roll-call and clinched the meet for S.P.S. Only two places behind, in eighth position, came another Engineer, as Foulis came across the finish line.

EMMANUEL TRIUMPHS IN THREE-SET VOLLEY TILT

In a hard fought game on Friday afternoon, Wycliffe's volleyball team went down to defeat under the spikes of Emmanuel's B team. The game went to three sets, 15-7, 9-15, 15-10.

Line-ups:
Emmanuel—McKennett, Green, Hamilton, Kitchen, Fee, Practor, Sateson, Wycliffe—Hunt, Barnett, Knight.

Profs' Opinions Differ Widely On Recent Wartime Literature

That no great literary works have been produced as a direct result of the present conflict is the opinion of various English professors from the colleges on the campus.

Dr. J. D. Robins, Victoria College, said, "It is too early to determine what effects the present war will have on literature."

Professor E. K. Brown of the English Department of University College stated that the most important and significant Canadian work of the past year is the epic poem "Brebeuf and His Brethren," by Dr. E. J. Pratt of Victoria College. Another work of interest recently produced is a volume of poetry by Abraham Klein of Montreal entitled "Hath Not a Jew?" "It is difficult to mention a Canadian novel of merit equal to or surpassing these books of poetry," Mr. Brown continued.

"Verdun," by Jules Romains is the choice of Professor H. N. Frye, Victoria College, as one of the most outstanding novels of the past year. "It is the most serious, and most adult presentation of war in a war age that I have known," stated Mr. Frye. "This novel is a work reflecting the rich cultural background of its author." As an impressive poetic work Professor Frye called attention to "The Post in New York" by a Spanish writer, Louca. "Ernest Hemingway's most recent book, a novel of the Spanish war, entitled 'For Whom the Bells Toll' and 'Native Son,' by Richard Wright are other modern fiction works deserving of praise." In the field of non-fiction Professor Frye would recommend "The Finland Station," by Edmund Wilson.

ATTENTION MEN!

The Hart House Glee Club is in need of a few more tenors to complete the balance of parts.

Results of the Rehearsal Survey conducted by the Glee Club Committee last week show that Tuesday is still the best day for rehearsals. They are held at 5 p.m. in the Music Room of Hart House.

Plates Smash In Fourth Play Of Matinee Series

Crashing of plates will resound in Hart House Theatre on Wednesday afternoon when the U.C. Players' Guild presents "The Unseen" by Alice Gerstenberg. It will be fourth in the series of the weekly plays in Hart House, sponsored by the University Drama Committee.

"The extraordinary clumsiness and stupidity of their household, and the trouble she causes to a young architect and his wife, are the subject of this hilarious comedy" stated Alice Wickson, director of "The Unseen." The part of the maid is taken by Barbara Salter, while Vernon Lang and Mary Savage play the husband and wife. For the sake of economy tin plates were used during the rehearsals, but the actual performance will entail a considerable amount of breakage.

Canada's Railways to College Men Discussed in Forum Club Meeting

The "Canadian Railway Problem," "Music and Its Influences," "Are College Men Concited?" and "Lighter Laws on Theft" were the topics under consideration at the Forum Club on Saturday.

"Amalgamation between the C.N.R. and the C.P.R. must go on as painlessly as possible and I suggest that in the future it will come about," said Eric Hardy, in his speech on Canadian Railways. "Her railways are of vital importance to Canada," he stated, "for they are necessary in preserving her East-West Economy when, geographically, she is a North-South Economy. In long distance hauls the railway is still supreme and aeroplanes are useless in bulk hauls. Thus the railway is indispensable, and, although there is now cooperation between the two railways, such as pool trains, amalgamation is felt necessary."

"Are College Men Concited?" was the subject of the impromptu speech given by R. A. Ghent. Ghent was of the opinion that they shouldn't be, for knowledge should show the folly of conceit. "Knowledge should," he declared, "give us the ability to talk on a subject and superiority over the layman who doesn't know as much on the subject as we. As a whole, college men are no more conceited than any other body of men, but, individually, they have failings like the rest," he concluded.

B. M. Kassirer spoke on the "Lighter Laws on Theft," and illustrated his points with sketches on the blackboard. It is held in Law Courts, Kassirer pointed out, that "Ignorance of the Law is no excuse," but few people know or understand some of the fine points which might get them into trouble.

SUNDAY CONCERT

Going to Lectures

Every once and a while someone pops up with the plaintive query, "Why go to lectures?" Then he launches into a string of complaints some of which are justifiable, others of which are stupid. Professor So-and-So knows his work wonderfully well, but he knows so much of it that he gets sidetracked into little anecdotes that have next to nothing to do with the subject; and by the end of the hour he has told us nothing and we're as bad off as we were before. . . . so . . . why go to lectures? Professor This-and-That has a voice that's too small for the size of the lecture hall. Everybody can't sit in the first five rows, and back of that all we can hear is an indistinct mumble with the occasional intelligible word thrown in. . . . so . . . why go to lectures? Professor Such-and-Such is too big a brain, uses words and technical expressions too advanced, and he doesn't realize he's talking to folk a year or two out of high school. We don't get the drift. . . . so . . . why go to lectures?

These and other complaints may be justifiable. Perhaps lecturers could stick to the subject more closely; perhaps they could talk more loudly and distinctly; perhaps they could speak less intelligently and more intelligibly, if such a thing is possible.

But it very seldom occurs to these complainants that perhaps the lecturers are not the only ones at fault, and that perhaps much of the trouble rests with the students themselves. Certainly the professors would be able with ample justification to offer complaints about preparation, attitude and attention on the part of the students. To get any value out of a given process, some thing must be put into it. That axiom is a standard for all activities, and it is especially applicable to lectures.

Students offer as an excuse for skipping lectures the fact that "It's all in the books anyway." Perhaps it is all in the books. So much the better; read the books. Read those books which cover and supplement the course and try to read them in advance of the lectures. Check and double-check on the material you get in lectures, by using this method you will get far more out of the actual lecture and will be able to concentrate on the thoughts being developed rather than on feverishly scribbling several pages of scrawling illegible notes. What you hear will stay with you, and you won't require a new learning period after the lecture.

Discussions with your professors will do much to help you toward a clearer understanding of your work. In many courses weekly tutorial groups are established features of the curriculum. But whether or not you have tutorials, no professors will ever refuse an interview; rather we think we are safe in saying, from experience, that they welcome students approaching them on the subject of their work and any difficulties they may have encountered.

So if you get disgusted with going to lectures, think them dull, and seem to get nothing out of them, just remember that you perhaps can do far more to improve the situation than your oft-maligned professor.

Ah . . . Poetry!

There has long existed a notion, prevalent more particularly in the average male of the species, that poetry is "sissy-stuff", fit for old-maid teachers, girls in English courses, and "queers." The average man, finding himself unable to grasp the meaning of the artist—yet failing to realize that it would not necessarily be art if the meaning could be at once discerned—dismisses the whole realm of poetry as something unworthy of the attention of a red-blooded male.

That is hardly giving poetry a chance! We have always liked Carl Sandburg's "Ten Definitions of Poetry" in which a modern poet, known for his virile but at times obscure poetry, attempts to define his own medium of expression. They may explain why the average modern man, living in a highly-materialistic world, calls poetry "the bunk" when he fails to get everything out of it he thinks he should.

"1. Poetry is a projection across silence of cadences arranged to break that silence with definite intentions of echoes, syllables, wave lengths.

2. Poetry is the journal of a sea-animal living on land, wanting to fly the air.

3. Poetry is a series of explanations of life, fading off into horizons too swift for explanations.

4. Poetry is a search for syllables to shoot at the barriers of the unknown and the unknowable.

5. Poetry is a theorem of a yellow-silk handkerchief knotted with riddles, sealed in a balloon tied to the tail of a kite flying in a white wind against a blue sky in spring.

6. Poetry is the silence and speech between a wet struggling root of a flower and a sunlit blossom of that flower.

7. Poetry is the harnessing of the paradox of earth cradling life and then entombing it.

8. Poetry is a phantom script telling how rainbows are made and why they go away.

9. Poetry is the synthesis of hyacinths and biscuits.

10. Poetry is the opening and closing of a door, leaving those who look through to guess about what is seen during a moment."

The central difficulty is that poetry deals so much with the intangibles, attempting to express ideas and themes that only the poet is able to grasp, and perhaps only then in flashes of clairvoyance. Modern man has become too materialistic; he wants something to grasp and hold and understand; yet he cannot understand that poetry, and art in general, deals with those other things that lie on the misty borders of man's consciousness, with the ideals and ideas, impressions and sensations of a sensitive soul. Poetry exists to give expression to the beauty that is in life, much of it hidden and probed out only by the searching poet. Poetry lives in the realm of the imagination and man tends to become exasperated with all this. He should give himself up to the soul-stirring experience of searching for the concrete meaning, but he should not become disgusted if he never reached it. What does it matter if it is not fully grasped? The effort will have brought a purity and a beauty into man's soul not found there before, and he will have unconsciously gained a greater appreciation of the work in question. We must always bear in mind, in the haunting words of a modern writer, that "all great art is like a ghost, seeking to express more than it can utter and beckoning to regions beyond."

Better and Better

Whether or not the editorial entitled "Save the School Song," which appeared in these columns a week ago was in any way responsible, it was a pleasure to note that the C.O.T.C. band refrained from making "The Blue and White," an endurance contest when the Auxiliary Battalion paraded Saturday. In addition to this, general approval was expressed, to which we would like to add ours, at the distinct improvement in the band's performance and the enlargement of its repertoire. Taking into account the difficulties involved and the brief time it has had to organize and practice, the band is doing a fine job.

We would like to urge, however, that the band concentrate its efforts on producing a better marching rhythm. When the battalion parades in column of route it is next to impossible for officers to keep the long line in step, and a variety of marching times are called out, confusing recruits and resulting in a sloppy-looking column. Responsibility for keeping the men on the beat must rest with the band, which is as yet rather uncertain, and particularly confusing when it swings from one number to another. We are sure that this improvement will come naturally with time and practice, and will create in the band all-round perfection.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARY TAKEN FROM CAMPUS BY PRANKSTERS

Halloween fun-lovers gag librarians and throw them into stacks

WOULDN'T SHELL OUT!

It was revealed early this morning to The Varsity that on Halloween night, the University Library had been removed from its site on the campus, and hidden in a chestnut tree in the centre of Queen's Park.

The entire affair was carried out by a group of youngsters dressed in gay holiday costume. Upon entering the campus, they noticed the light burning in the library, and immediately stormed the building with cries of "Shell out!" and "No Third Term".

The librarians on duty were taken aback as all they had to offer the merry-makers were a couple of old Representative Poetry books, Vol. 2, and Milton's Areopagitica. The children were completely dissatisfied with this arrangement and before the librarians could call for help, they were gagged, thrown into the stacks, and left to the mercy of the Sanscrit section.

The building was then transported brick by brick to Queen's Park where it was placed on the highest tree the youngsters could find.

The loss was discovered early Friday morning when the caretaker arrived at the site of the Library and to his surprise found a pasture ground with several cows grazing in the vicinity. He immediately summoned the entire campus police force and both of them made a thorough search of the grounds.

The building was soon located, and with the help of S.P.S. students of architecture and several Pass Arts students adept at Jig Saw puzzles, the library was reassembled into its original position.

"It was an unfortunate incident," stated the head librarian in an interview with The Varsity. "Hereafter we will be prepared for future Halloween nights with a full stock of delicacies purchased from the Tuck Shop. After they eat some of that stuff, I feel confident in saying that they will never bother us again."

If the rest of the Friday recitals come anywhere near the standard set by Yvonne Kihl's performance, Hart House members may look forward to a fine musical season. Mr. Kihl's recitals are gradually becoming rarer, and it is a very real privilege to have him play in the House.

interesting one, featuring the Chopin B Minor Sonata and a Schumann Toccata. Mr. Kihl distinguished himself particularly in the Schumann work, which is noted for the difficulty of its technique, and which he carried off with descriptive ease. The Chopin was rendered with a richness of tone and melodic flow which captivated Mr. Kihl's hearers.

A welcome feature of these Friday afternoon recitals is the short explanations given by the artist of each number on his program. While these remarks may convey very little to the advanced student of music, they are of inestimable value to the bulk of the audience, who are people who just come to listen, knowing little of the composers or compositions represented.

It is to be hoped that the Music

Tennis Recount Reveals S.P.S. Won Net Tourney

Engineers Declared Official Winners After Final Results Held up as Ruling on Default Awaited

EMMANUEL SECOND

SPORT SPLASHES

By Doug Green

Contrary to expectations, it was found on the final summing-up of the tennis results that School of Practical Science, and not Emmanuel, won the Interfaculty net tourney and the Victoria Tennis Club Trophy that goes with it, the Athletic Office announced Friday night. Final results had been held up due to the fact that a ruling on the default was being awaited.

As it stands now, School placed first with 13 points and the Emmanuelites second with 11½. Trinity placed third, largely through the efforts of Mel Jones, who lost out to Bruce Hall of Emmanuel in the final. The other five faculties finished in the following order: U.C. 7, Vic and Meds 6, Dents 5½, St. Mike's 5. A point was awarded for a win, a half-point for a win on a default and a half-point for a doubles win. Though Bruce Hall won the singles title and Whallon and Hall advanced to the finals but were eliminated by Mullett and McCallum, S.P.S. had a larger number of entries, which enabled them to pick up a number of odd points on wins in the lower brackets.

Although winning three of the five first places Emmanuel's swimmers were downed 17-16 by Trinity in the first of the two meets which took place last Friday afternoon at Hart House. Maravold and Green of Emmanuel won the 50 breast and 50 back respectively, while their sprint relay team of Jackson, Morwood, McRae and Green almost lapped the Trinity foursome. The Trinity medley squad of Henderson, Lundberg and Teller defeated their opponents and Whitehead was responsible for their second first when he splashed home in front to take the 50 free. Out of the three short races not counting the relays, Trinity won two seconds and three thirds which lowly points defeated the theologs.

Teams.
Trinity—Henderson, Lundberg, Teller, Baxter, Whitehead, Williams.
Emmanuel—Jackson, Morwood, Joyce, Green, Eagle, McRae.

Senior U.C. scuttled Sen. S.P.S. thoroughly when by winning all five firsts, plus one second, and two thirds, they amassed 26 points to their opponents' 7. Ged Clawson, former intercollegiate ace, won the 50 breast and 50 back, although in the latter race he was given a close run by Bill Staples of school intercollegiate champion in the 150 yards back stroke who finished second. McKinley of U.C. won the 50 free in the time of 28.4. The U.C. medley team of Axon, Wadds, and Biggs placed first as did their sprint relay team of Patchet, Biggs, McKinley and Clawson.

Teams.
Senior U.C.—Axon, Wadds, Biggs, Clawson, Brett, McKinley, Patchet.
Senior S.P.S.—Staples, DeMarco, Findlayson, Turner, Marshall, Monroe, Quist.

any other man. Contrary to Edison who worked with direct current in his generators, Lee was a proponent of the use of alternating current.

"In the beginning," stated the speaker, "small local plants supplied power to such places as Toronto and Montreal. These later gave place to power systems transmitting power over wide areas." One of the most celebrated mentioned was the Niagara Falls power network developed by Sir Adam Beck. Others referred to were the Gaietue Power Company, Albitibi Power System and the Shawinigan Water and Power Company, it was learned.

In conclusion, a movie entitled "Wiring the Wilderness" was shown. This depicted the construction of a power line 300 miles north of Fort William. It illustrated how the right of way was cleared, the pole holes dug and the poles erected.

After the lecture, President Cody spoke in appreciation of Mr. MacLachlan's address.

Stadium Is Sea Of Mud As Irish Drown Meds 1-0

Speaking OF SPORT

by Owen Prichard

Followers of intercollegiate basketball for the last few years will remember Percy Singer of Dents, one of the veteran scrambleballers of Varsity. Last spring the amiable Percy got his diploma as an accredited tooth-tugger and is now Lieutenant Singer, of the Canadian Army Dental Corps at Camp Borden. Percy is still as keenly interested as ever in athletics, and is organizing a sports club among the lads of the Dental Corps. The club is going to have boxing and basketball, and as complete an athletic programme as can be arranged. The hard-working Lieutenant has approached Controller Fred Hamilton, President of the Sports Service League, and equipment will soon be headed Bordenward.

We cite this as another in a long list of cases where people who have taken an interest in athletics in college have been able to impart the love of sport to others after they have gone out from the campus to other fields of activity. Reports sifting down from Camp Borden say that Singer's new project has been warmly welcomed by the Dental Corps, and we wish him luck in his efforts to help others along.

THE T. A. REED TROPHY STANDINGS

As everyone expected, the Engineers were leading the field when the first standings in the T. A. Reed Trophy Competition were sent out by the Athletic Office. The Schoolmen are heavy favourites to keep the Cup for another year, provided they can snag two or three more interfaculty championships. The Engineers made a strong showing as a team in tennis, to take the championship in the net game. Their chief contender in this tournament was the two-man Emmanuel team of Bruce Hall and Johnny Whallon. The harrier championship on Saturday was all School's, as they placed 1, 2, 3, and 6 to capture the meet. Besides the championship bonus for the harrier effort, more points were added on an individual entry basis for 20 Engineers, all of whom finished.

The tennis and harrier titles, with those of novice tracks, novice harrier and golf, bring the championship total of S.P.S. to five thus far in the season, a great showing.

THE CAULIFLOWER PATCH

Things are a-humming along Fisticuff Lane, which is the B.W. and F. suite of the Hart House Athletic Wing, as B.W.F.'ers do their respective B.W.F.'ing. The fencers are getting under way, and Mr. Walters is again on deck to instruct the lads in the proper use of sabre, foil and epee. George Daly can use a few more students in his grappling class. A renewed interest is evident in the fast-growing sport of jiu-jitsu, under the direction this year of a new coach, F. Shimidzu of Trinity College.

The greatest activity is in the boxing department, where we venture to predict that a lot of leather is going to be thrown this year by scrappers in the interfaculty loop. Boxing-coach Mel Glionna is seeing his labours in the past few years bearing fruit in the enthusiasm with which the veterans have returned to the squared circle, and the novices to learn the rudiments of the game.

Over fifty students have been turning up in the five-to-six sessions nightly, and Mel reports that some surprisingly good boxing material has come under his tutelage this year. Bill Ramore, 155-pound intercollegiate champ, has been training. Rolfe Stanley of Wycliffe and Frank Patterson are two more members of last year's intercollegiate squad who are getting back into shape. University College is contemplating a campaign to bring the Interfaculty Assault Title to the Royal College. They are hoping to build a team around such prospects as Buck Zeiler, Bill Westman and Tommy Jarvis.

by Marg. Foulds

A recent comment in the Varsity, supposedly made by Corp. Purser, one of the trainers of the U.V.S.T.D., has ruffled feathers of indignation among some of the hard-working trainees said Col. Purser, "The platoon and company drills which the girls are practising are of an elementary nature, but they will probably take all winter to get it down pat." Really, why men should be so insufficiently conciliated and have such utterly low opinions of a girl's I.Q. capacity continues to astound us!

So far, two drills have been held, and us women think things are coming along fine—we may be prejudiced. The enrolment has now reached just about the desired 200 mark, and we understand that applications will not be accepted after today. To date, no first year students have been considered, and probably will not be since the quota has been made up successfully from the more advanced students.

Due to the illness of Mrs. Christie, Commandant of the Detachment, information concerning the probable time of arrival of the uniform has been very uncertain. Only 100 have been ordered since it was hard to gauge how many more would be required, but the others will be ordered as soon as possible.

The Section Leaders or Sergeants are members of the University Athletic Directorate, Tibs Annesley, Prot Bryans, Freddie Baxter, Bonnie McDonald, Joan Griffith and Ruth Dand. These six will help through the winter to train these sections made up of 2 and possibly 3 U.C. units, one Trinity, and two others of representatives from Vic, Occ. and Physio Therapy, O.C.E., H.S.C., Social Sc., S.P.S. and St. Mike's, for some future indoor service.

Walt Guerinet Hoists Lone Counter of Game to Give St. Mike's First Rugby Win of Season

FUMBLE FIESTA

In a torrential downpour Friday afternoon the mudbats from St. Mike's splashed out a 1-0 verdict over Senior Meds in a tumble-fiesta at the Stadium. In the seething morass that was the Blood Bowl, lesson number one in how to be a hero was to hang onto the ball for one consecutive play.

The lone counter of the wrestling-in-mud match came just at the end of the first half. A Medco fumble gave the ball to the Irish on their opponents' 30-yard stripe, and without chancing a running play, Walt Guerinet immediately hoisted for the game-winning tally.

Play in the first chucker was even, except for the Med error that gave the Gaels the all-important point, but in the second stanza the Doctors moved the sticks four times in a row. Halted on the Double Blue's 25, Pete Turner thereupon booted what everybody thought would be the equalizer, but Bill Harte eluded the Med right cod, cut wide around the uprights to plant the pigskin 15 yards out of danger.

But St. Mike's never managed to get well out of their own zone, and Meds' second big chance came near the end of the fray, when a recovered punt gave them the ball on the Gaels' 25. The snap came back, but Turner dropped the grease-laden ball, picked it up and tried to skirt the end, was ducked under for a 20-yard loss. A couple of plays later hostilities ended.

Neither team can be judged fairly playing under such conditions. If a player could manage to pick up speed faster than a walk, or even hang onto the ball, it was almost a miracle. Mention might be made, though, of Cam Cody, Pete Turner, Andy Park and Jim Murray of Meds and the Querinet brothers, Walt and Bill, and Jack Ronayne of St. Mike's. Both teams were not so much interested in gaining points as in keeping their heads above water.

St. Mike's: Rogers, Hughes, Gardner, Fyfe, Wilbers, Roberts, W. Guerinet, Schantz, Walt Guerinet, Harte, Coughlin, Jacob, Konayne, Tierney, Springer, Murphy, Higgins, Battersby, Dunn, Doherty.

Sr. Meds: Park, Quinland, Dixon, Irwin, Mottram, Welles, O'Brien, Campbell, Murray, Dyer, Ross, Cody, Mighton, Takekman, Turner, Virtue.

the meet. The Teachers garnered 39 points, through the efforts of Moncur, who ran seventh, and Wendorf, who followed Foulis into take ninth place, along with Scantland and Eccles, eleventh and twelfth respectively.

Wycliffe came home in third place, due largely to the fine running of Tom Barnett, who finished in a tie for fourth position in the race. His closest teammates were Geoff Parke-Taylor, Art Thomson and Len McDonald, who placed 13, 14, and 15 in that order. Wycliffe also had the largest entry list in the meet, with twenty-three men finishing out of that many starters. Their fellow-collegians supplied the markers, and a number of the faculty assisted with transportation. School of Science had the next largest entry with twenty racers finishing the grind out of twenty starters.

Frank Bennett of St. Mike's, who placed second in the novice harrier, was the lone entrant wearing the Double Blue, and came in tenth after running a nice race.

A unique feature of the race is that all of the 64 starters completed the course.

let's go places

Plenty of music, a flock of talented juveniles and a story simply dripping with human interest combine to make "Strike Up the Band" one of the most lavish, but also one of the most pleasing of Hollywood's crop of musical extravaganzas.

Regarding the stars of LOEW'S the show no comment is STRIKE UP necessary beyond the THE BAND straight fact that Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland played the leads. Anybody that hasn't their own opinion of the worth of this pair probably doesn't read this column anyway. Neither of them gave us anything new, excepting a very sound burlesque of old melodrama with all the trimmings. This bit also featured someone who very strongly resembled Ezra Stone although Stone's name, for some mysterious reason, was excluded from the billing.

The music was unusually good, but almost every number from Gerishwin down lasted about three minutes too long. Perhaps they wanted to give the extras a better work-out.

Other features of the film were a few excellent dancing sequences by June Preisser and a beautiful orchestra composed of fruits and vegetables, (real ones!)—E.S.

(30) Discipline.

The attention of all ranks is drawn to the following Resolution passed by the Board of Governors.

WHEREAS on September 12th, 1940 it was ordered by the Board of Governors on the recommendation of the President and WHEREAS certain problems have arisen regarding the disciplining of students who are enrolled or who are required to enrol for compulsory military training and who may be absent from parade without proper cause, or who may be insubordinate or inattentive while on parade, or whose conduct may in any way be unsatisfactory to the officers in charge of compulsory military training;

That all physically fit male undergraduates who are 18 years of age and over at the time of registration in the University be required to take military training;

and WHEREAS section 88 of the University Act authorises the Board of Governors to abrogate or change the provisions of sections 84 to 87 of the said act respecting discipline;

By the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto

BE IT RESOLVED

I. That a Court of Discipline be and the same hereby is established for the duration of the war or for such period as the Board of Governors may subsequently determine;

II. That the said Court consist of three persons to be named by the President, one of whom shall be named as Chairman of the Court;

III. That the powers and duties of the said Court be:—

1. To consider and deal with such charges of violation of the regulation of the Board of Governors respecting compulsory military training, or of infringement of discipline, as may be referred to it by the officers commanding the Canadian Officers Training Corps

2. To require to appear at times and places to be determined by the Court, all students so charged together with any witnesses named by the said officers commanding or by the students so charged.

3. To investigate the said charges, and to arrive at and publish a verdict regarding each and every such charge.

4. To pronounce a sentence in each case where the student is found guilty of the charge or charges made against him.

IV. That the said Court have the power to impose fines not in excess of those prescribed in the Militia Act, and to recommend to the President the suspension or expulsion of any student who is found guilty.

V. That sections 84 to 87 of the University Act respecting discipline be and the same hereby are abrogated or changed only in so far as may be necessary to provide for the establishment and operation of the said Court of Discipline.

(31) Absence From Parade.

1. All ranks are reminded that the arrangement whereby they are enabled to take their military training while pursuing their academic course, instead of interrupting that course by a month at a training centre, is an accommodation and a privilege; and it is expected that all ranks will remember that this privilege must not be abused.

2. Any man enrolled in the Auxiliary Battalion will be deemed "absent from parade without proper cause" who fails to answer to his name at roll-call—

(a) Unless he has previously obtained from his company or platoon commander permission to absent himself from parade;

(b) Unless he presents a medical certificate or other satisfactory evidence of illness; to the orderly Room, Hart House;

WE WERE GUILTY of 42 lines of very choice doggeral last year. They discussed the travails of freshman life, and ran in the University College Undergraduate last autumn. The Manitoban, apparently very short of copy, reprinted this gem a few weeks ago. On Thursday, the McGill Daily, crediting the Manitoban, ran it again. . . . After all, fellow campus snappers, you might let the dead past bury its dead, and, failing that, at least lay the blame on me, and not the poor old Manitoban. . . . THIS SORT OF THING MUST STOP.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES DEPT. . . . The Manitoban sports a feature titled "I Write as I Please." This is sound and sterling journalism, albeit verging on the truculent. . . . At the other extreme stands the Daily Trojan, which features a column headed "I Write as I'm Told."

FLASH . . . At Louisiana State University, a gent by the name of John Paul Jones sits in class right beside a gent by the name of Woodrow Wilson . . . HOW AMAZINGLY ANACHRONISTIC!

THE THINGS PEOPLE SAY DEPT. . . . Giving his class a list of books dealing with a certain course, the lecturer explained, "These books fall into three groups: required reading, recommended reading, and useful reading." . . . THE ITALICS ARE OURS.

LOVE, says Irwin Gelfogod of the University of Minnesota, may be defined in a variety of ways.

To the Frat Man, Love is an ocean of emotion entirely surrounded by expenses.

To the Florist, Love is what makes you buy orchids when you can't afford carnations.

To the Hen-Pecked Husband, Love is what starts when she sinks in your arms and ends with your arms in the sink.

ELEMENTARY GERMAN was the topic. . . . The exercise was:

(1) "Hans geht in die Schule."

Translation: "Jack goes to school."

(2) "Marie geht nicht in die Schule."

Translation: "Mary goes to night school."

DEAD FISH OF THE WEEK, an award which we sponsored in this column last year, is not granted every week. Most weeks nothing sufficiently gruesome is evolved in the collegiate world to merit it. . . . But this week we exhumed it from the mothballs, and present it to a riddle that is currently going the rounds in other campus papers. . . . The question is asked: "Why do sweethearts enjoy horror-pictures?" The answer is hurled back: "BECAUSE THEY LOVE EACH SHUDDER."

SOMETIMES verse is so bad, it's good.

Renounce the devil, the flesh,

The world—

And all the rest of life

Is spiced.

Fordham Ram.

PICTURE. . . . A recent Sunday Evening Concert at Hart House, a girl, apparently entranced by the flood of harmony, was seen to be doodling ethereally with a chunk of paper and a pencil-stub. Closer inspection revealed that her doodles, obviously inspired by the decorations in the Great Hall, took the form of an almost indecipherable coat-of-arms. All that could be gleaned from the shield, during a hasty over-the-shoulder glance, was that in the lower left-hand quadrant was the legend, "Chase and Sandborn coffee," and in the lower right-hand quadrant, "Good Humour cereal." . . . FADEOUT.

shire place, where, mazelike in form, they are providing lovely hide-and-seek material for kiddies—a good sign. In Germany the six-year-olds would probably want to use them as trenches.

The most appealing feature of the P. T. drills is their informality. Swimming along casually, whistling with more vigour than harmony and ex-changing the odd pleasantries, the under-twenties career about the back campus and adjoining sectors. A typical incident took place last week as a group returned from a stiff hour's route march. Platoon formed up behind platoon and "Chester" Martin took his place at their head, attempting to instill a certain amount of symmetry in the ragged files. After a couple of instructions to the troops, he stopped in dismay and cried, "what's the matter with Number Three Battalion." There was a long and painful silence as several trained minds tried to cope with the situation. Finally, from the ranks there came a timid recommendation: "I think there's a bit of a warp in the middle, sir"

Observed from a Hart House window was a grim-visaged Aushbattman armed to the teeth with shiny new rifle and all the trimmings, who was standing at ease beside a large pile of books, coats and other necessities. A dull job: Let's hope they change the guard frequently.

Major W. S. Wallace, talking to a large body of Aushbatt men of the intricacies of discipline, military law, the uniform and the salute, summed up the student soldier situation beautifully. "It's all very simple when you have the men in a camp," he said, but you people are all leading double lives."

Dunkirk Withdrawal

receive the boats, and from a mile and a half from the French shore, in and out, they were subjected to a continual hail of machine-gun bullets. The Royal Air Force did superb work, said Moore, but were far outnumbered.

"We couldn't get closer than 100 yards from the beach, and the men were forced to wade out to us. Once alongside the beach we worked furiously to get the men aboard, packed them in as close as we could and then set off for home again."

Everything that would float was used in the operation. "A fellow I knew in Edinburgh brought an old wide-wheel excursion steamer down the coast from the Clyde and across the Dunkirk, although it would hardly go," Moore said. "Some people even paddled across in canoes, taking off one or two men a trip."

For the discipline of the troops which arrived at Dunkirk he had the highest praise. "The discipline was the more wonderful when you consider that they had been fighting for days against overwhelming odds. Of course individuals cracked, and there were cases of hysteria on our own boat, but these were so far outnumbered that they had no effect on the general morale."

Many of the troops arrived home without their arms, but none without his full kit, he stated. The difficulties of actual embarkation made it necessary to get rid of all encumbrances, but while the army was forced to leave a good deal of equipment it was made useless to the enemy. Although they suffered considerably from aerial attack, nothing was seen of German ships.

Details of the Channel crossings Moore refused to give. "It's the sort of thing a fellow would rather not talk about," he said.

U.C. RHODES SCHOLAR TAKES CAIRO POST AT BRITISH EMBASSY

Arnold C. Smith was Formerly Newspaperman and University
Professor of Political Economy in Estonia

WIFE IS GRADUATE OF VIC

Arnold C. Smith, Rhodes scholar from University College, has arrived in Cairo to take up a post at the British embassy there, it was reported today by his father, Victor Smith of Toronto. He is accompanied by his wife, the former Evelyn Stewart, a graduate of Victoria College.

Smith was formerly with the British legation in Estonia, last November. Mr. and Mrs. Smith reached Cairo by way of Odessa. While in Estonia, Smith was co-editor of the Baltic Times, an English-language economic journal.

Opposition of Nazi sympathizers was said at that time to have forced him to give up another post as professor of political economy at the University of Tartu, Estonia. As a result he devoted more time to his activities in co-operation with the British consulate. He flew from Estonia to Helsinki for a five-hour interview with the Finnish foreign minister during the Finnish crisis.

C.S.A. PROGRAM RESTRICTED BY WAR

The Canadian Student Assembly is having difficulty carrying on as usual, it was revealed yesterday by the executive.

Owing to the unsettled condition caused by the war it has been found difficult to carry out organization, they said.

Plans had included the continuance of the scholarship campaign, a study of curriculum changes, the promotion of freshman orientation and better English-French relations in Canada, it was learned.

It was hoped that the open meetings of the Toronto Student Assembly for the purpose of discussing policy and program would be continued. It is expected that this program will be somewhat restricted.

The membership is open to representatives of all recognized campus groups and faculties, and all interested students, they said.

Every two years members from all across Canada meet at a national conference to discuss their common problems and decide on measures to improve student life.

PIANO RECITAL

Jack Samoloff will play from 1.30 to 2.00 p.m. today in the east common room, Hart House.

Victoria and U.C. Teams Compete at First Debate

Intuitive Art Is Pantan's Ideal

Art Instructor at Northern Vocational School Spoke on His Paintings at Hart House Art Room

INFORMAL DISCUSSION

L. A. C. Pantan, art instructor at Northern Vocational School, Toronto, gave a short talk in the Hart House Art Room yesterday on his paintings. The speaker, introduced by Prof. Riddell of Victoria College, was born in England, where he received his earlier education, but later came to Canada, and graduated at the Ontario College of Art.

Mr. Pantan spoke for a few moments upon the subject of his ideals as an artist. He said, was intuitive, and not necessarily premeditated. His idea is to give a design in all his pictures, showing the ideas which came to him at the time of the actual painting. The designs must be significant, in order to show the flow and rhythm, which are essential to produce sensation. Mr. Pantan claimed not to be a creative artist, but rather one who plays on or develops a theme.

At this point, the artist proceeded to enlarge upon his ideas by discussing his various paintings, which are on display in the Art Room.

His painting has been done, for the most part, in rural Canada, from the rocky maritime coasts, to the forests and lakes of Northern Ontario. After discussing every picture briefly, showing the motives behind his desire to paint these scenes, and the methods by which he achieved his success, Mr. Pantan held an informal discussion with students who wished to delve further into the intricacies of the artist's work.

Dr. Cody to Speak To Women's Corps

"Aims, scope and organization of the Red Cross and the Women's Voluntary Service Corps," will be the subject of the speech to be given by Mrs. H. P. Plumtree, National Commandant of the Canadian Red Cross W.V.S.C. at the opening lecture today in the Ontario College of Education. Dr. Cody will also have a message for the detachment.

At this lecture the first instruction is to be given in connection with administration.

Nearly every woman's course in the university is represented by at least one member in the detachment. Other section groups outside the university are not yet fully organized.

The detachment will assemble in the corridor and march into the lecture room, after which the officials will enter.

"Resolved that Women Are More Dishonest than Men" is Subject of Women's Inter-faculty Debate

HELO AT WOMEN'S UNION

Wednesday afternoon will see the opening debate of the Women's Inter-faculty Debating Union, at the Women's Union. The teams competing are Victoria and U.C., the former supporting the affirmative, the latter the negative of the debate: "Resolved that women are more dishonest than men." Those on the Victoria team are Margaret Dillon and Gretta Riddell, and on the U.C. team are Marnie Marnist and Mary Macneil.

The winning team is to compete with the St. Hilda's team; and the loser with St. Mike's. After this, the winner of each of these will debate to decide the winner of the shield which is now held by Trinity.

Tea is to be served at four o'clock, and the meeting will begin at half-past four. Visitors are welcome, and after the debate there will be speaking from the floor.

"I think women are much more honest in their dealings with men than men are in theirs with women," one student declared when The Varsity asked his opinion on the question to be debated. "Girls really have to lie to avoid hurting people's feelings, don't they?" suggested another. The general opinion seemed to be that while women are more dishonest in trivial matters, men will take any advantage they can get in an important issue.

Students' Lodgings Scarce At Queen's Since the War

Free Taxi-Service Organized to Take Students to View Boarding Houses Listed by the University

NO TROUBLE FOR CO-EDS

Kingston (CUP) — Queen's University students are faced with a peculiar yet serious problem as a result of the war. Kingston has always been a military centre, with R.M.C., and troops of the permanent force quartered there, but in wartime this concentration has been intensified many times.

There is a large development of the Empire Air Training Scheme, there are thousands of soldiers in training, and there is a naval school for seamen and for naval officers. This does not by any means limit the effect of the war on Kingston, for the Aluminum Company last year built a plant to form aeroplane parts, the locomotive works is building locomotives, and the shipyards are building naval corvettes.

Workers for these industries and relatives of the soldiers have come into town in great numbers. And this is how it affects Queen's. Queen's has no men's residences. All the men and some of the girls live in boarding houses. The university has always issued a list of boarding houses near the university, listing their rates and accommodation.

STUDENT TAXI SERVICE

Some students came up in advance of registration, to make sure of getting a room. A free student taxi service was organized to take the student from place to place mentioned on the list, up this street and down the next. The boarding house list was soon exhausted. Before the end of registration some students had to spend the night in an hotel. Rents have gone up to a slight degree. Where the standard rate for a single room was $3.00 and the rent per person for a double room was $2.50,

HISTORIANS TO HOLD OPEN DISCUSSION FOLLOWING SPEECHES

Dr. B. P. Skey, Dr. G. W. Brown and Mr. R. G. Riddell will Address the Club on the Subject of Russia's Foreign Policy

ELECTION FLASHES GIVEN

History-in-the-making will be brought to the students of this campus as the History Club of the University of Toronto flashes results of the American election at its meeting in Cartwright Hall at eight o'clock tonight.

Feature of the evening will be a Round Table discussion on the Russian foreign policy. Speakers are to be Dr. B. P. Skey, Dr. G. W. Brown, and Mr. R. G. Riddell.

Dr. Brown and Mr. Riddell are both well known to members of the History Club, while Dr. Skey, a native of Russia, attended university in Europe until he took his Ph.D. in Toronto. Now an expert in agricultural economy, he is doing work at the Ontario Research Foundation.

Following the dissertations by the experts, members of the club will join in with questions and further discussion.

The Round Table discussion was chosen by the club executive as a more informal and more informative method of treating "a mysterious and controversial subject".

All grades or undergrads of the Modern History Course as well as those of Social and Philosophical Studies are especially invited to attend.

Following the discussions will be refreshments and dancing.

Students Favour Willkie In Poll at Columbia

Vic S.C.M. Plans Open Meetings

"The Place of the S.C.M. on the Campus" will be Topic of Professor F. H. Anderson Tonight

SQUARE DANCING FEATURE

Professor F. H. Anderson of the Philosophy department will be the guest speaker tonight at 8 p.m. in Alumni Hall, Victoria College, as the Vic S.C.M. inaugurates the first of a novel series of monthly "open meetings".

Dr. Anderson's topic will be "The Place of the S.C.M. on the Campus". There will be a special period for discussion at the close of the address.

The entertainment feature of the evening will be square dancing. Marg. Eagleson, associate president, reports, "We have been fortunate in securing special music for the occasion and George Umebara, a Vic man, to 'call off'." In keeping with the rustic atmosphere of the frolic unusual refreshments will be served.

"All students whether previously associated or not with the Student Christian Movement, are urged to attend," said President Jim McNelly.

"In former years the study group has been the main concern of S.C.M." (Continued on Page 4)

M'GILL RESPONDS TO CALL TO SERVICE

By Tom Fairley

Montreal, Nov. 1. — Principal Cyril James of McGill said today that only one of the 2,000-odd college men who are subject to student military training has refused to train on grounds of conscientious objection and he added that the case had been handled already by a military committee.

In his prepared statement on "conscientious" at McGill, Dr. James said he was "very glad indeed that there had been a magnificent response at McGill University on the part of men and women students, and that participation in the training programs was practically 100 per cent."

At McGill, all women students have to attend four periods a week of war services training courses. Yesterday the university senate ruled that No woman student who fails to attend the courses, which include first aid and physical drill, will be allowed to graduate from the university.

At the two Catholic colleges here, University of Montreal and Loyola, it was reported today that the students have accepted the plan completely and no cases of conscientious objectors had arisen.

Ukrainian Students Held Organization Meeting, Sunday

On Sunday an organization meeting of Ukrainian students of this university was held in the blue room, Wymilwood, during the course of which a constitution, drawn up by the legal members of the gathering, was read and generally adopted.

The club, to be known as the Ukrainian Students' Club of the University of Toronto, has as its objects the enrichment of the members' social and cultural welfare, and plans to put on a few plays and concerts during the coming season.

Officers elected for this year are J. Kucherepa, president; N. Winetoy, Confidence in Mr. Roosevelt of Foreign Students is Based on His "Aid to Britain" Program

DEMOCRATIC WIN PREDICTED

By Lois Bradley

New York. — A public opinion poll of Columbia School of Journalism students taken November 1st, may be indicative of a large section of American public opinion on the eve of the 1940 presidential election. That the students want Willkie to win is evident from the 57 per cent vote in his favour; but that they are doubtful of his chances was obvious when only six of the seventy-two students predicted a Willkie victory.

With the election only hours away, and with political temperatures approaching the danger point, the Class of Journalism determined to take part in the recent orgy of opinion polls, America's favourite parlor-game. While admittedly not representative of the nation, the seventy-two hopeful journalists, from all parts of the United States and six foreign countries, may represent American student opinion.

Of the 57 per cent in favour of Willkie, 34 per cent were against a third term for Roosevelt; 26 per cent believe Willkie will save this country from financial ruin; 23 per cent believe he will do a more efficient job on National Defense than the President, and 17 per cent have faith that a Republican administration will restore permanent prosperity and end unemployment.

Of Roosevelt's faithful supporters, 36 per cent believe his experience in foreign affairs to be indispensable; 26 per cent favour the President's liberal domestic policy; 20 per cent criticize Willkie's unconstructive campaign, and 18 per cent suspect Willkie's affiliation with Big Business.

The foreign students, representing Canada, Denmark, South Africa, Egypt, and South American countries, gave unanimous support to the President.

They wanted the third-term issue, which is considered so important by Americans, and based their confidence in Mr. Roosevelt on his foreign policy, notably his "aid to Britain" program.

FINAL ORIENTATION TEA HELO WEO. FOR VIC FROSH

The third and last in the series of Orientation Teas for Vic students will be held at 5 p.m. Wednesday in Wymilwood, when Dr. Mary Northway will speak on "How to Divide Your Time". All Victoria frosh are invited.

These teas are sponsored by the Victoria College Union for the purpose of helping first year men and women to adjust themselves academically and socially to college life.

This year is the first time Orientation Teas have made their appearance at Varsity, although in many American colleges Orientation Week is set aside for the frosh.

FRIDAY RECITAL

Members of the Music Committee of Hart House who have not called for the notices for their respective faculties and colleges for the recital on Friday next are asked to do so today.

vice-president: L. Faryna, secretary; Miss O. Olechnik, treasurer; Miss B. Romanuk, director of cultural activities. An invitation is extended to all students of Ukrainian descent to come to the meetings which are planned to be held twice-monthly.

Co-eds Turn Gold-Diggers To Aid U.B.C. War Effort

By Allison McBain

Staff Writer, The Ubyesque Vancouver, B.C., (CUP) — Soon every co-ed on the University of British Columbia campus will be a gold digger, but a gold digger with a difference.

Putting on her most alluring smile she will mine her boy friends for all his spare dimes to aid the university's war effort. Each dime she will glue firmly to a long strip of sticky paper. And when all her boy friends are broke — but not before — she will donate her takings to "Dime of Miles" campaign of the Students' Council.

The "Smile-a-Dime" campaign originated way back in 1937 when U.B.C. co-eds formed the Mile of Nickels campaign to obtain funds for the then-proposed Brock Hall. W.U.S. president Peggy Fox started the idea and intended it to last for 25 years.

Now that the Brock is finished and furnished and the needs of war are urgent the campaign has been changed into the Dime-a-Smile Campaign. The war is an extremely realistic thing to the U.B.C. co-eds so each will put on her coat of armour for a good take.

How much is a mile of dimes worth? One dime is eleven sixteenths of an inch in diameter. Hence in one mile there are 92,050 dimes. Therefore, the money raised will be approximately $9,000 or enough money to buy wool for 18,000 pairs of socks.

University Women's War Work

Enrolment for the University Women's Service Detachment ceased last night, and this newly organized university branch of the Red Cross has now a total of approximately 200 members, the maximum number allowed by the Red Cross.

This is a most encouraging response to the new organization, particularly in view of the entrance requirements, which limited enrolment to girls close to graduation and admitted only those who intend to make good use of this course by serving in the Red Cross after their graduation. Detachment members are to be congratulated on their eagerness to be of assistance in the war effort. They are well aware that it is no mere pastime or diversion that they are entering into, but a serious course of training that will require a great deal of their spare time and energy. They are preparing themselves as much as possible now so that they may devote themselves wholeheartedly to important Red Cross work after graduation.

Now that registration is complete and a great deal of the preliminary organization work is over, the Detachment can settle down to the serious business of drills and lectures. An organization drill was held last Thursday on Trinity back campus. Lectures will begin this evening and will be held once a week, as long as weather permits two outdoor drills a week. When that is no longer possible, lectures will be given twice weekly. At the end of the course, members will take both practical and written examinations. At tonight's meeting, to be held in Room 331 in the Ontario College of Education, Dr. and Mrs. Cody will be present, as well as a few other invited guests, and Mrs. H. P. Plumtree, National Commandant of the Canadian Red Cross Women's Voluntary Service Corps, will address the group.

A great deal of credit is due to Miss A. E. M. Parkes, secretary-treasurer of the Women's Athletic Directorate, associate-secretary of the S.A.C., and Senior Lieutenant of the Detachment, for her work in planning and organizing this new branch of the Red Cross in the university.

Unlike McGill, war service training for girls at Varsity is purely voluntary. At McGill, unless girls take four one-hour classes a week in war service work, they will not be graduated. Naturally the new Service Training Detachment represents only a small percentage of the total number of girls in the university. Many were unable to enter for various reasons such as lack of entrance requirements, or because they felt themselves unable to devote sufficient time to it after graduation to justify their taking the course.

However, there are a great many other ways in which co-eds can do their share. The University Red Cross unit, which has its workrooms in the Household Science Building, is receiving the support and contributions of many undergraduates, particularly those able to operate sewing machines. This branch of the Red Cross was opened last January and since then has produced an amazing amount of soldiers' supplies, refugee clothing and hospital supplies. Members of all university faculties participate, each section working one day a week under a convener, turning out every imaginable article of clothing from knitted goods to heavy winter coats. Many of the members, to whom goes much of the credit for the organization's success, have been working steadily all day long in the Red Cross workrooms since last January, with only a three week respite in August and September.

In addition, hundreds of co-eds have assisted already this year by tagging and canvassing for the Red Cross and other war-time societies. Many fraternities, sororities and other social organizations on the campus have donated the proceeds from their dances to the Red Cross. The Red, White and Blue Ball to be held at the Royal York next Saturday was planned by a group of Varsity co-eds in aid of the Red Cross.

Thus women's war work at Varsity may not be compulsory, but practically every girl is helping in one way or another. No matter how little time you have to spare, there is always some way in which you may contribute towards the war work being done by university women.

20th Anniversary

Radio plays so important a part in this second great war that it is strange to think of the last war as being a radioless one, devoid of newscasts from London and Berlin and the evening summary of world events. Tonight in particular people all over the world will be stationed at their radios listening to the results of the American elections, in which more than one country feels a strong personal interest. Yet it was a mere twenty years ago last Saturday, another election day in the States, that the world's first broadcasting station went on the air to report the returns of the Harding-Davis election, and to announce the election of Warren G. Harding as President.

The station was KDKA in Pittsburgh and the broadcast was a half-hour one consisting of election bulletins and phonograph records. Thus a billion dollar industry was started and the world was provided with an entertainment medium unparalleled for convenience and economy, and its ability to describe an event even as it happens. Tremendous fortunes have been made by the men who watched radio progress and rushed to build broadcasting stations to keep up with that progress. They knew that the world is always willing to pay to be entertained. The price is little enough—the cost of a radio, plus your patience with announcers urging you to eat this, or brush your teeth with that. It is little enough to pay to hear the latest news from Europe, election returns, grand opera or symphony programs, an account of a hockey game or a rugby match, or your favourite movie star or comedian.

With the advent of the second great war, the part radio was to play was clear before it. Overseas broadcasts were nothing new of course, but never before they so important or depended upon by so many. Immediately, daily broadcasts from England, France, Germany, Poland, Norway, became commonplace. The war was being broadcast as it was being fought—broadcast subject to censorship of course, but that is both unavoidable and necessary. English news broadcasts have had a reassuring effect on people on this side of the Atlantic since the German air blitzkrieg on England began. However unreasonable it may be, it is still reassuring to hear a calm, cool and collected English voice give an account of the day's news from London. The very calmness and the unhurried attitude of the broadcast seems to minimize the danger and speak well for the future.

No doubt most of us can remember back to the time when the popular radio was a box-like contraption that you carried around like a suit-case and unfolded when you wanted to set it up. You listened to it through earphones and considered yourself very fortunate if one-half of what you heard was intelligible. If a mere twenty years can produce such a miraculous change, what can lie ahead for radio, in addition to the long awaited television, even in the next twenty years?

Hart House Gallery

Swept by wild, Wagnerian winds or groping through weird shades of fog, L. A. C. Panton's mysterious landscapes are now displayed on the walls of Hart House Gallery. The collection is a deeply interesting one, most of the interest being provided by the grotesque and the mysterious. Some of the countryside portrayed seem to be waiting for a fairy tale from Grimm or Andersen to step into them, and others seem already to hold such tales.

Throughout the display, predominant in oils and landscapes, runs this theme depicting nature as occult—a magical, mystical hierarchy beyond the comprehension of human beings. We have not yet been able to strike up any particular sort of friendship with those large paintings of flowing rocks, un-

"Wiregarters," the man said, breaking a silence, "I suppose you wonder why I've come here?" I nodded. The man looked around carefully and after emptying my decanter of Pepsi-Cola 1900 he said abruptly, "You are quite an authority on psychic phenomena, aren't you?" I nodded again. What could this strange man want? A month ago he had burst into my room, his eyes aflame as if he had seen some awful thing. Since then he had lived with me, drinking my Pepsi-Cola and eating my peanut brittle with never so much as a "Thank you" or "Win with Willie." Was his silence finally to be broken?

"I suppose you've been wondering about me?" he asked. "Not at all," I replied, "have some more peanut brittle." He took it with a handgrip expression and they tasted very well together. "Wiregarters," he said, "did you ever hear of Magic Baking Powder?" I nodded. He went on. "Did you know that it is correctly advertised?" I looked at him inquiringly. "You mean—" "I mean," he said, "that it is MAGIC!" I jumped up. "Yes," he said, "it's actually MAGIC."

Could this thing be? But I had heard it with my own ears in the twentieth century. MAGIC! I tried to laugh it off, but quick as a flash he sprinkled some Magic Baking Powder on a chair and transformed it into a gnome. It was amazing. A dash of powder on my foot-stool and it changed into a golden egg. I was flabbergasted. "Now do you believe?" he shouted. I nodded. "But why," I asked, "did you come to this room and sit here for a month saying nothing and eating my peanut brittle?" A strange gleam came into his eye. Then he answered, "I've been experimenting with Crazy Water Crystals!"

WIREGARTERS

relieved by even a tree, but there is something about them that makes one want to. The rock exposures are done in small squares of various pastel shades, producing a striking effect, but the general tone of the pictures is chaotic. If you are fond of colour, you will probably join us in our preference for the painting of the Atlantic seaboard, and the small watercolour of a woodland brook. These too gleam with the same mysterious light, but are cases after the dreary tones of the others.

ORGAN RECITALS

This afternoon, at Convocation Hall, there will be inaugurated a series of organ recitals by Dr. Healey Willan, university organist, professor in the Faculty of Music and well-known Canadian composer. These recitals are designed to give students a chance to enjoy music on their own organ.

Although it has been written for by almost all of the greater composers, the organ is rarely heard in recital today, except to fill in blank periods of a radio station's timetable. It seems incredible that some of Bach's greatest music is almost never heard on the instrument for which it was designed.

The Tuesday afternoon organ recitals give students an excellent opportunity to acquaint themselves with an unfamiliar medium, presented under the most favourable circumstances by a man who is a master of his field.

ART GALLERY FILMS

A new type of Monday was brought to Toronto on Monday evening at the Art Gallery when the National Film Society branch staged its November showing. Feature picture was The Adventures of Chico, told in English and Mexican by a small peasant lad and developed fully by the camera skill of Stacy and Horace Woodard.

The two directors sought the drama of the Mexican plantations but dwelt on the pets and playmates of the goatherd's son Chico instead. These they presented with abundant foresight and occasional touches of humour. It was a new concept of Mexican rural life, lacking the colour of costume and festa but containing sympathetic portrayal of a solitary boy's desert friends, in one of the strangest tales ever told.

The strangeness of Chico was matched by a short reel of contemporary American drama. This was *Give Us
This Day* . . . the single handed effort of Roger Barton to condense privation and hunger of a gaunt city negro on to one hundred feet of silent film. The introduction of shuffling feet led to an ant's eye view of the outcast, making him loom large throughout the rest of the film. It was the producer's plan to make the plight of hungry men loom large on the conscience of America. It might be noted that the companion picture Our Daily Bread, released recently in Canada, was not on the program.

Third in point of interest was the new effort of the Ontario Hydro Commission to tell the story of electricity, its production and distribution. The Bright Path showed that Associated Screen News is adapting recent techniques, but unlike its efforts in war films, is not interested in originating new ones in this film.

A well selected and stately introduction of water courses on their way along the road to become power set the pace of the film, which later turned to record most of the buildings and plants of the Commission. The original path was again turned from in the detailing of upkeep and line repair jobs. These prevented the relatively clear equation of "water to power" from being worked out, and made the film rather longer than necessary.

Protection of Fruit completed the shorter films and was educational only.

Making a three-goal spurge in the second quarter of a fast-moving lac-a 5-4 decision over Wycliffe in the big gym of Hart House yesterday.

Jull, Eccles and Puttuck put in stellar rich mixture of earthy East Side At-

James Cagney and Ann Sheridan. The atmosphere is good, the beaux gestes very beau but a little too frequent, the drama and realism rather profound in several places. Cagney and a number of minor characters are very fine, and Paced by a stalwart group of freshmen, North House won a triumph of its own in the senior harrier at High

Yesterday in Hart House pool the closest meet of the season took place, with Senior Meds defeating Vic 18-15. With the score 15-14, and only the final relay left, the Medical team of Culiner, Wesley, D. Best and Johnson finished out in front only inches ahead of Vic to take the meet.

Doug Best, anchor man for the Medicals had a short lead over Nixon, star swimmer from Vic, as they took off for the last 50. Nixon gained noticeably but just couldn't overcome the handicap.

The Vic squad of Morrison, Nixon and Boville won the medley and Vic's only other first was secured by the same Nixon, who won the 50 breast in the time of 37.8.

Maurice Clarkson, intercollegiate diving champion for the past two years, and who also was discovered last year to be the second fastest sprint man in the university after four years here, added another surprise to his other surprises when he churned up the pool to win the 50 yard back stroke.

Doug Best won Meds' other first place by ending up in front in the 50 free with Boville of Vic edging out Clarkson of Meds for second spot.

McGILL AGITATION TABOO

Our editor was the recipient of a letter yesterday from Tom Fairley, who was a student at the University of Toronto last year and who is now connected with the Canadian Press in Montreal.

He writes that agitation on the part of some of the students at McGill has been strong enough recently to occasion a meeting this week of the McGill Athletic Council. To be brief, these men from McGill want representative, if not intercollegiate teams.

According to Fairley, the pot of dissatisfaction with the present setup began to brew when some ardent followers of the great winter pastime, hockey, found out that there was a vacant berth in an intermediate puck league. These students then wanted to know why they couldn't go ahead and enter a team, according to the athletic manager at McGill, Hay Finlay.

Finlay said that under present intercollegiate agreements, such a move would be "inconsistent" with the universities' attitude toward any sports activities which were not within the bounds of the intramural program, during this period of war at any rate.

In any case, it was also announced that McGill will consult with Varsity. Queen's and Western athletic representatives this week so that they might know what was the general trend of opinion and settle the question once and for all.

Finlay was of the mind that the universities of the east would, generally speaking, be against any such innovation.

Warren Stevens, when approached on the question, was emphatic in his declaration of the non-feasibility of such a plan and in his denouncement of this puerile attempt at subtlety in an effort to render intercollegiate sport by means of an obscure back door entry. For even though there might not be any actual intercollegiate sport, yet an intercollegiate group would be represented and the burden of the upkeep of such a team would of necessity fall on the shoulders of the university.

Then there would be the problem of other sport fans who would want basketball or swimming or boxing or any other sport to be represented in some such manner, thus involving a complete reversal of present form and an inconsistency with the attitude and determined stand of universities under present intercollegiate agreements.

The question regarding a meeting of the athletic representatives of the three large eastern universities, of which Fairley writes, is a vague one, for Stevens has not been informed of any such gathering as yet and surely if they were to meet this week he would have received notice by this time.

The possibility of any such McGill suggestion being adopted is a very remote one and the entire question is one which hardly deserves serious consideration by athletic heads in the various colleges.

TRACK MUTTERINGS

According to Hec Phillips, Varsity track coach, there has been a high track standard this year and if the boys still maintain an interest in distance running many will become good performers. A fine example of what diligent training and persistence can do, is the great win of Goodwin in the senior harrier, who in his first and second years was not outstanding at all. He kept plugging away year after year and kept on improving until he finally did win the senior harrier.

A very successful outdoor season of track has just been completed and it is to be hoped that the indoor activity will be just as successful.

Indoor activity may start next week but there will be a committee meeting to announce it officially.

JOTTINGS

The billiards tournament got under way today. . . It is interesting to see the way Wycliffe has done in the line of lacrosse. . . They have never played the game before last Saturday, and were defeated by the very close score of 5-4, by Forcysty yesterday. . . Coleman, their goalie, also guards the cage in hockey and soccer. . . Dents A played with four men in their volleyball tilt with Knox A and still came out on top. . . Trinity upset Vic's apparent by eking out a close 12-11 win over the favoured Scarlet and Gold, leaving U.C. ensconced in second place alone. . .

A Tying Touchdown in Last Play of the Game Plus a 75-Yard Run for Vic Were Some Thrills in Saturday's Game

SCORE 13-12

By Ed Nickerson

A tying touchdown for Trinity on the last play of the game, followed by a game-winning, convert after regulation time was over; a 75-yard run for Vic; and a frustrated Anglican scoring try as the half-time whistle blew were all crammed into one dazzling rugby game which saw the Red and Black down Victoria 13-12 at Varsity Stadium yesterday.

The Victorians were cruising along smoothly with a 12-7 lead until the Red and Black started a late last quarter rally. A Vic forward pass was intercepted near centre field, and two forward passes by Trinity brought the ball to the Vic 40-yard line. Another pass from Boxer to Crashty put the ball on the Vic 20-yard line. On the next play Boxer was smeared for a five-yard loss, and two attempted forwards were knocked down by the Scarlet and Gold defenders. On the last down the Red and Black pulled their old favourite play—an inside kick which they were successful in recovering on the Vic four-yard line. On the last play of the game Boxer tossed a forward to Frewer for a major score to tie the count at 12-12. Boxer put on the finishing touches by making his placement good.

Vic started the game with a bang. Rutledge recovered a blocked Trinity kick at the Red and Black 20-yard line. Heinbuch went around the end for nine yards, and Bailey added another on a buck through the line. Then Heinbuch passed a lateral to Fleming who crossed the line standing up for a touchdown. Fleming's convert was good, making the score 6-8 for Victoria.

The latter part of the first quarter saw Heinbuch and Fleming pull a pair of spectacular end runs, but Boxer intercepted a forward to spoil any further scoring chances for the Taylor-coached outfit.

Crashty of Trinity blocked a kick on the Vic 45-yard stripe. And a Jarvis to MacCormack forward brought the ball close enough for Trinity to boot the ball over the line for a point. Two minutes later Hogg of Vic fumbled at his own 40. An exchange of kicks and a forward from MacCormack put the added another two yards, but the half-ball on the Vic three-yard line. Boxer time whistle blew to thwart the Trinity rally.

The start of the third quarter saw the Anglicans dominating the play. An inside kick over the Vic touch-line was recovered by Crashty for a major score. The convert was good, giving the Red and Black a 7-6 lead.

Five minutes later Heinbuch shook loose on a lateral from Bailey and dashed 75 yards for a converted touch, putting Vic ahead once more with a 12-7 advantage.

The last quarter saw Trinity come from nowhere with their last-minute offensive which turned a seeming defeat into a glorious victory. Fleming, Heinbuch, Lewis, Carson, and Gold. While MacCormack, MacMillan, Harris and Crashty were best for Trinity.

Trinity: Gabey, MacMillan, Boxer, Henderson, Frewer, Partridge, Whittingham, Baxter, Pyper, Livingston, Crashty, Jarvis, Harris, MacCormack, Reid, Turner, Grieve, Shirriff.

Victoria: Bradford, Heinbuch, Hogg, Carson, Irwin, Fleming, Rutledge, Quentia, Bailey, MacRae, Lewis, Whalton, Smallwood, Wolfram, Cross, Gibbs, Young, Paisley, Jones.

The Canadian Campus

by Esmond Goldman

Staff Writer, McGill Daily

A Canadian University Press Feature

By Doug Wilson
Staff Writer, Queen's Journal
A C.U.P. Feature

We see by the papers that the lovely Madeleine Carroll came to McGill and gave a lecture to the students of English 4. Sweet and beautiful are the fruits of publicity for Miss Carroll's latest picture. We could even get up with a smile for an eight o'clock lecture, those banes of our existence, for a lecture from her. But think of the horrible shock when you go to the next lecture and leave Paradise for this workaday world.

The sophomore engineers at Queen's had a novel idea for their dance. They had a "lead the band" contest in which all the would-be maestros at the dance had a chance to assert their subconscious self and lead the band in any way they liked. Three guys and two girls took part, and the winner was chosen by popular vote. One fellow did not give the down beat at the beginning, and thus the band did not begin, leaving him gesticulating. After this they waited for the band to begin before their self-expression began. Another maestro led the band up to a thunderous climax and stepped, only to find the band playing. The winner was a male Ina Ray Hutton who strutted, stomped and Mae Wested his hips for all he was worth.

They had a Bogey Ball for Halloween at the University of Saskatchewan. The wild and woolly westerners were said that this effete age had taken away their annual Halloween mud fight, but they tried to make up for it in a tug-of-war between faculty teams. Then each college ran a booth, in which you could spend your nickels in as innocent a fashion as getting a hot dog or in the dissipated, delusory crown and anchor game. With a good orchestra and a large floor, fun and games were had by all.

Military training is in full swing at all universities across Canada, and as every ordeal has its humorous side, we thought we'd offer these little gems. They may help you to bear up, who knows? At Queen's we do our evening drill in the gymnasium, which, large as it is, gets rather crowded. There is the stamping of feet, the clatter of rifle movements, and the barking of commands in various peculiar tones and accents. Two units were marching steadily toward each other. The men in each front rank looked worried. Nearer, ever nearer, they approached. Suddenly the command rang out, "Attention!" One other classic command is that of the young officer, anxious for the welfare of his men, who ordered "Eyes right!" as his platoon was passing the women's residence.

As time goes on, however, this little problem of imminent collision seems to worry us less and less. Standing in the balcony of the gym, your observer noted squads marching through each other with the greatest of ease. Your reporter was inevitably reminded of the Musical Ride of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, but he missed the horses.

A writer in the Toronto Varsity comments on the sad state of the English language when it falls into the rough hands of the Army. He asks what one is to make of such gibberish as "Slope Hipes!" and "Order Tuh!" And he concludes by saying could anyone be blamed for not understanding "Stummacheese?" So far the worst your reporter has encountered is "Stand at Hize," and the old familiar "Heit, hips, heit, hips." But it's getting serious, and something will have to be done about it.

People will do all kinds of labour for the fun of it on Halloween. At McGill some students dug the pillars of the Roddick Gate out of their concrete foundations and placed them at another entrance to the university. No one saw this weird work being carried out by the light of the moon, and as the clock on the gate was stopped at midnight, there is a strong suspicion that supernatural forces were at work.

Co-eds all across Canada are taking St. John Ambulance training, so possibly some experiences at McGill will have some points. It seems that the "patient" has to be exactly that, for they are pushed and pulled mercilessly, and have to remind their bandagers that sympathy is one of the rules of the game. Judging from some of the struggles, it must be one of the hardest to learn.

From coast to coast, Sadie Hawkins is making visits to Canadian campuses, an invasion that no C.O.T.C. contingent will hinder. Male hopes run high, and even if Elysium lasts only a day, it's a beautiful memory.

There seems to be spreading across this fair land a blot that is known as "knee socks." This plague manifests itself on the legs of co-eds. It was rumoured in the McGill Daily that they were cooked up by "Mademoiselle" and Harper's bizarre "Bazaar." Be that as it may, the Toronto Varsity made its own "Gallup" poll of male opinion on the campus. "Childish, sloppy and uncomplimentary" said most of the men queried. In this they follow the example of the men out at U. of B.C. Some of the comments made were "They look like little Red Riding hoods running around the campus" and "They'll be wearing pigtail next." One man believed that they were a form of freshette initiation. Little did he know of feminine psychology.

Well, to mix metaphors, now that we have sown the whirlwind, we await the deluge.

hither and yon

AMERICAN STUDENTS go to the polls tomorrow, along with several million other voters, to settle the question of who is to be their President during what promises to be the four most vital years that those United States have tackled yet. It is the inalienable prerogative of the columnist to predict the outcome of these big sporting events, then to crowd proudly if he is right, or explain volubly if he is wrong. Therefore, we are about to climb out onto the already overcrowded limb. After listening to several campaign speeches from both camps, discussing the issues with a few clever people and several stupid ones, and even taking such an Intelligent Interest in the contest that we delved deep into the United States Constitution for additional background information, we have decided that Roosevelt will win a third term, not by the sweeping victory that our Gotham friend predicts, but by a clear majority. Roughly, by 35 states to 13. So here we sit out on our limb, with the radio on and the fingers crossed...

ST. MIKE'S IN LACROSSE

Victoria College tossed off an 11-7 victory over St. Mike's in a tree-scorer boxing contest in the main gym of Hart House yesterday.

Both squads scored as many as five counters in a single frame, Vic getting their five in the last canto and the Gaels getting theirs in the second.

Vic: Cornish, Farmer, Munro, Patrick. St. Mike's: Fryson, Morrison, Hector, Fitzpatrick, Buckley, Sullivan, Bennett, Lavery, Doyle, Cohen.

AUXILIARY BATTALION

U. of T. Contingent,
C.O.T.C.
Orders
by

Major W. S. Wilson, E.D.
Acting Officer Commanding.

Part 1.

4 November, 1940.

(30) Discipline.
The attention of all ranks is drawn to the following Resolution passed by the Board of Governors.

WHEREAS on September 12th, 1940 it was ordered by the Board of Governors on the recommendation of the President and WHEREAS certain problems have arisen regarding the disciplining of students who are enrolled or who are required to enrol for compulsory military training and who may be absent from parade without proper cause, or who may be insubordinate or inattentive while on parade, or whose conduct may in any way be unsatisfactory to the officers in charge of compulsory military training;

That all physically fit male undergraduates who are 18 years of age and over at the time of registration in the University be required to take military training;

and WHEREAS section 88 of the University Act authorises the Board of Governors to abrogate or change the provisions of sections 84 to 87 of the said act respecting discipline; By the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto
BE IT RESOLVED

I. That a Court of Discipline be and the same hereby is established for the duration of the war or for such period as the Board of Governors may subsequently determine;

II. That the said Court consist of three persons to be named by the President, one of whom shall be named as Chairman of the Court;

III. That the powers and duties of the said Court be—

1. To consider and deal with such charges of violation of the regulation of the Board of Governors respecting compulsory military training, or of infringement of discipline, as may be referred to it by the officers commanding the Canadian Officers Training Corps

2. To require to appear at times and places to be determined by the Court, all students so charged together with any witnesses named by the said officers commanding or by the students so charged.

3. To investigate the said charges, and to arrive at and publish a verdict regarding each and every such charge.

4. To pronounce a sentence in each case where the student is found guilty of the charge or charges made against him.

IV. That the said Court have the power to impose fines not in excess of those prescribed in the Militia Act, and to recommend to the President the suspension or expulsion of any student who is found guilty.

V. That sections 84 to 87 of the University Act respecting discipline be and the same hereby are abrogated or changed only in so far as may be necessary to provide for the establishment and operation of the said Court of Discipline.

(31) Absence From Parade.
All ranks are reminded that the arrangement whereby they are enabled to take their military training while pursuing their academic course, instead of interrupting that course by a month at a training centre, is an accommodation and a privilege; and it is expected that all ranks will remember that this privilege must not be abused.

2. Any man enrolled in the Auxiliary Battalion will be deemed "absent from parade without proper cause" who fails to answer to his name at roll-call—

(a) Unless he has previously obtained from his company or platoon commander permission to absent himself from parade;

(b) Unless he presents a medical certificate or other satisfactory

Journalism Under Difficulties...

The shoulder is back in place again now... and the sling is off... but our troubles didn't end there...

Yesterday our friend Roberto came up to us and said, "You know that girl friend of yours?"

Of course we did. "Yes?" we said. "Well, she was out with her boy friend again last night."

That would be pretty weak if it was not true. Feeling that life was hardly worth living any longer, we sought solace in some exchanges. And there we found an article that was at once a help and an inspiration. "Kissing—So What?"

They laughed when I sat down on the car seat beside her. They didn't know I had read the article of the above name in the Brunswickian.

For those of you who would like to improve your technique, we present a few choice selected passages:

"When the big moment arrives—don't forget you have arms. Put them around her, squeeze gently—and kiss her... remember, although you may not suspect it, she knows when you are going to kiss her; so if you start, don't lose your nerve. Nothing is more disappointing... There is much controversy on the way the lips should be presented, but the consensus of opinion is that they should be slightly parted, and moist, not drooling... when kissing a girl lingeringly, be careful to leave at least one nostril unrestricted. Remember that a lady must breathe."

"For the benefit of the frosh: the head should be held at any angle to avoid bumping noses, and be sure that you hit her lips first try... If you wear glasses take them off or you're liable to put her eyes out."

"Ladies—three of man's senses should be appealed to in a kiss. You should be careful to smell sweet, feel soft, and taste pleasant. To get the best out of a kiss, BOTH parties must co-operate."

That part about the glasses was where we missed out before. Now we feel we could give lessons to Mickey Rooney.

Weaker and Weaker...
Some co-ed wrote to Jezebel, our girl friend, about a graduate chem student at Toronto who's causing no end of trouble.

He has such an acid disposition that whenever he comes into the lab all the blue litmus paper turns red.

Mare Feller...

About a year ago the Feature Editor of the McGill Daily, being desperate for something to take up space, printed a parody we'd written:

"Sweet Adeline, for you I pine,
But while I'm here I'll take a beer
With any co-ed who's mine."

About three months later we were puzzled to see the thing reprinted in the Daily with a "Silver and Gold" credit line. Back-tracking through the exchanges, we found it had been used—as filler—in about five college mags.

We weren't flattered very much to have attention paid to that thing; however, if filler is what you want, filler is what you shall get. All of which is by way of excuse for this:

"The stag at eve had drunk his fill,
Where danced the moon on Monan's Rill,
And then he went to the Junior Prom and made a damned ass of himself."

St. Agnes eve—ah, bitter chill it was!
The owl for all his feathers was a cold
So the C.O.T.C. went on a route march

Without greatcoats.
Paging Peggy...

Our fond friend Roberto came up to us the other day showing evidences of that undergraduate complaint which is supposed to manifest itself in the spring. "I'm in love!" he stated, sighing.

How thrilling, we said, what's she like?

"I don't know; I've never met her."

"You should be past the age when you fall in love with movie stars," we said reprovingly.

"But honest, this is different," explained Roberto, "I'm only doing what a lot of other normal college guys have done. I've fallen in love with that beautiful McGill co-ed, Peggy Keohan, who models for those Hudenut cosmetic ads in the newspapers."

And s'welp us, it's true. What about it, McGill? Can it be possible Peggy is as pretty as her pictures?

RUSSIA BELIEVES FALL TO BE GERMAN FATE DR. SKEY ASSERTS

Native of Russia Says Stalin Expects Showdown with Capitalism. Churchill Seems Favourite Foreign Leader

AT HISTORY CLUB MEETING

"Russia hasn't the slightest doubt that Germany will be defeated in the present war," said Dr. Skey, in a round-table discussion with Professors Brown and Riddell, on Russian Foreign Policy, at the meeting of the Modern History Club, last night.

Dr. Skey, a native of Russia, who is now carrying on agricultural research at the Ontario Research Foundation, is an experienced observer of Russian foreign policy, although he maintains that he is not an expert.

Dr. Skey stated that Russian diplomats speak in terms of contradictions between the capitalist and socialist worlds. Russia desires dissension among the imperialist countries. Her only fear is that Germany and England will conclude a peace unfavourable to Russia, rather than continuing the war to the bitter end. In the latter event, her belief is that Great Britain's resources would outlast those of Germany, but at the same time, she would weaken herself considerably.

Dr. Skey revealed that Stalin fully expects a final showdown between Russia and the capitalist world. This may be delayed but not prevented, so Russia must prepare herself by consolidating (Continued on Page 4)

Members Wanted In Sewing Class Under Red Cross

The beginner's Red Cross sewing class will hold its first class on Wednesday night, November six, at 7.30 p.m. at the Red Cross sewing room, Room 116 in the Household Science Building, it was announced by Ethel T. Robertson of the Women's War Service Committee. The registration for this course took place last Monday, but there is still room for more members, it was stated.

This training service is one of a group which is included under the Training For Service which in turn is a sub-committee of the Women's War Service Committee. Also included in the group are Motor Mechanics and First Aid. According to Mrs. Robertson registration for these latter was completed and classes filled last Monday. Consequently those who registered the following Tuesday and Wednesday cannot be accepted, it was learned.

S.A.C.'s Work for Undergraduates Includes Loans, Jobs and Trips

By Edward G. Dorris

To some of you, freshmen mostly, the activities of the Students' Administrative Council is somewhat of a mystery.

The activities are many and varied. It is the S.A.C. that publishes The Varsity, the Student's Handbook and the Torontoniensis, and any other publications that are decided to be necessary. In an interview Mr. E. A. Macdonald, director of student aid and placement, and secretary-treasurer of the S.A.C., stated that one of the greatest aids that the council gives is in the way of financial aid to students through its loan fund. Mr. Macdonald said that due to the efficient work of the business administration more than $35,000 has already been loaned to help students. The

W.S.T.O. Holds Second Military Drill Practice; Members Instructed in Forming Platoons and Marching as Battalion

MACDONALD DIRECTS

Lieut. E. A. Macdonald, adjutant of the university Auxiliary Battalion, yesterday afternoon supervised the military drill of the Women's Service Training Detachment in the absence of the regular instructors, Sergeant West and Corporal Purser, D.C.M.

His two assistants, Mrs. Eley and Miss Forster, both of whom hold the rank of second lieutenant, will probably be in charge of the indoor drill, it was announced by Miss A. E. M. Parkes, Senior Lieutenant.

The troops continued to practice "marching," "about turning" and "right and left wheeling."

For the first time, the girls were instructed in the technique of forming platoons, and of marching as a battalion.

JEWELLRY DESIGNER TO SPEAK ON CRAFTS

Nancy Meek, creator of fine jewellery in a little shop in Toronto's Greenwich Village, will address students on the subject of "Arts and Crafts" in the second Wednesday noon-hour meeting of the women's S.C.M.

Jeanne Booth, Victoria College, chairman of the series "Creative Leisure," says, "College girls should find Nancy Meek very interesting in the discussion of her work and unusual experiences. She studied at the College of Art in Toronto and also spent a year in Paris. Perhaps some of the girls may know Nancy through her summer work as handicraft counsellor at a camp."

"It is hoped that this series of lectures will awaken women students to heretofore unrealized possibilities of creative leisure. Undergraduates have a tendency to concentrate too exclusively on either the social or academic aspects of college life, omitting the constructive value of recreation such as arts and crafts," she said.

FRANK BOGART TO PLAY FOR O.C.P. JUNIORS' DANCE

The annual dance of the junior class of the Ontario College of Pharmacy will be held Friday, Nov. 22 at the King Edward Hotel, members of the committee said yesterday.

The band committee announced that Frank Bogart and his orchestra will play for dancing. Dancing will be from 9-2 in the Alexandria Room of the hotel, it was learned.

They will Give Lead to Others, Declares Red Cross Executive, Dr. Cody Stresses Need of Morals

AT FIRST W.S.T.O. LECTURE

"University of Toronto women as pioneers in Training Detachment work will give the lead to other students all over the country," was the statement made by Mrs. H. P. Plumptre, National Commandant of the Canadian Red Cross Women's Voluntary Service Corps, addressing 200 university women at the inaugural lecture of the Women's Service Training Detachment, last night.

Among the guests at the meeting was Dr. H. J. Cody, president of the university, who addressed the women, stressing their importance in maintaining the morale upon which victory depends to a great extent. "In the University of Toronto it is necessary only to give the opportunity and a free and prompt response results," he concluded, referring to the large number of women who had volunteered and to the compulsory training at some of the other universities.

Mrs. Plumptre also said that while (Continued on Page 4)

U.B.C. Sweethearts Trained on Campus By Psychologists

By A. H. Backman
Staff Writer, The Ubyssy

Vancover, B.C., Nov. 4 (CUP) — Campus sweethearts, woo-pitchers, and sciencemen are at a premium as a result of the latest assignment of Dr. Morsch of the Department of Psychology. Telling his students of Abnormal Psychology to haunt obscure corners of the campus to analyze eccentrics and abnormal people, Dr. Morsch warned them to pay particular attention to people in love, jealous co-eds, and misanthropic engineers.

So for the next week "Lovers' Lane," former idyllic retreat of many, and all science labs will be infested with spies of the Department of Psychology who will analyze, record, and misconstrue normal actions of abnormal people.

V.C.F. WILL SPONSOR NOON HOUR MEETINGS

Professor F. W. Dillstone will open a series of noon-hour meetings for men in the music room in Hart House at 1.30 p.m. tomorrow. The series is sponsored by the Varsity Christian Fellowship.

Professor Dillstone, a graduate of Oxford, is a distinguished scholar and theologian.

A similar meeting for women will be held at the same hour in the Women's Union. Miss Catherine Nicoll, Toronto secretary of the Fellowship, will be the speaker.

"Students today are wondering whether or not Christianity furnishes any relevant answer to the problems of today," said Tom Barnett, V.C.F. president. "We of the Fellowship feel that belief in God, in the Bible, and in Jesus Christ is vitally necessary in these troubled times," he added, expressing the hope that the series might help some students find Christ to be the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

HOCKING TO DISCUSS CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE IN LECTURE SERIES

Harvard Philosopher Who Has Spoken at Glasgow, Oxford, and Cambridge, will Deliver Armstrong Lectures

WELL KNOWN AUTHOR

One of America's most distinguished philosophers, Professor William Ernest Hocking, M.A., Ph.D., D.D., LL.D., of Harvard University, will deliver the second series of Armstrong Lectures in Victoria College Chapel next Monday and Tuesday, November 11th and 12th, at 3 p.m.

Celebrated throughout the English-speaking world, Professor Hocking is one of the few American philosophers ever honoured by appointment as the Gifford Lecturer at Glasgow University. He was also the Hibbert Lecturer in the universities of Oxford and Cambridge in 1938. Before being called to Harvard in 1914 as successor to the late Professor Royce, Dr. Hocking spent many years on the staff of Yale University.

Newman Newsmen Plan Originalities For Entertainment

The editor and staff of the Newman Club's publication "The Newman Newsmen" will attempt to give students a wholly new and original entertainment. This evening in the club-house at 89 St. George it will be given its premiere.

The "Fire-side Frolic" will provide a galaxy of diversion, and refreshments of odd title; a Dagwood Supper and a barrel of sweet apple cider. The committee in charge regard the venture as a splendid means of combining a social evening with a financial drive to aid the club's bulletin over the hurdles of publishing cost. A large turnout of Newman members and friends is expected. Dancing will commence by glow of the fireplace in the Oak Room about 8.30 p.m.

Will Attend His Excellency on November 15, when He Receives Honorary Degree at Simcoe Hall

TICKETS FOR STUDENTS

A guard of honour drawn from the C.O.T.C. will attend His Excellency, the Governor-General when he receives the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at Convocation Hall Friday, November 15. The degree will be conferred at a special convocation, prior to which it is hoped that His Excellency will review the guard of honour in front of Simcoe Hall.

Princess Alice and members of the vice-regal suite will accompany His Excellency on his first official visit to the University of Toronto campus since taking office last February.

According to custom, it was announced that large numbers of seats on the ground floor and in the galleries will be reserved for undergraduates wishing to attend. Tickets may be obtained at the offices of the Students' Administrative Council. Further details will be announced later.

Reports Indicate Third Term For Roosevelt

When The Varsity went to press in the small hours of this morning, latest available results indicated that U.S. voters had in decisive fashion retained President Roosevelt for a third term in the White House, thereby shattering an unwritten but nevertheless powerful 150-year precedent.

At approximately 3 a.m. President Roosevelt was leading in 35 states with a total of 431 electoral votes, while the Republican nominee, Wendell L. Willkie, had a lead in eleven states comprising 87 electoral votes. Two states were yet unheard from at all, and this report was based on only a percentage of the complete vote. The President's margin in the popular vote was close to a million and a half, and observers were ready to concede him the victory at that hour.

ANDERSON ADVISES AGAINST VEGETATING

Professor F. H. Anderson of the philosophy department of University College, last night warned students not to vegetate. Professor Anderson spoke at the first forum of the S.C.M. at Victoria College.

Professor Anderson said that leaders representing the S.C.M. should not be too flamboyant or radical in order that their views might not reflect upon the whole group. He advocated that leaders should be in constant contact with the church universal as well as local churches.

Action should be stressed rather than talk, Professor Anderson said. Adults consider student organizations adolescent because of their unconventional forms of worship, he said. "Christianity is not a social thing but an individual thing," Professor Anderson said.

DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCES PHYSICS SEMINAR

Announcement of a physics seminar to be held tomorrow at the McLennan Laboratory, Room 43, was made by the Department of Physics yesterday.

The first paper, which will be given by Professor C. Barnes, will deal with "A New Treatment of Electric and Magnetic Induction."

Professor M. F. Crawford will discuss Radiofrequency Spectra of Atoms and the Rotation Magnetic Moments of H<sub>2</sub>, D<sub>2</sub>, and HD Molecules.

Papers will begin at 4.30 p.m. precisely.

Lynn Fontanne Will Make Awards At Red-White-and-Blue Ball

All tickets originally printed for the Red, White and Blue Ball which will be held at the Royal York Hotel Saturday have been sold, but more are being printed, it was announced by Joan Tamblin, one of the girls in charge of arrangements for the ball.

Prizes in the lucky draw will be presented by Lynn Fontanne, currently appearing in the production of "There Shall Be No Night" at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Miss Tamblin announced. The prizes will consist of Helena Rubenstein make-up kits and sets of military brushes. A Blackout Dance will also be featured.

Bob Shuttleworth and his orchestra will provide the music, and Sue Gaby and Edith Seixas will be the vocalists.

New Organization to Furnish Soldiers' Comforts, Especially for University Graduates and Students

COODY HONORARY PRESIDENT

Announcement was made today of a new war service organization which has been inaugurated on the campus. The committee, which goes under the name of Students' War Services, has as its primary object the furnishing of soldiers' comforts, with emphasis being placed initially on university students and graduates serving with the armed forces, according to Harold Takefman, III Meds, chairman of the committee.

President Cody has consented to act as honorary president of the organization, and will also be one of the administrators of its funds. Takefman revealed that a prominent member of the faculty would also serve in this capacity.

Cigarettes, good literature and sweets are among the articles which will be sent the troops, Takefman announced. Special emphasis is being laid on cigarettes, as these are hard to obtain abroad because of their high price.

In addition, Students' War Services will co-operate with the University Women's War Services in order to provide essentials for the clothing and housing of war refugees, the chairman revealed. It is also hoped that first aid supplies will be furnished through the co-operation of the Toronto Apothecaries Association, which has access to 500 drug stores in Toronto.

Other officers of the organization are E. A. Macdonald, treasurer, and Bill Sedgewick, assistant treasurer. Some of the members of the committee are Bill Orved, Meds, Bruce Davis, S.P.S., Charles Dubin, U.C., and Ted Gray, Vic.

"The support which we are receiving from faculty, students and industry has been so enthusiastic that the success of our project is assured," Takefman stated.

S.C.M. Will Hear Rev. Lyndon Smith

The Rev. Lyndon Smith, Dean of Trinity House, will address S.C.M. men in Hart House music room at 1.30 p.m. today, speaking on "The Significance of Jesus".

The Dean, who is also a lecturer in Religious Knowledge at Trinity and one of the clergy of St. Thomas' Church, is a well-known Rhodes scholar and a graduate of Trinity College.

This talk is the central one of the S.C.M.'s "Basic Convictions" series this term. John Coleman of the S.C.M., said, "The conception of Jesus in Christian thinking is the one unique thing about Christianity."

During the intermission Charles Wood-lawn-Tisdale will play the piano. A floor show will be provided by Jack Lenan and Norma Lowrie.

The large ballroom of the Royal York Hotel will be decorated red, white and blue, and corsages of the same colour-scheme will be worn by the eight girls who are promoting the dance. The guests will be given an opportunity to show their patriotism in the same manner as florists are offering combinations of red, white and blue flowers especially for the occasion, the committee announced.

The committee hopes to raise $1000 for war purposes as a result of the dance.

Decline of The Arts?

(Editor's note: Are the arts in a state of general decline? This question has often been asked and has been usually answered in the affirmative. We print below a submitted editorial which expresses the view that the arts have declined. There is another side to the issue, of course, the side which argues that perspective accounts for our belief that there has been a decline, and which points out that in their own times, perhaps the men we call great were not considered as such. We hope to present the other case within a few days, and we welcome all letters on the subject.)

When we look about the world today we cannot help but be struck by the fact that the arts are not practised and maintained on the same high plane that they were in former years. There seems to be a sterility of intellect and a preoccupation with inconsequential prevalent in the world in which we live. Though the art which has always been highest and foremost in British minds, that of literature, has not fallen so low as others, yet, we cannot point to great men-of-the-pen among our contemporaries of the stature of those who lived in the past.

From Shakespeare to Tennyson we have a long line of illustrious and immortal writers. Milton, Dryden and Pope, Addison, Gray and Johnson are read with pleasure and admiration by us but we produce nothing to compare with them. This is singularly strange when we consider the greatness of the XIXth Century, perhaps the greatest in English letters, and its closeness to us in time and thought. Have we a Scott, a Browning or a Dickens?

Poetry especially has suffered. For the high romance of Scott's narrative poems, the humour of Pope and the stately majesty of Milton modern poets have substituted morbidity, lunatic fancy and incomprehensible and senseless versifications. With reference to prose it seems sufficient to express wonder that the same language in which Hamlet is written could also contain "Finnegan's Wake".

The other arts have suffered even more. The great music masters of Germany, the painters of the Italian Renaissance have no followers today, no one to carry on their great traditions. At the risk of arousing well-worn controversies we venture to ask what Beethoven would have thought of "Twilight in Turkey" or how Raphael would appraise the works of Salvador Dali.

There must be some basic, underlying reason for this decline in the arts. We venture to suggest that it is the spirit of the times, the mental attitude of our era. We have sacrificed graciousness to greed and for the highest art, that to which the arts proper are only contributing factors, the art of living, we have substituted the art of making money. This can be well illustrated by pointing out that a half-century ago the Classics were considered the basis of secondary and college education; today they have all but disappeared from this campus and the most popular single study is the purely utilitarian one of engineering. Many a college course today is not an education, it is only a vocational school. The decline of family institutions, the general cynicism towards religion are important factors in this fundamental change in our lives. Men today must do everything in a hurry and everything must be done easily. Such an attitude is fatal to the arts. Michaelangelo is said to have spent 20 years painting the interior of the Sistine Chapel; such industry is unknown today.

The tragedy of our civilization is that it will not endure and will not be remembered because all its products are material and bridges and factories crumble and disappear in time. We do not remember Rome for the ruins of the Forum but because of the writings and traditions and laws that Rome left for us. The site of Troy, uncovered within the lifetime of our grandparents, is but a mass of rubble, meaningless to any but the archaeologist, but the Odyssey and the Iliad have been read and studied for centuries. What men think and what they write, if of worth is what is remembered through the ages; literature is indestructible. In the words of the late Clarence Day, "The world of books is the most remarkable creation of man. Nothing else that he builds ever lasts. Monuments fall; nations perish. Civilizations grow old and die out and after an era of darkness new races build others. But in the world of books are volumes that have seen this happen again and again and yet live on, still young, still as fresh as the day they were written, still telling men's hearts of the hearts of men centuries dead."

If we produce only material structures our memory will fall with them.

Crisis Conscious

When this war is finished a serious task of reconstruction faces the world. That goes without saying. But there is another form of reconstruction which is going to be equally necessary, and which is not often mentioned. That is the adjustment which must come in the human temperament when it moves from a war environment to one of peace.

For years now, as long as many of us can remember, the world has been living on a series of crises of varying magnitude. At first, perhaps a decade ago, they were few and far between, but they increased steadily in frequency until in the year before the outbreak of war there had been developed within us an insatiable appetite for crises. It may sound rather silly, but nevertheless it remains true. People began to look for crises, to welcome them even, not for their intellectual content but rather because they provided a thrill and made them feel as though they were perhaps players on the great world stage. The first thrills were thin; new ones had to take their place; and following the natural order of things, crises became almost a necessity of life. If there was no crisis to flash in the headlines, one was manufactured. Scare headlines became commonplace, and a crisis temperament had been developed.

We sometimes wonder whether, if this old globe ever returns to a status of sleeping peace, we will be able to readjust ourselves to that new condition. Will the peoples of the world be able to forget their hysteria and revert to the more peaceful and leisurely way of life that was known on earth not so long ago? If they find themselves unable to do this, we fear greatly for future peace. The world will go on from crisis to crisis and from war to war, until there is nothing left and the Day of Judgment has arrived. (Or are we being pessimistic?)

ART MUSIC

Templeton

A crowd of Alec Templeton fans gathered in Massey Hall to worship their idol. This reviewer was one of them. Alec gave us a great show, from Lully to Prokofiev, and then proceeded to show off his special talents for satire and improvisation. The audience was scarcely still when Mr. Templeton was serious and was even kinder than necessary when he got down to his own level.

Alec Templeton can scarcely be judged with fairness in conjunction with other great pianists. He has surmounted a terrible handicap which would have appalled anyone but a real genius. His arrangements of Bach and Lully carry to a remarkable degree a feeling of tone-colours, something which is often lacking in piano arrangements. The Mozart Sonata in B Flat Major was executed with extreme delicacy. Through the many satirical imitations which he has made of famous composers, Mr. Templeton has gained an insight into their style which few other executants possess. Prokofiev and Vaughn Williams were the best of the modern numbers.

I am an ardent Templeton fan; nevertheless, I do not like Grieg's in the Groove nearly as well as earlier satires—Bach Goes to Town had an authenticity and an appeal to one's intellect which later follow-ups have lacked. If I did not know the first successes, they would be much better. It was too bad that the theme given to Alec was so easy to improvise upon; it was all in the one key. With something more difficult to stimulate him, the results might have been much more stirring.

I was more than slightly disappointed that the

Slaughter In the Side Pocket

(REMEMBER THIS ONE? Why of course you do. We left Fotheringham and Marlborough-Beach hot on the trail of a slayer of seven, who used a salmon sandwich to polish off a half-dozen Schoolmen and a venerable Aerial Navigation student. The bodies had been stuffed into the side-pockets of Table Number Four in the Billiard Room. Trailing the culprit back to the scene of the crime, our two sleuths find him stalking another tableful of unsuspecting Schoolmen, armed with his usual lethal weapon. Now read on.)

"Come on," I cried, and we rapidly neared the scene of impending tragedy. As we reached the table, suddenly there was a scuffle and one of the S.P.S. men fell at our feet, his face horribly contorted. As Marlborough-Beach knelt beside him, I whirled and was barely in time to strike down the deadly weapon as it was poised for a blow at a second engineer.

"Not so fast," I cried, "do you realize that you are in the process of wiping out one of the leading contenders in the T. A. Reed Trophy race?" The criminal looked at me, his face livid with rage. His lips moved, but no words came.

"Hold him for trial, men," I snapped to a couple of the onlookers who didn't seem to be doing very well in the snooker game anyway. I then turned my gaze to the supine Engineer.

"He's dying," gasped Marlborough-Beach, reverently removing his mortar board, "send for a Wycliffe man!" "Don't be a fool, man," I barked, "quick, give him a swallow from your flask of double malted."

"I just emptied it," said Marlborough-Beach glumly, "these scenes of violence distress me."

I reached for my own flask. Good Gad! It too was drained to the last drop. "Is there a flask in the house?" I shouted desperately.

Immediately a dozen willing flasks were proffered. Thankfully draining the nearest myself, I seized another and inserted it between the already indigo lips of the scarcely breathing Schoolman.

After a scant swallow, he leapt to his feet.

"Whee," he shouted. "I almost forgot that I have an appointment to run in the Junior Harrier!"

He won.

"Why did you do it?" I cross-questioned the criminal, as we waited for the car from headquarters.

"I'd do it again if I had the chance," he snarled. "It's positively indecent that these disgusting Engineers should go about bragging of their ability to gorge themselves on FORTY DOUBLE MALTEDS."

At the same time he started handing out pamphlets to all those present.

Marlborough-Beach looked at him; the pamphlet looked at him. "Good Gad," he cried, "the man's a temperance addict."

We shrank away from him in horror as the whine of the siren heralded the approach of the mighty and never-failing arm of the Law.

evening had to end with the penultimate Redwoods, played in a rosy gloom and a very noble sentiment on Friendship, with piano accompaniment.

Canadian Plays

The Canadian Drama League, under the direction of Brownlow Card, presented a series of three Canadian one-act plays last night in Hart House Theatre. Recovering from the bad impression of a poor curtain-raiser, the evening rose to an excellent apex with the presentation of Raymond Card's General Wolfe, and tapered off nicely with an unoriginal but amusing do-metre comedy.

General Wolfe is a splendid bit of playwrighting. Constantly avoiding the pitfall of excessive flag-waving, and contriving to move through the last half of the play without the presence on the stage of the protagonist, it surmounted story difficulties admirably. Beautifully acted by Richard Spohr in the title-role, and Raymond Card as the servant, Francis, some of the passages were genuinely moving; this is high praise for an amateur production. John Houston, as General Townshead and Edward Roberts as Major Barre, gave excellent support, as did Stanley Raven as one of the sailors on the Sutherland. W. R. Patterson as the Town-Mayor of Quebec was inclined to overact his part in places, although this served in some measure to contrast the two races warring over possession of the Canada.

The play is not particularly realistic, but did not seem to be intended as realism. It is a costume piece, a leaf from a well-written history, and, of its type, very nearly perfect. The one fault we might find was a tendency to drag a little just before the curtain.

Call Me a Refugee by James Radcliffe, final play of the three, was a reasonably amusing comedy, in which innumerable refugee relatives descend upon a newly-married couple, and proceed to disrupt domestic tranquility. Stock characters are employed in stock situations, but the well-timed punning of some very funny lines lifted the play from mediocrity to good comedy.

Frances Purdy as the wife, and Norman Green as the husband, were both amusing. They played well together, drawing all the humour that was available from the often hackneyed situation. Kathleen McVicar, as the brisk young English girl, and Theresa Chapman, as the dynamic-minded aunt, were good in support, and Teresa Lambert gave a telling little impression of the typical Canadian maid standing on her rights.

Of Our Own Free Will, also by James Radcliffe, the less said the better. It started with a social message of some sort or other, and ended with real burglars and bogus burglars crawling around under tables. A special word of praise, however, for Byron Westlake, who filled in for Robert White, suddenly taken ill, at very short notice. Working against the handicap of carrying a script, Westlake performed nobly.

The League's "Canadian Evening" runs in Hart House again tonight. It is worth seeing, for the altogether admirable General Wolfe.

Organ Recital

Dr. Healey Willan gave the first of this season's series of organ recitals yesterday in Convocation Hall. To those who are in the habit of attending these concerts, little need be said, to others — go sometime; you will enjoy it!

The program consisted of works written since the time of Beethoven. A Fantasia and Fugue in E Minor by Edward Silas provided a brilliant and fitting opening. Two quiet Chopin Preludes by Hubert Parry followed, and the audience was so moved by the first

MEDS DEFEAT DENTS
IN 2-0 SOCCER GAME

A 1-0 half-time lead was lengthened to a more impressive 2-0 shutout yesterday afternoon when Meds Jarred Dents in an intramural soccer struggle. It was all the more impressive in that both goals were scored by the same Meds forward.

Meds: Ford, Dowe, Boyd, Wilford, Lambert, Robertson, Robinson, Baird, Townsend, Clark, Rundle, Best, and Senour.

Dents: Feasley, Schualm, Grainger, Scott, Clee, Johns, Chapman, Mason, Antoni, Biglow, Elliott, Merritt, Kennedy, Moore.

TRINITY TEAM ROUTS KNOX IN TWO VOLLEYBALL GAMES

The vicious spiking of Trinity's B volleyball team drove Knox C's to cover in two straight games yesterday afternoon in the upper gym of Hart House.

Trinity B: Goodman, Delaney, Ainsbury, Lowe, and Boddy.

Knox C: Self, Thompson, Gilles, Swallow, Creaser and Hamilton.

that despite the long pause between the two, there was no applause. This was a high tribute to the superb rendition of the work.

The magnificent Seventh Sonata of Rheinberger, a Rhapsody by Howells, and Wesley's Choral Song and Fugue completed the program. Surely no organist plays these more beautifully than Dr. Willan. There were no less than three complicated fugues during the hour, all played with the utmost facility and perfect insight.

It was gratifying to note that the audience was a good deal larger than at last year's recitals.

Speaking OF SPORT

By Owen Prichard

(We are pleased to publish the following article by Varsity's Jujitsu coach, Rev. J. F. Shimidzu. Mr. Shimidzu, at present a student at Trinity College, has been introduced before in this column. Jujitsu has been a feature of "Mac" McCutcheon's intramural program for the last few years, and its growing popularity is due to the efforts of Mr. Shimidzu and his clerical brethren who preceded him as coaches, Mr. Matsumoto and Mr. Kurose.—Sports Editor.)

JUJITSU

By Rev. J. F. Shimidzu

Let me now explain about Judo and Jujitsu. We have two large schools for studying the way in Japan. One is Kodokwan in Tokyo, the other is Budobuten in Kyoto (we can say this school is a branch of Kodokwan). There are thousands of branches of Kodokwan in all the districts of Japan as well as in Vancouver and the western part of the U.S.A., New York, London, Paris and Egypt.

Kodokwan means literally "a school for studying the way"; "the way" being the concept of life itself. Judo and Jujitsu are composed of two words, ju, meaning gentle or "to give way," itsu "art" or "practice" and do, "way" or "principle." Thus Judo means the way or gentleness or of first giving way in order to ultimately gain victory, while jujitsu means the art and practice of Judo.

It is said that the definition of Judo is "to die for the nation." But as I am a priest in Japan, for me Judo means "to die for God", that is to die for all mankind; as our Lord said, "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

What then does this gentleness or giving way mean? To answer this question let us suppose that we estimate the strength of a man in units of one. Let us say that the strength of a man standing in front of me is represented by ten units, whereas my strength, less than his, is represented by seven units. Now if he pushes me with all his force I shall certainly be pushed back or thrown down, even if I use all my strength against his. This would happen because I used all my strength against him, opposing strength with strength. But if, instead of opposing him I were to give way to his strength by withdrawing my body just as much as he had pushed, taking care at the same time to keep my balance, then he would naturally lean forward and lose his balance. In this new position, he may be so weak (not in actual physical strength but because of his awkward position) as to have his strength represented for the moment by only three units, instead of his normal ten units. But meanwhile, by keeping my balance, I retain my full strength, as originally represented by seven units. Here then I am momentarily in a superior position, and can defeat my opponent by using only half my strength, that is, half of my seven units, or three and one half against his three; this leaves one half of my strength available for any purpose.

Now, if I had greater strength than my opponent I could, of course, push him back. But even if I wished to push him back and had the power to do so, it would still be better for me first to give way, because by so doing I should have greatly economized my energy and exhausted that of my opponent.

This is one simple instance of how, by giving way, a contestant may defeat his opponent. As there are so many such instances "Jujitsu" (that is the "gentle" or "giving way" art) became the name of the whole art.

Judo was, in olden days, a composite exercise consisting of many ways of attack such as throwing, hitting, kicking, stabbing, slashing, choking, holding the opponent down, bending or twisting the opponent's arms or legs in such a way as to cause pain or even fracture, as well as a great variety of ways of defending oneself against these attacks. Such an exercise has existed in Japan from ancient times, but it was only some three hundred and fifty years ago that it came to be taught as a system.

During the Tokugawa Period (1613-1867) it developed into an elaborate art, and was taught by quite a number of masters representing the different schools. As an example the president of Kodokwan, the late Dr. Kano (he had the 10th grade) was the principal of the Tokyo Higher Normal College, and had learned this art from many eminent masters, and systemized them and established the foundation of Kodokwan in Tokyo.

About 80 years ago, the masters were professional and among them there were uneducated masters who did wrong deeds. So Dr. Kano was sorry to see that and thought Jujitsu masters should be educated by the higher education and the arts. So in Japan, most of the famous judo masters are educated gentlemen.

If we want to be good judo-men we should be diligent, not only in practicing judo but also in increasing our general knowledge. The art has very far-reaching effects in Japan. They practise at college, high schools and elementary schools and now even girls and women practise it, so that they too may have a knowledge of the protective value of the art.

TRIVIA

Jr. Meds footballers looked right purty in their new sweaters as they over-ran Dents 11-2 yesterday. . . . Incidentally, Owen Gray was going great for the Medics. . . . This is the first championship to go to the Teachers since the inauguration of the present intramural system.

VIC SOCCER CHAMPS
TIED BY S.P.S. TEAM

Last year's soccer champs from Victoria were held to a 1-1 tie by a scrappy S.P.S. outfit on the back campus yesterday afternoon. Both goals were scored in the opening half.

S.P.S.: H. Seymour, B. Seymour, McKenzie, Frost, Martin, Dandreaux, Cronyn, Franks, Hibbard, Wilson, Smart and McPheeters.

Vic: Hoffman, Stone, Powell, McKenzie, McLeod, Paton, Hurst, Bryce, Cumming and Johnstone.

The Junior S.P.S. lacrosse team out-clashed Pharmacy A by a 14-11 score in the big gym yesterday.

Kellam of School and Jin Jeffers of the Druggists were easily the stars of the encounter, their scoring duly giving them five goals apiece. Lawerence and Currie were also important factors in the engineers' triumph. Boyes, Lee and Jardine shared the Pharmacy scoring honours, with 3, 2, and one tallies each.

Jr. S.P.s: Copper, Currie (3), Rankin (1), Lawerence (4), Winn (1), Gorman, Penrice, Kent, Crosby, Kellam (3).

Pharmacy A: Harkness, Boyes (3), Jardine (1), Lee (2), Thompson, Hall, Jones, Quirk, Jeffers (5).

ALCOMBRACK CHIEF SCORER

University College decisively defeated a hard-fighting Meds lacrosse squad by a 10-6 margin in the big gym yesterday.

The Men in White were doing a fair job of holding the Artsmen in check until the final stanza, but the unrelenting drive of the Royal Collegians kept them in front until the final whistle.

Meds jumped into an early lead with a pair of goals in the first stanza to U.C.'s single corner. The Red and White pulled up with the Doctors by the half, outscoring them 3-2 in the second period. In the third frame Meds added another brace of tallies, and the Artsmen forged ahead with a trio of tallies, making the count 7-6. While holding Meds scoreless in the final frame Francis counted once and Gibson added another pair to send U.C. out in front at 10-6.

Alcombrack was the chief sniper for the Artsmen, scoring three goals, while Francis and Gibson had a pair apiece.

For the Medics, Brutus and Leech were outstanding.

Meds: Lampert, Carter (1), Leech (2), Aitken, Guld, Gully, Mudart, Wagman, Quinlan (1), Brutus (2).

U.C.: Sheppard, Alcombrack (3), Gibson (2), McDiarmid (1), McCulloch, Boyce, Ledingham (1), Francis (2), McNulty, Campbell (1).

By Marg. Fowles

Today being Wednesday, we dedicate our column to the interests of inter-faculty sport—the game, the people in the game and the foreseen souls behind the game, the ones who do all the worrying.

We dedicate it to these people, and we tell our troubles to you, individuals among that vast number of students who attend this university, but who have never taken the trouble to show your beaming faces around a sports-centre, nor allowed one squawk to raise its timid self in cheer for a pal, or a group of pals endeavouring to give the best they have to give, for the glory of the college to which you so proudly belong.

There's the game—it can be anything. Rugby, basketball, hockey, tennis, badminton—anything, and any one of these well worth watching no matter who plays if it's good—and it is! There are the people in the game. They're kids you and I know, and they're playing for you. They're practised in out of the way places, at out of the way times and are as enthusiastic as blazes to pull a win for the "dear old college" if they can, but anyway to play the game for the game. They play as representatives of your college and they play with all they've got. There are the people behind the game. These are the greatest scouts we know—the ones we can't do without. They draw up the schedules; they talk up the game; they are information bureaus for player and spectator and they try to work up college spirit and enthusiasm for the game, the player and the college.

Do you ever stop and think about all these factors? That that game you have just happened to read about, in a glance-over fashion, has all that behind it, and that to these people that game means gods. What do you think it's like to play out there, to work up all these games, when those for whom you do it can't even be bothered to come and cheer, to cheer, to cheer! You lazy ingrates, what do you do? Are you so interested in yourselves that you can't help these kids with just your enthusiasm?—that's all they ask!

Boys—I know you aren't there, but maybe my reader will tell you for me —you are completely, wholly, absolutely

Dentists Win 2 Points in First Quarter, Hold Lead During Third. Beaten in Last Quarter When Meds Score 11

PASS MAKES 40 YARDS

With a burst of power in the final quarter, Junior Meds rugbyists rolled over a slow-moving Dents outfit to gain an 11-2 victory at the Stadium yesterday.

This win gave the Medics undisputed possession of top place in their group, with four points in the standing against three for Dents and one for Forestry.

The Dentists scored the first two points in the second quarter. A Meds fumble put the Molarmen in position. Havton's placement went wide of the mark, and the Meds receiver was grounded for a rouge.

Another single off a punt by Bill Hamby made the count 2-0 for Dents at the half.

During the third frame play went back and forth, with neither team producing any scoring plays, and Dents still hanging onto their lead.

The Doctors came to life in the final quarter when Owen Gray and Gord Beattie combined on a pass emanating from a fake end run. This bit of razzle-dazzle was good for 40 yards, and put the Men in White in possession on the Dents 4-yard line. After three fruitless attempts to crash the Dents defence, Gray skirted the end and crossed the line for a touch.

From that time Meds tried hard to squeeze the ball and concentrated on cutting through the centre on plunges. Another break came their way when Dents bobbled a Meds punt on their own 50. This gave the oval to Meds once more, in the enemy territory. Bill Arnp sneaked through a hole in the short right end and shook clear for a gain of 25 yards.

Successful forward passes brought the play to the Meds 3-yard line. After successive passes had been grounded in futile touchdown tries, Arnp once more tried a quarterback sneak. Failing to find a hole in the centre, Arnp went wide around the left end to score a major.

In the convert attempt, Gord Beattie took a pass over left end to make it Meds 11, Dents 2 at one minute to play.

Junior Meds: Armp, Bean, King, Seigel, Giardine, Beattie, Arthurs, Campbell, Sterloff, Collings, Brown, Elia, Koury, Kuchera, Ludwig, Gray, Waters, Bryans.

Dents: Millen, Hutchison, Woods, Francis, Beattie, Green, Parrott, Hamenick, Hamby, Ferguson, Costald, Hawdon, Corcoran, McKee, Butler, Webster.

and joyfully welcome to come up to the O.C.E. gym to watch the girls tossing the baskets in with the greatest of ease. Come to any—every game. There are benches to sit on, or walls to hold up, both, and if you know someone on a team you might be able to secure 1-8th of an orange at half-time—not promises, but may be! All games are played at O.C.E., which is the west wing of U.T.S. The door is on the street, on Bloor Street, nearest the west side of U.T.S.—you can't miss. Once you're in it's simple—down the steps, turn right to end of corridor, left and up the stairs and through door straight ahead. There, good basketball, cute kids and oranges. Girls, the boys have pleaded for our presence at their games in no uncertain terms. Anyone loves to feel that there is someone near, cheering them on to victory and the boys are just the same as anyone. Their games are played usually at the Stadium — good seats, and better games, real thrillers, honest! Or else they are on your college campus — easy enough. Let's show some spirit, and give our cheers where they're really deserved!

DENTS S.C.M.

John Coleman will meet his Dental study group this evening at 5 o'clock in the S.C.M. library, Hart House. New members welcome.

AUXILIARY BATTALION

U. of T. Contingent,
C.O.T.C.
Orders
by Major W. S. Wilson, E.D.

Acting Officer Commanding.
Part I.

4 November, 1940.

(30) Discipline.

The attention of all ranks is drawn to the following Resolution passed by the Board of Governors.

WHEREAS on September 12th, 1940 it was ordered by the Board of Governors on the recommendation of the President and WHEREAS certain problems have arisen regarding the disciplining of students who are enrolled or who are required to enrol for compulsory military training and who may be absent from parade without proper cause, or who may be insubordinate or inattentive while on parade, or whose conduct may in any way be unsatisfactory to the officers in charge of compulsory military training;

That all physically fit male undergraduates who are 18 years of age and over at the time of registration in the University be required to take military training;

and WHEREAS section 88 of the University Act authorizes the Board of Governors to abrogate or change the provisions of sections 84 to 87 of the said act respecting discipline;

By the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto

BE IT RESOLVED

I. That a Code of Discipline be and the same hereby is established for the duration of the war or for such period as the Board of Governors may subsequently determine;

II. That the said Code consist of three persons to be named by the President, one of whom shall be named as Chairman of the Court;

III. That the powers and duties of the said Court be—

1. To consider and deal with such charges of violation of the regulation of the Board of Governors respecting compulsory military training, or of infringement of discipline, as may be referred to it by the officers commanding the Canadian Officers Training Corps

2. To require to appear at times and places to be determined by the Court, all students so charged together with any witnesses named by the said officers commanding or by the students so charged.

3. To investigate the said charges, and to arrive at and publish a verdict regarding each and every such charge.

4. To pronounce a sentence in each case where the student is found guilty of the charge or charges made against him.

IV. That the said Court have the power to impose fines not in excess of those prescribed in the Militia Act, and to recommend to the President the suspension or expulsion of any student who is found guilty.

V. That sections 84 to 87 of the University Act respecting discipline be and the same hereby are abrogated or changed only in so far as may be necessary to provide for the establishment and operation of the said Court of Discipline.

(31) Absence From Parade.

1. All ranks are reminded that the arrangement whereby they are enabled to take their military training while pursuing their academic course, instead of interrupting that course by a month at a training centre, is an accommodation and a privilege; and it is expected that all ranks will remember that this privilege must not be abused.

2. Any man enrolled in the Auxiliary Battalion will be deemed "absent from parade without proper cause" who fails to answer to his name at roll-call—

(a) Unless he has previously obtained from his company or platoon commander permission to absent himself from parade;

(b) Unless he presents a medical certificate or other satisfactory evidence of illness; to the orderly room, Hart House;

(c) Unless he is detained by attendance at university lectures or in laboratories and clinics. (This will cover conflicts between academic time-tables and the time-table for military drill.)

3. No credit can be given for parades missed, even for good and proper reasons, save in the case of prolonged illness, and in the case of time spent

HOCKING TO SPEAK IN LECTURE SERIES

Western Civilization, especially its influence on legal institutions, on science, and on conceptions of the personal code, will be the subject of the Toronto addresses by the noted philosopher who in addition to being a student of religious philosophy and political theory is widely known for his books, particularly "The Meaning of God in Human Experience" and "Human Nature and Its Re-making."

The lecture which brings Professor Hocking to Toronto was founded in 1938 by a bequest to Victoria College from the late George H. Armstrong, a former inspector of Toronto public schools.

The lectures are open to all members of the staff, graduates, undergraduates and to the general public. The first series, given by Professor A. J. B. Wae of Cambridge University, attracted very large crowds and Victoria College officials express belief that the attendance this year will be even greater.

BULLETIN BOARD

The Women's Interfaculty Debating Union is holding its first debate this afternoon in the Women's Union. The topic of the debate is "Resolved that women are more dishonest than men." Tea will be served at 4 o'clock and the meeting will begin at 4.30.

FIRST LECTURE GIVEN TO W.S.T.D. WORKERS

There is no guarantee that the government will call women up she strongly believed that the time was not far off when their services would be needed. She emphasized the importance of trained voluntary workers in emergencies in peace time as well as in war.

From the ranks of these trained students will come the many captains and leaders in the new democracy, she concluded.

Other guests included leading officials of the Red Cross. Present were Dr. F. W. Routley, National Commissioner of the Red Cross; Mrs. C. Errington Christie, National Commandant of Office Administration; Miss Helen Gurney, Commandant of Transport; and Mr. N. S. Caudwell, president of the Toronto Branch of the Red Cross.

Miss A. E. M. Parkes, Senior Lieutenant of the Detachment and chairman of the meeting, described the value of the widespread representation in the corps in which there are girls from all over Canada and one or two from the United States.

S.A.C. Assists Students Finds Jobs, Makes Loans

without a cent and proceed to a degree by taking advantage of the loan fund and employment bureau.

The S.A.C. also sponsors a system whereby houses are rigidly inspected to determine their fitness as rooming houses for students. These houses are occupied by those who did not get into a university residence and also those that could not afford one, for many of the houses are run on the co-operative basis. Each year hundreds are inspected and the choice is so excellent that parents on seeing the houses turn the rest over to the council with a feeling that their son (or daughter) is in capable hands.

The Council also sponsors various trips for the students. Last year the ski trips to the Limberlost Lodge were a great success and are likely to be continued again this year. The S.A.C. also, in peace time, sent the band and cheerleaders to the rugby games that were played away. The music and the uniforms were also supplied by the Council. Now that the band is used mainly for the C.O.T.C. the Council will carry on the tradition of giving them a dinner once each week after a practice. The symphony orchestra also benefits from the Council. They too receive their music from the S.A.C. and are sent to Guelph, the Ontario Agricultural College, to give a concert. They are directed by Mr. Donald Ryerson, a recent graduate, and end their season with a concert, open to faculty and students, in Convocation Hall.

The graduate reception and garden parties, are all the work and done at the cost of the Students' Administrative Council.

This Council is formed of the presidents or heads of the men's and women's student government organizations and two faculty advisers. The faculty advisers are appointed by President Cody. The president of the council is a graduate and he, too, is elected by the S.A.C. This offers a true democracy and impartial judgment in all matters, Mr. Macdonald said.

U.C. PLAYERS' GUILD

John Holden will hold an informal discussion with members in the theatre of the Women's Union at 4 p.m.

U.C. FOLLIES

Rehearsal today in Hart House rehearsal hall. Folly 2 at 2 p.m. and Folly 3 at 3 p.m.

Rehearsal of the men's choir for the Follies tonight, Women's Union theatre at 7.30.

Wide-Eyed in Gotham

By Reuben Frank
(A Canadian University Press Feature)

THROUGH THE STOMACH

New York — The man of modern means must mortgage his immortal soul to afford a good meal in this town, yet people here are the eatinest there am. From sunrise to sunset they eat, or they drink, or they contemplate their next masticatory session. It would surprise me not in the least to learn that natural selection has bred a New Yorker with a stomach that is deep, wide and galvanized, like a garbage can.

There are restaurants at every price range; there are several chains of cafeterias each with several hundred branches; and there are several hundred independent cafeterias; there are chains of stand-up-and-guzzle-it stands; there are White Tower "hamburger joints"; there are low-priced "food shops" which serve no bread but crumpets which are known as English muffins; there are innumerable Chinese restaurants specializing in chow mein, chop suey and Ballantine's Beer; there are stands which vend exotic drinks extracted from tropical fruits; there are kosher delicatessens and resturantal adjuncts to grocery stores and bakeries; and, surprisingly enough, there are still people who eat at home.

New York's millions are all gourmands, but there is not a gourmet in the lot. Food is high, and pulp is but slightly lower, but the restaurant which serves food is giving way to the cafeteria where mass production methods have been applied to semi-nourishing pulp, and there is no waitress to tip. These bakelite-lined emporia can be found three, four and five in a row, and all of them busy enough to demand a ten-cent minimum.

And then, of course, there is the Automat. You present a dollar at the wicket and the gum-and-chewing female behind the grill shoves a crimson-tipped paw into a mess of nickels. She regards them not, she counts them not, but when she strews them in front of you like so much sand, there are invariably twenty. These are instantly and continually fed into slots and the resultant turn of the crank disgorges a piece of pie, a slice of bread, a glass of milk, a cup of coffee (with just so much cream), a side-order of vegetables . . . anything you desire.

The Automat is cool, spotless and completely free of smoke. It seems that Messrs. Horn and Hardart, founders of the chain, whose names are still emblazoned above the word "Automat" were Dutchmen. Dutchmen, besides being scrupulously clean, would never smoke in the house. This accounts for the evolution of those long Dutch pipes which were used to sit in the house and smoke out the window. Therefore, the will of Mr. Horn (or was it Mr. Hardart who died last?) stipulated that no one shall smoke in an Automat from then until the end of time.

So far, no one has.

Food is inordinately expensive, but people do not eat food. They subsist on cafeteria fibre (clean but tasteless), carbonated belly-wash and hot dogs which are delightfully reminiscent of The Jungle, by Upton Sinclair. There are several places where the hot dog is served for five cents, but a mug of root beer is thrown in free. The root beer isn't bad, tasting merely like soap, but the hot dog is obviously old, and well-preserved, for you can still taste the formaldehyde.

There is a new wrinkle in hot dogger around Times Square. The afore-said meat (sic) is immersed in a batter and subjected to very high temperature. The batter being allegedly egg and stuff tries to live up to the claims made for it, and puffs and rises and becomes a roll enveloping the hot dog. It is a fascinating operation and thousands of people stand outside the window to watch it. When we went inside, we were greeted with the shout, "One frank coming up!" making us feel self-conscious at being thus heralded.

What is the basic issue agitating the mind of Americans today? Is it, "Now that the elections are over, what?" Is it, "What of the war in Europe, and how will the draft affect me?" Is it even, "Where will sex end?" No, it is none of these. The basic issue agitating the minds of Americans today is Coca Cola versus Pepsi Cola.

I have seen two men, each absorbing his own favourite, come nearly to blows at a refreshment stand. One contended that these people have a good thing which they have worked on and developed, and along come these other folks with their Loft candy-memo and copy it. Why, it's like stealing. . . . The other exploded slightly on the third gulp and said that it was high time the cola beverages were opened to the good old free competition which made this country what it is today. Monopoly cannot be allowed in this vital industry, and these people proved you could sell twelve ounces for five cents, while the others are trying to foist six on the public.

And further on down Seventh Avenue, it's "I" was talking to a Coca Cola driver the other day and he says this new competition is making them lose money every day. . . . "Loft is merging with Pepsi Cola, but Loft held eighty per cent of their stock anyway. . . . This from a woman who doesn't know stock from feed. And a political insider speculates on the significance of Jim Farley working for "Coke" and whether he will put out as many different brands as he did stamps.

But modern merchandising really comes to its peak in packaged foods. Through years of invidious and insidious propaganda, the food manufacturers have blinded the consumer to taste, nourishment and the other little things we commonly associate with a good meal. Has it Vitamins A, B, D and X-squared? Is it vitalized? Is it nutra-squared? Is it shot from (1) guns, (2) cannon, (3) ninety-nine millimeter howitzers? And above all, is it juicy?

Besides the ordinary orange, grapefruit and pineapple and up-and-coming apple, the prune, the raisin, the carrot, the string-bean, the onion, and the humble turnip have been subjected to juicing. Hundreds and thousands and millions of cans pass over department store counters daily as housewives institute a campaign of "Drink it!" "It's clean!" it's just chock-full of vitamins! It's slenderizing! It's fattening! It comes to you without contact of human hand!"

Do you like sea food? Here, just a whistle from Herald Square is Pat's Clam Bar. Every fat woman in town is here wrestling with a plateful of oysters which, we are told, "R" in season. Every bearded Frenchman from miles around is dribbling seaweed. Noise, crowd, smoke, people, people, people, dirt, bedlam, lobsters. . . . The waiter asks "What's the dame want?" and drops a spoon into the filthy sawdust that covers the floor. He picks it up, and wipes it on his dirty apron. The young man raises an objection. The waiter is deeply hurt: "Who the — do you think you are?" Objection overruled.

For diversion in the evening, people go to a night club and eat. . . .

he wants to help the workers, but does not know how.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Churchill is more popular in Russia than any other foreign leader and all his moves are reported to Stalin in detail, said Mr. Skeey.

Asked, in the open discussion which followed, about the possibility of Stalin's downfall, Dr. Skeey assured the audience that there was absolutely no chance for any group in Russia to overthrow the present regime.

Latest reports on the American election were announced during the meeting. Refreshments and dancing followed the adjournment and Bob Phillips, the social director, announced that the club's annual Christmas party would be held on December 17.

Vic Women Take Verdict From U.C.

But University College Debaters Win House Vote by 31-17 Margin; Held in Women's Union

FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

"Resolved that women are more dishonest than men" was the motion set before the Women's Interfaculty Debating Union yesterday afternoon. The decision of the judges was in favour of the negative, upheld by Victoria College, while the house voted 31-17 to support the affirmative side, taken by the U.C. debaters.

The meeting, the first in the year for this organization, took place in the Women's Union. After the debate, the house was open for members to speak on either side of the motion.

Marnie Marriott and Mary Macneil, representing University College, argued that women were more dishonest than men in their dealings with the opposite sex, in malignant gossip about other women, in the attitude towards their country, and in their social relations. Women's dishonesty was natural, they said; women were even dishonest towards themselves.

"In getting her man, a woman is false from her foundation garment to the make-up on her face," said Miss Marriott. Miss Macneil, mentioning (Continued on Page 4)

V.C.F. Speaker Talks on Confucius

Women must hold the lowliest position in the house and must obey husbands and parents, according to the teachings of Confucius. This startling fact was revealed Tuesday at the Varsity Christian Fellowship group which met to discuss the question "What has Christianity to offer that other religions have not?" The group is under the direction of Miss Catherine Nicoll.

The reverence for ancestors which is practised in Confucianism is partly responsible for the backwardness in China up until the past ten or fifteen years, it was stated. Confucians offer sacrifices to their ancestors and are constantly paying homage to them. They look always backwards into the past instead of forward to the future.

The Buddhist religion was also discussed, and its ethics are, next to Christian ones, the greatest in the world, it was decided. A Buddhist tries to be oblivious to all evil things around him, but if he succumbs to these evils, there will be no relief with death, as he will be reborn and will inherit the result of his bad deeds.

Grim Shadow of Sadie Hawkins Looms Across Path of Hapless Males

C.U.P. Feature

War or no war, Sadie Hawkins has not been driven from the Canadian campuses this year, although it appears that the beautiful Dogpatch Damsel will not be visiting as many universities as she has in the past.

According to C.U.P. dispatches from the University of Alberta, the belle Hawkins practically took over the campus, lock, stock and professors last week-end when the official Sadie Hawkins Week was celebrated, October 28 to November 2. Organization of a Sadie Hawkins Publicity Committee helped put the affair across.

On Halloween night the foremost function, the Dogpatch Day, was held with the price of admission being gauged according to the size of the man's waist line. The official rate was

N. J. Endicott to Lecture On William Faulkner In American Writers Series

University Chess Contests Start This Month

The Chess Club, an organization of more than twenty years' standing opens the term with a tournament among the members beginning on or about November 12. The Chess Club this year numbers sixteen members.

In past years the club has engaged in contests with various colleges and has a cup as proof of its prowess. Club officials hope that the club may participate in more contests of this kind in future.

An annual contest held between the stars of the club and those of the staff takes place in February.

A nominal fee for entrance is charged. Those interested in chess are asked to join early to qualify for the contest next week.

"Barretts" Read By Vic Players

Two readings from the "Barretts of Wimpole Street" were presented at the monthly meeting of the Victoria Dramatic Club held last night at Wynilwood. The cast of Elizabeth Torrance, John Mantley and Tom Paton was chosen by the applauding of the audience.

The cast for "Family Portrait" to be held at Hart House in December has been completed, it was announced by Bob Miller. Captains were named for the teams to sell tickets which go on sale in the near future.

Elections were held for a new secretary and treasurer. Betty McRae was made secretary by acclamation; Tom Nixon was elected treasurer. Cliff Lee will be the new director of Alumni Hall.

Casting will be held Friday for an Alumni Hall play called "Boosting Bridge". The Hart House production of "Heaven on Earth" scheduled for next week, is being directed by Doug Harris and Bob Miller.

SUNDAY CONCERT

Eighty single tickets which will admit men students only to the Sunday Evening Concert to be held in the Great Hall on Sunday, 10th November will be issued from the hall porter's desk after 1 p.m. today.

Faulkner, University of Missouri Grad; Canadian Flying Corps Veteran; Was Reader in English at Oxford

EARLY EFFORTS SPURNED

Professor N. J. Endicott of the English Department of University College, is to give the fourth lecture in the Recent American Writers Series this afternoon at 5 p.m. in Room 8 in U.C. on the subject "William Faulkner".

Born in Mississippi in 1897, William Faulkner joined the Canadian Flying Corps after graduating from the University of Missouri. Honourably discharged from the R.A.F. in 1918 with the rank of lieutenant, Faulkner spent some time as a reader at Oxford University.

Subsequently he returned to the States and settled down in Oxford, Mississippi, to try his hand at writing. Indifferent success greeted his efforts until 1931 when he published "Sanctuary", a horror tale of the depravities of the South.

The noted author now has fifteen books to his credit, of which eleven are novels, among them the well-known stories "As I Lay Dying" and "Soldier's Pay". In January of last year Mr. Faulkner was honoured by election to the membership of the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

Plates Powdered In U.C. Guild Play

True to advance publicity, the air of Hart House Theatre was thick with foreign accents and flying dishes yesterday afternoon as the University College Players' Guild staged "The Unseen" by Alice Gerstenberg.

The play, which was directed by Alice Wickson, concerned the trials of a young architect and his wife and their refugee maid, who accounted for most of the smashed crockery.

Mary Savage and Vernon Lang were cast as the married couple and Barbara Salter played the part of the maid.

1758 Guards of Louisbourg Superannuated to Varsity

Cannon roared, ramparts cracked and crumbled; more cannon boomed, masts splintered and fell. Later, mighty Louisbourg, strongest fortress on the continent and proud "keystone of French fortifications in America" fell to the attacking British.

That was away back in 1758, but relics of that famous battle may be seen on this very campus.

An armada of one hundred and sixty-one ships under General Jeffery Amherst surrounded Louisbourg one April night, and after a month and a half, the fort which had required twenty-two years to build and had cost 30,000,000 livres of good French money, had fallen to the English for the second time.

Once host to thousands of French fishermen, once the scene of military pageantry, once the haven of fear-stricken Acadians, Louisbourg, now the home of less than a thousand fisher folk, has something in common with this university.

Today all that remains of the proud grey pile is the wreckage of mighty walls, a few underground casemates and a number of once-mighty cannon. When the British took over, the great fortifications were destroyed in order that

U.C. Follies "Colossal" Says Blackall

"It's supercolossal," said Cliff Blackall, producer of the University College Follies, speaking of this year's production of the annual revue which is scheduled to "hit the boards" on November 15.

"To begin with," Blackall said, "the chorus this year under the direction of Jack Lemen, would do justice to a Broadway musical." Mr. Lemen has worked out some routines which the girls are executing with professional precision, Blackall said.

Susan Goulding, University College fresquette, who has spent the last few summers playing with the John Holden stock company in Bala, is in one of the starring roles of the production, it was learned. "We have never had such a large number of excellent male comedians taking part in the revue," Blackall said. Included in the group are Frank Winn, Al Park, Bud Milnes, and Sandy Ward, who have all starred in comedy productions on the campus, the latter being a star in the Beta Sigma Rho revue.

"Added to this are a glee club of 20, Margaret Stonehouse, acrobatic dancer deluxe, a girls' trio and eight sparkling tunes—we have an unexcelled production," Blackall said.

Vic Union to Meet To Discuss Policy

Do you think there are too few class parties? Do you think professors take advantage of you? Do you think you are being restricted? Do you think? Whether you do or not, and providing you attend Victoria, you are asked to take a shot of your favourite nerve tonic and express yourself at the season's first open meeting of the Victoria College Union in Alumni Hall this afternoon at four o'clock.

"Tell them to turn out individually or in groups if they have any questions to discuss concerning the welfare of the college," said President Ted Gray of the V.C.U. "The executive of the Union is merely administrative and not legislative; the student body forms the policy. So it's the duty of all Vic members to turn out."

Director Says All Who Have Desire to Act and "Brains" may be Actors; Stresses Practice

STARTED AT ANN ARBOR

By Babs Ashman

That anyone who has the desire and the brains to act can act is the opinion of John Holden, well-known director and actor of many professional Canadian stock productions.

As a harem-dancer in an Ann Arbor college follies show John Holden had his first taste of success behind the footlights. After graduation from the Michigan university, Mr. Holden turned his back on commerce and finance and became a teacher of dramatics at Ann Arbor. For several years after this he was the highest paid juvenile stock actor in America as a member of the famous Jesse Bonstelle's Stock Company of Chicago.

Today Mr. Holden directs the John Holden Players, a company which for the past seven years has gained wide recognition for its summer productions at Bala, Muskoka, and its winter presentation in Winnipeg. Several University College students and graduates, among them Helen Gardiner, Elizabeth Stone and Mavor Moore, have gained experience with the summer colony group.

"The best way to learn how to act is to act," Mr. Holden told the U.C. Players' Guild yesterday afternoon. For this reason he approves of campus drama. (Continued on Page 4)

Vic Years Combine For Rural Party

Burwash Hall will echo to the tempo of the barn dance next Saturday evening, Nov. 9th, when the Victoria classes of 4T1, and 4T2 hold their "Fall Fair" first of their class parties.

The hall will be decorated with barnyard decorations, and it is hoped that Elsie, the Borden cow, can be persuaded to forsake her ultra-modern boudoir in order to attend.

A feature of the evening will be the "Grand March", in which the farmers and farmerettes will compete for the prizes which are being offered for the "most realistic" farm costumes.

Music will be provided by Howard Cable and his Cavaliers, and Jack Brown, president of the class of 4T2, will "call off" for the barn dances which will enliven the evening.

A special effort is being made to have all members of the two classes attend, it was learned, and as an added inducement, Ruth Thompson, associate president of 4T1, promises "excellent food".

ART CLASS

Members of Hart House are invited to join the art class under the direction of Caven Atkins, which will be held in the art gallery, Hart House, at 7.30 this evening.

Reading The Varsity During Lectures Termed "Bad Thing" by Dr. Northway

Reading The Varsity in lectures... or sleeping either, for that matter... is a bad thing, and should be discouraged in the opinion of Dr. Mary Northway of the Psychology Department, who spoke at the Victoria Orientation Tea in Wynilwood yesterday afternoon.

Her lecture, third in a series originally designed to acclimatize first year students to a new environment, was on the subject "How to Study."

Dr. Northway asserted that there are no "musts". The necessity of studying only follows upon the voluntary decision to go to university. Once that decision is reached and that obligation automatically accepted some sort of schedule should be worked out. Dr.

Northway emphasized that such a schedule should not be absolutely binding and quoted Lord Tweedsmuir's view that horizons should be wider.

One suggested plan for a week at university was thirty hours for study, fifty-five hours for sleep, fifteen hours for eating, etc. According to this plan, over fifty hours out of the weekly one hundred and sixty-eight, should be left for recreation.

If the twenty-seven hundred hours of study necessary to complete the Pass Arts course, were crammed into the first few months of the first college year, the last two years might prove enjoyable, Miss Northway said.

Words From A Loser

The United States elections and all the hubbub and fanfare attendant upon them are over and American newspapers, most of whom supported Willkie, again find themselves on the wrong side of the fence, where most of them no doubt expected to be. In a democracy like the States, however, the unvictorious press feels it necessary to issue neither apologies, explanations nor accusations; they, like the rest of the nation, "abide tranquilly by the decision". The New York Times, one of the strongest and most influential of Willkie's supporters, yesterday ran the following after-election editorial, sufficient proof that the Times is a great, democratic newspaper.

"As this edition of The Times goes to press the outcome of the national election remains in doubt. There has been a great outpouring of voters the country over — the greatest in our history. The common people of the United States, in the big cities and the little towns, have had their say. Individually they know what they have said. Collectively they must wait a little longer to find out.

It has been an amazing and thrilling spectacle. More amazing and thrilling is the fact, not doubted by anyone, that when we know exactly what has happened, those who have lost will abide tranquilly by the decision. Our war of speeches and ballots is over. Whatever the result, the Republic survives and will go forward. A national candidate has lost and some of the policies he stood for have gone down with him. Not all of them, for in many things we have differed as to methods, not as to objectives. This nation has shown that it stands overwhelmingly for a strong national defense; for helpfulness toward other democracies whose freedom is threatened; for the re-employment of the millions who have been so long, and in the great mass so patiently, so uncomplainingly, out of work and on short commons; for better relations between the employer and the employed; for a growth of freedom under law.

In such an election the victorious party gains no mandate to harass or belittle its opponents. On the contrary, at this time above all others it is under a solemn obligation to strive for all possible unity with them, within the limits of their party pledges. The losers remain free to appeal their case in the press and on the platform, to fight for it through their representatives in Congress and to resubmit it at the mid-term elections two years hence.

We have made our decision, though the nature of it is not yet known. Now we turn, with confidence, to greet our friends, to say to our enemies abroad, thus far and no farther. These facts the count of ballots, whatever it may reveal, cannot change. America faces the uncertain future unafraid."

Undeserved Criticism

No one has better reason than university students to realize that most downtown newspapers are only too happy to have an opportunity to write slurring editorials, or stories tinged with sarcasm, on the activities of university students. Sometimes it even makes one suspect that the papers in question are merely looking for someone or something to condemn, it being a well known fact of course that an article condemning someone attracts a great deal more attention than an article praising someone, human nature being what it is. With this in mind no doubt they figure that they can always take a few "cracks" at us when they run short of other cause for complaint.

It is true that they may have had slight cause for complaint now and then in the last fourteen months since war was declared, but such occasions have usually been caused by the thoughtlessness of a very few, and have been condemned by all of us as such. The university, as well as the nation, has curtailed and altered its activities to fit into a war-time program. Those of the general public who are so ready to condemn the university student on grounds of inappropriate frivolity should remember that practically every university student is doing as much, and in a great many cases much more, than the public itself as far as the war effort is concerned. They have no more basis for criticism of us than we have for criticism of them, but unfortunately we seem to be a happy hunting ground for constant complainers.

A recent "letter to the editor" which appeared in the editorial pages of a downtown newspaper is nothing new by any means; if the public doesn't supply the editorial pages with them every so often, the editors write them themselves and exert themselves to think up fascinating heads for them. The letter just mentioned ran as follows—you can pick it to pieces yourself:

"Boys will be boys' whether children at the university thinking or pretending they're 'big-shot thinkers' and talking Darwinism, Marxism and things taboo with old fogies or engaging in such attention-attracting stunts as firing old cannons in Queen's Park on Hallowe'en.

If economics and similar subjects taught during the first two or three years in college were taught in the high schools, the high school term extended and the college term reduced to three years, students, parents, teachers and the public would materially benefit. Many subjects now taught in high schools were taught only in college years ago.

These college children should not be given so much public notice when they need soothing syrup."

These words of wisdom were topped off with the head "Hallowe'en Pranks Are Regarded as Evidence That Children Attend the University of Toronto." Such criticism must seem entirely undeserved to anyone who really thinks about the matter and knows whereof he speaks.

Newspaper Without Ads

New York's newest daily newspaper, PM, is evidently running into financial difficulties, which does not seem strange to the average person who knows that it sells for five cents a copy and accepts no paid advertising. Printed tabloid style, profusely illustrated with pictures, it contains a highly condensed account of the day's news; radio, theatre, sports, fashion and food summaries; and most unusual of all, since no payment is received for it, a couple of pages devoted to advising shoppers at what stores they will find the day's best bargains, complete with descriptions of articles and prices.

Although PM seems to be meeting with a great deal of approval, in the few short months it has been publishing it has already run into financial difficulties. Its backers, who collectively put up several millions to found it, have already been called upon for additional funds. It is an interesting experiment, but the question seems to be "Will it work?"

Drama Committee

The Unseen, a slapstick farce, making no pretensions to greatness, provided amusing entertainment yesterday afternoon in the Drama Committee's Wednesday 5 o'clock series. Written by Alice Gerstenberg, the show was produced by the U.C. Players' Guild under the direction of Alice Wickson. The cast included Barbara Salter, Mary Savage and Vernon Lang.

Miss Salter, from her performance as the clumsy, stupid Swedish maid, Hulda, may well be ranked as one of the best character actresses on the campus. Upon her shoulders rested the play. She carried it well, displaying excellent sense of comedy. A note here about Hulda's various falls—it's not easy to go flat on your face—the neatness of execution in these falls—and in the business with the telephone—would be envied by professionals. Mary Savage seemed hardly as comfortable as Hulda on the stage. She was, however, very good to look at and played most sincerely. Vernon Lang (his back was to us most of the time) as a serious young architect, played fairly well. These two could have worked out their conflict with more light and shade—perhaps the director was responsible.

Conflict between husband and wife, and between Hulda and employers is developed alongside the

Election Sidelights

Ed. Note: The 1940 Presidential elections have resulted in a clear-cut victory for Franklin D. Roosevelt. There are many interesting sidelights on the election which should prove of interest to everyone.

1. The new theme song "You've Got to Row, Row with Roosevelt" will take over the number one position on the Hit Parade this week. This replaces "I'll Never Smile Again" which has been leading the parade since Thomas Jefferson was elected president. The stirring slogan "No Third Term for I'll Never Smile Again" brought about the song's downfall.

C-C

2. All "Win with Willkie" buttons will be melted down for the National Defence.

C-C

3. No less than sixteen men were arrested in the past two weeks for impersonating Willkie and making speeches detrimental to his campaign. They were discovered by detectives who combed back the culprits' hair thus revealing their true identity.

C-C

4. Four hundred grey felt hats will be eaten this morning including 14 Homburgs (without onions) and also due to a large straw vote, 44 straw hats.

C-C

5. Eight thousand peanuts will be rolled down the main streets of New York, no hands, by eight thousand noses. It will be a gala occasion with Jimmie Durante leading a large parade.

theme of an architectural contest in which the young husband is entered. The two knot neatly together at the end. The second theme was not well enough planned when it was first introduced, but ran fairly smoothly beside the conflict as the play went on. This fault of failing to establish points and plug key lines or laugh lines, appears often in amateur production. Since it can be remedied, student directors take warning. Increased pace would have put "The Unseen" over more successfully. The set tied in well with the tone of the play—but there is little a director can do on an interior set with those navy-blue curtains at the back.

Smashing plates and custard pies set the mood of the play. They are both most satisfactory expressions of one's feelings, come to think of it, even if here the disasters were all the result of good intentions on Hulda's part! Elizabeth Stone

DON'T WASTE TIME!

Students are busy people. They are constantly warned that they must budget their time, allotting the greatest part of it to their studies, and allowing periods for exercise and recreation as well.

All of which means that they have no time to waste. Therefore, when they plan to spend half an hour or so watching an undergraduate production on Wednesday afternoon, it is unfair that they are forced to sit for twenty minutes after the scheduled curtain time, waiting for the play to begin.

All of the current University Drama Committee series of one-act plays have started late. The curtain rose on The Unseen yesterday at least twenty minutes late. Last week, I timed the curtain at 5:18, the week before at 5:22. Each of the dramatic groups participating in this series have been guilty of this fault.

Now, it may be that the players find it impossible to start their plays at five (Continued on Page 4)

Speaking OF SPORT

By Dave MacIntosh

THE FIRST ROUND-UP

As one tonsil said to the other tonsil, "This must be Capistrano — here comes another swallow," we shall proceed to take a quick gulp of the interfaculty sport scene and try to digest it for you as well as ourselves.

As rugby is first and foremost in the minds of all rabid sport fans on the campus these days, we shall deal with this fall pastime firstly. In Group No. I we find in undisputed first place, with three wins against a blank on the debit side of the ledger, none other than Junior School. Up at the Stadium this afternoon the Red and White are going to make a bid to come within a single notch of the leading Engineers. And they have a good case, too. As we thought they would, U.C. have improved with every game. Vic threw away their chances for a real threat for top-spot when they tossed to the four winds that game against Trinity, although it is being protested. It seems that Trinity pulled an on-side kick, with only one lone player except the kicker on side, and the problem is: Was the player that nabbed the pill and lodged the Anglicans on Vic's four yarder the man that was on-side? Or not? All this aside, though, Vic has a bad tendency to sit back on their haunches once they have a bit of a lead. However, if the boys from University College drop the game today and Vic conquers School, that will put the Scarlet and Gold back in the running. Or if Concho loses all or two out of its three remaining games, the whole works will be thrown wide open. This is any man's league yet.

The lightly regarded teams from Forestry, Dents and Junior Meds have put on some surprisingly good rugby shows, by far. In spite of various rumors, Dents are now tied with Meds for first place. There was some dispute over that tie game that Dents played with Forestry, but it was finally decided that a called single was none other than a safety, which gave Dents an added point. Meds and Dents both meet Forestry once more. If either loses to the Treemen, the championship will go to the other. If both win, there will be a play-off, which no doubt would be well worth a visit to the Bloor Bowl.

Senior Meds faded gracefully from the picture yesterday afternoon by losing to St. Mike's. To tie for top spot, the Irish must now defeat Senior School, an almost impossible task, but then nothing is impossible to the Irish.

Vic and School are the pick of the soccer loop. The duo have deadlocked twice and won all their other games at the expense of U.C. Meds and Pharmacy are hotly contesting first place in the second group, while Knox leads the third and last bunch with Emmanuel trying hard.

Nothing much or definite can be said of the other three sports now in progress, namely, lacrosse, volleyball, and swimming, as they have been under way but a short time. This much, however.

In the first boxla group it looks like a photo finish between Junior School and Vic. Both have garnered a brace and have yet to meet each other. Dents look good in Group No. 2, U.C. in No. 3, and Forestry in the last bunch, although Pharmacy B has yet to make its debut.

A number of teams have not even made an appearance on the volleyball floor, and little wonder, with no less than 28 teams going after one poor trophy. Trinity A, Dents, and possibly Emmanuel and Vic are conceded about the best chance at the moment.

Senior U.C. looks like the class as far as swimming is concerned. Ged Clawson is a one-man wave of destruction as he tears up and down the pool. This intercollegiate champ is good for at least ten rosy points every time he makes an appearance. Junior School, Vic, and Emmanuel are also in good shape and it will probably be from these three that the most serious threat for U.C. will come.

That about covers the situation for the nonce. The field in practically every group is wide open. There's a lot of good sport going on every night, which deserves much better support than it is getting. The cheerleaders that St. Mike's present cheer us up no end. We wish every faculty had something of the same to offer.

HAZEN TO TALK TO MEETING IN ELECTRICAL BUILDING

Thomas Hazen, physicist of research and development of laboratory of the Bakelite Corporation, Bloomfield, N.J., will speak at the meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at 8.15 p.m. tomorrow. His subject will be "Organic plastics and electrical insulation: some recent developments."

The paper will be illustrated by slides and will review the contribution made by the plastics industry to the field of electrical insulation during the past decade and will deal with the new synthetic plastics.

The meeting will be held in Room 21 of the Electrical Building.

SHARPE TELLS FORESTERS OF TIMBER DEVELOPMENT

Mr. Frank Sharpe, assistant deputy-minister of Lands and Forests of the Ontario Legislature, last night addressed a meeting of the Foresters' Club in the east common room of Hart House. Mr. Sharpe discussed recent provincial forest developments, in relation to the operations of timber companies.

Mr. A. W. Bentley, general works manager of a Newfoundland paper plant, was present at the meeting.

VERSATILE EMMANUELITES WHIP WYCLIFFE SOCCERMEN

Varsity intercollegiate athletes of other sports figured prominently in Emmanuel's 6-0 verdict over Wycliffe in a soccer match played yesterday afternoon on the Trinity field.

Billy Fennell, outside wing on last year's big Blue team, hoofed in three goals during the proceedings, while Bruce Hall, intercollegiate tennis champion, said nothing of being interfaculty titleholder, accounted for another. Ben Morewood, hardest-working Emmanuelite, notched the fifth and Dobson made it an even half-dozen.

TOOTH TUGGERS WHIP O.C.E. WITH LAST-QUARTER RALLY

With a last quarter that netted five goals, Dents defeated O.C.E. by a 13-10 score in a boxla tilt staged on the big gym floor last night.

Jim Sproule and Smokie Smockum led the Dent attack as they whipped home five goals apiece. Cameron, De Lagran, and McCartney accounted for the other Dent tallies.

The Teachers had a big first inning as they potted exactly six goals while their opponents were busy garnering two. In the second canto the Tooth-Tuggers got a grip on themselves as well as their patients and outscored O.C.E. 3-1. In the third chucker they drew even closer, netting three to their rivals' two, making the count 9-8. And in the final stanza there was no stopping them.

LONDONER TO DISCUSS NAZIS AND RELIGION

Rev. Alexander Marks of London, England, will speak on the subject: "Religious Life in Nazi Germany" this evening at 6.45 in Knox College Chapel.

All interested students are invited to hear this man who was in Germany during the great Jewish purge, who watched air-raids on London, and who worked with refugees in France before the collapse of the French war-machine. Mr. Marks has spoken to large audiences during his tour of Canada, and this will be his only appearance on the university campus. He is an international lecturer, having laboured in Germany, Poland, Belgium, France, Russia, Hungary, and Palestine.

The meeting will close at 7.45, and professors, as well as students, are invited to hear this address.

Double Blue Climbs to Second Place in Group III, Retaining Chance to Tie School for Lead

GUERINOT SCORES TOUCH

Senior Meds passed from the interfaculty rugby scene yesterday afternoon as they dropped their final game of the schedule to the Double Blue of St. Mike's by a 5-0 count. The result left the Doctors with no wins to their credit for the season's effort, while at the same time the Irish take over second place, and by beating Senior School in the one remaining game of Group III, may tie the Engineers for top-spot.

Meds fumbled the game away to the Gaels, as a high hoist slipped from the grasp of a Med receiver parked behind his own goal line, and Bill Guerinot plunked himself down on the pigskin for the all-important major. That score came just before the end of half-time and was a break that St. Mike's took full advantage of.

The Medics' forward line showed a marked superiority throughout the contest, all the more remarkable because they could manage to field but twelve men. The Bay Streeters were held pretty well within their own territory for the first three quarters, and St. Mike's plays emanated mostly from their own 15-yard line, and they were forced to put up a stubborn resistance to keep Meds out of real pay-dirt.

By Marg. Foulds

Night before last, at 6.30 bells — you know, for the 1-2 hour — St. Hilda's took the Nurses into hand by the score of 23-5. Minus the assistance of their erstwhile stars, Tills Amesley, who will not be playing this year, and Joan Griffith, who lost a fight with a basketball, and is suffering from a broken finger, the Saints were still able to pile up a neat score over the hapless Nurses. We think it's about time these defeated ones had a bit of luck. In our long career at Varsity we recall similar defeats and are definitely against the continuation of such occurrences. Better luck to you in the future, Nurses!

Last night witnessed a triple-header at the O.C.E. gym with spectators hanging on the chandeliers and various rafters for want of more space due to the terrific response to our appeal of yesterday. — unquote. We must have read this somewhere! Well, anyway, they were good games — 6, St. Mike's vs U.C. Juniors; 7, U.C. Seniors vs Meds; and 8, St. Hilda's vs Vic Freshies.

In a real razzle-dazzle basketball game U.C. Juniors continually outwitted and outplayed St. Mike's to the tune of 43-14, at O.C.E. gym last night at six. For the winners, Betty Mortimer played a really outstanding game, scoring 30 of the 43 points. For the Saints Kay Brydon starred.

We tried our best to see a game last night between Vic Freshies and St. Hilda's Seniors, but Vic Freshies for some unknown reason let us — and incidentally St. Hilda's — down. Maybe they didn't know the time. Ah us! better luck next time.

Meds showed the U.C. Seniors that they know a thing or two about basketball by trouncing them to the count of 18-5 at 7 o'clock at O.C.E. last night. The two Jeans did the scoring for Meds, while Agnes Cameron got the first basket for U.C.

NEWMAN CLUB PARTY FEATURES CARTOONS

A judging of cartoons done by members early in the evening was a prominent aspect of the Newman Club Fireside Fling held in the clubhouse last evening. The party was staged to furnish operating funds for the new publication The Newman Newsman which is under the editorship of Reg McCrae.

The general plan which the entertainment followed was that of a harvest festival and there was a great variety of novelty dances, surprise events and unusual games.

Early in the evening numbered sheets of paper were distributed to all present and each was assigned a topic on which to draw a cartoon. Many of these efforts were intended to be puns on the subject given. One man, given the topic, a fly, drew a picture of a baseball player knocking a ball high in the air.

The judging of these artistic efforts was made by Albert Mallon, in the character of Professor Art For Heaven's Sake and his two associates Professor Tonal Values (Pat Leonard) and Professor S. U. Realist (Marg McDonough). The judges' choice for first prize was a sheet that appeared to be a complete blank to any but their practised eyes.

The feature of the evening was the Dagwood Supper, so-named from the sandwiches beloved by Blondie's husband in the familiar comic strip. A buffet table was set with the ingredients for any number of different kinds of sandwiches and all present had to prepare their own. Apple cider accompanied the supper.

TRINITY VOLLEYBALL SQUAD TRIMS JUNIOR VIC 15-1, 15-5

The Junior Vic volleyball sextet was no match for a power-laden Trinity A crew, who took over undisputed possession of first place in Group II with a 15-1, 15-5 win over the Scarlet and Gold on the little gym floor yesterday afternoon.

Big guns for the Anglicans were the old reliables Tseng and Cowan, whose spiking the Victorians could not even get near. Jim Sully turned in a good effort for the losers.

HART HOUSE LIBRARY

One of the most interesting and inviting spots on the entire campus, as far as male students are concerned, is the library on the second floor of Hart House. There, in a large, well-lighted room, luxuriously carpeted in red and furnished with chesterfields whose value for a daytime sleep is undisputed, the Varsity man may read at his ease.

The library is not intended for study purposes and, in fact, any attempt to use it thus is strongly discouraged by the committee in charge. For here one finds not textbooks but volumes intended for leisure reading, between lectures, at noon or in the evening. The foundation of the library is those standard works that have been read and enjoyed by people for many generations.

To this is added every year the best of the new novels, biographies and non-textbook histories. Volumes of humour and travel occupy prominent positions, as do works of adventure.

The library has its own system of operation. After you have finished reading a book you do not put it back on the shelf but leave it on the large round table in the centre of the room. This serves two purposes: First, it makes certain that no book is put back in the wrong place and thus perhaps lost for several weeks; second, it enables the curator of the library to ascertain, simply by noting the frequency with which titles appear on the centre table, what the current trends in reading are.

According to his latest report humorous works are being widely read this year but any hasty judgment that this indicates a desire on the part of Varsity men to "escape" from the war is soon negated by the fact that works dealing with the places and persons prominent in the news are also enjoying wide favour.

A LOVE-SICK SOPHOMORE of our acquaintance is perceived to be drawing irrelevant diagrams during a class to which he is paying scant attention. The diagrams include numerous hearts, arrows, and other amatory paraphernalia... and sundry girls' names. . . . And our hero is busily engaged in crossing out "Helen" and substituting "Sheila." From Helen's point of view, and in the interests of monogamy, THIS SORT OF THING MUST STOP.

THE FALLACY OF INCONCEIVABILITY was being explained by the professor to his first-year philosophy class. . . . "For instance," elucidates he, "in the last century, the idea of an iron ship floating was widely ridiculed." The class giggles appreciatively, and the lecture rolls relentlessly on. Afterwards, a galaxy of gorgeous freshies assail the prof. "Will you please explain," they query, "how an iron ship could possibly float?"

AN AMERICAN CO-ED, shorn of her Willkie button, rolled into class here yesterday morning looking very bedraggled and exhausted indeed. When the pedagogue remarked on her comatose condition, she explained she had been up all night listening to the election returns. . . . "And," sobbed she, "my very own state voted against him."

WHICH NEATLY TURNS THE TOPIC to our favourite one at the moment, namely How We Predicted The Outcome. . . . If you are keeping a fireside chart of how your commentators fared, the score stands thus: Reuben Frank called FDR by 43 states to five; we called FDR by 35 states to 13; as we go to press FDR leads by 39 states to nine. That means that both of us were accurate to within four 4.30-6 p.m.—Dean Brett will speak on "Science and Religion" in the U.C. S.C.M. series "Meet the Profs." Tea will be served.

8.40-8.55 a.m.—Daily Prayers in Hart House Chapel.
8.30 p.m.—The M. and P. Society fall party in the Women's Union. Dancing and refreshments. Fifteen cents person for members, fifty cents each for non-members.
5 p.m.—Music room, Hart House, recital by Eugene Kosh, violinist, and Reginald Godden, pianist.

states. . . . It was Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Montana and New Jersey that prevented our calculations from being perfect. Reuben. What upset your dope-sheet? . . . Anyway, we're both a lot closer than Mr. Gallup. . . .

PEOPLE WE WOULD LIKE TO MEET DEPT. . . . At the University of Washington, a professor walks into class two minutes late, and glares about belligerently. "Well," says he, "has anybody got anything to say?" No answer. "Good," he pontificates, "then there's no sense holding a class." . . . AND HE GETS UP AND WALKS OUT.

A DISCUSSION ARISES in class as to an impending change in the timetable. The prof suggests "Monday at 10?" "No!" choruses the class. "Wednesday at 11?" "No!" "Friday at 3?" "No!" . . . and so on. Finally, tiring of the filibuster, a voice pipes up from the rear: "What about Monday at 9?" "Smarter," barks the prof, "do you suffer from insomnia?"

THE NAVY LOG comes through this week with the following coyly salacious ditty:

*Girls when they went out to swim
Once dressed like Mother Hubbard;
But now they have a bolder whim
And dress more like her cupboard.*

THEN, the Navy Log defines a wallflower as a girl who has to dance all the dances.

COMING TOMORROW. . . . A Hither and Yon thrown together by H. Dent Hodgson, News Editor of The Varsity, president-in-good-standing of the Hoot Owls' Club, pride of The Canadian Press, and all-round mad wag. . . . WE RECOMMEND IT.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 9

11 a.m.—Forum Club meets in Rm. 19 of U.C. Chairman: Hayne; Critic: Swerling; Speakers: Gerby, Gillies, Ghent. Impromptu.

7.15-9 p.m.—Practice of Vic Music Club in Alumni Hall. Everybody out.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19

8.15 p.m.—Meeting of Vic Classics Club at Professor Woodside's. Come and hear The Climax.

matics and the Little Theatre movement. "With the exception of stock experience in amateur productions is about the only sort of training one can get for the professional theatre," he went on.

Speaking of the recent revival of interest in the professional theatre, Mr. Holden suggested that there will probably be in a short time a great scarcity of trained actors and actresses. In New York, although 6,000 names are on file, very few of the would-be actors have had professional experience. Mr. Holden thinks that some sort of stock training is essential. "The actor with professional experience has an entirely different approach to the theatre. The person who has never read a professional script can easily be detected by the director."

Mr. Holden advised student actors to do as their director tells them even if stars like Lunt and Fontanne, and Gertrude Lawrence seem to break the traditional rules. "They know what they are doing and why they are doing it," he said.

"Good actors have their own style. People should know what is wrong with them and then make use of their idiosyncrasies to develop an individual style."

Commenting on some of his recent productions, Mr. Holden said, "We really enjoyed doing 'Charlie's Aunt' and 'Abie's Irish Rose'. It is amazing how funny those old plays still are."

He was a little disappointed with the Winnipeg reception of "Our Town." "We lost money the first week," he said, "and we had always made enough to pay expenses previously. However, after our audiences had seen the movie, we were asked to do it over again! But then 'Our Town' is so different. . . ."

Mr. Holden thinks University of Toronto students are extremely fortunate in having the unique advantages of Hart House Theatre at their command. "It must be a great thing to have so much equipment on hand," he said. Commenting on the Victoria College Dramatic Society's choice of "Family Portrait" for their major production this year Mr. Holden said, "It is a tremendous undertaking but should prove to be an excellent and worthwhile play."

that "men's dishonesty was dramatic, women's petty," stressed woman's many subterfuges for appearance's sake.

Margaret Dillon and Gretta Riddell, speakers from Victoria College, proved their stand, opposing the motion from two points of view—the historical and literary, and the sociological and judicial. In stating that women were not more dishonest than men, they asserted also that if there was any difference between the sexes, men were the less honest.

"Men's dishonesty is incident in history from Ethelred the Unready to Adolf Hitler," remarked Miss Dillon. She said that the dishonesty of men was exemplified in all literature, showing that "we not only believe men more dishonest—we find them more interesting that way."

Miss Riddell suggested that so-called "cattiness" has a social value. She believed that men were as unfair in their personal relations as women. "All is fair in love and war" was first said for men," she pointed out. By quoting statistics, she proved that men were convicted of more crimes than women, and she accused them of being responsible for dishonesty in business.

The judges were Dr. Victoria Mueller of the staff of Loretto Abbey College, and Marion Cameron, student of Trinity College.

1. DRESS

The field service cap will be worn with the side one inch above the right ear and the front point one inch above the right eyebrow.

The crown of the cap must be kept closed. If necessary, the crown may be pinned on the inside.

The field service cap will be worn with battle dress when on parade or when walking out.

When the cap is removed it will be carried in the pocket on the outside of the left trouser leg.

Great coats or waterproof coats when worn, must be buttoned up.

2. REMEMBRANCE DAY PARADE

Both Battalions of the University of Toronto, C.O.T.C., will participate in the Remembrance Day service of the Alumni Federation of the U. of T. to be held on the front campus, 11th November, 1940.

Forming-up

Both Battalions will form up on the front campus facing north, the C.O.T.C. Battalion on the right and the Auxiliary Battalion on the left.

The band will form up between the two Battalions and will dress by the leading companies.

Details regarding the forming up of the Auxiliary Battalion will be published in Auxiliary Battalion Orders, C.O.T.C. Battalion

Dress

Officers, W.O.'s, and N.C.O.'s, will wear below the rank of Sergeant will wear Service Dress.

Other ranks will wear battle dress. Greatcoats will be worn.

Forming-up

The Battalion will form up in close column of companies.

Markers

One marker per coy. will report to the A/R.S.M. at 10.10 hours at the North East corner of the front campus.

Fall-In

Other Ranks will assemble on the east side of the campus as close to the roadway as possible.

The parade will fall in on Company Markers at 10.20 hours.

The Band

The Band will be in position at 10.30 hours.

The Band Sergeant will detail one bugler to sound the Last Post at 10.58 hours and Reveille at 11.00 hours.

Two minutes silence will be observed between sounding of Last Post and Reveille, during which the parade will be at attention.

Saluting the Memorial

Following the service the parade will march off in column of route, preceded by the band, easterly towards the East Gate of the university grounds, along the road south of Hart House and past the War Memorial.

The Memorial will be saluted in succession by platoons.

March Past

Following the salute to the Memorial the parade will march past the saluting base in front of University College.

Forming up after March Past

Following the march past the parade will proceed along the road surrounding the campus to the South side to a point in line with the left flank of the battalion in its original position in close column of companies.

The column will then proceed north along this line, each company wheeling to the right and taking its position in close column.

The band will also form up in its original position.

Memorial Guard

A Memorial guard consisting of 1 N.C.O. and 4 cadets will post sentries at each end of the Memorial screen.

The tour of duty of this guard will be from 10.45 hours to 11.55 hours. Sentries will be relieved every ten minutes.

ART, MUSIC &amp; DRAMA

o'clock. They too have lectures, labs and drills. They are also busy people, and we are grateful to them for their efforts to carry on university drama.

If they do find it impossible to start at the scheduled time, it is only fair, however, that they bill their productions to start later in the afternoon, say at 5.20, then start on time.

The rest of us will be there on time too, and the net result will be the saving of twenty minutes each. Multiplied by the average number of people in the house and multiplied again by the number of plays in the series, this works out to a great many hours which may be spent much more profitably than in sitting waiting for a tardy curtain.—M.O.M.

BOX-OFFICE POISON?

"It's poison," they said, "absolute poison. In an era of unrest, the only way to succeed at the box-office is to provide comedy and plenty of it. The main business of the theatre in wartime is to keep its audience amused."

This doctrine has been preached by critics all over the continent for years, and has gradually come to affect quite a few otherwise sane theatre-goers. Grateful for a doctrine which fitted in so well with their own slightly reactionary plans, Hollywood producers began to turn out dozens of light, frothy comedies, shovelling indefinitely any serious work on the agenda.

But the worst sin, according to the experts, was to inject current events into a play. If you bring in the war, they claimed, the audience will go to the hockey game, even if your play is worth the Pulitzer Prize.

There is a play at the Royal Alexandra Theatre this week, to which the playwrights are flocking in such numbers that on opening night it was impossible to obtain tickets at any price for any performance during its Toronto run. Even The Varsity was unable to get its usual press pass. The play—There Shall Be No Night, a play about the Russo-Finnish War, by Robert Emmett Sherwood.

The obvious conclusion is that the public's nerves are not nearly as badly shattered as Roly Young and company would have us believe. Indeed, we see no reason why people should shrink at the sound of gunfire on a stage, when they live quite casually through the actual bombardment of their homes.

Like peacetime theatre, wartime theatre should provide the best entertainment possible in all fields. Naturally, economy should be observed as far as possible, but there should be no let-down in the quality of the material presented.

It would be excessively naive to say that a play's box-office appeal depends solely on its quality, but it is equally ridiculous to maintain that the sole standard of a play's success in wartime is its amusement value.—E.S.

PROF. McCURDY, U.C. LEADS DISCUSSION OF POST-WAR TOPIC

Prof. Dilstone Speaks in House

"Nothing has entered into our view of the universe to render belief in God impossible," Professor F. W. Dilstone of Wycliffe College told a V.C.F. noon-hour meeting in Hart House music room yesterday.

"Our scientific knowledge of the laws which govern the universe does not prove that there is no maker and controller of these laws," he said. Our historical knowledge, while teaching us to reject a God who is the personification of the ideals or ambitions of a certain group or nation, does not affect the Christian belief in a God who judges, cleanses and regenerates, Professor Dilstone said.

Professor Dilstone declared that the problem of evil and human suffering, while not to be minimized, is essentially the same today as in the days of the prophets.

U.C. Will Issue Special Tickets

Due to the fact that so many people were disappointed in getting tickets to the show, the executive of the U.C. Follies have decided to issue special tickets admitting them to the dance only. These tickets will be on sale Monday, The Varsity was informed by

FRANK BOGART

Tom Jarvis, producer of the Follies. Three orchestras will be in attendance headed by that of Frank Bogart, which played at the Sky Club last summer, breaking all attendance records. Bogart has arranged some of the Follies numbers, written by students, and will play them in the course of the evening.

"LIFE LONG PARTNERSHIP" SAYS PARKS ON MARRIAGE

Marriage is not a hasty agreement, but a life-long partnership, according to Rev. J. D. Parks, who today gave one of his weekly addresses on "Preparations for Christian Marriage".

All aspects of the situation must be realized and discussed before a happy, Christian marriage can ensue, Mr. Parks said. The most successful marital unions, said Mr. Parks, occur when the two people have a similar social, religious, racial and cultural background. People having these in common are usually attracted to one another, but "mixed marriages" do occur.

Although sometimes successful, mixed marriages often entail unexpected difficulties. As an example, children of mixed racial marriages do not belong to the race of either parent. The mother and father both try to draw the child into their different racial environments, and it has been known to happen that the parents will separate over the issue.

Subject is the First to be Treated in the General Theme of "After the War, What?"

FOLLOWS OPENING ADDRESS

Following up his opening address to the Social Science S.C.M. last week, Professor Jarvis McCurdy of the Department of Philosophy, University College, led the group's discussion of the topic, "Post-War Political Philosophy" yesterday.

This subject is the first to be treated in the general theme of "After the War, What?", a study in the anticipation of social problems, political, social, economic and religious, which will arise at the conclusion of the present conflict.

"Large-scale social movements are not brought about," said Professor McCurdy, "by clearly defined ideals, honestly stated and faithfully followed. Granted. But principles nevertheless have their place, and a very important one. Principles are the explicit statement of the fundamental purposes and methods which one adopts or chooses for this development."

The group considered the type of problems which the end of the war will bring, including the growing incompetence of the economic system to provide both profits and satisfactory employment and distribution before the war; the added burden of demobilized soldiers and war-workers expecting the fruits of their efforts and having prestige; and the effect of debt burdens upon government efforts.

The vital question confronting the group was, "What principles will guide and utilize most satisfactorily these conflicting forces and what place have public welfare and social service in the whole operation of social reconstruction?"

The Social Science S.C.M. Study Group will continue discussion of these problems each Thursday in the Social Science Seminar, Economics Building, from 1.20 till 2 o'clock.

VICTORIA COLLEGE UNION HOLDS FIRST OPEN MEETING

Discussing and voting on many questions connected with college activities, the Victoria College Union held its first open meeting in Alumni Hall yesterday afternoon.

The meeting passed a resolution supporting the Students' War Services Committee, recently organized to provide comforts for students and graduates serving with the armed forces.

Mr. Parks said.

Family history, hereditary diseases, The engagement period should not be so short that the couple involved cannot get to know each other's ideas, faults, and social and family environments; nor should the engagement be so long as to cause strain upon either or both the young man and woman. Questions of making a home, and personal relationships should be carefully and frankly discussed before the couple consider themselves ready to take on the responsibility of marriage, Mr. Parks said.

STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the entire staff of The Varsity tomorrow afternoon at 4.30 p.m. in Wymilwood. Attendance is important. Tea will be served.

Teutonic Club Hold Meeting Next Tuesday

To Correspond to Last Year's German Study Club but to Also Study Other Germanic Cultures

DR. ARNOLD TO WALTZ

Corresponding to last year's German Study Club, but widening its scope to include the study of other Germanic cultures (Scandinavian and Anglo-Saxon included), the Teutonic Club will hold its first meeting next Tuesday evening at the Women's Union.

Dr. Arnold will describe and demonstrate the waltz, and after the address the audience will do practical research on the subject, accompanied by the strains of Strauss records.

Dr. Martin Joos, lecturer in German and Norwegian at University College, honorary president of the club, will address a later meeting on the subject of Scandinavian language and culture.

Faulkner Tends To Melodrama Says Endicott

Faulkner Gives Very Apt Interpretations of the States of Minds of His Characters, Says Endicott

CURRENT SERIES

"As a romantic psychologist, William Faulkner has too great a tendency toward melodrama and a strain of horror. However, he gives very apt interpretations of the states of mind of his characters," said Professor N. J. Endicott, at U.C. yesterday. Professor Endicott spoke in the current series of addresses on authors.

Mr. Endicott, briefly relating Faulkner's life, told that he had something of a literary inheritance, since his grandfather, although a railroad builder, had been an author of some repute. William Faulkner has already had a large number of his writings published. His

O God, our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Our shelter from the stormy blast,
And our eternal home.

Under the shadow of thy throne
Thy saints have dwelt secure;
Sufficient is thine arm alone,

Following the service, the troops will proceed to the Memorial Tower and salute the Tablets bearing the names of the fallen. They will then march past the main door of University College and be reviewed in column of route.

A Carillon Recital will be given by J. Leland Richardson from 10:15 to 10:45 a.m.

R.C.I. Lecture To Show Marvels

The show of electrical marvels to be presented at the Royal Canadian Institute lecture this Saturday night would make a Houdini or a Thurston green with envy, according to information obtained at the Institute. Dr. Phillips Thomas, who is to give the lectures, graduated from Ohio State University and obtained his Ph.D. at Princeton. He is now associated with the Westinghouse Research Department. Among other things to be demonstrated there will be projected upon a screen a life-and-death struggle of microbes under the rays of a Westinghouse Sterilizer; music will be poured from a coffee percolator and smoke will be passed from an oil lamp through a model ventilating system. All these things demonstrate electrical principles that are functioning in practical application today. It was stated.

Course for Girls In Full Swing

The courses for co-eds inaugurated last fall by the University of Toronto Women's War Service Committee are again in full swing, according to Mrs. Harold Robertson of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The following classes are held in the Household Science Bldg. on Bloor—First Aid, Home Nursing, and Sewing. The First Aid class with an enrolment of 25 meets on Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings from 8-10; the Home Nursing with six in the class meets on Wednesday evening from 8-10; and the Sewing class with an enrolment of two is still open to any students interested. The next meeting is to be Wednesday evening of Nov. 20 from 8-10. The Motor Mechanics class consisting of two groups of ten girls begins on Wednesday evening, Nov. 13, from 8-10.

REMEMBRANCE DAY TO SEE THOUSANDS ON FRONT CAMPUS

Both Battalions of U. of T. C.O.T.C. will Participate and W.S.T.D. to be On Hand Monday Morning

SECOND WAR-TIME SERVICE

Thousands will assemble on the front campus Monday morning to take part in the university's second war-time Remembrance Day service.

Both battalions of the University of Toronto C.O.T.C. will participate, and the Women's Training Service Detachment, although not officially taking part, will be on hand. After assembling on the west side of the campus the parade will fall in at 10.20.

Prior to the service President Cody will lead a procession of the directors of the Alumni Federation, the Board of Governors, and members of the staff from Simcoe Hall to the steps of University College.

The members of the staff will assemble on the terrace in front of University College to the right of the main entrance, and students on the left, it was learned yesterday. The C.O.T.C. contingent and the Auxiliary Battalion will form up on the front campus with the band directly in front of the entrance, as on the first route march of the two military bodies.

The service will be conducted by President Cody, and Honorable Chief Justice Rose will be present as guest.

After the benediction the parade will march off in column of route and the War Memorial will be saluted in succession by platoons. Following the salute to the Memorial the parade will march past the saluting base in front of University College.

Following the service a half-hour program of chimes will be presented by Carillonneur J. L. Richardson.

Prof. Brett Topic Science, Religion

Professor G. S. Brett, Deao of the Graduate School, will speak on "Science and Religion" at the University College S.C.M. tea at 4.30 in the Women's Union. This is the third in the "Meet the Profs" series, the idea being to have professors of different departments each give their particular specialized slant on Christianity, it was learned. Professor Brett's special angle is based this time on his one-year course in the methods of scientific thought. He is internationally known for books that he has written. Graduating from Oxford in Greats he spent considerable time teaching in India, then came to Trinity as a Classics professor, and has ended up in the Philosophy Department of the university.

Dr. Wallace and Professor Jarvis McCurdy have already spoken in the series, Dr. Wallace on "Poetry and Religion," and Professor McCurdy on "The Validity of Modern Christian Thinking." Others who are to speak later in the term are Dr. B. Wilkinson, of the History Department, Dr. Blatz of Psychology, and Professor Dale of the Classics Department.

TD SING REQUIEM MASS

A requiem mass for the repose of the souls of the soldiers killed in the Great War will be sung by Father McLaughlin in St. Basil's Church on Monday, Nov. 11 at 7.20 a.m. The mass will be attended by the students of St. Michael's College.

Tom McDermott

Who plays the title role in "The Marriage of St. Francis", by Henri Gheon, which will be presented at Hart House Theatre by the St. Michael's Players Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights under the direction of Rev. Father J. L. O'Donnell, C.S.B.

RITA PETSCHKE, CZECH, LIKES BEING U.C. FRESHETTE

Czechoslovakians who have come to us in the past year are keen about Varsity. Rita Petschke, a first year student in music at University College, finds that to her at least being a freshette is rather acceptable. "To come from Czechoslovakia to Canada is certainly a great change," she said. "First of all I've had to become accustomed to have people stare at me, as they would at a specially exotic animal in the zoo and I suspect them of being surprised not to find that I had two mouths and six eyes."

"But soon I began to see that my attitude toward Canadians is really very similar. When I asked a person to what school he went and he answered B.S.S. or U.C.C., I could not make head or tail of it. As for C.O.T.C. and C.S.A.F. and W.S.T.D. I still have not the foggiest notion what it is all about.

"Another of my 'faux pas' occurred in the tram, I beg your pardon, in the street car. On my first day in Toronto I got on one of those contraptions not knowing in the least where I would land, but very much intrigued by the name Bloor. Once in the street car I narrowly escaped being marched off to Toronto's maniac asylum when I calmly dropped all my four tickets into the box, not knowing that the conductor's frantic gestures were meant for me.

Welcome, Mr. Editor

It is with sincere pleasure that we welcome to our one of our conferees of Canadian campus journalism, Gary Bowell, editor-in-chief of the Queen's Journal. Mr. Bowell has been visiting the campus for several days and is acting as guest editor for this issue. The exchange of thought and ideas between the various Canadian campuses is one of the fundamental media of the C.U.P. as it works toward its main purpose of developing an inter-university unity, and with this in mind we are especially proud to present an editorial from the pen of Mr. Bowell.

Students In Wartime

By Gary Bowell
Editor, Queen's Journal

War conditions have effected a loosening of the visible bonds which united Canada's university population. The cessation of intercollegiate sports has done away with mass treks of football enthusiasts into rival strongholds. The pressure of added war activity is threatening the continuation of intercollegiate debating, dramatics, discussion groups, and allied activities. The only official aid representative national executive for students, the National Federation of Canadian University Students, has ceased to function. And so the bonds slowly disappear, at a time when they should be strengthened.

Beneath the superficial differences of campuses, lies a certain unity in student thought, problems, and activity. The war has increased the common problems to be faced, and weakened our joint ability to solve these problems. Illustrations galore can be chosen from the campuses of Varsity and Queen's.

Hypercritical and misinformed public opinion on student activities has increased tenfold since the war started. The local daily in Kingston has seen fit on two occasions to seize upon isolated incidents as typical of individual student mentality, going to the ridiculous extremes of drawing a comparison between students and "Nazi brutality" (regarding initiation) and criminal "slum mentality" (regarding an annual raid). We see by yesterday's Varsity that the same problem exists here. While students will always be the butt of ill-mannered press attacks, our point of view must be kept before the public in such a way as to show up unmistakably the inadequate grounds for most of these attacks.

At Queen's this term a feeling of animosity grew between soldier and student, through a mutual lack of understanding. This problem is being solved, happily, and one big factor in the solution was the offer to let the soldiers have the pool for an aquatic "fall in" once a week. The step to extend university facilities for the enjoyment and welfare of the troops is one which could be taken on many campuses. The improvement of relations between students, soldiers, and the general public would be greatly facilitated by this and similar measures.

Specific problems are often easily settled, and each campus handles its peculiar problem in its own way. But as yet little has been done to combat the growing isolationism of campuses. The Canadian University Press is functioning strongly in the Ontario-Quebec region, but less actively elsewhere. The Varsity is the president of the C.U.P., and the Queen's Journal is the secretary. These papers can render a great service if they are able to reflect student opinion from campus to campus and from campus to public more so than has been done in the past. And several immediate problems present themselves.

Perhaps the biggest question mark is the cessation of intercollegiate sports, a step taken at a time when it seemed likely that male membership at college would fall rapidly, and at a time when there was no presentation of student opinion on the question. Many of the arguments for the termination of sports this summer certainly do not apply now. Football matches are encouraged in England. What do the various campuses think on this problem? Does the general silence mean full consent?

Is the training program of all men at university smooth-functioning and adequate? Do the public know the extent to which war work is taking an increasingly large part of our time? These are problems which should be aired in college newspapers. Are the various drives for the Red Cross, for organized charities, for war relief funds, being handled in such a way that the Canadian student body as a whole is making the greatest possible contribution, or could the effect of such drives be heightened by inter-campus co-operation? All these questions, and many more should be discussed openly, in order that nation-wide student opinion can speak with a clear voice instead of a babel of many subdued voices.

Polls And Democracy

The Battle of the Buttons is over; the people, millions strong, have had their say; the tumult and the shouting dies, and in characteristic manner the United States is following up one of her most hard-fought elections with strong appeals for national unity. The world has witnessed the spectacle of democracy in action, the sight of a nation fiercely split over vital issues, but able once the decision has been made, to concentrate on its national unity with neither persuasion nor coercion. It is a natural process, natural to the democratic upbringing that is our heritage on this continent.

There is, however, one aspect of the whole election campaign which seems to hold a sinister portent for the future if the present appraisal of its function is correct. That dark shadow for the future of the democratic process, it is felt by many, is the rapid numerical growth of public opinion polls. In the past decade these polls have increased in number until they reached a position of too much importance in this recently-closed campaign. Some polls have been pretty close to the truth, notably the Gallup poll; others have been very far from it and were probably launched for the sole purpose of bringing publicity to the sponsor. The danger would appear to be that one or two recognized polls, gaining a degree of public respect and confidence, might become creators or moulders of public opinion rather than reflectors of it.

This danger is not as remote as it might seem on the surface, and it might very soon become a real factor. Some people have even suggested that it was an operating agency in this past election. That could only be decided, and then but partially, by a long study of day-to-day trends and figures. It is quite conceivable to see how a poll, claiming to represent the nation's opinion, could in turn sway the nation to its liking. Starting months before the election it could at frequent intervals announce that a certain candidate was gaining in nation-wide popularity. These regular announcements, supposed to be based on fact, could very easily influence people, even subconsciously, to get on the bandwagon and follow the favourite. And when the nation wakes up, it will find that several men running a poll have elected the President. Likewise opinion could be moulded on any vital issue of the day, even to the point of taking a fairly neutral country into war. Perhaps the picture has been too strongly shaded here, but many thinking people consider the danger within the realm of possibility, and it is a development which should certainly be carefully watched. It is without a doubt the most subtle way of moulding opinion, putting radio and the press to shame as propaganda agencies. As a reflector of national opinion, polls perform a worthwhile function; but if they lose their original purpose and become creators of opinion, they hold a serious menace for democracy.

Anna Kaskas

It would be difficult to imagine a more enjoyable way of passing an evening than in listening to Anna Kaskas. Miss Kaskas is lovely to look at and delightful to listen to; her whole program was absolutely flawless art. She possesses a rich vibrancy in her low notes and a delicacy in her soft passages which are unbelievable to one who has not heard her. I was prepared for something excellent, but I dared Freshman: I thought I would bring this thing into you now. I expect to be very busy during the next six years.

Editor: What's this? A biography card, Meds, eh. Right; we'll put it on file for the edition of 1934.
(Time changes to September, 1929)
Freshman (same one): I say, I've changed my course, I thought I'd better make the correction in my biography.
(Makes corrections)
Editor: Right. Changed to S.P.S., eh? We'll advance your card to the 1933 file.

Freshman (you guessed it): I've changed my course again so I thought I'd better make the corrections in my biography.
(Makes corrections)
Editor: Right. Changed to Pass Arts, eh? That means we leave your card in the 1933 file.
(And so on to September, 1940)
Sophomore (we fooled you that time!): I'd like to make a correction in my biography card. You see, I'm trying M. & P. this year.
Editor (pulling a very torn, tattered card from his file): Right. But I think we'll give you a new card altogether this year. I can't follow this one beyond 1935; it's too marked up.
Sophomore: O good. I was wondering where I would find space on this for the necessary corrections.

Sophomore (wearing XXth Century streamlined goatee): Young man, I've failed again. Give me my card so I can make—Editor (interrupting): —the necessary corrections. Why don't you give up. You were a freshman here with my grandfather; he's been dead ten years.
Sophomore: Give up, young man? Never. Not while there's one course left to try.
Editor: Is there one left?
Sophomore: Just one; it's new this year. Honour Hairdressing.
Editor: Honour Hairdressing? Where do you take that?
Sophomore: Whitney Hall. Zowie!

not expect such perfection as I heard. Everything Miss Kaskas sang was calculated to show off her marvellous contralto voice. Difficult passages were sung by a contralto with all the ease and grace of a coloratura soprano — the whole range of her voice is beautiful, high notes brilliant and low notes powerful. The exigencies of space are imperative tonight and forbid much mention of individual numbers; it was all perfect. Bach's If Thou Art Near, Arensky's Autumn, and her last group, especially Shmober Song of The Madonna by Michael Head were highlights on a program where everything was a highlight. The two Arias, Verdi's O don jalele from Don Carlos and one from La Cenerentola by Rossini were sung with tremendous power and deep feeling. All through the evening, Miss Kaskas matched her personality to her music, with the happiest results.

Mr. Schick, her accompanist, proved himself an artist in his own right with a group of numbers which he played superbly. Not a little of the delight of the whole evening was due to the subtlety of his accompaniments. It is a great pity that more musicians are not so fortunate in their choice of this too often neglected individual.

U.C. Gridders Outdrive S.P.S. 6-5

Red and White Gridders Upset Powerful Engineers

Hotly-contested Encounter Marks the Second Time that University College Have Come Through with Important Points on the Final Play, Repeating Vic Episode When They Tied 9-9 Last Week

U.C. WITHOUT SERVICES OF STARRY ALCOMBRACK

By Ed Nickerson

University College packed a game-winning wallop as they booted a single on the last play of yesterday's game at Varsity Stadium, in which they upset the powerful Junior S.P.S. squad by a slim 6-5 margin. This hotly-contested encounter marked the second time that the Red and White have come through with all-important points on the final play, having scored a touchdown earlier in the season against Vic to tie them at 9-all. Without the services of their star secondary player Al Alcombrack, the U.C. outfit relied mainly on a strong line, outplaying their opponents in this department, particularly in breaking through the School defence to block kicks at crucial moments. The Royal College team also displayed a diversified running attack, and were quick to capitalize on misuses by their opponents.

FIRST QUARTER

The first frame was scoreless, both sides playing evenly and feeling out the weak points in each other's defense. The tide of the game flowed and ebbed, but neither team was able to produce any pay-off plays. The kicking in this initial quarter was mediocre, and thus few gains of any size could be made.

SECOND QUARTER

In the second stanza U.C. started a concerted offensive drive and a forward pass from "Sonny" Nelson to McKinley put the School defenders in the shadow of their own goal-posts. A consequent fumble nullified their efforts momentarily. But a minute later Nichol broke through to block the Engineers' kick and "Sonny" Nelson grabbed the loose pigskin and ran fifteen yards for a touchdown.

The attempted convert failed to pass between the uprights, leaving the half-time score at 5-0 for the Arsmen.

THIRD QUARTER

The third quarter offered few good scoring chances, but Don Grosskurth featured with some fine plunging. Hal Axon of U.C. was a power of strength both offensively and defensively in this chunker.

FOURTH QUARTER

The School machine started to roll in the fourth stanza, with White chipping in with some great running, passing, and head-work.

With the ball at centre field White cut in on an extension play to gain twenty yards. On the next play White attempted a forward, but seeing an opening, he carried the ball for a twelve yard gain. U.C. were penalized five yards.

A White-to-Simpson forward gained eight yards, and a Henry-to-White forward put the ball on the U.C. one-yard stripe. Henry went through the right side of the line for the touch. The attempted convert was wide, leaving the score at 5-5.

Axon of U.C. recovered the ball on the kick-off. The Engineers' line held, but a subsequent short kick by the Schoolmen put U.C. in position for their game-winning single. The S.P.S. half tumbled the ball which rolled to the deadline as the whistle blew to end the game.

Franklyn, White, Henry and Grosskurth played heads-up football for the Men of Science. While Axon, Nelson, Essery and Nichol were good for U.C. Hal Axon, in particular, was in there fighting all the way.

U.C.: Axon, McKinley, Cutler, Hair, McDonald, Essery, Johnson, Nichol, Cameron, Zierler, Ferguson, McNulty, Faber, Nelson.

Jr. S.P.S.: Quittendon, Gow, Rowland, Hambley, Prentice, Kelly, Hamlin, McIntyre, Henry, Grosskurth, Rettie, Brennan, O'Donnell, Penoyer, Biggs, Simpson, Spence.

SPORT SPLASHES

By Doug Green

With the score tied at 15-all and only the final 200 relay left, the Jr. School and Northwood splashed to victory to relay team of Galan, Mueller, Gottlieb defeat Jr. U.C. by three points, the final score being 18-15. The meet took place yesterday afternoon in Hart House pool and was hotly contested. The Jr. U.C. squad of Beames, Balmer and Rotenberg, took the medley. Northwood of U.C. edged out Beames last year's intermediate intercollegiate record holder, in the back stroke. Then Jr. U.C. reversed the process and Balmer won the 50 breast with Rimmer of S.P.S. finishing second. Then Mott of S.P.S. won the 50 free and Balmer of U.C. finished second. Jr. U.C. have a dandy team but too much was left on the shoulders of a few and they tried in their final races.

In the second meet Vic showing unbelievable strength vanquished the star-studded Sr. School squad 21-12. Sr. School have John Girvan former intercollegiate record holder in the 200-yd. breast-stroke. They also have Bill Staples present intercollegiate champion in the 150 back stroke and other swimmers of fair speed.

Morrison of Vic defeated Staples in the 50 back and also won the 50 free in the time of 28.5 defeating his swimming mate Boville also of Vic who finished second. Girvan picked up the only first place for Sr. School outside of the 50 medley when he won the breast stroke but his points were almost equalled when Nixon nad Mantley both of Vic finished second and third. Vic finished strongly and their relay team of Nixon, Bchariell, Mantley and Morrison grabbed off an easy three points being offered little incentive by a tired School squad.

Vic seemed to have much more condition than when they were defeated in their first meet by senior Meds and ought to go far in this new interfaculty swimming set-up for this year.

FORESTRY BOXERS TROUNCE PHARMACY B

Piling up a commanding lead in the first three quarters, Forestry's lacrosse team coasted home in front of Pharmacy B yesterday in the big gym to win handily by a 7-2 count.

Pud Plutcock scored enough for the Woodsmen to ensure a victory, putting a trio of counters past the guardian of the Druggists' nets. Hope, with a brace of goals, along with one apiece by Bentley and Red Monahan, completed the scoring for the Men in Green, Martin and Mecklinger banged in both scores for the Pill Rollers.

Scoring three and two in the first half while the Druggists were held scoreless, Forestry's margin was never threatened. The Pestle Pounders got their first tally in the third frame, and the other in the final canto, at the same time checking the scoring rushes of Forestry at two goals in the third quarter.

A KILLER-DILLER, NO LESS

Don't be surprised if you trot into Varsity Stadium one of these days and find as you enter a member of the Intramural Committee passing out aspirin tablets or nerve pills to be taken near the end of the game.

Something of the sort is going to be needed soon if these photo-finish rugby encounters continue to leave everyone as breathless as we all were yesterday after U.C. had defeated the formidable Junior School squad.

Both teams were good, School looked particularly impressive in the early part of the last quarter as they began to roll up the field to cross the U.C. goal-line for a touch.

The first plunge from the one-yard line through centre was ruled void by the ref, but the second plunge in the same spot brought the Engineers a touch, and a chance to win the game on their convert. The placement attempt at a convert was taken from 'way back, so that the Red and White outsiders had to really sprint to rush the kicker; but Lady Luck was riding with the Arsmen, and the kick went wide for no point.

The task then facing both squads was to get that pigskin and score a point before the final whistle. The Royal Collegians elected to kick off, and booted one hard at the S.P.S. front wall. The oval bounded off the Schoolman's hands and was snagged by a U.C. man, thus giving U.C. possession in School's territory, a real break.

Crowded back to about their own five-yard stripe, the Engineers started to beat their way up the gridiron again, hanging on to the ball as they plunged for yards. U.C. helped this School advance a little with two offside by being over-anxious on the line.

It looked then as if the tilt would end in a deadlock, School, having been held successfully by a tightening U.C. line, were forced to punt. A swarm of Red and White players rushed in on the kicker, partially blocked his kick, and snagged the loose ball with seconds to go. Cuddy Faber kicked on the first down, the point was scored, and the rest was history.

And we do mean history. We have no knowledge of University College ever defeating Junior School before in any of their football encounters. The Red and White are feeling very happy about the whole thing, and so they should. But they are not kidding themselves that the Mulock Cup is already theirs. The victory today, as far as the statistics go, merely keeps them within hailing distance of Junior School, the leaders in Group I. The Engineers have tallied six points, the Arsmen five. Whether or not they will be undisputed holders of second place in the group standing depends on the outcome of the game between Trinity and Vic, whose winner awaits the decision of the Intramural Committee which is now considering the protest which followed the game.

Looking ahead in the schedule, U.C. still have two games to play next week, which are the last ones on the schedule, and have earned the title "crookshat encounter".

Stealing the Argo stuff, the Red and White yesterday featured a "Baby Backfield". In that backfield for the first time was Jim Bitove, a freshman who played last year on the Hot Riverdale team. Jim played a nice game in his first real test, and will likely prove to be a handy man in the backfield.

Injuries kept both squads from exerting their full strength in yesterday's classic. The husky Don Grosskurth, around whom a lot of the School plays are built, was sent to the sidelines with a slight concussion just when the Engineers could have used his marvellous ability to rally a team and start them clicking. Likewise, U.C. were handicapped by the temporary loss of Captain Tommy Jarvis, who had to suffer more mental torture on the sidelines as he held the watch as the seconds ticked away with the game still undecided. The most serious blow to the Arsmen was the loss, for the game, probably for the season, of the injured Al Alcombrack, whom this corner would unhesitatingly qualify as the best centre-secondary player to appear in interfaculty football this season.

SENIOR U.C. VOLLEYBALL ROLLS OVER SR. S.P.S.

A powerful Sr. U.C. volleyball team rolled over Sr. S.P.S. in the upper gym yesterday, winning the set in two straight games.

After being whitewashed 15-0 in the first set-to, the Engineers found their scoring punch and went on a one-point scoring spree which was nipped in the bud by the Red and White, who went on to take the second game at 15-1.

Sr. S.P.S.: Keller, Jaffe, Barry, Zuerrert, Stark, Pancer, Waite.

Sr. U.C.: Cowan, Lichtig, Fletcher, Kates, Tisdale, Hunter.

MACHINE NEEDS THOUGHT SAYS CATHERINE NICOLL

"Everybody admits the world is a great machine, but a great machine must have behind it a great mind," said Miss Catherine Nicoll, at the first of a series of noon-hour meetings in the Women's Union.

Miss Nicoll pointed out that the conversions of Paul and the woman at the well, and the transforming power of the Gospel in the lives of men, proves the existence of a supernatural power. "We exercise faith continually in our daily lives; why should we not apply the same principle in religion, and through faith gain an experimental knowledge of God's power as revealed in Christ," she added.

ST. MIKE'S VOLLEYBALLERS DOWN AERIAL NAVIGATION

St. Mike's B volleyball squad spotted Aerial Navigation a game lead in the upper gym yesterday and then came through in a garrison finish to take the set 15-11, and 15-9.

Mike Tuckeh was the mainstay of the Birdmen, but they lacked the necessary staying power to outlast the determined drive of the Irish, and weakened in the back and home stretch.

St. Mike's B: Sullivan, Cloonan, Foley, Flaherty, Casey, Barrett, Kelly, Burger.

Aer. Nav.: Luke, Tuckeh, Haber, Reilly, Schofield, Prince, Dodds, Buchan, Sheffield, Whately.

We feel that great was the injustice done in yesterday's column when above was given credit for the whole, while numerous of our starry reporters took part in the production of that masterpiece. Henceforth, we hope to have a column headed "Women's Basketball" which will be separate from this one, and which will be contributed to by our various hard-working sports reporters. This column will contain direct write-ups of games of the night before, and possibly any schedules we have to offer. Our column will comment on these and generally string you along—if we can.

Basketball has collapsed for the rest of the week due to exams of some sort going on at O.C.E. Therefore, for the benefit of all interested—every last one—we present the basketball schedule for next week's games and announce that all are welcome!

Monday at 6, Household Science vs St. Mike's; 7, Occ. and Physiotherapy vs Physical Ed; 8, Vic Seniors vs U.C. Freshies.

Tuesday at 6.30, Meds vs U.C. Seniors; 8, Household Science vs U.C. Juniors. Wednesday at 6, Vic Freshies vs Nurses; 7, Physical Ed vs U.C. Juniors; 8, St. Hilda's Juniors vs U.C. Freshies.

Thursday at 6.30, St. Hilda's Juniors vs Vic Seniors; 8, Meds vs Physical Ed.

No games on Friday, so we can all go to the Follies!

Practises, scheduled at O.C.E., will only be held if there is no game at that hour. Therefore, for this week, the only teams having practices at O.C.E. will be those who have reserved it for a practice bout at either 6 or 7 on Friday. Each day of next week we will night and we hope lots and lots and give the schedule for the games that lots of people will help us cheer just as loud and as often as they can. Please?

Fri. Nov. 15, 4.00, Sr. U.C. vs Sr. Vic, Morgan.
Sat. Nov. 16, 12.30, S.P.S. III vs Knox B, Funk.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 10

10.50 a.m.—University College S.C.M. church visit to hear Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath at Holy Blossom Synagogue on Bathurst.

AUXILIARY BATTALION

U. of T. Contingent,
C.O.T.C.

Orders

Major W. S. Wilson, E.D.
Acting Officer Commanding

Part I.
8th November, 1940.
(32) Remembrance Day Service Parade.

Both Battalions of the University of Toronto C.O.T.C. will participate in the Remembrance Day service of the Alumni Federation of the U. of T. to be held on the front campus, 11th November, 1940.

Both Battalions will form up on the front campus facing north, the C.O.T.C. Battalion on the right, and the Auxiliary Battalion on the left. The Band will form up between the two Battalions and will dress by the leading companies.

Officers, W.O.'s and N.C.O.'s will wear service dress. Greatcoats will be worn. Forming-up.

The Battalion will form up in close column of half companies.

One marker per coy, will report to the R.S.M. at 1010 hours at the North East corner of the Front Campus.

Other ranks will assemble on the west side of the campus on the roadway in front of Knox College. The parade will fall in on company markers at 1020 hours.

Two minutes' silence will be observed between the sounding of the Last Post and Reveille, during which the parade will be at attention.

Following the service the parade will march off in column of road, preceded by the band, easterly towards the East Gate of the University Grounds, along the road south of Hart House and past the War Memorial. The memorial will be saluted in succession by platoons.

March Past.

Following the salute to the Memorial, the parade will march past the saluting base in front of University College.

Forming-up after March Past.

Following the March Past the parade will proceed along the road surrounding the campus to the South side to a point in line with the left flank of the battalion in its original position in close column of companies.

The column will then proceed north along this line, each company wheeling to the right and taking its position in close column.

(33) Drill—Remembrance Day.

The regular parades will be held on Remembrance Day, 11th November, 1940.

(34) Battalion Parade.

The Battalion will parade on Saturday, 9th November, 1940, on the front campus. It will fall in on company parade grounds at 1345 hours, and will form up in battalion in mass at 1400 hours. A route march will be held and all men should dress accordingly. Officers will wear service dress.

(35) Band.

The Band will parade with the Auxiliary Battalion, Saturday, 9th November, 1940. It will fall in on the front campus at 1345 hours.

(36) Medical Examination.

A Medical Board will be held in the Art Room, Hart House, each afternoon next week, from 1600 to 1800 hours. Every member of the Auxiliary Battalion, although he may have a medical certificate exempting him from military drill, will be boarded in order to definitely determine his medical category.

"S" company will be boarded Monday, 11th November, 1400 to 1600 hours, by platoons. "W" company will be boarded Tuesday, 12th November, 1940, from 1400 to 1600 hours by platoons. Further schedules will be announced in Monday's orders.

Officers and N.C.O.'s of each company will assist the medical officers on the day of their company's boarding.

hither and yon

with h. dent hodgson

A few excursions into the city proper (Toronto the Good) have led us to the conclusion that the old metropolis is not without atmosphere. There once was a wealth of material for anecdotes, which, being about off-the-campus things, shouldn't be used in this column because they are really neither hither nor yon. But take the case of the newsboy with a consoling for instance, whom we ran across the other night: "PAYER! POIPUR! PIE-PAH!! he was screaming in fanatical newsboy style to the nearby empty street, "TURKEY TO ENTER WAR!!... at least," he added in scornful undertones, "dat's what dey say."

We are tramping home late one dark and stormy night not so long ago—as miserable a night, mind you, as ever these poor old eyes have seen—and have settled nicely into the silent gloom of the Yonge car, when who should come upon the scene but two inebriates, both in very obnoxious and indiscriminate moods. "Sit down!" one of them roars to the other raucously, and instantly the whole car pricks up its ears. And then, with glad abandon, the other proceeds to relate one of the shadier sorts of stories. Shocked, we look at the conductor: a little worried, he looks at the people in the car. They are obviously enjoying it, and reassured, he joins the laughter. Being at the back of the car, we couldn't manage to get the continuity, if any, of the tale, but it ranged from Queen to Bloor and from bad to worse: a positive orgy, with the conductor nearly rolling out of his cage and the most respectable-looking occupants in stitches. We can but shake our grey locks at such a demonstration. THIS, in Toronto The Good!

And this one happened at the Toronto Symphony. It was all over, and we were milling out with the rest of the crowd, vaguely picking up stray bits of symphony post-mortem from the city's elite. Most astute comment we heard crashed out of one of those sudden silences: "Evening gowns can be so disgusting!"

We go now, but not without a strong protest at the high-handed methods of a member of the Psychology staff, who, according to yesterday's Varsity, has been going around saying things like: "Reading The Varsity in lectures... or sleeping either, for that matter... is a Bad Thing, and should be discouraged." Were we one of those people who says "This sort of thing must stop," we should say it first—and loudest—about this sort of thing.

TENDENCY TO MELODRAMA DECLARES PROF. ENDICOTT

novels deal mostly with plantation life in the south, although some are about heroism and romances in the last war. Most of his stories are supposed to have taken place in a little village called Jefferson, a crossroads town, surrounded by pine forests, large plantation houses and the sheaves of the tenants. This description is almost identical with that of his own home in Mississippi, Professor Endicott said.

His stories are those of the settlers who came through the mountains in covered wagons with practically no earthly possessions, built small cabins and tilled the soil with endurance, rather than hope. One of his best known characters, a man past middle age, had established his farm on land purchased at one dollar per acre. He deals directly with the lot of the poor white settler and his mention of the negro is merely incidental, the speaker said.

Typical examples of the life at this time are to be found in "As I Lay

Students Will March In Ceremonial Parade To Honour The Fallen

St. Mike's Actors Play Three Nights In Work by Gheon

O'Donnell Directs, McDermott Stars in "Marriage of St. Francis", Produced in Collaboration with Girls' Clubs

FIRST IN TWO YEARS

Opening tonight at Hart House Theatre, the St. Michael's Players' production of "The Marriage of St. Francis", Produced in collaboration with Girls' Clubs will run for three consecutive nights.

The play marks the first time that the Players have collaborated with the students of Loretto and St. Joseph's Colleges in a dramatic production.

Based on the life of St. Francis of Assisi, the play has as its underlying theme the supremacy of the spiritual over the material order. Its author is Henri Gheon, celebrated modern French playwright.

Father Joseph O'Donnell, C.S.B., who directed the St. Michael's production of "The First Legion" two years ago, is also in charge of the present production. Thomas McDermott, IV Philosophy, plays the title role.

AUXILIARY BATTALION MEDICAL BOARD

All male undergraduates who were 20 years of age on July 1st, 1940, but who had not then passed their 25th birthday and who are not members of the C.O.T.C., but who, under the terms of the agreement between the Canadian universities and the Dominion government, are required to take training with the Auxiliary Battalion, C.O.T.C., will be examined by a Medical Board in the Art Room in Hart House, commencing Monday, November 11th, 1940, from 4 to 6 p.m., and each day thereafter for the remainder of the week between these hours.

COMPANY ARRANGEMENTS

"S" Company will report on Monday for a medical examination. Schedules for the examinations of the remainder of the Battalion will be announced in Battalion Orders. It is to be noted that every male student referred to above, whether or not he is in possession of a medical certificate certifying him to be unfit for military service MUST BE EXAMINED by the medical officers of Military District No. 2 in order that his medical category be definitely determined.

Students Express Satisfaction Regarding Neat Fit Of Uniforms

By Rex Wilson

During the week just past the C.O.T.C. drill hall at 119 St. George Street has been the scene of sartorial rather than strictly military activities. Thanks to the full time efforts of a whole squad of fitters, Headquarters are now able to inform The Varsity that all cadets have been outfitted with cap, blouse ("windbreaker" in civilian parlance), trousers, spats and gaiters.

Except for their band and a number of non-commissioned officers drawn from the C.O.T.C. at the commencement of the year's training there now remain only the Auxiliary Battalion to be uniformed. When their issue of battle dress will come through, Headquarters are unable to state. Whether the newly-appointed non-commissioned officers of the Auxiliary Battalion will be the next to forsake mufti is another question which cannot be answered at this time. Headquarters presume, however, that the new appointees will have to wait until the whole battalion goes into khaki.

Varied reactions and impressions were expressed by fitters and fitees.

"The sergeant's estimates of size are amazing," marvelled Gord Wood, II Victoria, from behind a well-thumbed copy of Infantry Section Leading, 1938. "He just looks you up and down and tosses you the garments—and he's

Faith Through Remembrance

Today the ghosts of the past are astir. Today countless numbers who would be living with us will leave the fields of tiny white crosses to take their unseen post beside unnumbered cenotaphs, in unnumbered churches, beside unnumbered living souls. Today we the living, who may yet die, pause briefly in the rush of life to remember the dead, the valiant hearts "who to your glory came, Through dust of conflict and through battle-flame." And as we remember, so also do we celebrate an armistice that was to have been a peace, an armistice that should have been a peace to commemorate the lives offered on the altar.

But today has more than ordinary significance. We must perform more than the mere remembrance and honouring of the dead. We must do more than celebrate an armistice. Engaged in another war that has made a mockery of that sacrifice twenty-one years ago, we must draw faith and inspiration from that great act. The torch, handed on so bravely and confidently, was allowed to fall by a succeeding generation the world over. It is our supreme duty to snatch it up and to carry it on high again, to bring to reality again the invocation of these famous lines of Varsity's John McCrae:

"Take up our quarrel with the foe;
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with those who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields."

Twenty-one years ago weary men straggled back from the battlefields. Behind them they left their comrades. They came back with the belief that their struggle and sacrifice had banished war from the face of the earth. But today war scars the earth again, and men go forth once more to fight for freedom and the cherished rights won through toil and blood and tears. On land, on sea and in the air the forces fight again and ranked beside them are the ghostly columns of those who

Newman Club Speaker Claims Science, Philosophy Should Unite

Speaking to a combined group of Arts and S.P.S. students at Newman Hall yesterday morning, Dr. Lawrence Lynch of the Faculty of the Medieval Institute, claimed that the liberal arts and sciences are "mutually completable and should dovetail together."

Dr. Lynch continued by stating that philosophers and scientists approach the same thing from different viewpoints but that there is no fundamental conflict between them. Each needs the other's conclusions to bear out his own. Dr. Lynch added.

Dr. Lynch outlined the philosophic background of the totalitarian state, which he ascribed to Kant and his disciples.

The speaker stressed the importance of the part played by mathematical and scientific systems in the regimentation of Nazi and Fascist societies, recommending that the philosopher and scientist collaborate in every case possible to prevent the growth of similar tendencies in our own society.

The occasion of the speech was Faculty Sunday at Newman Hall, when men in various professions come to speak to students of these professions. Other speakers were Mr. Justice McTague, who addressed law students, Rev. B. F. Sullivan, who addressed medical students, and Dr. Thomas Marsh, who spoke to students in dentistry.

Students Support U.B.C. War Drive To Aid Red Cross

"Caution Money will Help Fill Second War Chest as Vancouverites Plan Self-Denial Campaign"

MILE OF OIMES

By A. H. V. Backman

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 6 (CUP) — Filled with a desire to help the Canadian Red Cross in its $5,000,000 War Chest Drive Number Two, University of B.C. students today endorsed the Red Cross campaign of their Students' Council at the first special Alma Mater Society meeting of the year today noon. Over 1500 students, who packed the university auditorium for the most hectic AMS meeting since the suspension of the CSA, signed away all their returnable caution money to start the campaign rolling. By this method an estimated $2,000 has been earmarked for the first chapter in UBC's 1940-1941 Red Cross campaign.

(Each year the student is assessed five dollars "caution" money to cover breakages in laboratories and damages due to interfaculty riots and skirmishes. The balance, if any, is returned at the end of the year. In past years, however, student campaigns have been financed by the waiving of this caution money balance. Last year over 800 students signed an estimated $1600 to the Canadian Red Cross by this method.) SELF-DENIAL PLANS

In addition to this "precaution money" as it is called, the students plan a self-denial day, when all students will donate a nickel or a dime to the Red Cross instead of buying a coke or a package of cigarettes. Interfaculty, interfraternity, interclub rivalry is forecast to see which can deny the most. A barometer will probably be kept to indicate the daily donations of each group.

A Fraternity Ball, organized similarly to the President's Ball in the United States, has been suggested. So far the scheme includes only Canadian universities; but it is suggested that the event be international. The proceeds are to go to the Canadian Red Cross.

A Mile of Dimes, descendant of UBC's original mile of nickels campaign, which helped to build the Brock Hall, is also planned by the coeds.

Mixers, sponsored by the undergraduate societies on the campus, are scheduled to take place in the Brock Hall intermittently throughout the season.

The spirit of insisting on helping the local Red Cross to achieve a $600,000 objective in Greater Vancouver compelled the students to renounce the setting of any specified objective in their campaign. A proposed objective of $2500 was turned down without hesitation as students yelled "The sky is the limit."

All Men 20-25 Years of Age Face Final Medical Examination by Military Doctors This Week

ONLY C.O.T.C. EXEMPT

The largest mass medical examination in the history of the university will take place this week when 2,000 students between the ages of 20 and 25 will go through their final check-up to determine whether they are fit to take the drill prescribed. The examination will take place during the whole of next week at the Hart House Art Gallery, where twelve doctors from Military District No. 2 will be stationed. The men will be examined by platoons.

Excluded from the examination are members of the C.O.T.C. However, men possessing medical certificates declaring them unfit for military service must report for a final check-up this week, it was officially stated.

It was announced by Headquarters of the Auxiliary Battalion that all members would be credited in their drills for the time taken up by their medical examination.

McGill Cancel Annual Review

Students' Council Cancel Show as Most of Executive Now on Active Service; Others Inexperienced

INSUFFICIENT TIME

Montreal, Nov. 9. (CUP)—The Red and White Revue, largest annual musical show on the McGill campus, has been cancelled this year, following consideration by the Students' Executive Council.

Since most of the executive are now on active service, producer Bill Doherty and the rest of the executive had considered carrying on the show this year, while training a new executive to replace them when they too were called for duty. However, it was reported that this was found impractical.

In a letter to the president of the Students' Council, Doherty said in part: "We found that no one had sufficient experience either with the stage or with the business end to warrant our going on with it. It also was apparent that time for rehearsals, both for chorus and skits, would be difficult to find on account of the military activities of both the men and women students."

SYMPHONY TICKETS

A limited number of tickets to the concert of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra on Tuesday night will be available at student rates to undergraduate members of Hart House today at the Warden's office.

Originality Recipe For Success Given By America's Sweetheart

By Win Hillier

"Never copy anyone. Study other people, but always be yourself," was the recipe for success given us by America's Sweetheart as we talked to her in her box at the Varsity Stadium on Saturday afternoon. Due solely to the good offices of Alexandrine Gibb of The Star, we were able to sandwich an interview with the golden-haired Torontonian between interminable introductions, presentations, and autographs (for which The Varsity came to the rescue and loaned a pencil. Indeed, we offered a pen as well, but Miss Pickford exclaimed, "I always get ink all over things!"

After Controller Hamilton had presented her with the gold membership button of the Sports Service League, and, incidentally, obtained an autograph for "Fred Junior", another Pickford fan, Mary took another seven seconds to tell us about her myriad activities of cannot sleep beneath the waving poppies of Flanders. To them a great debt is owed; to us has fallen the responsibility of repaying the debt. And so for that reason today must be more than a day of casual remembrance. Today we must draw from the example of the past. Through remembrance we must gain faith and strength for the days ahead that the torch may not have been handed on in vain.

Man Of Peace

Circumstances often bring discredit to men, and for them time is the only corrective. Such a man as that was Neville Chamberlain who passed away on Saturday.

The sadness and torture that must have wrung his heart in the last year of his life must have been immense. After a long career of service Neville Chamberlain was called upon near the end to halt the mad march of the world toward war. Never was task greater and never was task taken up with less thought of self. A madman on the continent of Europe had unleashed the hounds of war. To Chamberlain fell the lot of leashing the beasts again, yet where was he to find the leash. He searched valiantly; he honestly felt in September, 1938, that he had found it; but the passing of a year revealed his failure and brought his work crashing to ruin. The grief at having to proclaim his nation at war after he had laboured so long for peace must have been heartrending.

Chamberlain has been criticized, abused, reviled. None of these did he really deserve. Britain was not ready for war in the fall of 1938 nor was her prospective ally, France. Flying the path of future death-laden bombers, Chamberlain went to Hitler in the interests of peace. On his return he waved a scrap of paper which promised, he claimed, "peace in our time." At any rate, war was averted for a year. Chamberlain knew Britain was not ready for war, but he did not seek merely a staying of the hand at Munich; rather, he sought and believed he had obtained a peace that might last. The peace did not last but it served its purpose.

When war came, Chamberlain, the man of peace, was not the man to lead the British people. In wartime many sacrifices must be made, not the least of which is the sacrifice of statesmen who have been too closely associated in the past with peace. Chamberlain passed from the political scene, worn and broken from the heaviest strain that has been placed on a single man in recent times. History will pay him his tribute, but in his heart he must know that the common people paid him his tribute that September that seems so long ago. The cheers, the hopeful faces, the prayerful smiles that sent him off from England, that met him in Germany, and that greeted him upon his triumphal return—these were his real tribute.

S.C.M. Campaign

In this day and age there is occasionally an unfortunate tendency to regard religious education as something useless, or at least as something that should have been left far behind in public school and Sunday school. Assuming that the average undergraduate has formulated definite ideas about religion by the time he reaches university, some people feel religious education has no place in the university scheme of things. This is just where the big mistake lies, however, for the average undergraduate, we feel, has not worked his religious ideas into any ordered pattern. Of course some have, but the majority are usually drifters — not atheists by any means as outsiders would like to believe — but just drifters, not quite knowing where religion fits into life's scheme, and not knowing how to fit religion into his or her own life's order. It is for this very reason that religious education has an important function to fulfil in the university. This function is being carried on at present by several groups to the full extent of their resources.

Today the Student Christian Movement, one of the two active religious organizations on the campus, launches its annual week-long drive for funds to carry on its work. Holding the conviction that Christianity is an active force in the world today and that it offers security in the midst of uncertainty and conflict, the S.C.M. is carrying on a comprehensive program of religious education in all colleges and faculties. It is supported by student contributions in the annual appeal and by large donations from outsiders who are interested in university youth and religion. The annual budget goes to meet salary, office and publicity expenses. The S.C.M. has two permanent secretaries at Varsity, and the S.C.M. of Canada maintains two travelling secretaries. The organization is affiliated with the World Student Christian Federation which has branches in over thirty countries.

Here on the Toronto campus the S.C.M. provides numerous regular discussion series on vital religious topics, relating them to immediate personal and general problems. It offers regular noon-day lectures by distinguished personalities in religious and public circles, and it holds regular worship services. The main purpose of the organization is the furtherance of the religious education of the student body. It is a purpose which is of inestimable worth and one which is deserving of student interest and material support.

Sunday Evening Concert

Last night's concert at Hart House was presented by Elsie Bennett and Madeline Bone. These artists have established a reputation in Toronto with their two-piano technique, and last night's concert gave ample reason.

Even with the growing wealth of excellent two-piano music, there is a tendency among duo-pianists to play fire-works rather than music. But Elsie Bennett and Madeline Bone showed clearly last night that they are interested in making music.

It is difficult to pick highlights in their well-balanced program. In the opening group there were two superb Bach pieces — a precisely sculptured Adagio, and the Fantasia and Fugue in A Minor in which one catches more than a glimpse of the sonorous organ work from which it was transcribed. The dance form predominated the rest of the program, ranging from Gossec's 16th century Tambourin to a formalized rumba by Milhaud. Lecuona's pulse-stirring Malaguena and the Minuet a l'Anico, by Seabock were most enjoyable.

The last group presented some interesting contrasts. Superficially, it was a Russian group. The first was the rousing Russian Sailors' Dance by the Frenchman Gliere. The second was O Night, O Love — a beautiful thing by Rachmaninoff, bearing the unmistakable mark of this composer's genius. The only typically Russian work was the Coronation Scene from Moussorgsky's Boris Godunov, which formed a colorful climax to the program.

Mendelssohn Choir

Marcia Davenport, eminent New York music critic, writing in Stage, classed the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir as the best in North America. Friday evening we were privileged to hear this organization, now taken too much for granted by Torontonians, in Massey Hall.

The greater part of the choir selections were patriotic. There'll Always be an England, in Dr. Fricker's arrangement, took on a new brilliance. Both this and Land of Hope and Glory were distinguished by glorious soprano descants. God Save the King and The Star Spangled Banner, for both of which the audience stood, were sung as unforgettable pieces of music rather than as a duty, diplomatic or otherwise.

Rose Bampton, soprano, and Arthur Carron, tenor, were soloists. They sang two arias each with orchestral accompaniment and for the encores, Sir Ernest MacMillan accompanied admirably on the piano. Both artists were good; however, it was regrettable that nothing was programmed for tenor, soprano, chorus and orchestra, when all were present.

The reduced Toronto Symphony played the first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony and three dances by German. Strings showed to advantage, as Toronto strings do, and the brass was much above average.

this instrument, yet the treatment given by Mr. Kash on the violin conveyed that wistful, charming atmosphere that is the essence of the piece. Likewise in Ibert's Little Donkey the mood of freshness and gaiety was expressed very musically by Mr. Godden and Mr. Kash.

In the second part of the program, which was a group of piano solos by Mr. Godden, I was particularly interested to observe the Robert Schmitz school of technique incorporated in Mr. Godden's playing. The main feature of this technique is rotary arm movement, and through this channel the player gives the feeling of immense and rhythmic pressure bearing down on the piano.

The Minuet from Ravel's Sonatina was particularly delightful with its modern harmony—certainly not harsh to the ear. The Rachmaninoff Prelude in E Minor gave ample display of Mr. Godden's fluent technique and impressed one, as does all Rachmaninoff's music, with its grand harmonies.

As Mr. Kash had announced in the beginning, their program started off with simple, unemotional works and grew in emotional complexity toward the end. The Bloch sonata, the final number on the program, was the complexity. It is a eulogy in music to the Jewish race. Its harmonies are vivid and its structure is massive and exceedingly brilliant. As one listens, there is a wailing and mournful cry that becomes somewhat oppressive in the last movement. It is a virtuosic sonata, both for piano and for violin, and Mr. Kash and Mr. Godden left no doubt in one's mind as to their ability to overcome the numerous obstacles that the composer has thrown in the performers' path, such as long skips, violent trills and impenetrable chords. It is a memorable contribution to modern music and was a very fine conclusion to a delightful hour's entertainment.

Ernest White of New York was the artist at this recital. ## ALCOMBRACK OUT

The gridders of University College, victors over the powerful School machine last Thursday, take on Trinity College this afternoon at 4.30 over in the Bloor Bowl.

If the Red-and-White-clad Artsmen can make their game a two-pointy in their favour, they will be sitting pretty at the top of the intercollegiate rugby heap. But the Trinity footballers are no push-overs. Last week the Anglicans conquered the heavy Vic power-house 13-12 on the final play of the game. With two teams who win games on last-minute dashes to the goal-line and victory, anything can happen.

As it stands now, the Engineers are lodged in top-spot with three wins and no losses for six points. With an equal number of games played, U.C. reside in second position with five points. Vic holds a one-point advantage over Trinity to occupy third place. By winning their remaining games, Vic can still make the playoffs, but these two games in hand are against their toughest opponents, U.C. and Junior School, whom they meet this week.

Al Combrack, one of the best defensive players in the league, will again watch from the side-lines, as also will Captain Tommy Jarvis, stellar performer at the outside wing position. Bill Hair, who turned in a nice effort against School, will again brace the forward wall. Outside of these changes the U.C. line-up remains intact.

Trinity's line-up will be the same as usual. Don Boxer will handle the quarterback post, Beefy McMillan will snap and Johnny Jarvis will take care of the kicking. Johnny Henderson, who substituted for Jarvis in one game and who is really unable to play, will not be in uniform.

KNOX SECONDS EDGE VIC
IN HOT VOLLEYBALL TILT

One of the most hotly contested volleyball tussles to date occurred on Friday afternoon on the upper gym floor when Knox Seconds, with the services of but four men, trimmed the University College Thirds 15-13 and 15-11 in the initial instalment and then staged The Theologs trailed by a 10-0 count a brilliant comeback to pull ahead and then take the second game handily.

SPORT
SPLASHES

By Doug Green

Three swimming meets were the order for last Friday afternoon in the Hart House pool. Dents won from Knox 21-12, S.P.S. Thirds from Emmanuel 20-13 and Jr. Meds finished on top by one point over Jr. U.C., the score being 17 to 16.

In the meet between Dents and Knox and the 200 relay, Brunton of Dents placed first in the 50 back and his team mate Clark won the 50 free. The one bright spot of the meet for the Presbyterians was when McGinnis finished out in front in the 50 breast, to win Knox's only first.

Emmanuel started strongly in their struggle with S.P.S. Thirds when their relay team of Green, Morwood and Jackson took the 150 relay. They kept up the good work when Green and Kaeltgen placed first and third in the 50 back, and when Morwood finished 2nd in the 50 breast, beaten out in a close finish by Payne of School. Rogers and Charde of S.P.S. finished first and second in the 50 free and the free style relay foursome of Payne, Kominsky, Hill and Rogers won a decisive victory over the winded Theologs to make the final score 20-13.

Junior U.C. versus Jr. Meds: Beames, Balmer and Rotenberg of U.C. won the first medal quite handily as Meds were obviously throwing this race in order to keep their men fresh for the individual events. The wisdom of this was apparent when Mendelsohn of Meds defeated Beames of U.C. (who had raced previously in the medley) to take first place and 5 points. U.C. kept out ahead however when Balmer and Rotenberg finished in front and behind Robinson of Meds, who came second. Then came the thriller of all the events when Robinson and Balmer, of Meds and U.C. respectively, churned up the water to tie for first place in the fast water of 27.3. This left the score 14-16, but Meds fought through to victory in the last event, the four-man relay, to win the meet 17-16.

VARSITY STADIUM GETS THE HOLLYWOOD TOUCH

A golden-haired little lady, still full of the quiet charm which made her "America's Sweetheart", unobtrusively entered the Stadium on Saturday afternoon and made her way to a box in the grandstand. We wandered over and were fortunate enough to have Mary Pickford tell us a few of her thoughts about sport in general and football in particular.

The only way we can think of to give a true impression of Mary Pickford is to repeat the adjectives "sweet" and "charming" before each mention of her name, so from now on please take the above adjectives "as read" in each case. A more courteous and considerate celebrity one could not hope to meet.

"This is the first game of Canadian rugby I have had the opportunity to witness in some time," said Miss Pickford in reply to our first query. Questioned as to whether she had any preference between the American and Canadian brands of the fall pastime, the Toronto-born star stated that she liked the Canadian game very much, and that in her opinion the sport as played on this side of the border had more interest. "In fact," she offered, "I don't see why the Americans don't model their football more on the lines of the Canadian rugby."

"Hockey is at present becoming very popular in the United States," Miss Pickford went on to say. "I am quite fond of the sport myself, and am very sorry that I shall not be able to attend tonight's match at the Maple Leaf Gardens."

The moment she stepped out on the field to make the opening kick-off, Mary Pickford captured the hearts of all the players and spectators, from Bill Stukus, who held the ball for her to the folks 'way back in Row Z of the bleachers.

Thanks for dropping in on us, Mary, and come back soon!

DOCTOR JACK MAYNARD—A TRIBUTE

At the President's Dinner for the Students' Administrative Council last Thursday evening, Dr. Cody told us in his speech of a message he had received recently from Doctor Jack Maynard, telling of young "Jock" Maynard who is now overseas with the Royal Navy. On that same night Doctor Jack Maynard died suddenly, and the university mourns the passing of one who was a fine athlete and a great man.

Immediately after the National Anthem was played at the opening of Saturday's game between Argonauts and Montreal, the spectators stood in silent respect to the memory of Doctor Maynard, whose funeral was being held that same afternoon.

Medical officer of the 48th Highlanders from the last war until his death, Major Maynard served in France as the deputy assistant director of medical services for the Fourth Canadian Division. But Varsity remembers him chiefly as one of Canada's greatest football players. Sportsmen and associates from military and medical circles, were present in Grace Church-on-the-Hill as the simple burial service of the Church of England was conducted.

As the crowd on Saturday stood with bowed heads and looked upon the field over which so many Varsity teams have played, many of the old-timers were remembering the days of 1910-13, when Jack Maynard was playing for the University of Toronto. He was captain of the 1911 team which won the Dominion title, and also of the 1913 squad, which lost out in the intercollegiate finals, to McGill University. After his graduation, Doctor Maynard coached several Varsity football teams.

To those of us who are of a later generation, there comes a different chain of memories. The name of Maynard brings to our minds the picture of young "Jock" as he was at Varsity. We remember a quiet, unassuming lad, who captained Varsity's intercollegiate hockey champions last year. We remember his clean and clever playing. Especially we recall the Friday night last spring when McGill lost the hockey title to Varsity after holding it for seven years. The boys on the team were naturally exultant at the glorious completion to an undefeated string of seventeen league and exhibition contests which had taken them on trips as far distant as California, then back through New England and the International Intercollegiate hockey circuit. Now the long grind was over, and they were tired and happy.

But while his team-mates were celebrating their victory, "Jock" Maynard quietly boarded a late train for Toronto, and after his arrival here the next morning sat down to an examination for the Putnam Prize in mathematics, emblematic of supremacy in that science in all North America. When the results were published, "Jock" Maynard led the winning Varsity team.

Young Maynard also won the Moss Scholarship last spring, and on his graduation received a commission in the Navy.

Doctor Jack Maynard has finished his course, having kept the Faith, and the highest tribute we can pay him is to say that the principles of scholarship, games, and Christian character, for which he nobly stood, are being carried forward by a worthy son.

ing, and that perhaps is the highest tribute which may be paid to this type of music.

Norman Minnoch more than made up for his vocal deficiencies by a scholarly musicianship in his interpretations. His Turn Ye to Me was one of the evening's highlights.

It is a pity that such an excellent performance should have been marred by the occasionally faulty pitch of the first soprano.

These slips (for that is all they were) were comparatively unimportant; the Oriana Singers should be highly honoured for their success in reviving this seldom-heard music.

Oriana Singers

It is a real treat to hear a program as refreshingly different as that of the Oriana Singers. This group sang part songs with all the purity, simplicity and vivacity which they demand. They sang not as five persons but as a cohesive group and their voices blended perfectly into one delightful instrument. Their rhythm, from the rumba of Warlock's Filium of Berry to Byrd's Lullaby was splendid. One felt more like singing with them than applauding.

SCORE 18-10

Minus the services of their regular goalie and two star performers, the Vic stickmen fell before the Junior School boxla artists, who assume top-spot in Group I, in a game staged in the big gym Friday afternoon. The score was 18-10.

The two squads had up to this contest, been deadlocked in first place, with two wins apiece, at the expense of St. Mike's and Pharmacy. The win did not leave any doubt about the rightful occupant as the Engineers ran the Artsmen ragged for three periods.

Frank Kellam won the game practically single-handed as he whipped in eight goals after stabbing rushes down the left side of the gym. Frankie Lewarne also turned in a smart effort, netting five goals. Jack Rankin nabbed a trio and Currie topped off the score with a brace of twine-bulgers.

Vic was severely handicapped by the absence of Al Cornish, Glen Munro and Patrick. They exhibited little combination and most goals resulted from solo efforts, Joe Casserley worked hard, potted a quintet. Cliff Lee was given little opportunity to use his wicked shot, but did manage to bag a couple, as did Al Farmer. Landell rounded out the score with his one.

Vic stayed even in the first quarter at 3-3. In the second chucker Kellam and Lewarne gave S.P.S. a substantial three-goal lead as the Scarlet and Gold failed to net. In the third stanza Vic was offered an opening when S.P.S. was handed a penalty. Farmer and Casserley scored, but so did Kellam. After that brief interlude the Engineers ran wild, made it 12-5 at the end of the canto, and though Vic tried hard in the last period, managed to outscore the Artsmen 6-5.

Co-op Residence
Holds Annual Tea

Friends and guests of the Campus Co-operative Residence of the University of Toronto were welcomed at the annual house tea on Sunday. This tea marked the fifth season of operation for the residence, and was attended by President Cody, heads of the university faculties, and the acting warden of Hart House.

The tea was held in the newly-acquired residence of the Co-operative at 186 St. George, and guests were welcomed by Professor and Mrs. D. G. McCullagh, Don and Hostess of the group. Residence members conducted all visitors through the new house and pointed out its features as an establishment on co-operative principles.

nearly always right."

"The sergeant is good," conceded a fourth year Law man who wishes to remain anonymous, "but he allows for a lot of waist."

The sergeant himself merely credited the cadets with being standard sizes. For some unorthodox shapes special uniforms have to be ordered.

One item for which the amazing fitters do have to ask the size is the cap, field service. A story is told of the cadet who, when asked, "Cap?" replied with some surprise, "Sure!" Another story which is going the rounds concerns the little man who was put into a six footer's "rompers" by mistake and cried loudly in great confusion for his mother from the top of a table in the drill hall.

Bob Latimer, II University College, took a practical view of the situation. "These uniforms certainly save wear and tear," he approved. "But the cut of military trousers doesn't please him. 'They're cut so high that if you wear a belt you strangle yourself,' was his complaint."

"They're very durable," confirmed Jim Pepino, II S.P.S. "In fact," he added, "some of the fellows are wearing the moment. She has no longer time for her own business projects, since there are "all sorts of civic things . . . war relief, the Red Cross, Community Chest work, Bundles for Britain, Love Thy Neighbour, a radio program for getting jobs, Nobody's Baby, another program to help orphans, and the Salvation Army drive for refugee work," of which Miss Pickford is the Los Angeles chairman.

Originality Recipe For Success Given By America's Sweetheart

At this point, the Air Force marched past, and Mary exclaimed with enthusiasm, "They're fine looking boys!" Then came more autograph-seekers, but finally she turned back to tell us about the metaphysical novel she plans to write in the near future. "Our Mary" is very much interested in "all philosophy" and divides her reading moments between it and autobiographies, of which her favourite is that of Benvenuto Cellini. "Then, there are the lives of Lincoln and Napoleon." At that moment there appeared the man who used to sell flowers across from the Armories when Mary was a little girl, living on University Avenue.

Mary was delighted, and spent some time reminiscing about old dwellers in the district. We caught snatches of "I suppose Mr. Ryan has been gone a long time", and "Oh that George White. I didn't know he was from Toronto" (this, after mention of the Scandals producer). Then there was the old neighbour who "always said my name was Becky Goldstein, and not Smith at all," Mary recalled, laughingly.

Finally came her advice to the college student with dramatic ambitions. "All study is wonderful, I think, but the best experience is in stock companies, and little theatres all over the country. I myself played in stock here in Toronto at the old Princess Theatre." At the age of eight Mary's career called her to the States, but she came home frequently until she was fourteen. "That summer I went into pictures, and didn't come back to Toronto again 'til I was really established in Hollywood."

As to the possibility of another picture Miss Pickford is uncertain. "I've got so far away from it now."

But at this point Toronto's Sweetheart was spirited away to make the kick-off, amid Argonauts, cameramen, and City Fathers. Later we saw twenty-seven worshipping small boys, converging upon her from all directions, armed to the teeth with pencils.

THE BOYS AT THE VARSITY NIGHT OFFICE are a gay and carefree crew, and do not, at all times, watch their language very closely. This sometimes leads to minor mishaps, as on Thursday night. The phone rings and one of the boys leaps to it. A voice says to him, "Hello". The Varsity man is greatly surprised, because he mistakes the voice for ours, and we had been night-editing the evening previous. So he remarks, "Hello, old man. And why the hell aren't you in bed?"

"Naturally, we were in bed, and we need hardly add that the voice belonged to a VERY IMPORTANT PERSON INDEED."

IT COSTS at Bucknell University 63 dollars and 43 cents for a co-ed to prepare for and attend a formal dance.

On the other hand, it costs a man a scant 26 dollars. . . . Oh well, we didn't really want to go to a formal dance at Bucknell anyway. . . .

WE LEARN WITH DISGUST of an incident which involved a particularly revolting Trinity man one day last week. Seems he was driving a pair of delectable St. Hilda's freshies along in his super-charged limousine, all of a sudden the party decided they were lost. . . . So the Trinity man averred that he would seek information from the first passerby. They waited. It was some time before another car approached. The occupants of the first car took a new lease on life. Now they would learn where they were and how they could get from there to some place else. (The younger generation is so restless.) The Trinity man prepared to hail the oncoming car, and stuck his head out the window. It came alongside, and at the wheel was another gorgeous gal. . . . Did the Trinity man say "Stop!" No. He said merely, "Hi, Babe!" . . . So they settled down in the cold to wait for another car. . . .

STRANGER THAN FICTION

DEPT. . . . Louisiana State's Daily Reveille points out that the first number drawn in the recent United States draft lottery was 158; the first letter of the alphabet is A, the fifth E and the eighth H. . . . which stands for Adolf Emanuel Hitler. . . . We knew it was fixed.

Having completed his toilet this casual customer then unplugs the razor, and strolls blandly away. . . . FADEOUT.

Chucklets

By Chuck Graham
A C.U.P. Feature

Anti Co-ed!

Right here we're scriving warning that this week's column will be definitely anti-co-ed. Views expressed are not necessarily those of the C.U.P. They ARE Chuck's views.

All women are gold-diggers.

Last week we very foolishly took Jezebel to a commerce dance. Ever since then she's been going out with one of those future millionaires.

Ah, female of the species, perfidiousness is thy cognomen!

Knee Sox . . .

Kipling said, "There was a fool, and he made his prayer to a rag, and a bone, and a hank of hair." He was talking about a woman, of course.

Nowadays we might paraphrase that, "There was a fool who thought co-eds look swell. In knee Sox, we think they look like h—"

Roberto, our paranoic friend, actually does like knee Sox on girls. It is hardly necessary to add that he is one of a very small minority . . . we can back that up with evidence:

Eighty-four per cent of the people quizzed in the Dalhousie Gazette's "Third Estate" (including both men and co-eds) were dead against the things with such comments as "They ain't got oomph!", "They're ghastly things!", "They make most girls' legs look like beer barrels."

Comments made in a similar quiz conducted by the U.B.C. Ulyssey range from "The girls look as though they had gaposis of the silks!" and "The Knobby Knee in the naked state is not beautiful!" to "They're adorable!"

comment by a co-ed—who was wearing a pair, and therefore prejudiced. Another voice crying in the wilderness.

As for McGill, perhaps we better let Mumbling Minnie of the Daily speak for herself:

"Girls there are many—with sense, but a few;

Three-quarter length socks are not for you;

50 per cent are not the type, it may be collegiate. But flattering? Triple!"

Ah well, perhaps we're prejudiced. Jezebel used to wear them.

The Soldiers' Tower--- Still Centre Of Interest In Remembrance Rites

Built Shortly After Last War, by Alumni Association, the Tower Has Featured All Nov.
11 Ceremonies

INTERIOR DESCRIBED

By Edgar Simon

Centre of interest in yesterday's Remembrance Day ceremonies, the classic grey outline of the Soldiers' Tower has dominated such scenes since its erection in 1921.

Measuring 143 feet to the top of the pinnacles, the tower is constructed of the same materials as is Hart House—Georgetown sandstone for the rubble stone and grey limestone imported from Indiana for the cut stone work.

The tower is under the charge of the University of Toronto Alumni Federation, which raised the money for its erection, partially by public subscription and partially by the conversion of a fund which had previously been intended for the benefit of returned soldiers.

Entering the tower by the little door facing the back campus, one ascends a steeply winding stairway for a considerable distance—75 steps in all—before achieving the first level. Here is situated the carillon, the gift of graduates, students and friends of the university in memory of students who gave their lives in the last war.

The carillon was installed by Gillett and Johnston of Croydon, England, and dedicated October 7, 1927, on the occasion of the Centenary Celebration of the university. One of the 23 bells of the carillon contains a portion of the

Mary Carter Leaves Vic Drama

Acting on her physician's advice, Mary Carter, who in the past two years has held several important posts in student organizations of Victoria, has found it necessary to resign her position in the Victoria College Dramatic Society. She also must give up her leading role in the club's coming production, "Family Portrait", it was learned.

Miss Carter was to have been secretary of the Vic Dramatic Society for the coming season. Last year she was very active in college dramatics and played the role of Emily Webb in the society's presentation of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town".

Succeeding Mary Carter in the role she abdicated in the coming production is Phyllis Mackenzie of second year Victoria. Director of the play, W. S. Milne, has expressed himself as being very pleased with Miss Mackenzie's acting ability.

Victoria Debaters Challenged By Western, Queen's and Others

As prelude to a busy season, the Victoria College Debating Club is preparing for its first big debate of the year. On Monday, November 18 the matter to come under discussion will be "Resolved that this house is of the opinion that the Russo-German pact constitutes an armed alliance for joint aggression."

Plans for the immediate future also include verbal clashes with solons from Trinity and University Colleges.

Up to the present time, the Vic Parliament has been swamped by the number of challenges from debaters of other educational institutions. These include Queen's and Western Universities as well as two American universities.

Prof. Hocking Speaks On Religious History And "Rights Of Man"

"Religion belongs to the realm of passion and feeling. It is man's eager quest for what life has in store for him," said W. E. Hocking, professor of philosophy at Harvard University, in the first of two talks given at Victoria College on "The Bearing of Christianity on Western Civilization." In his first address, Professor Hocking spoke on the relation of religion to law, while in the second, he will discuss the bearing of religion on science.

In introducing the subject, Professor Hocking brought to the attention of the audience the fact that many in the world today believe that religion has done its work and is of no use in the ### Major Wilson Is Promoted To Lieut.-Col.

Appointment to Command of
U. of T. Contingent C.O.T.C.
Training Centre is Confirmed by Headquarters

ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY

Major W. S. Wilson, E.D., secretary of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, has been appointed to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, it was announced yesterday. He is to command the University of Toronto Contingent C.O.T.C. Training Centre.

Lieut.-Col. Wilson started his military career as a rifleman in the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada in 1913, and after serving for over two and one half years in that regiment, was commissioned in the thirty-first Grey Regiment, Owen Sound. He was appointed a Lieutenant in the 147th overseas Br. C.E.F. (British Canadian Expeditionary Force) in Feb. 1916 and proceeded to England with that unit.

He then joined the 38th Br. C.E.F., 12th Brigade, 4th Division, in France, Dec. 1916, and served with that Battalion until demobilization in July 1919.

In 1927 he joined the Canadian Officers Training Corps and for the past five years has been second in command of the corps.

Master of the Bells in Soldiers' Tower Since 1931 Studied Abroad; Has Long and Varied Experience

PRACTICE A PROBLEM

Ring the morning school bell at the age of 10 was the beginning of a career for J. Leland Richardson, present master of the 23 bells in the Soldiers' Memorial Tower.

Since 1931 the tall, distinguished-looking carillonneur has been mounting the tower's long circular staircase several times a fortnight to produce sonorous harmonies from the intricate keyboard controlling the bells above.

Into his music Mr. Richardson weaves his own interpretations, improvising as he manipulates the two rows of hand keys which represent the black and white keys of a piano keyboard and the complicated concave pedal board. Playing as he does to the "man in the street", he prefers to render only well-known compositions, he said in a recent interview.

So strenuous is the effort required to play the instrument, that a large electric fan must be kept running constantly in the control room. For cold, winter days, however, the chilly tower is kept warm by steam heating apparatus.

The variety of music which can be played on the carillon is limited due to the instrument's range. The lower tones, requiring greater pressure, are played with the feet, the others are

Sole 'Conchie' Is Suspended From McGill

Action Taken by Senate After Special Committee Renders Decision on Case of Prominent Artisan

UNDER MILITARY AGE

Montreal, Nov. 11 (CUP) — Claiming that compulsory military training was opposed to his religious principles, Gordon Stewart, Arts II, sole "conchie" at McGill University, was suspended yesterday by the Senate until he agrees to abide by the regulations.

The case was handled by university authorities since Stewart is 19 and under military age. It was discussed by a special military committee of McGill and referred to the senate for action, which it took in a special session.

The action was based on a regulation providing suspension for students refusing to take military training, authorities regarding this as akin to physical training. Stewart, when reached last night, had nothing to say at present. Only conscientious objector at McGill, he is a prominent member of the McGill Debating Society and president of the Arts undergraduate debating society. His suspension holds until he agrees to abide by regulations.

DIRECTORY GOES ON SALE ---IS STUDENT DATE BOOK

It's out! Yes, at long last the university directory goes on sale today. If you have already registered at Simcoe Hall you will find your name in print on one of the numerous pages. According to the directory there are less students registered this year than last. There were 7,202 in the directory last year and only 7,071 in this issue.

The Faculty of Arts is by far the most popular faculty on the campus with an enrolment of 3,602. Aerial Navigation has all of 49 in the directory. There is one lone person enrolled in the course of Master of Laws. There are 23 girls enrolled in the Physical Education course.

The university has students from the four corners of the globe. They come from such places as Bahamas, British West Indies, Hong Kong, Poland, England, Brazil, India, Scotland and Portugal. There are seven Norwegian Air Force men in the Faculty of Medicine.

Such towns as Penang, Singapore, Kilauea, Dixie, South Porcupine, Chicou-timi, Swift Current and Unbridge boast native sons at the university. The States are also well represented with Rochester, New York, leading the group. We draw students from places like Omaha, Neb., Corona, N.Y., and even the big town of New York sends us one of its sons.

After long research it was discovered that in the first year of the Faculty of Arts there are but three Joneses and only six Smiths. A few other names worth notice are the Misses Virtue and Mutchmore and a fellow called Janfranceschi who is seconded by Stokalo and Schondlenmayer. The trio of the Misses Argue, Argument and Armour should meet. Mr. Bigman and Mr. Stonehouse might get together and build a Pen for Mr. Fox. These names and many more adorn the pages of the directory so get yours now and save your shirt cuffs. And if you don't know her number look it up in the University Directory.

Thousands of Students Participate in Indoor Ceremony Led by President Cody at Convocation Hall

PARADE DISMISSED

Driven from the campus by rain, students who gathered on the front campus for the Service of Remembrance and Dedication yesterday re-assembled in Convocation Hall to hear President Cody pray that "we may have faith to look beyond the troubles of the present time," and that "justice, mercy and righteousness may triumph."

Changes in plans were made only half an hour before the scheduled time for the service, and the rain-soaked trainees dismissed, then found places in Convocation Hall. The galleries were packed with khaki-clad members of the Auxiliary Battalion, and co-eds.

Guest of honour for the occasion was the Honorable Hugh Rose, Chief Justice and President of the High Court of Justice for Ontario, a graduate of the University of Toronto, and now member of the Board of Governors.

In the last-minute rush, Dr. Healey Willan, professor in the Faculty of Music and university organist, was secured to play.

Also on the dais were other members of the Board of Governors as well as members of the staff and S.A.C.

Secured as organist during the last-minute rush was Dr. Healey Willan, professor in the Faculty of Music.

Bagpipes sounded the Last Post and Reveille before and after the two-minute silence was from the Forty-eighth Highlanders.

The entire service was in charge of the Alumni Federation of the university. A half-hour carillon recital was given by J. Leland Richardson prior to the service.

SR. U.C. VOLLEYBALL SQUAD CONQUER SR. MEOS TWO GAMES OUT OF THREE

The senior volleyball teams of Meos and U.C. played three games yesterday in which U.C. came out on top in the final two. The scores were, in the first game, U.C. 3, Meos 15; in the second game, U.C. 15, Meos 4, and in the third and last game, U.C. 15 and Meos 10.

The Arts team couldn't do anything right in the first game, scoring only three points, and reversed the procedure in the next two when they could hardly make a mistake, sweeping the match with loads of room to spare.

Sr. U.C.: Axon, Kates, Fletcher, Hall, Hunter, Tisdale, Lichtig.

Sr. Meos: Levitt, Floren, Freedman, Winter, Steiner, Evey, Lax, Zagalsky, Feinberg.

RE PHYSICAL EDUCATION COURSE

There are six gentlemen wandering about the university who are the first men in Canada to register in the degree course of Physical Health and Education. They are Cliff Ballagh, Sam Stellman, Bruce Norman, Joe Gibson, Lorne Clayton and Carroll James Patrick McNulty.

They are the nucleus of a new experiment, a long-range scheme which has been a long time in coming. It is a three-year course and when these men are finished and are proud possessors of their degrees they will be qualified to teach Physical and Health Education to those world at large.

The second and third years of the course deal, to a considerable extent, with applied physiology, functional anatomy, mental hygiene, health assessment and promotion of health and other subjects of a similar nature.

The only other course in the Dominion that may be compared with this one is a two-year diploma course at McGill University.

After getting this degree in Physical Health and Education, if any one of these six gentlemen decide to teach public or secondary schools they can hire themselves to the Ontario College of Education for an extra year and thus become qualified.

This course is the result of a growing emphasis on physical fitness and it is hoped that it will provide the means of getting people to think along the lines of Physical Education. These six men could be considered in the light of agents whose mission is to present Physical Education to the public and especially to the younger element so that they may become physical education conscious and spread the gospel to their parents who get most of their exercise by watching hockey, rugby and tennis matches.

To look at the question as far as the present is concerned Physical Education should provide a splendid vehicle with which to launch a national preparedness scheme.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN—

Those of you who are interested in joining the life-saving classes should enrol before November 15th, for you will not be allowed to enter the classes before that date.

LESSON SIX—

If anyone had come up to us and said, slapping a paternal palm on our shoulder, "I hope your lesson six is a good one", or some such other drivel, we would have deliberately pulled out our teeth and laughed one of those hollow laughs. For who would have ever expected to reach that exalted and most delightful position. To be perfectly frank we thought it would never come.

But it did. And what is more important still, we made a lot of enemies to boot. People we hardly knew would come up with a sneer on their lips and murder in their hearts and say, "So you're the lug who tries to put peaceful, law-abiding students in condition?" "Then why," they invariably add, "don't you get rid of your own corporation?"

Whereupon we are immediately abashed, besides other things, and make superhuman efforts to act nonchalant. Realizing all the while of course that we are irrevocably wrong and thus look for stray corners wherein to hang our head in shame. For this sixth and final lesson we have decided to tender some general advice. Don't stand out in the rain on a day like yesterday because (a) You're liable to get very wet, (b) You're liable to catch you're death of a cold, and (c) it just ain't good for you—dat's all.

N.B. It is our sincere desire, as well as yours, that we never never attempt any lessons again. Simply because THIS SORT OF THING MUST STOP.

LACROSSE DOUBLEHEADER IS LOWER GYM FEATURE

Pharmacy A Team Humble St. Mike's by a 14-7 Score in Hart House Yesterday Afternoon

JEFFERS AND LEE SHINE

Pharmacy A defeated and doubled St. Mike's in a fast-moving lacrosse tilt by the score of 14-7 in the main gym of Hart House yesterday. The pill-pounders wreaked havoc with the Gael net in the second quarter by slipping in six markers in the single frame.

Chief stickmen for the Druggists were Jeffers, who got six goals, and Lee, who nicked the twine for four. Cassidy got five goals for St. Mike's with Fitzpatrick accounting for two.

Pharmacy: Harkness, Boyes, Jeffers, Lee, Jardine, Quick, Hall, Thompson, Jones.

St. Mike's: Cassidy, Gregson, Fitzpatrick, Hector, Buckley, Bennett, O'Sullivan, Morrison.

DENTS A DEFEAT MEOS IN VOLLEYBALL CONTEST

Dents A smashed out a two-game volleyball victory over Meos three times in the upper gym yesterday afternoon. The scores were 17-15, and 15-7. The Dentsist outfit started slowly, but when they began to roll the lads were irresistible. They pulled out from behind in the first game, and knotted the score at 15-15. Then with two savage spiking jabs the tech-tuggers won the contest.

Dents drove to the fore in the second of the best two of three set, and stayed in front taking the match by eight points. Jack Mullett played a fine game for the winners.

Dents A: Snyder, Brett, Smythe, Bullett, Sproule, Elliott.

Meos III: Herman, Milrod, Goldenberg, Rother, Caplan, White, Rotenberg, Heyers, Colmer, Harnick.

Emmanuel Win 10-4 Decision from S.P.S. Thirds with a Five-Gal Rally in Second Quarter

FENNELL SCORES FOUR

Hard-fighting, speedy Bill Fennell carried Emmanuel to a triumphant march over S.P.S. thirds in a lacrosse contest in the lower gym yesterday afternoon. Fennell scored four of his team's goals as they swept to a 10-4 win.

The theologs cut loose with a ravaging scoring spree in the second quarter surging from behind a 2-1 deficit to a 6-3 lead, a margin which they never relinquished.

Emmanuel picked up four more counters in the final half, holding their opponents to a mere one. Tom Jackson, Pritchard, and Rutherford each added two goals to those Fennell scored, thus completing the ten. McKennitt was a tower of strength on defence for the victors.

Kelley led the Engineers with two goals, while Forbes and Forestell each bagged one.

Emmanuel: Patterson, Fennell, Jackson, Pritchard, McKennitt, Rutherford. S.P.S. III: Forbes, Brennan, Forestell, Kelley, Grosskurth, Biggs, DeMarco, Willmott, Lewis, Marice.

ST. MIKE'S WIN, 38-6

In a scrappy basketball game, at O.C.E. gym last night, St. Mike's took Household Science to town, by the score of 38-6, at the six o'clock clash.

Annabelle Macklin and Kay Brydon kept the scorers busy, gaining 18 and 15 points for St. Mike's. Winifred Moser played a steady game on the defence for the "cooks".

Jr. School Tackles Vic In Vital Gridiron Battle

Group-Leading Engineers Can Clinch First Place by Defeating the Scarlet and Gold Today

TO CLASH AT STADIUM

The group-leading Jr. S.P.S. football squad go into their second last scheduled game at the stadium tomorrow afternoon against the third place Victoria outfit. The time is 4.30.

By taking this contest the Engineers can clinch first place in their group and insure themselves of at least a semi-final berth in the Mulock Cup playoffs. If Victoria can win they will go into a second place tie with U.C. The first and second teams in this group together with the outfits winning the other two groups comprise the four playoff teams. So the second rung is nearly as desirable as the first in this group.

In their last two games the Scarlet and Gold have been a great 59 minute team, and then faded miserably, although spectacularly, in the final 60 seconds. By utilizing this unique method of retreat Vic have come from in front to lose one game to Trinity, and drop to a 9-9 tie with U.C. And this after they had rolled to a comfortable lead during the routine 59 minutes.

But coach Bernie Taylor and manager Jack Brown have been chasing their squad through some pretty tough workouts during the past week and expect them to last for the extra few seconds tomorrow. If they can uncover a pass defense they might do just that. School, however, may have something to say about it themselves. The Tolkies are still smarting sharply from the defeat, their first of the season, which they suffered last Thursday at the rough hands of University College on the last play of the game.

The Blue and Gold boys are determined to place their lead out of reach of the grasping claws of the Royal College crew. And a win in this game will do it for them.

ST. MIKE'S SWIMMING—

Following report for meet on Wednesday at 5.15 p.m.: Bennett, Crane, Dunn, Flaherty, Kieffer. All others prepare for time trials and practice of near future.

Despite the evidence of scores, last night's three games were not such hand-slides as you might guess. Seems as if experience is the best lesson and, though beaten in score, we noticed an honest-to-goodness improvement in the play of the losers in each case and the finals, coming up soon, promise to be real stuff.

The St. Mike's-Household Science game seemed to be a bit on the sloppy side, but St. Mike's, through the flashy play of Annabelle Macklin, were definitely winners this win. However, Household Science put up a battle and are not to be relegated to the nobody list.

O.T. & P. trounced Physical Ed all right all right, but not before the P.T. feds had their say. The first part of the game found O.T. & P.'s wondering just where these lowly surprises were. The score in their last encounter was so definite, they thought they wouldn't have much trouble, but Physical Eds just don't play that way! However, we predict O.T. & P.'s to make a play-off berth at least, this season, and they deserve it!

But the real orchids go to that spunkiest bunch of kids we've yet come across — the U.C. Freshies. A team who can go down to defeat to the stroke of 41-2 and still hold the respect of their opponents is O.K. with us, and that's just how 'twas. There was never a moment of doubt as to the outcome of that game, but five minutes before the final whistle blew, those peppy kids were in there fighting as if the score was 0-0 and the game just beginning.

This does not slur Vic — so help us it isn't meant to anyhow. They one and all deserve to win — a nater playing team we are still waiting to see. They've got what it takes.

U.C. B.W. & F.—

All interested meet at boxing room at 5 p.m. for organization.

which disappeared during the course of the evening, disclosing a scintillating metallic voice, delightful despite its harshness.

The Jewish and Hebrew group showed the soprano at the height of her powers. This music has a strange appealing quality unfamiliar to the majority of music lovers. Adarin, by Chisley, ran from gay rhythmic passages to slow and solemn incantation of the song's title. Dremlender Ingle, by Jasnowsky, was an exquisite reverie. It would be a happy innovation if more artists would venture into such neglected works in this and other fields in the realm of song.

The soprano aria, Il est doux, il est doux, from Massenet's Herodiade is overworked. This was by far the best of the three performances it has had in the last week and a half by visiting artists. The other French songs, Les Berceuses by Faure, and Duparc's Chanson Triste were sung with a depth of feeling unobtainable in a voice of hard timbre. Throughout her program, Mme. Lazaroff Schaver made up for any vocal deficiencies by her interpretive skill.

In English, a seldom sung aria by Handel, Oh Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me, did not fare so well, for it was near the beginning of the recital, but the two Negro Spirituals and modern works by Charles and Kernochan again were most impressive.

pounded out with drenched fists, but as with the piano a definite touch for expression is essential.

The two lowest semitones are omitted in the Soldiers' Tower carillon as in most others. These are the lowest and costliest bells and were omitted because it was felt that their cost was much more than their musical value warranted. Largest of the tenor bells in the tower weigh four and three-quarter tons; the smallest treble tips the scale at 235 pounds. Carillon and clock are the gifts of the Alumni Association and the university. They were placed in the tower in 1927 at a cost of $35,632.70.

Practice on the big bells is necessary, but it is hard to find an appropriate hour. Consequently it is done usually between 6:30 and 7:30 in the evening, when it will least conflict with other campus activities. Mr. Richardson explained.

After his apprenticeship as a ringer of the school bell, he graduated to church bells, and at 12 rang the bell of Old St. John's Anglican church. Early in the 1920's he decided to become a carillonneur, and in 1927 he went to Belgium and studied under Jef Deyn, the world's most famous carillonneur, and toured Belgium, France and Holland studying the manufacture and installation of carillons. Since 1931 he has also been carillonneur of the bells of the Metropolitan church, which were the first to be established on the American continent.

original bell in the Old Tower of the oldest building of University College, which was melted in the Great Fire of 1890 which destroyed the building.

Also on the lower level, enclosed by wire netting, the giant pendulum of the clock can be seen swinging silently. Formerly equipped with a chime, the clock will remain silent for the duration of the war until replacements for defective parts can be imported from England.

A second spiral stairway leads to the upper level where the bells are housed. From the upper level, a ladder, surmounted by a trap-door, leads through the roof, from which a remarkable view of all parts of the city can be obtained. Particularly striking is the array of towers and roof-tops of University College, directly to the south.

Above the arch is situated the muniment room, which is approached by means of a staircase from the door on the south side, between the tower and Hart House. In the muniment room, various documents can be found, tracing the history of the university in the war.

Coming to his main point, the rights of man, Professor Hocking said that right is the repudiation of possible wrongs, therefore, the idea of rights is the discovery of the kernel that makes a wrong, wrong. He continued that Christianity triumphed over the Stoic conception, because it was not philanthropic in dealing with wrongs. It tended to lack interest in human suffering and to think only of the soul.

IN OUR CRUSADE against things that must stop, we have exposed some horrible miscarriages of justice. Sel-dom, however, have we been so seething with indignation as we were when we heard this one. It seems that a student wished to register in a special course, the fee for which was two dollars. He strode into the Bursar's office and dived into his jeans for the requisite sixteen bits. . . . But he was a student, and therefore broke. He was turning away with a sigh of relief, deciding he didn't want to take the old course anyway, when in strolled the professor who was to conduct the course. "Good morning," giggles the prof. "I'll lend you two bucks, if you want." . . . And coolly led the sheep back to the slaughter. . . . THIS SORT OF THING MUST STOP.

*I look her to a night club,
I look her to a show,
I look her almost everywhere
A boy and girl could go,
I look her out to lead,
I look her out to lead,
Then suddenly I realize
That she'd been taking me.*

OUR WHITNEY HALL SCOUT was explaining to us the other evening the meaning of some of the weird and wonderful phraseology of the girls in the St. George St. Diggins. . . . This will be old stuff for them, but for the rest of us illiterate we have prepared the following glossary. . . . IT BESEKES ME: It annoys me.

perturb me; it puts me into a state of pleasurable excitement.

BIRD (either verb or noun): To snub the cut direct. As in "He birded me" or "There were birds flying all around".

STARK: Unclothed; raving mad; extremely angry.

BUNDLE: A nervous creature; one given to some minor nervous habit such as pencil-chewing. Probably derived from the expression "A bundle of nerves".

COPE: Get along in life. As in "How are you coping today?"

JUST A DOLL: Anything that is too, too peacky, as a movie, a pair of pajamas, a date.

—EROO: Stuff of superlative connotation. As in "It's a stinkeroo of a day".

—OLAS: Similar stuff used interchangeably with the above. As in "That's a smooth garbala" (A nice dress) or "Pass the rollas".

Life is real and life is earnest;
We must strive to do our best;
And departing leave behind us

let's go places

An old plot formula has been taken off the shelf and given to Marlene Dietrich in "Seven Sinners", now at the Imperial Theatre. It concerns the fortunes of a rather loose lady of the tropics who sings for a living, and manages to get deported from practically every island in the South Seas.

Frankly, this picture is a lemon from start to finish. The story is old and so is Miss Dietrich. She still drips glamour at every opportunity but it doesn't fizz as it did in 1927. She still sings in that low throaty voice, and our only reaction was the desire to offer her a cough drop, or send her Major Bowes' telephone number.

Not even the competent performances of Oscar Homolka, Broderick Crawford and Mischa Auer can save the production. Continuity is hopelessly ragged and this show contains the worst example of editing to come out of Hollywood this year. John Wayne, our hero, does not help matters in the slightest. He looks completely lost without his horse.

"London Can Take It" is the war film that is running concurrently in all downtown movie theatres this week. This film is a quiet, simple description of London life today from dusk to dawn. For sheer power and dramatic content, this film has everything. The simplicity of Quentin Reynolds' commentary only serves to heighten the emotional quality of the film. This is undoubtedly one of the best shots concerning the war thus far produced.—F.S.

VIC DRAMA SOCIETY TO PRESENT ONE-ACT PLAY

Tomorrow afternoon at five the Victoria College Dramatic Society are presenting Ralph Johnson's "Heaven on Earth" as their second one-act play in the current University Drama Committee series in Hart House Theatre.

The plot concerns the unexpected reaction of parents to their daughter's plan to go away alone with an eccentric young man. "The plot has endless possibilities," claim the directors.

Mary Campbell is to play "Jill", the glib daughter, John Mantley is cast as "Adrian", the unconventional young man and Barbara McNabb and Bryce Wilson play the amazing parents. The production is being directed by Doug Harris and Bob Miller.

Hey, skin and bones! . . . do yourself a favour. No, not fermented yeast. This plan works quick. You can have yourself in GOOD SHAPE for that dance a week Saturday night, if you work fast. This is no gag. It's a fact. You can get yourself a double-breasted draple model suit from Sovereign Custom Tailors, located just ten minutes south of the Campus, at 217 Richmond Street West. Once you get yourself on the inside of a suit of Sovereign Clothes, every time you look in the mirror, you'll think that Johnny Weismuller stepped in between you and the glass. Sorry we can't do much about that face, you'll have to see Helena on Bloor Street about that. But, for the best suit of clothes you ever had — at $10. less than you paid for your last suit — just visit the Factory-Showroom of SOVEREIGN CUSTOM TAILORS 217 Richmond Street West—

Special Convocation Held For Governor-General

MEDICAL EXAM

Those members of the Auxiliary Battalion who, upon examination by the medical board, have been placed in a low category will be notified as to what procedure they are to follow in regard to military training. In the meantime they are required to attend parades as usual until further notice.

W.U.A. Fetes Newcomers

Girls of Physical Training Course, Exchange Students and Freshies to be Guests of Executive

CLUBS TO BE DESCRIBED

Members of the W.U.A. Council will be assisted as hostesses at a "get-acquainted" tea to be held in the Women's Union at 4.30 today, by the year executives and the presidents of the U.C. clubs. Their guests will be the girls of the new Physical Training course, the exchange students who are newcomers to U.C., and "some freshies who were not at the House Party," according to Mary Bruck, president of the W.U.A.

Several purposes will be served by this informal tea. The year executives and the presidents of the U.C. clubs will have a chance to meet the W.U.A. executive and to discuss with them matters of common interest. The function of the W.U.A. will be explained and presidents of the societies will be introduced to the newcomers.

The uninitiated will then have an opportunity to get information on the activities in which they would like to participate. This should be of particular importance to the Physical Training girls, who have just had their course affiliated with University College.

ANGUS SPEAKS TO S.C.M. AT NOON IN HART HOUSE

"The professional man gets his ways of thinking from his work, and he should be able to use them in his church life just as he does in the society he usually works in." That was the gist of what Prof. R. W. Angus of Mechanical Engineering had to say when interviewed yesterday about the talk he is to give S.C.M. men at 1.30 today in Hart House, music room. As posted his subject is "An Engineer Looks at the Church," and he emphasized the fact that he is going to speak as an engineer, not as a professor.

Fisher To Feature Brain Waves At Biology Club Session To-Night

Why do we skip lectures? Why do we hate to get up in the morning, and more important, why do we hate to go to bed early at night? In fact, why do we do anything at all? These questions and many others may be cleared up at the Biology Club meeting at Wynilwood on Wednesday, during the discussion of "Brain Waves".

The speaker will be Dr. K. C. Fisher, honorary president of the club, who intends to shed some light on the subject of what goes on (if anything) within the little gray cells in our brains.

It seems that there is a reason for every thought that flits through our head from day to day spurring us on to greater deeds. Since that day, many decades ago when the first vertebrate decided to begin life on land, we have

Princess Alice and Members of Vice-Regal Suite will inspect Guard of Honour of C.O.T.C. in Front of Simcoe Hall

CHEERING BY STUDENTS

Arrangements have been completed for the special convocation to be held Friday for the purpose of conferring the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on His Excellency, the Governor-General.

Princess Alice and members of the vice-regal suite will accompany His Excellency when he arrives at Simcoe Hall to be officially welcomed by the president of the university, the chairman of the Board of Governors and their wives, and Lt.-Col. Madill, O.C. of the Canadian Officers' Training Corps with Mrs. Madill.

His Excellency will receive the royal salute and will inspect a guard of honour provided by the C.O.T.C., which will be drawn up in front of the main entrance to Simcoe Hall.

Organized cheering will feature the ceremony in Convocation Hall, the students giving the Toronto yell under the supervision of appointed cheer-leaders when the procession reaches the platform.

BELIEF IN BIBLE IS NOON-HOUR TOPIC

Simmonds Leads Discussion in Hart House while Mrs. Woods Discourses at Women's Union

SECOND IN SERIES

"Can we still believe in the Bible?" will be the subject of a talk to be given by the Rev. E. L. Simmonds, M.A., B.D., when he speaks at the second in a series of noon-hour meetings tomorrow at 1.30 p.m. in Hart House. Mr. Simmonds is a graduate of Wycliffe College. Well versed in the original Scriptures, he obtained his M.A. in Oriental Languages. He was president of the V.C.F. in the year 1935-36.

A meeting to consider this same question will be held simultaneously in the Women's Union. The speaker will be Mrs. C. S. Woods, B.A., wife of Stacey Woods, Dominion General Secretary of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

In 1937 Mrs. Woods won the McCaul Gold Medal in Classics; entering the university with four scholarships in Classics, she was first in her course each year with first-class honours, and secured an additional scholarship during each of the four years of her course.

had a gradual development of the nervous system, and especially the brain, the peak being reached in man himself.

"Brain Waves" which are really waves of electrical activity continuously recurring in the nervous system, are associated with the absence or presence of stimuli from the eyes, temperature, sleep and hypnosis, and have even been compared to fingerprints as regards their individuality. Imagine having your brain waves recorded instead of your fingerprints during national registration!

Dr. Fisher hopes to be able to demonstrate the action potentials (do we make ourselves clear?) of voluntary muscle and the heart, and will have sample brain wave records available for examination.

ANGUS TO RECEIVE HONORS IN NEW YORK FROM U.S. ENGINEERS

Professor of Mechanical Engineering to Receive Honorary Membership in Society of Mechanical Engineers

MEMBERSHIP LIMITED

Professor R. W. Angus, professor of Mechanical Engineering at the University of Toronto, will have an honorary membership in the American Society of Mechanical Engineers conferred upon him at the annual meeting of the society next month in New York, President H. J. Cody announced yesterday.

This society demands the highest grade of technical skill as a qualification for membership and with its 14,000 members is the largest National American Engineering Society. The fact that there are only nineteen honorary members makes the honour to be conferred on Professor Angus an especially gratifying one to all his friends.

Three years ago the Engineering Institute of Canada, our National Engineering Society, conferred a similar honour on Professor Angus.

HART HOUSE RECITAL

There will be no recital this week at 5 p.m. in the music room of Hart House. The next will be held on Friday, 22nd November.

Varsity Managing Editor Leaves To Join Air Force

Norman Altstedter, Modern History IV, Third to Represent Varsity on Canadian Active Service Force

FORMER FOLLIES' DIRECTOR

By Larry Smith

Norman J. Altstedter, managing editor of The Varsity and a fourth year Modern History student, leaves university today to join the Royal Canadian Air Force, to which he had applied for admission last summer.

Entering university in the fall of 1937 after matriculating from North Toronto Collegiate Institute, Norm found his way as a freshman into the Hart House office of The Varsity. From then on Baldwin House and the newspaper office ran a close contest to decide which would become his headquarters, but he successfully combined the two. He started as a reporter, turning in a story every day, and sometimes several. The following year he acted for a short while as assistant news editor, and last year he served as assistant managing editor.

Since the first issue this fall, Norm has acted as managing editor, one of the most arduous and most responsible positions on the paper. The mechanical functioning of the undergraduate newspaper has been his responsibility, entailing a nightly appearance of from three to six hours at the Press, with the average closer to the latter figure. With one exception, Norm has served longer on the staff than any present member.

Altstedter enrolled in the modern history course with the purpose of preparing himself for a career in journalism. Last summer he spent four months with The Canadian Press doing feature and rewrite work in the Toronto bureau. Apart from this Norm did considerable reportorial work for Canadian Press and had the big assignment of covering the Canadian National Ex-

ARNOLD DISCUSSES HISTORY OF WALTZ WITH TEUTONIC CLUB

Plan of Teutonic Club, as Described by President, to Include Study of Scandinavian Culture as well as German

ONCE PEASANT DANCE

The emergence of the waltz from obscurity as a peasant dance to acceptance in polite society and its cultivation by Johann Strauss was the theme of the address delivered by Dr. Arnold, head of the German department in Victoria College, at the Teutonic Club last night.

In tracing the history of the waltz, Dr. Arnold explained that in the eighteenth century the cultured people were interested only in figure dances such as the minuet, in which a definite number of people took part. They were horrified by the vulgar peasant style in which people actually paired up as partners.

On opening the meeting, Jim Weld, the president of the Teutonic Club, explained that the club was designed for the purpose of making a close study of all forms of Teutonic and Scandinavian culture. The president said that in previous years, German and Austrian cultures had been considered, but this year, the club hopes to study all German cultures.

Following refreshments, Dr. Arnold gave a practical demonstration of the way in which the waltz should be performed.

Professor Loudon Leaves For Ottawa Appointment

Wide-Eyed In Gotham

By Reuben Frank
(A Canadian University Press Feature)

After The Tumult

(Political opinions expressed in this column are still those of the writer, as are all such personal opinions, "What a good boy am I!")

New York: As you read, the election we have just had down here is nothing more than a vague memory, but as I write, it is the day after. Returns are still incomplete, although there is not the slightest doubt of the outcome. The air is charged with excitement, and the streets littered with literature. It is impossible to think of anything else, to talk of anything else, to write of anything else but the presidential election.

I am now typing with my left hand, having sprained my right elbow patting myself on the back. Now that the election is over, let us look at the record, as Al Smith used to say (and look what happened to him). Gallup gave Willkie 18 states; Pathfinder (which was 100 per cent correct in '36) gave him 29; Dunn survey also gave him 29; Reuters gave him 14; Wide-Eyed in Gotham gave him five, and according to latest returns he got nine. (I hope this isn't boring you: I'm enjoying it hugely.) Gallup gave Willkie 193 electoral votes; Hurja's Pathfinder allotted him 363; Dunn—the poll that picked Landon—counted 368 Republican electoral votes and Reuters estimated 165. Wide-Eyed in Gotham gave Willkie 53 electoral votes, and as it stands at the time of writing he got 65.

Of course, we weren't absolutely correct, and we did make some horrible blunders in our estimate, like saying Willkie would carry Pennsylvania. But we are not in the business. Actually, Messrs. Dunn, Hurja and even Gallup are no longer—but we never were. Kansas, Indiana, South Dakota and Iowa double-crossed us and went Willkie, as everyone else said they would. But we were close.

May we quote from three Wide-Eyeds in Gotham ago, "... it is going to be a landslide... Willkie must stand or fall by his reputation in business. And it is my opinion that he is going to fail. ... To the people in the know, (Continued on Page 4)

W.S.T.D. Delight Corporal Purser With Platoon's Diagonal March

Corporal Purser, D.C.M., who was in charge of drill of the Women's War Service Detachment on the Trinity backfield yesterday, expressed satisfaction with the way the girls are getting on in their drilling. In supervising the teaching of the new command, the diagonal march, Corporal Purser warned the girls that it was most important to "watch their dressing" in carrying out this order.

Later the girls marched into the Varsity Arena to receive further pointers on certain details of the drill.

Corp. Purser told the girls that they were now practicing squadron or platoon drill, leading up to company drill. He pointed out that this type of drill
